In the morning Tom was not so chatty as usual, and Mabel did not say anything to indicate that she had heard him moving in the night. At 10 o'clock she was about to start for the office of the late Miss Longwell's lawyer to ask his advice about a safe place for the jewels when she saw Tom go out before her. She kept behind him, his way lying the same as hers. Presently he turned into a building in which she knew Archibald Longwell had an office. She hurried on and was just in time to see Tom go into Longwell's office. Tom's interest in the jewels was explained. He was acting for the heir-at-law.

Tom Clarkenwell reported to his employer that he could not find the jewels, and Longwell changed his plans. He decided upon proposing a settlement of the question between himself and Mabel by an offer of marriage. This was carrying out a plan that had been proposed by Miss Longwell and declined by the nephew. Indeed, he had never failed to snub his aunt's protegee when an opportunity occurred.

In the afternoon a note came from Longwell to Mabel with his proposition. Mabel had been to her aunt's attorney, and he had agreed to call for the diamonds after office hours that evening, keep them in his safe overnight and place them with a safe deposit company the next morning. Mabel wrote a reply to Longwell, inviting him to take tea with her that evening.

When Longwell read this invitation he considered the game won. It was plain the girl was inclined to accept him, but it might not be necessary for him to marry her. Once in her confidence he might secure possession of the property.

Mr. Longwell called at the hour appointed, and Mabel invited him into the tea room. He attempted a lover's demeanor, but was somewhat chilled by the lady's coolness. She entertained him rather with dainty eatables than with words. While they were at tea the door bell rang, and Tom, who went to the door, announced the attorney.

"By the bye, Mr. Longwell," said Mabel, "I want you to taste some bread of my own making." Taking up a loaf beside her, she cut it through the middle, revealing an old stocking. "This goes to the gentleman in the other room," she said, opening the stocking sufficiently to reveal a few of the jewels it contained. "As for the bread, I'll divide it with you. Half a loaf is better than none, they say." And, handing the bread to Longwell, she carried the jewels to the man waiting for them.

It did not take Longwell many minutes to see that he had been snubbed, and as soon as he could he beat a retreat. Mabel won her case. The diamonds were sold for $150,000, and she married a man with as much more.

FOR THE CHILDREN

The Vain Rooster.

Old Jimmie Grice had a rooster which he loved better than anything else in the world. The rooster also loved himself better than anything else in the world—roosters always do. When the rooster got one of his feet frozen old Jimmie made him a wooden leg, and he strutted around full of pride, believing that no other rooster in the country was as fine as he, for no other had a wooden leg.

Colonel Shelton, a neighbor of Mr. Grice, passing one day, stopped to chat. "Well, well! That's a great chicken you've got there," he commented, and the rooster puffed himself out with pride to hear him say so. "Got a wooden leg. Why don't you get him a set of false teeth?"

Mr. Grice laughed, but the rooster took it seriously. He knew he had no teeth. He knew that Mr. Grice also had no teeth of his own, but that he wore a set of false teeth, and he drooped and pined for those false teeth till his kind hearted owner attempted to make him some.

How he managed, what material he used, I can't say, but he finally got something done which the rooster could put in his mouth without choking to death. All day the proud, vainglorious rooster strutted up and down, the admiration of all the hens in the neighborhood, but by night he was faint with hunger, for, alas and alas, he could eat nothing at all with his false teeth in! He was ashamed to complain, and he wore them like a hero till he wasted away and was finally found under the roost one morning stiff and dead—the victim of his own vanity.

The New Overcoat.

I gotter overcoat, I have! A real one, an' brand new!
My ma she buyed it at a store; its color is dark blue,
An' it's got buttons made of gold 'at shine jest like th' sun,
An' I can wear it every day. Oh, gee, but I have fun!
Ma got it all fer me, an' it
Ain't brother Bob's "cut down to fit."

I gotter overcoat, I have! It's warm as any toast;
I wear it when I go to school an' when I skate or coast,
An' all the other boys, they say: "Oh, lookee! Here comes Jim.
He's gotter overcoat that fits; it must feel strange to him!"
For it's the first one, don't you see,
Bought specially an' jest for me.

I gotter overcoat, I have! When ma sends me to bed
I take it, too, an' lay it on th' piller by my head
So when I wake I can reach out an' touch it with my hand
An' know it wasn't jest a dream; that makes a boy feel grand!
The boys at school can't say this coat
Is old enough to walk or vote!

I gotter overcoat, I have, an' when I get to be
A man an' marry Bessie Jones, my children, you will see,
Won't hafter wear each other's clothes.
Most ev'ry week I'll say:
"Go buy yourselves jest what you want; throw those ole things away!"
I bet they'll think I'm awful good.
If pa said that to me I would!

Blindfold Fun.

An amusing sport for a party is to make a number of tissue paper bags, say one apiece, and fill them with candy, nuts or raisins. Fill one or two of them with flour instead of those things. Tie them up with ribbons and hang them on the chandeliers or doorways. Then blindfold each person in turn and let each one try to find a bag and break it open with a stick or cane. If she succeeds the contents of the bag are hers. If it should be the flour she will get covered with that and be laughed at for her pains.

The best part of this is that no one knows who is going to knock the ones filled with flour, as after they are blindfolded each person must be turned around and around until she doesn't have any idea in which direction she is going. So, even if she knew where the bags of flour were hanging, she couldn't tell whether she was going toward one or not. Better still, have some one who is not going to try hang up the bags.

Greatest Clock Ever Made.

Before next spring the greatest clock in the world will have the finishing touches put upon it in Milwaukee, Wis. It is being constructed for the St. Louis exposition. The dial will be 120 feet in diameter. It is unique in other ways, for it is to consist of a bed of flowers. The numerals marking the various hours will be fifteen feet in length and made of bright coleus, a dense foliage plant with red leaves. In a broad circle surrounding the dial will be twelve flower beds, one opposite each hour. These will be of various flowers, each selected so that the blossoms will open at the particular hour it represents and at no other. In this way both the hands of the clock and the flowers will tell the time of day. At night the timepiece will be illuminated with 2,000 incandescent lamps. To florists, if not to the general public, this will be one of the most interesting features of the exposition.

Meant Good Dinners.

"Are you glad to see me, Willie?" asked the minister as he took the pride of the family on his knee.

"Yeth, thir," lisped the little fellow.

"Why are you glad to see me?" asked the good man.

"Becauth," answered Willie, "when you vithit uth we alfayth have a good dinner."

Dog's Keen Scent.

A sensitive dog will follow the track of a man who is wearing his master's boots and will reject the track of his master if he has on strange boots.

HE WON THE BET

[Original.]

Miss Sunderland, because I am a scholar, considers me very stupid about practical matters. She says my field is Greek poetry and if I undertook to raise cabbages I would find the work far beyond my abilities. She says she doesn't know how I'll ever get a wife; I'll be too much taken up with my studies to discover any woman's preference for me.

To this I demurred, whereupon she offered to bet me a handsome copy of Æschylus against a silver bangle that when the girl in question appeared I would not recognize her feeling for me. I told her that if the event were not so far distant I would bet, to which she replied that she knew a girl who would give her head to get me. This puzzled me. We made a bet that I wouldn't find out who the girl is in a month's time.

* * * * * * * *

I think I shall win the bet. Last evening at the library I met Miss Lorena Philbrick, who is taking a postgraduate course. She seems much interested in Greek literature and asked me to tell her the circumstances that led to the battle of Marathon. I was interrupted in what I said about it by Charlie Dean calling for her to take her home, and she said she wished he had stayed away. It's singular how a man can force himself on a woman who doesn't like him.

* * * * * * * *

Sara Sunderland is a queer girl. I met her this afternoon crossing the campus, coming upon her suddenly. She blushed. I suspect Sara of trying to make a match between me and Lorena. That's why she made the bet. I wish Lorena were trying to make a match between me and Sara. That would suit me first rate. No such luck.

* * * * * * * *

For three evenings in succession I have met Sara Sunderland. At twenty minutes after 6 I leave the supper room. Invariably as I get to the corner half a dozen doors from Sara's home she comes out and walks ahead of me. She doesn't see me or I would think she had some motive. When I catch up with her she appears very much surprised. This evening, as we walked together, I told her that I thought I had discovered the girl we were betting about. She looked up at me anxiously. I do believe she would feel very bad should I make an unfortunate match. She asked me who the girl was, and I said I would not name her unless it turned out I had hit the right one. She didn't say anything for some time, then asked if it was Mary Parke. I said no. She then named every girl in town till she came to Lorena Philbrick. Of course I couldn't lie about it, and I acknowledged that it was she. Sara wouldn't tell me if I had hit the right girl, but she didn't seem so disturbed as before, so I suppose she approves of Lorena. Perhaps I'm not such a fool after all, even if I do lecture on Greek literature.

* * * * * * * *

At the regatta yesterday everybody seemed to take pains to leave me with Sara Sunderland. Wonder if they did it intentionally and why. When we got into the boats to pull down to the center of the course, where our party were to see the race, Sara got into a boat by herself, and the men were rude enough to leave her there alone. If I hadn't got in with her she would have been deserted. Then there was Lorena Philbrick obliged to go with Charlie Dean, though she doesn't seem to like him. She gave me a sweet smile and asked when I would give her the rest of the battle of Marathon. I caught her exchanging looks with Sara. Wonder what they are up to.

When we were pulling home Sara asked me if I thought I would win the bet. I told her that depended upon whether I had struck the right girl in Lorena, as I had not noticed any one else taking a special interest in me. Sara looked down into the water, in which she was trailing her hand. "Not any one else at all?" she asked. "No one," I answered. "I'll give you a pointer," she said. "The first letter of her first name doesn't begin with L. It begins with S." I thought a long while. "I don't know anybody whose name fits to that letter," I said, "except you, and of course you don't count." That seemed to make her angry for a few moments; then she quieted down again and said: "I think we'd better draw that bet. I wouldn't feel like winning from so stupid a man." She sulked all the way home. So did I. I'm tired of being called stupid.

* * * * * * * *

I met Jackson this afternoon. He was just coming from his lecture room. "How d' do, professor?" he said. "I hear the engagement of Charlie Dean and Laura Philbrick is out at last, though everybody has known it for months. When will you announce yours with Miss Sunderland? We're all expecting it. By by."

Now, that's the most singular thing I ever heard. Funny that it should be just what I wish. If people are reporting me engaged to her I must have some chance. I have it. I'll name her as the girl we've been betting about. What a joke!

* * * * * * * *

I've won the bet. This evening I said to Sara Sunderland: "I name you as the girl who"— Somehow I couldn't get any further. "I mean I am the man who"— "You're not so stupid after all," she said, and her head fell on my shoulder. And so I'm engaged—all through a misunderstanding. (God bless the misunderstanding.) People who think we bookworms don't know anything sometimes get fooled.

Rufus Choate and Justice Shaw.

Rufus Choate was sitting next to Judge Hoar in the bar when Chief Justice Shaw was presiding and the Suffolk docket was being called. The chief justice said something which led Mr. Choate to make a half humorous and half displeased remark about Shaw's roughliness of look and manner, to which Judge Hoar replied, "After all, I feel a reverence for the old chief justice." "A reverence for him, my dear fellow?" said Choate. "So do I. I bow down to him as the wild Indian does before his wooden idol. I know he's ugly, but I bow to a superior intelligence."—George F. Hoar in Scribner's Magazine.

The Way to Float.

This is the advice of an old swimmer to those who cannot swim: "Any human being who will have the presence of mind to clasp the hands behind his back and turn the face toward the zenith may float at ease and in perfect safety in tolerably still water. When you first find yourself in deep water you have only to consider yourself an empty pitcher. Let your mouth and nose, and not the top of your heavy head, be the highest part of you and you are safe. But thrust up one of your bony hands and down you go—turning up the handle tips over the pitcher." There are reason and logic in this.

Tolerance.

Tolerance is a calm, generous respect for the opinions of others, even of one's enemies. Tolerance is silent justice blended with sympathy. Tolerance always implies wisdom and kindness. It seeks to convert others from error by gently raising them to higher ordeals, by leading them to broader lines of thinking, by patiently helping them to help themselves. Tolerance does not use the battering ram of argument or the club of sarcasm or the rapier of ridicule.—Selected.

VOL. VI—NO. 42. RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, JULY 21, 1904. WHOLE NO. 302.

MRS. THOMAS CORNO DEAD.

Funeral is Held From St. Joseph's Saturday Morning.

Mrs. Thomas Corno, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joachim Rose of Red Lake Falls township, after a ten days' illness. The remains were brought to Red Lake Falls and the funeral held from St. Joseph's church on Saturday.

Mrs. Corno was born December 7, 1876, at Chatham, Ontario, and in 1887 moved to Red Lake Falls with her parents. She was married to Thomas Corno April 6, 1897, and leaves four children, the eldest six years of age and the youngest an infant of two weeks. She is well known to the Red Lake Falls people as a dutiful wife and mother, and there is universal sorrow at her demise.

CLEAN SWEEP OF BUTTER PRIZE.

Minnesota Had Big Lead in World's Fair Contest.

The state dairy and food commission has received from the authorities at the St. Louis exposition a list of the scores made by the Minnesota buttermakers who captured the first prize at the first butter-scoring contest. The list shows that three Minnesota buttermakers scored 98.50 a score reached by no other state in the Union; two got 98.25, and of the four buttermakers scoring 98 two are from Minnesota, one from Wisconsin and one from Illinois. Four buttermakers of this state scored 97.50, the highest score reached by Iowa.

Minnesota buttermakers got two-thirds of the ninety-three scores that were 95 or above. The North Star State won the highest average score, the highest individual score and tied with two other states on the third highest score.

BUY AT HOME.

Beware of the Slick Salesman of Out of Town Cheap Concerns.

Several of our exchanges are warning their neighbors against the traveling grocery agents and peddlers who go through the country and urging their wares upon the farmers. In a few instances they offer articles at what seems a low price, but what they offer for sale as a whole is far above what the same goods can be bought for at each county seat. A good plan for our farmer friends is to get a set of figures from their home dealers of what they can buy for cash in lots of one, five or ten dollars and keep it by them and then compare it with these fellows when they come around. Of the storekeeper in Red Lake Falls you do not have to add any freight to your purchases and you have the opportunity to inspect the goods as they are done up or to bring them back if they are not satisfactory. When your money is given over to these slick traveling fellows or your order is taken by them, your are in for a lot of cheap goods and then have to pay freight besides. Post yourselves before you buy.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Even when it's harder to be bad then good there is more fun in it.

A man considers himself a genius when he writes poetry that he can't sell for money.

After a man has run for office once, when you shake hands with him he holds one of his hands over his watch pocket.

It is just as well to let a woman have her full say in an argument or she will wake you up in the middle of the night and tell you another reason she had just thought of.

GARDEN SPOT OF THE WORLD.

Red River Valley Impresses Dr. A. A. Holcombe.

Dr. A. A. Holcombe of the United States bureau of animal industry, who is investigating diseases among domestic animals in Minnesota, called at the office of Dr. S. H. Ward of the live stock sanitary board at St. Paul, having returned from a month's trip through the Red River valley. Dr. Holcombe says that stock in the valley is in excellent condition, considering the excessive cold weather last winter.

"The cattle in the Red River valley are a little thinner than usual, perhaps on account of the severe winter, but pasturage is excellent and conditions seem to indicate a prosperous year for the stock industry. I was greatly impressed with the fertility of the soil and agricultural conditions generally in the valley, and I believe that in a few years it will be known as one of the garden spots of the world.

"The Red River valley is a principality in itself, being more than a hundred miles long and as level as a table. In the valley are some of the finest agricultural lands in the country. I shall venture to predict that Crookston, a city of 10,000 inhabitants, in a comparatively few years will have at least 50,000 people, and that other places in the valley will experience a similar growth.

Ought Not Forget.

Perham Enterprise: Ex-Senator Johnson delivered the 4th of July oration at Red Lake Falls this year, and the COURIER of that city says it was the best ever delivered in Red Lake county. The Red Lake people ought to recognize the name "Johnson" when they see it at the head of the Democratic state ticket next November.

MRS. JAMES McCAFFREY.

Death of a Red Lake County Woman at Wabasha.

St. Thomas (N. D.) Times: Mrs. James McCaffrey died at Wabasha, Minn., Monday, July 11, from internal cancer, after an illness of several months. For some time prior to last November she had been suffering from cancer, and went to St. Paul in the hope of being relieved by an operation. The surgeon, however, refused to operate, and she went to her former home at Wabasha, where she received X-ray treatment. She seemed to improve under this treatment and strong hopes of recovery were entertained until about three weeks ago, when she grew worse and sank rapidly until death relieved her of suffering.

The deceased, Mary Ann Leonard, was born at Portageville, New York, January 21, 1854. Her parents removed to Lake City, Minn., nine years later and there she grew to womanhood. On January 1, 1873, she was united in marriage to James McCaffery. In April of 1882 she removed with her husband and children to this county, Mr. McCaffery taking up a claim a short distance from this city. Later the family removed to this city and resided here until January, 1901, when St. Hilaire, Minn., was selected as a place of residence. Mrs. McCaffery was a woman of high principles and strong character. She was a devout member of the Roman Catholic church and as a friend and neighbor always loyal and true.

The body was brought to this city Wednesday noon, the funeral occuring at the Roman Catholic church immediately on the arrival of the train. The services were deeply impressive being conducted by Father Sevigny, assisted by Father Arsenault, the latter preaching an appropriate sermon.

High mass was said for the repose of her soul Thursday morning. The interment took place in the Catholic cemetery, the body being followed to its last resting place by a large number of sorrowing friends.

Besides her husband there are left to mourn her loss two daughters, Mrs. C. W. Doran, of Montgomery, Minn., and Miss Teressa, and two sons Hugh and Joseph.

Good Drainage Needed.

The Freeborn County Times hits the nail on the head when it said: "In working on the road, it should never be forgotten that the one all-important thing is to get perfect drainage. It is water, not travel or wind or anything else that plays havoc with the highways. A road built at such a slope and of such material and kept so level and smooth that it will shed at once all water that falls on it will always be in good condition. That is the ideal road, and while it is not possible to make all our highways perfect at once, yet it is possible to keep the ideal road in mind and to build in such a way that each year will find our roads more perfect."

McINTYRE IN LINE.

Summer School Conductor May Land Good Job.

Prof. E. E. McIntyre, of the Crookston schools and conductor of the Red Lake county summer schools, is being spoken of very favorably by the press of the state for the position of state superintendent of instruction, a position which pays a salary of $3,500 per year and is much sought after by instructors from all portions.

The St. Paul Dispatch last week contained a very interesting laudatory article concerning Mr. McIntyre's candidacy and the chances which he holds of securing the position. According to the article in the Dispatch Mr. McIntyre is in line for the position and nothing short of a political miracle can result in the position going to some other candidate.

Bryan a Powerful Factor.

Adrian Democrat: Despite the fact that Bryan did not dominate the Democratic national convention he was certainly a powerful factor in its deliberations. Never was his oratory more superb nor his wonderful ability as a debater more admired. He was easily the greatest figure at St. Louis, the most gifted man in the convention. He has announced that he will support the ticket nominated and his work in the campaign will be worth thousands of votes to the Democracy.

An Affectionate Husband.

Fairmont Sentinel: Sherburn boasts of a man, who though married fifteen years, kisses his wife every time he leaves home. Fairmont has a man who can beat that all hollow. Though married twenty years he kisses his wife every time he leaves home, besides kissing the hired girl every time his wife leaves home, and would kiss his neighbor's wife if her husband was not always looking.

Aping Eastern Customs.

Adrian Democrat: The editor of an eastern paper remarks that "girls dress out of sight" in his town. Same here. Never in sight when engaged in that art.

The election resulted in the choice of A. P. Toupin and Samuel Allard to succeed themselves as members of the board, Mr. Toupin receiving 82 votes add Mr. Allard 68. Fifteen votes were cast for S. L. Lewis, who was not a candidate and we understand did not authorize the use of his name.

Soo Bridges Being Pushed.

Contracter G. E. Stowe, who has the contract for all the bridges and culverts for the Soo extention to Emerson from Glenwood says that from the reservation line there are 37 bridges included in the contract, and in addition to this there are numerous culverts. Several of the bridges are large ones, including the Sand Hill bridge 300 feet long which has been finished, the Lost River bridge 360 feet long, the Clearwater bridge, the Middle River bridge and the Thief River Falls bridge, the latter having three steel spans.

The piling for the Thief River bridge is about all in and work will commence at once on the superstructure. The work all along the line is being pushed though the wet weather has delayed the work to some extent.

IMAGINATION.

Instances Showing How It Has Made Well Men Sick.

The domination of imagination over the normal exercise of the faculties is no new idea. Samuel Rogers suffered from a violent cold from the effects of what he believed to be an open window at his back, which in reality was closed. An instance of this known to the medical faculty is more strange still. Two men stayed at a house in which an inmate had died of cholera. One man placed in the room in which the patient had died was in ignorance of what had occurred. He slept well and was no worse. The other, wrongly told that the room in which he slept was that in which the cholera patient had died, spent a night of mental agony and in the morning was actually found to be suffering from this complaint. He died of cholera.

A similar instance was mentioned the other day by a friend of the writer. Two London men stayed in the country at a house where scarlet fever was reported. One, an unimaginative, healthy minded fellow, awoke all right in the morning. The other, a nervous, sensitive man, was very ill—had not slept and had broken out into a terrible rash which both declared to be scarlet fever. A wire to a London medical man was dispatched, and by the first train he hurried down. The supposed fever patient proved to have no fever at all beyond an imaginary one. As a fact, there was no scarlet fever in the house, the case had been wrongly diagnosed, and the frightened visitor had tortured himself into a violent rash, all without cause.—St. James Gazette.

BASKET BALL.

An American Game With No Uncertainty as to Its Origin.

Basket ball as a recreative game is unique in its origin for two reasons: First, it is our one positively sure home American production; secondly, the name, date and place of its authorship are exactly known. Basket ball was born in the year 1891 at Springfield, Mass., and its author was James Naismith. The story is short enough to be interesting. In that town is a training school connected with the Young Men's Christian association and of course professors, among them a professor of psychology, who is paid to teach the young ideas how to think effectively. In one of his lectures he called attention to certain conditions upon which the brain could with advantage be exercised and challenged his class to supply the requirements to meet them. The conditions were the invention of a new game which could be played indoors in a limited area by a defined and unalterable number of contestants and adaptable to both sexes. Upon this hypothesis one of his pupils, James Naismith, the same night evolved basket ball. It was put into practice the next day experimentally and found to meet the conditions and limitations laid down by the professor admirably. But it had more than an academic value, as its spread as one of our most appreciated pastimes attests.—Illustrated Sporting News.

Fooling the Colonel.

I doubt if the pranks of the present day subaltern are as pluckish as those of his predecessors. I can remember a story that went the rounds some years ago of a daring junior of the Grenadier guards who chaffed his colonel in a fashion that would not be tolerated today. But the colonel was not disposed to deal leniently with him. He kept unusually late, or rather early, hours, so one day an early parade was ordered unexpectedly, and five minutes before the hour the colonel rode past the culprit's quarters.

Cheerfully unconscious of impending doom, the latter leaned out of his bedroom window in the airy garments of sleep to say good morning. The colonel chuckled and rode on, but to his surprise at the stroke of time the subaltern stepped out on parade, fully dressed and all in order. He knew of the trap and had donned the looser garment over his uniform to take a rise out of his superior.—London Tatler.

Where Wives Are Pawned.

They have a curious way of utilizing wives and daughters in some parts of India. If a man wants money he puts these members of his establishment in pawn, and his creditor detains them until the debt is discharged. The custom varies in different localities. In Nellore the Yercalls pledge their daughters to creditors, who may either marry them or give them away, and a man who has to go to jail deposits his wife with another man of her tribe until his return. In North Arcot unmarried daughters are frequently mortgaged and become the absolute property of the mortgagee until liquidation.

BAKED APPLES.

The Way to Make a Convenient and Delicious Dessert.

The difference between apple sauce stewed quickly over the fire and that baked slowly for several hours in a moderate oven is so great that one could easily believe that different fruits had been used. Each method, if carefully followed, produces a delicious result, and, while some persons have a strong preference for one or the other, to my mind it is difficult to decide which is the better way. Therefore it is well to use both methods, cooking the first apples that come in midsummer by stewing, and later, when the cool days of early autumn make a fire less objectionable, trying the baking.

The dish for baking is as important as that for beans baked properly and also for Indian puddings, and should be the same in style and material. Cut the fruit (and you may use in this way any kind of apples or pears which are too green or hard to use uncooked) into quarters; then remove the cores and skins. Allow one cup of sugar and one-half cup of water to two quarts of fruit. The amount will vary with different apples, and it is important not to use too much sugar, for the long cooking seems to develop the natural sweetness of the fruit. Cover them closely and cook in a slow oven four or five hours or until they have a deep rich red color. If they cook too fast, the steam will cause them to burst and run over the edge and result in a mushy sauce, but a moderate heat, long continued, will leave each quarter distinct in the clear sirup. Let it cool in the pan and turn it out without any stirring of the fruit. This may be poured at once into sterilized jars and sealed the same as canned fruit, if you are not likely to use it all soon. As a sauce for a breakfast or dinner it is acceptable; with cream and hot biscuit for supper it is delicious, and as a filling for pastry shells it is convenient.—Home Science Magazine.

THE CAVE OF GHOSTS.

This Is One of the Wonder Places of New South Wales.

One of the curiosities of Oakley creek, N. S. W., is a cave which very few people care to enter. It is of the usual order of stalactite and stalagmite shapes and figures, but in order to get inside it the visitor must crouch down and squeeze himself through a narrow opening and grope his way in the inky darkness for a few yards till he can stand erect and light a torch.

As soon as he has done this he sees faintly the weird shapes assumed by the water dripping from the limestone and he hears a whirring noise. He feels inclined to make his exit at once, but he hears something moving all round him, and presently something touches him.

He concludes that there are uncanny spirits about, and this sensation is multiplied many times in intensity when on turning to retrace his steps he finds himself confronted by a tall, ghostly figure.

If the visitor has a strong nerve or has been forewarned, which is not always the case, he recognizes that the ghostly figure is a senseless block formed by the dripping from the limestone, and that the moving creatures are bats.

There is one part of the cave which no man has dared to explore. It is called the blowhole. One adventurous visitor was about to squeeze himself through this narrow aperture when it occurred to him to throw a stone through. He did so, listening for the stone to touch bottom, and the dull sound that finally reached him convinced him that there was a sheer drop of 200 feet on the other side of the blowhole.

Condensed For Four Days.

"There was a good old lawyer of the good old southern type," said a judge, "who had a most eloquent way of pleading. His brief for three days had been a marvel of classical allusion and legal erudition.

"The judge, however, became a trifle impatient and, as gently as he could, intimated that the docket was somewhat crowded, and it might be to the client's interest if the lawyer could contrive to end his plea. And, do you know, the old barrister declared that the last four days of his argument were a marvel of condensation."

BURNING A WIDOW.

The Story of a Witness of This Cruel Indian Custom.

I had the opportunity of seeing a young widow burn herself by the side of her deceased husband. The funeral pile was about ten feet high. In the middle of the pile lay her deceased husband, an old and miserable looking man. The devoted victim was a young creature about seventeen, dressed in white, with all her jewels on. There was a confused noise of singing and shouting, intermixed with the sound of tomtoms and at intervals the hollow and sonorous sound of gongs and trumpets. The priests and her friends crowded round her, all speaking to her at once, apparently to distract her attention and to prevent her shrinking at the last moment from sacrificing herself.

There was a small tank of water close to the funeral pile. They led her to this. I was very near her when I saw her quietly take the jewels from her ears, her nose, unclasp her gold bracelets as well as the bangles from her ankles and every ornament she had on, which were received by her relations.

She then stepped into the water, divested herself of her clothes of pure white and replaced them with clothes of a yellow color. She then performed her ablutions, came out of the water and, unassisted, walked three times round the pile, followed by the priests and her friends, who at this period appeared to be more urgent and loud in their discourse to her to distract her attention. She then, unassisted, mounted the pile; laid herself down by the side of her husband and put his head under her arm, turning herself toward him.

Then they sprinkled large quantities of oil and straw on the pile. The fatal fire was then applied, and amid loud shouts and while the fire reached her I distinctly heard her utter the words "Nirva! Nirva!"

I was very near her during the different parts of the ceremony and could have saved her life by merely touching her, as she would then have been defiled and would not have been permitted to have the honor of sacrificing herself.

But in saving her life I stood the chance of being torn to pieces, and I certainly should have been brought to a court martial for disobedience of orders, for the English in those days were strictly forbidden to meddle with the customs and prejudices of the natives.--Georg Ebers' "Memoirs."

PITH AND POINT.

In order to be popular forget to say a good deal.

Wisdom is always conceded to a rich man until he loses his riches.

Do not emphasize your own virtues by enlarging on the failings of others.

A safe way to judge a man is to ascertain just what friends he doesn't make.

A genius is a man who refuses to believe in the impossibilities of other people.

The claims to wisdom of owls and a multitude of men rest upon their looks, and nothing more.

To get rid of a bore ask him to repeat his longest and favorite story twice. Even he cannot stand that.

Only a smart man can conceal from a woman the fact that he isn't as smart as he would wish her to think he is.

One of the curious things about a man who wants to borrow money from you today is his eager determination to repay it tomorrow.

There are three stages in the existence of the average man when he is of particular interest to his community—viz, at his birth, marriage and funeral. —Success.

Another Way Out.

In one of Glasgow's finely laid out cemeteries a rich citizen, who was notorious as a skeptic, had erected a massive mausoleum on what he terms "his ancestral plot." One day he met a worthy elder of the kirk coming away from the vicinity of the imposing mass of masonry, so he said to him, "Weel, Dauvit, ye've been up seein' that gran' erection o' mine?"

"Deed, hiv I, sir."

"Gey strong place that, isn't it? It'll tak' a man a' his time tae raise out o' yon at the day o' judgment."

"Hoot, ma mon," said David, "ye can gie yerself little fash aboot risin' gin that day comes. They'll tak' the bottom oot of o't tae let ye fa' doon."—Spare Moments.

Forestalling Trouble.

Sam Tate at one time owned a big cotton plantation on the Mississippi river. Once Tate called on the governor of Arkansas and said, "Governor, if you're not too busy this morning I'd like to have a pardon."

"Who for?"

"For myself."

"Ah, for yourself! And what for?"

"Killing a nigger."

"When did you kill him?"

"Oh, I haven't killed him yet—thought I'd get a pardon in advance, so there wouldn't be any trouble about it."

Publicity Has Its Disadvantages.

"You weather prophets make a great many mistakes," said the man who sneers.

"Yes," answered the observer, "and if other people had all their mistakes published in the daily papers as we do I suspect that our record would seem pretty good."—Washington Star.

Red Lake Indian Reservation Homesteads

February 20th, 1904, Congress passed a bill authorizing the opening for settlement of the ELEVEN TOWNSHIPS of the Red Lake Indian Reservation which are situated in Red Lake County. These lands will be thrown open for settlement within the next four months.

These lands will be disposed of to the highest bidder, and cannot be sold for less than $4 per acre. A payment of one-fifth of the purchase price in cash will be required, and the balance divided in five equal annual payments, without interest.

We have secured a limited number of copies of the Smiley map of Red Lake County and the Red Lake Indian Reservation. These maps are 28x38 inches, and show the grade and quality of each and every quarter-section of land in the portion of the Reservation to be opened for settlement; it gives the number of acres of timber and the kind of timber on each quarter. This map was compiled from the personal notes of Mr. Smiley and from the Government notes thereof. Everyone who intends to be present at the opening should have one of these maps, as it will save you the price of a locater's fee.

A PICNIC TRAIN IS DEMOLISHED

LADEN WITH SUNDAY SCHOOL CHILDREN IT IS WRECKED AT GLENWOOD, ILL.

Crashes Into Coal Cars, and Nineteen Women and Children Are Killed—About 85 More Are Injured.

Chicago, July 14.—Nineteen persons were killed, 28 seriously injured, and 59 others scratched and bruised at 6:55 o'clock Wednesday at Glenwood, Ill., when an excursion train of 11 coaches on the Chicago & Eastern Illinois railroad, bearing 654 members of Doremus Congregational chapel, crashed into a loaded coal train.

The excursion train left the picnic grounds at Momence, Ill., at six o'clock. The entire day had been spent at games and out-door pleasures, and the tired crowd of men, women and children was being hurried to their homes in the vicinity of the church at Thirty-first and Butler streets.

The engine, baggage car, and one passenger coach were crushed in the collision. All of the dead and most of the injured were in the first coach.

All of the dead and injured were placed on board special trains and brought to Chicago, arriving at Englewood station at midnight. The injured were removed to Englewood Union hospital, while the dead were taken to Thirty-Third street on the relief train, and from there removed to Perrigo's morgue, where several thousand anxious relatives crowded to look for their loved ones. The scenes attending the identification of the bodies and the receiving of the injured from the trains has seldom been equaled in Chicago.

The Cause.

Orders misunderstood, or negligence of the train crews, is believed to have been the cause. The excursion train, north bound, had been transferred to the south bound track, which was supposed to be clear. The engine of the excursion special plowed its way through the coal cars and them came to a stop with a terrific jar. The impact forced the baggage car back into the first coach, telescoping it and crushing the life out of those who were in the forward end of the car.

Rescue Work Begins.

The engine of the excursion train did not leave the track, and the engineer and fireman were uninjured. The engineer shut off steam, and in a moment the train crew was at work to assist the injured. Eleven coaches made up the special, and all of these were shattered, the breaking glass inflicting injuries to the occupants of the cars. The screams of women and children added to the confusion.

Train men and older passengers, who were uninjured, quickly extricated the injured, carried the bodies of the dead to the side of the track, and messages were sent to Chicago Heights and Glenwood asking for relief. Two trains were soon on the scene, both of them carrying surgeons and wrecking crews. Bonfires were lighted and the work of caring for those most seriously hurt was begun.

For ten minutes the confusion was at the highest pitch. Children were shrieking, distracted mothers were searching for their babes, and the horror of the scene was intensified as under the glare of the fire light the train crew moved the bodies of the dead from the debris.

Care for Wounded.

On the arrival of the first relief train from Chicago Heights the coaches were stripped of their cushions, field hospitals were hastily improvised and every possible attention given to the wounded.

Within two hours after the first crash two trains had been made up, one to carry the injured, the other to transport the dead, and started for Chicago. The uninjured excursionists were later brought in by a third special sent from Glenwood.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Get Receipts.

The noted case of Henry Cramer of Clara City, Minn., against the Northwestern Elevator company of Minneapolis, has been decided in favor of the defendant. There is involved in this case a question of vital interest to the grain trade and to every northwestern farmer—the right of a country elevator manager to issue receipts for grain in form other than that prescribed by statute and the regulations of the railroad and warehouse commission, and the binding power of such receipts or memoranda upon the elevator company.

The case was bitterly fought in June, 1901, was lost by the defendant, went before the Minnesota supreme court, was sent back for retrial, and came up again last month at Granite Falls. Fifteen or more rough slips bearing memoranda in numbers and signed by J. Keely, agent of the Northwestern Elevator company, but without date or other marks of definiteness, made up the principal exhibit. The court decided that such receipts are not binding upon the elevator company and are not collectable.

In the case in question the elevator company was able to show that there was no record on their books that they had ever received the grain and that their agent had never notified the Minneapolis office of any such receipts. The first knowledge of it came with the presentation of the slips in question, which, the farmers claimed, were issued to them by Keely for grain taken in.

With this decision in mind farmers and country elevator men will have need for greater caution hereafter.

State Fair Races.

The Minnesota state fair has broken so many records in recent years that the information that the race entry list for the coming fair of 1904 has again established a new limit will be no surprize. But it is a surprizing fact that the gain this year over 1903 is much larger than that of 1903 over 1902.

Entries closed July 1 and Secretary E. W. Randall completed his compilaations and was able to announce no less than 388 entries for the fair races. This is 71 more than last year and 108 more than in 1902.

The total 388 entries is quite beyond all precedent in racing history. When the Minnesota fair races secured 280 entries in 1902, horsemen throughout the country were astonished beyond measure and said that the list would never again be duplicated. Last year they could not believe the totals at first; this year they are likely to understand that the Minnesota fair is about the biggest thing of its kind on earth.

With Broken Neck.

Living with a broken neck is the condition of Leo McConnon, the 15-year-old son of Edward McConnon of Winona. Young McConnon and a number of companions were in swimming in the river at that place. McConnon dived from a pile into shallow water. He struck his head on a stone with the result that his neck was dislocated. When he did not come to the surface at once his companions went to his assistance and brought him up. He was unconscious. He was conveyed to the hospital and there an examination showed that his neck was dislocated. He is still alive and there are hopes of his recovery, although the chances are much against him.

Arrested.

Inspector Collier reported to the office of the St. Paul division of postoffice inspectors that he had rounded up three postoffice robbers who had been at work in the two Dakotas and Northern Minnesota. The men were arrested as White Rock, S. D., and the names given are James O'Brien, Frank Howard and George W. Healey.

Booty to value of $800 was found in their possession and a full kit of burglars' tools and explosives for safe blowing. It is thought that these are are the men who committed the robberies at Bemidji and Birholtz. Bail was fixed at $3,000, and a hearing will be given at Deadwood in September.

COST OF HONEYMOONS

HOW THOSE SPENT IN WASHINGTON MAY VARY IN EXPENSE.

Bridegrooms, as a Rule, Are Regardless of the Price of Things on Bridal Tours—How $300 a Day Was Spent in a Hotel in the Capital.

Why is it that so many bridal couples come to Washington to spend their honeymoons? Perhaps the question cannot be satisfactorily answered, but the fact remains that the capital is a great Mecca for the newly wedded. Some people say that it is because Washington is restful and that at this one period in their lives men and women do not care for bustle. They want to be able to devote some thought to each other without fear of personal accident. Whatever the reason, the fact remains that the annual influx of brides and grooms amounts to at least 20,000 persons.

The manager of one of the hotels of the city was asked in regard to the expenses of a honeymoon.

"Is a honeymoon in Washington too expensive for a man with a moderate salary," the reporter asked, "or can it be reduced to an economical basis without displaying the limitations of the bridegroom's purse should he happen to be of the less wealthy class?"

"That question need not be a vexed one," replied the affable manager. "A honeymoon in Washington can be as costly as the purse can buy or it can be spent on an amazingly small amount, if you will, of course, consider the luxury afforded by our modern hotels.

"At this moment I have in mind a man from Chicago who brought his bride here on their wedding trip. Their living expenses amounted to something like $300 a day, that amount being spent in the hotel. But, then," the manager added, "this man had an almost unquenchable thirst for rare old wines and things in season and out of season. But there is just one thing I wish to say in connection with the American bridegroom. I cannot recall one instance where the quality does not hold good, be he a man of wealth or one of modest income. He never questions the price of things. This even proves true concerning the engagement of our apartments. He spends his money generously and without consultation.

"I remember we had as guests at the same time with our $300 a day couple a newly wedded pair from New England. Their daily expenses were $10. Now, using these figures, which are entirely accurate, one can quickly see that luxurious living—it can be purchased for the latter amount—is not so frightfully expensive as our out of town friends picture. Really the amount of money to be spent is more a matter of taste than the condition of one's purse."

At this juncture the manager reached and threw open the door of the state bridal suit, displaying a veritable glimpse of fairyland. This chamber is the most expensive room in the hotel. Its size does not differ materially from the less elegantly furnished rooms, but in magnificence it rivals the most gorgeous bedchambers of European palaces. One speedily realizes that to comprehend its beauty color temperament becomes a necessity.

Investigation reveals walls of plain moire damask, the color of which deepens from the faintest shade of shell pink to the rich blush of the rose. This effect is continued in the less rich hangings and draperies of the same tints, while the carpet reflects the same lines, which become lightened by windows covered with rare old lace. The furniture is of Louis XIV. period, the color scheme is carried out in the upholsterings of figured damask in dainty floral designs and scroll effects, while the four poster bedstead, with its canopy, is said to be an exact copy of the original at Cluny, the cost of the bed alone being enormous.

"But how do you make the expenses run up to $300 a day?" inquired the reporter.

"Quite easily enough. This room, including bath, is $25 a day. Such guests as occupy an apartment of that sort demand a private dining room, the latter ranging in price according to the elaboration of the room and the table furnishing, say $25 for the dining room a day, and $50 is disposed of at once. Now, $100 for three meals for two people is not so much, after all, when priceless wines are served with luncheon and dinner.

"Game, fruit and vegetables out of season are worth their weight in gold, so $100 is a mere bagatelle. The remaining $150 is paid for drawing room, room and board for maid, exclusive of carriage."

Meanwhile the couple from New England were serenely content in their apartment—a bright room, with adjoining bath and every comfort, which cost them $3 a day. Their meals, being ordered judiciously from an elaborate menu, amounted to $6, while the combined tips of husband and wife reached the sum of $1, making the total $10. These two young people enjoyed the life in the public dining room, seeing well dressed guests at table, which frequently proves one of the most pleasing sights of their trips. There they had music, lights and flowers galore, which they were at as much liberty to enjoy for their $10 a day as the western couple for their $300 a day.

"True, our state bridal suit is in constant demand, still a honeymoon can be spent in Washington on a wonderfully small amount of money without displaying penurious qualities, a trait of character from which the average American bridegroom is absolutely free."—Washington Post.

R's Crack Train the "North Coast Limited;" tells about Irrigation in the Yellow and Yakima valleys, the two largest irrigable valleys in the Northwest, and deals with some phases of the renowned exploration of Lewis and Clark across the continent 100 years ago. ESOPUS town lots are looking up, and there is a fine opening for a couple more lemonade stands.

THE Republican press of the country is giving the Chicago Chronicle a decidedly chilly reception to the ranks of Republicanism.

A NATIONAL convention always brings forth "some mute, inglorious Milton." Marc W. Littleton's fame as an orator is now secure.

THE political bee is buzzing with a vengeance in Norman county. The Ada Index prints seventeen announcements, seven of which are for register of deeds.

IT is an unnecessary waste of time and money to hold a Republican state convention in North Dakota. The state machine always has the ticket arranged for weeks before the convention meets.

KANSAS CITY reports a woman who left her husband's fireside because he would not argue with her. Every day we are getting new ideas as to what constitutes a happy home, and at this rate the marriage problem may some time be solved.

WE learn from the Kansas City Times that a Missouri farmer who watches the slide trombone artist in the band was frightened almost to death. He thought the player was ramming the instrument down his throat and pulling it out again.

THE government expenditures still exceed the receipts, and the secretary of the treasury says there is no immediate prospect for relief. There seems to be no effort made toward economical administration of public affairs. The people are likely to demand a change of managers.

THE packing house strikers appear to have entirely forgotten the oft-repeated lesson that violence does not pay, says the Duluth Herald. It is a deplorable fact that nowadays when a strike affecting any considerable body of men is ordered it is almost equivalent to a declaration of war, where might makes right.

A LAWYER in a court room may call a man a liar, scoundrel, villian or thief, and no one makes a complaint when court adjourns, says an observing exchange. If a newspaper prints such reflections on a man's character there is a libel suit or a dead editor. This is owing to the fact that people believe what an editor says, what a lawyer says cuts no figure.

OUR good friend John Eastman somewhat resembles Robert Louis Stevenson's character, the "man without a country." John is without a party. Personally we should be very glad to welcome John to the ranks of the unterrified Democracy, save for the fact that he has hitherto been considerable of a hoodoo and the change would be sure to alarm the superstitious.

AS ALL of the Republican papers of the county admit the improbability of defeating Jim Ford and Nick Tarrant this fall we may assume that there will be little or no opposition to these popular officials this fall. And by the way quite a few other popular Democrats are going to get in, and the claim that Red Lake county is to be taken into the Republican column does not appear to be well grounded.

THE czar of Russia created one of the greatest reforms his country ever enjoyed when he abolished the custom of condemning political prisoners by administrative order. This means the dawn of political liberty in Russia. It is true the dawn is very pale and faint even with the great change made by the czar's edict, for the tyranny of Russia is still terrible. But the fact that hereafter a man can not be sent to starve, freeze or become insane in Siberia, because of his political views unless he is found guilty by the courts, is a great step in advance. With a few more reforms of this kind the Russians will become equal in intelligence and ability to the other inhabitants of Europe.

Geography Made Easy.

Minnesota is situated at the eastern extremity of Mr. James J. Hill's fine country estate. Its people are favorites of Mr. Hill. He often asks them kindly if they are getting enough to eat. It's dry in Minnesota, but it's so cold you can't feel it. Minnesota is very healthy. It is full of towns which need nothing so much as a few first-class funerals, and simply can't have 'em.

Minnesota was settled by Maineites, most friendly to the whites, however, and Scandinavians. The Scandinavians go in for all the brands of Lutheran theology. It is a small village indeed which hasn't two flourishing Lutheran sects, one holding that Adam was unexceptionable until he ate the apple, the other that he was a horse-thief de novo. Minnesota is reliably Republican, except when the Democrats get gay and put up a Swede. Some say a yellow dog nominated on the Republican ticket would be elected; others, that this has actually come to pass. —Life.

Bailey on His Daughter's Marriage.

Bailey, the Britt, Iowa, Tribune man, had a daughter married recently and the following is his characteristic write up of the event:

"Twenty-one years ago yesterday a little girl baby was left at our house, red, wrinkled and homely; but mother decided to keep her, because at that time she had only one other girl. The various troubles incident to childhood came—whooping cough, measles, scarlet fever—in succession. We fought them off and saved her. But about a year ago a dentist came; the attack was soon known to be serious. It was a severe case from the first. She had always been a good girl and always seemed to rally from every attack but this one. We suggested all the remedies we could to save her, but she didn't appear to want to be saved. Last night the dentist carried her away to Illinois to introduce her to his people as his wife. They will be back in a few weeks to begin life in a home of their own, but the girl that was a baby twenty-one years ago, that has been the light of our home ever since, has gone. If she makes another home as bright as she has ours, we know a dentist who has won a prize,

"But a wedding is not so much different from a funeral after all when there is a vacant seat at the table and the familiar voice and footsteps are gone. May God's richest blessing rest on our new son and his girl wife.

"This is the second time this kind of a game has been played at our house and it is getting monotonous. We have one more girl and the first fellow that comes around after her is going to get—well, mother and I haven't yet decided just what."

1st—The Shortest Line.
2nd—The most comfortable route.
3rd—Two fine through trains direct to the gates of the fair.
4th—A saving of about three hours of time.
5th—You avoid the crowds at the Union depot and on the street cars.
6th—You save money by being landed just where you want to go.

There are many other reasons but "a word to the wise is sufficient."

ST. HILAIRE.

The Merchants State Bank building is in progress and will be completed about August 15. It is a handsome one-story structure, and will make a comfortable home for the bank.

The Soo line is seriously considering the advisibility of building a spur from the town just east of here to tee sawlill at St. Hilaire. The people here will be glad it the project is successful, as this will insure the mill being operated for a number of years.

A good many of our people are at the Crookston carnival this week.

E. M. Hoff is at St. Paul and Minneapolis this week visiting friends and buying fall goods. He will be back the fore part of the week.

A gang saw is to be placed in the mill within the next few weeks. This will increase the output of the mill several hundred per cent. and give employment to a hundred more men. There is every indication that the mill will be operated for several years at lesast.

The St. Hilaire creamery is enjoying the most prosperous season in its history, and is manufacturing more butter than any other creamery in this part of the state. The patrons are pleased over the securing of the third prize at the St. Louis contest a few weeks ago. Mr. Winkjer, the manager, is one the best buttermakers in Minnesota and the success of the creamery is largely due to his untiring efforts.

C. H. Martz, who recently purchased the Gigstad farm just east of town, arrived Monday to close up the deal and make arrangements for improving the place. Mr. Martz was formerly a member of the board of public works at Duluth, and has been a very successful raiser of high-grade cattle. Red Lake county needs this kind of farmers, and no doubt he will do well here.

The First Starcher.

Starch originated in Flanders. It was introduced in England, with the big ruff, in the time of Queen Elizabeth. The first starch was like ours today, except that it was made in colors—red, yellow, green, blue. The first starcher was the wife of the royal coachman and her name was Mrs. Guilham. The first imporant thing for you to consider is golden grain belt beer and its relation to your health. It is brewed from the finest barley malt and hops and through every process conforms to the highest standard of purity. As a tonic for body and nerves it is unexcelled, and its delicious taste makes it admirably suited for home use. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

LIVER TROUBLES

"I find Thedford's Black-Draught a good medicine for liver disease. It cured my son after he had spent $100 with doctors. It is all the medicine I take."—MRS. CAROLINE MARTIN, Parkersburg, W. Va.

If your liver does not act regularly go to your druggist and secure a package of Thedford's Black-Draught and take a dose tonight. This great family medicine frees the constipated bowels, stirs up the torpid liver and causes a healthy secretion of bile.

Thedford's Black-Draught will cleanse the bowels of impurities and strengthen the kidneys. A torpid liver invites colds, biliousness, chills and fever and all manner of sickness and contagion. Weak kidneys result in Bright's disease which claims as many victims as consumption. A 25-cent package of Thedford's Black-Draught should always be kept in the house.

"I used Thedford's Black-Draught for liver and kidney complaints and found nothing to excel it."—WILLIAM COFFMAN, Marblehead, Ill.

NOTES IN MINOR CHORD.

A. P. Toupin and wife left today on the excursion to Duluth, and will stop over at Cass Lake next week for a visit with friends and relatives.

Crookston Times: Mr. and Mrs. Joe Smith left Thursday night for Tacoma, where they will make their future home. A large crowd gathered at the depot to wish them a pleasant journey and bid them farewell.

"Make hay while the sun shines," but don't waste your time with old, worn-out machinery when you can buy a new ten-foot self-dump rake for $20 and five-foot mowers for $30 from the Swanson-Olson Machine company.

Thursday, August 11, is Red Lake Falls day at the third annual exhibition of the agricultural association of Red Lake county at Thief River Falls. Our excellent band will accompany the crowd that goes from here.

Prof. J. B. O'Brien came down from St. Hilaire Monday to look after his little boom for county superintendent. Mr. O'Brien says the outlook for his nomination is bright, and thinks there is no serious doubt of his election.

Ernest Fletcher is now stenographer in the office of the Bourdon Land company. Ernest has recently graduated from Button's Business college at Crookston, and his instructers speak very highly of his work in the school.

Master John Egan, who has been visiting at the home of Mrs. E. F. Marshall for the past week, left Tuesday evening for his home at St. Paul. He was accompanied as far as Crookston by Mrs. Marshall and Master Marcus.

E. Y. Sarles, Republican nominee for governor of North Dakota, is a friend and former neighbor of J. L. Tracy, station agent of the Great Northern. Mr. Tracy formerly worked for the Great Northern at Hillsboro, the home of Mr. Sarles.

P. G. Paradis and wife left this week for North Yakima, Wash., where they expect to make their home. Mr. Paradis has leased his saloon at St. Hilaire, and if he likes Washington will probably dispose of his property interests in this section.

Mrs. William Gervais, who has been visiting friends and relatives in this city, returned Monday to her home at Two Harbors. She will be met at Duluth by Mr. Gervais. Mrs. Gervais has a host of friends here who are sorry she made so short a stay.

The young ladies who are attending the summer school took a trip over the Healy dam in three wanagans last Saturday. The experience is said to have been thrilling and much enjoyed by those who possessed sufficient nerve to make the venture.

The rear of the lumber drive will be at Crookston about Saturday of this week. Manager Parker, of the logging company, is greatly pleased at the successful finish of the work. Last year a great many of the logs were hung up at Red Lake Falls all summer.

The surveyors are at work platting the new town of Scotland this week and within a few days town lots will be on sale. Julius Pleth, the well-known St. Hilaire land man, is the promoter of this town, and he will establish a bank there in the near future.

A charter has been granted to the First State Bank of Brooks, which is being established by Messrs. Bourdon and Simons in the new town east of here. The capital stock of the bank is to be $10,000, all of which is owned by Red Lake county people.

P. B. Gaass and wife returned on the Northern Pacific last Friday from their extended Southern trip. During their five weeks' sojourn Mr. and Mrs. Gaass visited points in Iowa, Kentucky and Tennessee, besides spending a couple of weeks at the exposition.

The great Pan American circus exhibited here last Saturday. The crowd was not very large, but a great deal larger than the show warranted. There is little about the show that is meritorious and there will be tears shed if the concern passes us up on the next trip.

Gus. and Chas. Naplin, well-known Polk Center farmers, returned yesterday from a trip to Oregon, where they expected to buy land. However, they returned home convinced that Red Lake county is good enough for them. Good land out there is very high, and it is not altogether a garden of Eden.

John Egan, the eleven-year-old son of William H. Egan of St. Paul, who has been the guest of Master Marcus Marshall for the past ten days, was thrown from a horse last Saturday evening, receiving several cuts on the face. Otherwise he was not injured and will be as good as new in a few days.

R. H. Green is in the city today. Mr. Green is one of the foremost citizens of Equality township, and he argues that the citizens of that town have a right to feel puffed up nowadays, for the assessment rolls show that they have a larger personal property assessment than any other town in the county.

Nick Helm and son, Emil, who have been in the vicinity of Milwaukee for the past six weeks, returned home yesterday. Nick had some idea of locating there, but says he is more than ever convinced that Red Lake Falls is a pretty good town to stay by. He says that times are not very good in that part of the country.

Red Lake county farmers are improving the opportunity to cut plenty of hay this year, and there is no likelihood of shortage next spring. Last year the cold weather hung on for three or four weeks after the almanac scheduled the advent of spring, and in many parts of the country stock perished by reason of lack of feed.

The Red Lake Indians are not pleased at the continuance of the reservation sale until October. According to the act of congress under which the cession of the lands was made the Indians were to be paid ninety days after the close of the sale. The new arrangement delays settlement for ninety days and the Indians are greatly disappointed.

J. D. Taylor, formerly a resident of this place, is visiting old friends here for a week or two. Mr. Taylor is a graduate of the law department of the university and is casting about for a location. He has lately visited Warroad and other points in the Roseau country. Mr. Taylor is an exceptionally bright young man, and undoubtedly has a bright future in his chosen profession.

Mrs. R. H. Duntley announces that her Red Lake Falls store will be closed August 1, and the entire stock of confectionery, stationery, cigars and tobaccos, fancy groceries, etc. will be closed out at cost or less. Mrs. Duntley also has a lot of counters and store fixtures that will be sold cheap. Mrs. Duntley expects to return to St. Hilaire, where her husband is engaged in business.

Theo. LaBissoniere left last night for North Yakima, Wash., where he will spend a month or five weeks visiting friends and relatives and looking over that part of the world. Mr. LaBissoniere has not taken a vacation for a long time and richly deserves a respite from his arduous business duties. His parents and other relatives live at North Yakima and he will extend his visit to Tacoma, Portland and other points on the coast.

Mesdames G. R. Lanning, C. J. Knox, C. C. Jackson, F. J. Stebbins, K. M. Hanson, C. L. Dobner, P. W. Mabey, James Meehan, Helgeson and Bryant, Misses Clara Lanning, Doris Knox and Llewellyn Meehan came down from Thief River Falls yesterday to enjoy a picnic dinner at Clearwater island in company with their Red Lake Falls friends. It was a jolly party, and it goes without saying that all of them had a good time.

George McConnell, the genial miller for the Red Lake Falls Milling company who recently resigned his position to engage in business for himself at Thief River Falls, has been at Minneapolis recently to purchase an outfit of milling machinery for the Thief River plant. The new mill will have a capacity of 200 barrels and will be up to date in every respect. They expect to commence running by the time the new crop is ready.

Henry Gonigam met with a serious accident Sunday morning. While leading his horse to the river to give him water the animal slipped and fell upon Mr. Gonigam's leg, breaking both bones just above the ankle. Prompt medical aid was called, and the patient is doing fairly well, although it will require five or six weeks for the injured member to heal. Mr. Gonigam will have the sympathy of all the Red Lake Falls people in his serious affliction.

"Squaw Point," just across the river from Thief River Falls, was bid in at $46 per acre Thursday, and the supposition is reached by a large majority of Thief River Falls people that the property was purchased by eastern capitalists interested in the erection of a sawmill on the property and as a result Thief River Falls people generally are happy. The land was bid in by Nils Myrin who is unknown at Thief River but supposed to be the representative of eastern capitalists.

Commissioner Richards reports to the interior department that 661 quarters of land were sold at the Thief River sale at an average price of $6 per acre. This is about one-half of the land offered, and it is probable that quite a few purchasers will default on the next payment. The number of actual settlers on the ceded lands as a result of the sale will be about 500. Undoubtedly a considerable portion of the lands remaining will be sold at the sale to be held at Crookston in October.

A lecture on "American Socrates" will be delivered at the high school building Saturday evening of this week by Prof. S. A. Challman, superintendent of the Montevideo schools. Mr. Challman is one of the leading educators of the state and a speaker of wide reputation. The lecture will be given under the auspices of the students in attendance at the summer school, and the general public is given a cordial invitation to attend. No charge for admission will be made.

Sam C. Nauman left last Thursday for Freeport, Ill., where he was married Tuesday to Miss Jessie A. Korff, at the home of the bride's parents. They will visit the St. Louis fair for about ten days, and then come to Red Lake Falls to make their home. Miss Korff is said to be a most beautiful and charming young lady, and Mr. Nauman is to be congratulated upon the acquisition of a better-half. THE COURIER in company with a host of Red Lake Falls people wishes them a long life of happiness.

The Soo surveyors have finished the plat of the new town of Brooks and it will be filed with the register of deeds in a day or two. L. C. Simons will be in charge of the town lot sale and he informs us that the price of lots will not be exorbitant. It is intended that the price shall be reasonable enough to induce men of small means to engage in business. Mr. Simons already has had applications from parties desiring to embark in various lines of business, and by the time the cars are running it is likely that a good many business enterprises will be in operation.

The board of equalization is in session at the court house this week, and up to the time of going to press the personal property schedule had been reviewed. Nearly all classes of property have been raised, and the total will probably be $75,000 to $100,000 above the figures of the assessors. In Red Lake Falls some of the changes are as follows: Saloons, raised 100 per cent.; lumber stocks, raised 50 per cent.; electric light franchises, raised 60 per cent.; printing offices, raised 33⅓ per cent.; money of banks, raised 20 per cent.; goods and merchandise, raised 30 per cent. A complete list of the changes will be printed next week.

Capt. W. H. Harries, of Caledonia, was in the city several days of this week, in company with his son, Paul. They were guests of Hon. L. C. Simons and wife. Capt. Harries was the predecessor of James A. Tawney, congressman from the First district, and the successor of Hon. Marcus Marshall as internal revenue collector at St. Paul. Mr. Simons was cashier under Capt. Harries for about six months. The Captain is still active in Democratic politics and is frequently mentioned as a candidate for governor this fall. He is looking up a location for his son, and we trust these good people may become interested in Red Lake county.

Local tennis players are beginning to look forward to the tournament for the championship of northwestern Minnesota, which will be held under the auspices of the Red Lake Falls tennis club in this city on August 10. Players from Hallock, Warren, Crookston, St. Hilaire, Thief River, Ada and Fertile will be invited, and the event will be of more than usual interest from the fact that many of the best players in the state live up this way. It is expected that the permanent organization of a tennis league will be perfected at this meeting. A local tourney commences this evening, and out of a dozen or more players the four having the highest averages will be pitted against the visitors from the other towns.

Arthur Mercier and Ernest Gerlach, accompanied by Misses Rose Harren and Alvina Lizee, were visitors to Maple Lake last Sunday, and on the homeward trip were participants in an experience they would not care to duplicate. The storm struck when they were about half way home, and frightened the horses so that they were fairly unmanageable. To add to their troubles it was very dark and they lost the road, the carriage upset and the horses got away, leaving the young folks stranded on the prairie in the midst of the worst rain storm of the season. Fortunately none of the party was injured, and they found a farm house to stay during the night. The team was found the next day in a wheat field and no damage was done to either horses or carriage.

The writer, in company with Attorney McIntyre, had occasion to visit the sprightly little city of Warren this week. It is one of the most enterprising towns in the valley, and evidence of wealth and thrift are apparent to even the most casual observer. Although not as large in point of population as Red Lake Falls it has much better residences and the business buildings are at least as good. The city owns its water and electric light plant, and they say it is a paying investment without taking into consideration the cost of street lights and fire hydrants. They boast a $25,000 court house and a beautiful school building. The latter by the way no longer affords room and a new building to cost $15,000 is in course of erection. The most attractive feature about Warren is its city park. It is as well kept as the smaller parks at St. Paul or Minneapolis, contains a band stand and affords every convenience for picnics and and gatherings of all sorts. The cost of establishing and maintaining the park is a bagatelle, and if Red Lake Falls people could go over there and see its beauty and desirability they would not be very long in demanding that our own city provide one. Warren has not the natural advantages of timber and streams and hills as compared with Red Lake Falls, but the people over there have made better use of God's blessings. Warren has two excellent newspapers, the Register and the Sheaf, the former owned by Stevens Bros., and the latter by Elbert Bede, son of Congressman Bede. We are under obligations to both offices for courtesies shown.

RUSSIANS REPULSED AT MOTIEN PASS

GEN. KELLER MAKES DESPERATE ATTACK BUT HE IS FORCED TO RETREAT.

RUSSIAN MAIL IS SEIZED BY JAPS

Japanese Troops Nearing Newchwang —Kuropatkin's Army in Bad Shape —May Be Attacked on Three Sides and Retreat Cut Off.

Tokio, July 19.—At three o'clock Sunday morning, a heavy fog veiling their movements, two divisions of Russians, commanded by Lieut. Gen. Keller, made an assault on the Japanese positions at Motien pass. Gen. Kuroki adds that the Russians assailed all the Japanese positions at Motien pass and in its vicinity desperately. The Japanese resisted stubbornly, repulsed the Russians and pursued them for a considerable distance westward. Kuroki in his report praises the valor of his men.

Seize Letters of Information.

The Japanese torpedo destroyer Hayatori has captured a junk, conveying mail from Port Arthur to Chefoo. Letters dealing with military and naval conditions at Port Arthur have been seized. Much valuable information was contained in the letters. Those which did not deal with military topics have been forwarded to St. Petersburg with the request that they be delivered to those to whom they were addressed.

Japs Nearing Newchwang.

Tientsin, July 19.—The steamer Fuping, just arrived here from Newchwang, reports that on July 16 the Japanese army was within 15 miles of that city. The officers of the Russian gunboat Sivoutch have saddled horses alongside, ready to make their escape upon the approach of the Japanese.

Troops Are Menaced.

London, July 19.—Official Russian dispatches admit that Gen. Kuropatkin's army at Tatchekiao is menaced on both right and left flanks, and that Kuroki is advancing on Liaotung. British observers are astounded by Russia's seeming inactivity. Either Kuropatkin is hopelessly enmeshed in the Japanese enveloping operations or he is confident of his ability to defeat all the forces Gens. Oku and Nodzu can send against him. The situation can mean only one thing—that Kuropatkin will be attacked from three sides and that if defeated his retreat to the northward will be cut off by Kuroki, who will in a few days be in a position to throw his armies across the railroad.

Kuropatkin to Fight.

St. Petersburg, July 19.—The Japanese are advancing upon Tatchekiao, where Gen. Kuropatkin in person apparently intends to take issue with the enemy. Artillery fire was opened by the Japanese on Wednesday, evidently for the purpose of trying to find the position of the Russian batteries, which, understanding the object, did not reply by a single shot. The Japanese after that gave up the advance upon the main road, reverting to their usual tactics of outflanking and thus turing the positions as they did at Kaichow.

Land 30,000 Men.

Berlin, July 19.—A German correspondent telegraphing from Mukden says that 30,000 Japanese landed on July 11 and 13 at Pigeon bay. The operations were covered by the entire Japanese fleet. The Russians made only a faint resistance, firing a few shots from the shore batteries.

Situation Unchanged.

London, July 19.—The morning papers have dispatches from correspondents at Gen. Kuroki's headquarters which bring the situation in the far east up to July 16. All of the writers agree in saying that the situation is unchanged, but that the Russians are being strongly reinforced and that a battle may be expected any day. Slight skirmishes are reported to have taken place on July 15.

Lost His Mind.

Des Moines, Ia., July 19.—As a result of excitement over politics, induced by attendance at the democratis national convention in St. Louis, R. E. Morely, a prominent capitalist and bank president of Lake City, has lost his reason. Morely was given a hearing before the board of commissioners for the insane at Fort Dodge and sent to the asylum. Morely is a loyal supporter of Judge Alton B. Parker for president and joy over his nomination unbalanced his mind.

Pioneer Editor Kills Himself.

St. Louis, July 19.—After leaving a note containing directions for his funeral and requesting that files of newspapers he had edited in Kansas in pioneer days be sent to the Kansas state historical society, Frederick W. Braunhold, 70 years old, a former printer and publisher, committed suicide Sunday by shooting himself through the heart. He was a native of Germany. Despondency over ill-health is believed to have caused Mr. Braunhold to take his life.

Dies of His Injuries.

Farmington, Conn., July 19.—Charles D. Rogers, of Chicago, who was injured in an automobile accident here Saturday, died at the Elm Tree Inn Monday. His skull was fractured and he did not recover consciousness after the accident.

Seven Persons Drowned.

New York, July 19.—Seven lives were lost in the cloudburst which occurred Saturday, according to a Herald dispatch from Valparaiso, Chili. All were women, drowned in their residences.

DISTURBS CONDITIONS.

General Trade Situation Affected by the Strike of Packing House Employes.

New York, July 16.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: "Trade conditions were gradually becoming more normal after the conclusion of political conventions, when a new disturbing factor appeared in the strike of packing house employes and allied trades. This enhanced prices of meats and added many thousands to the already large army of unemployed, weakening the purchasing power of the people still further. Aside from this unfavorable development, the news of the week contained much encouragement. Crop prospects improved and the general level prices for farm products promises a large return to agriculturists, which means better business for all industries. Confidence grows with the crops, retailers showing more disposition to prepare for the future as the season advances with no serious setback to the farms. A few manufacturing lines are more active, although there is still much idleness at the shops and mills, and pig iron output for July will be smaller than any recent month.

"Failures this week numbered 225 in the United States, against 213 last year, and 20 in Canada, compared with 16 a year ago."

Bradstreet's says: "Diverse movements in trade, industry and speculation give an irregular appearance to the general business situation. Distributive trade and industry is still quiet and even dull, awaiting clearer views of the crop out-turn. Damage to the winter wheat crop by heavy rains is admitted, though alleged to be exaggerated. Disorganization in the meat industry has followed a strike which, if not settled, as now seems likely, contains much power for evil. All meat prices have been advanced and cattle shipments checked. Railway gross earnings for the fiscal year will show an increase over the best previous years, but net results are less clearly defined, with the question whether an increase or decrease will be shown still in doubt. The general undertone is one of confidence, good results being looked for by the business world from an expected large volume of fall trade."

WASHED ASHORE.

Remains of F. Kent Loomis Found Near Plymouth, Eng.—Suspicion of Foul Play.

London, July 18.—A body, supposed to be that of F. Kent Loomis, was washed ashore Saturday morning at Bigbury Bay, Devonshire. The body was that of a well dressed man, five feet six inches in height, attired in a gray overcoat and dark blue suit. In the pockets were found a card with the name "F. Kent Loomis," American and English coins, American notes, a gold watch, etc. The body, which was discovered by a laborer, was in a state of considerable decomposition. It was removed to a neighboring farm building to await the inquest. The police said that there is no doubt that the body is that of Loomis. Joseph G. Stephens, the American consul at Plymouth, was notified and after viewing the body said he had no doubt it was that of F. Kent Loomis. Reports to both the Press association and the Central News assert that a further examination of the body of F. Kent Loomis has given rise to grave suspicions on the part of the local officers that Mr. Loomis met with foul play. The wound behind the right ear is described as being circular, large and clean, and it is thought that it was inflicted before death.

Bigbury Bay is ten miles southeast of Plymouth, where the North German Lloyd steamer Kaiser Wilhelm II. arrived June 20 from New York, having on board F. Kent Loomis, brother of Assistant Secretary of State Loomis. Mr. Loomis was missed at one o'clock that morning and has not been heard from since. He was charged by the authorities at Washington to convey to Abyssinia the treaty of commerce concluded between the United States and Emperor Menelik. Mr. Loomis traveled with William H. Ellis, of New York, who in view of the disappearance of the former, took the treaty, which was found in Mr. Loomis' baggage, to Adis Abeba, the Abyssinian capital.

Shot by a Woman.

Lawrenceburg, Ind., July 18.—At Oliver's construction camp near Manchester station Sunday, Sarah Simmons, aged 20, colored, fatally shot James Smith, 30 years old, also colored. After the shooting the woman dressed herself in male attire and attempted to escape with William Davis, a negro, threatening pursuing officers with a revolver. The pair were taken after an exciting chase and lodged in jail.

Will Make Few Speeches.

Elkins, W. Va., July 18.—Former Senator Henry G. Davis, democratic nominee for vice president, does not expect to make any formal speeches during the campaign, except that he will follow the McKinley porch policy and receive delegations. He expressed his approval of the McKinley method. If he cannot avoid it, he will make a few speeches, but under no circumstances more than six.

Fire in Michigan Village.

Ironwood, Mich., July 16.—The village of Kimball, including the Kimball & Clark mill, a large stock of lumber and nearly every building in the village, was destroyed by fire Friday. The loss is estimated to be $75,000.

A Fatal Blow.

Benton Harbor, Mich., July 18.—J. A. Cook, a local manufacturer, killed Burton Grissold by striking him with his fist.

SCENE OF RECENT ACTION IN RUSSIAN-JAPANESE WAR.

HOST OF BUTCHERS GOES ON STRIKE

PACKING INDUSTRY IS PARALIZED IN MANY CITIES AS RESULT OF WAGE DISPUTE.

Thousands Lay Down Their Tools and Quit Work—Price of Meat Immediately Advances—Shortage in Supply Threatened.

Chicago, July 13.—The great stockyards strike, expected to paralyze the meat industry for a time at least, began Tuesday. More than 2,000 workmen in the packing houses affected by the strike quit work by 11:30 a. m., anticipating by an hour the strike order. Up to two o'clock 17,000 employes had quit work. A dispute over the wages of unskilled laborers precipitated the trouble.

Dispatches received from Kansas City announce that 8,000 men quit work in the packing houses there; South Omaha reports 4,000 having laid down their tools; over 5,000 are idle at St. Joseph, Mo.; 5,000 in New York and Brooklyn; 700 in St. Paul, and 1,000 at Sioux City. The strikers are orderly at all points.

Price of Meat Goes Up.

The effect of the strike upon the food supply of the country and the rise in prices of meats will no doubt be tremendous, and was felt at the very start. Meat shot up three cents a pound the minute the men went out. Commission men telegraphed their customers throughout the country to cease shipping hogs and cattle. The railroad companies also notified their agents in every small town in the country not to accept cattle for shipment to Chicago and the other points where the strike reaches. The result is that shippers have ceased sending cattle to market. Consequently, unless the packers replace the strikers with other employes and resume the operation of their plants before long, it will only be a short time before the majority of the people of the land will be forced to become vegetarians.

Dispatches from Cleveland, New York, Kansas City, St. Louis, Omaha, St. Paul, Des Moines and other cities state that because of the strike prices of meat have been advanced to figures ranging from one cent to four cents a pound.

Chicago, July 18.—Chicago and the entire United States now face one of the greatest industrial strikes in history. Peace negotiations in the great stock yards strike are at an end, and the packers and their 80,000 employes are preparing for a prolonged struggle in the nine cities in which strikes have been called. The break came in Chicago Saturday afternoon, when at the end of a three hours' joint conference it was announced that a basis for arbitration could not be agreed upon.

The reinstatement of the men now on strike was the rock upon which the negotiations went to smash. President Donnelly and his associates insisted that all of the strikers should be reinstated within seven days. The packers replied that they could not agree to discharge the men who have been employed to take the place of the strikers. All other details for arbitration had been arranged when this obstacle arose.

Sympathetic Strike Threatened.

Now that arbitration negotiations have been abandoned it seems only a matter of time till 14,000 other employes of the stock yards houses go on sympathetic strike. The central body of the mechanical trades employed at the yards voted to strike when asked to do so by President Donnelly of the butcher workmen.

Sent to Prison.

Waukesha, Wis., July 14.—Charles Hintz, of Milwaukee, was sentenced to 14 years in state's prison at hard labor for killing Mrs. Augusta Piskie at Muskego last August.

PAUL KRUGER DEAD.

Former President of Transvaal Republic Passes Away in Switzerland—His Career.

Clarens, Switzerland, July 15.—Paul Kruger, former president of the Transvaal republic, died here at three o'clock Thursday morning from pneumonia and supervening heart weakness. The ex-president's body was embalmed, and the remains were placed in a vault pending funeral arrangements. Application will be made to the British government for authority to transport the remains to the Transvaal. In the meantime they will be temporarily interred here.

Pretoria, Transvaal, July 15.—The flags on all the government buildings are at half mast. Mr. Kruger will be buried beside former presidents of the Transvaal, unless his will has provided otherwise.

Paul Kruger, or "Oom Paul," formerly president of the Transvaal republic in South Africa, was born in Cape Colony in 1825. When he was ten years old he fully shared the enmity of his people against Great Britain. Cape Colony, having fallen into the hands of the British, was overrun, and, owing to the prosecutions of the conquerors, 6,000 Dutch and Huguenot farmers fled from their homes into the wilderness. Young Kruger and his parents took part in the exodus. They found a temporary abiding place in the Orange Free State and in Natal, but were driven hence into the far country of the Transvaal, where, after a long struggle with the savage Zulus, they erected their permanent home.

Paul Kruger educated himself. He worked in the executive council for ten years previous to the war for independence. Later, taking an active part in the campaign, he led his countrymen to victory in the battle of Majuba hill, in 1881. In recognition of his bravery and devotion he was made president of the restored republic. Through all the reverses of the Boer war he was courageously defiant, but his health and the strength of his resistance were broken after the signing of peace terms at Pretoria. Subsequently, the ex-president has been a wanderer, verging on that last stage in man's eventful history, which is "second childishness and mere oblivion." His hatred of Britain has been vented in vituperation directed especially at the late Queen Victoria.

A DISASTROUS FIRE.

Docks and Warehouses at Duluth Burn—Loss, $400,000—Man Is Drowned.

Duluth, Minn., July 16.—Four hundred thousand dollars' worth of property was destroyed Friday afternoon at the Omaha docks and warehouses owned by the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha railway, and one man, a cook named George Smith, on the tug Abbott, was drowned in an attempt to make his escape from the craft as the flames swept over it with cyclonic rapidity from the docks. The great freight shed, 1,300 feet in length, and 80 feet in width, was filled with merchandise of all kinds. Sugar, coffee flour, canned goods and almost every conceivable kind of general merchandise made up the contents. There were over 100 car-loads of sugar alone in the building. Two tugs of the Great Lakes Towing company were burned.

Boat Upset; Four Drowned.

Pittsburg, Kan., July 16.—Four persons, all of this city, were drowned Friday night in Spring river, 18 miles east of here. The dead: H. A. Stamm and wife, Miss Katie Stamm and Louise Myers. They were rowing and approached to near a mill dam, which upset the boat.

First Payment Made.

St. Louis, July 16.—The first payment of $500,000 on the government loan of $4,600,000 to the Louisiana Purchase Exposition company was deposited in the subtreasury in St. Louis Friday.

SCROFULA A DISEASE WE INHERIT.

Scrofula manifests itself in many ways. Swelling of the glands of the neck and throat, Catarrh, weak eyes, white swelling, offensive sores and abscesses, skin eruptions, loss of strength and weakness in muscles and joints.

It is a miserable disease and traceable in almost every instance to some family blood taint. Scrofula is bred in the bone, is transmitted from parent to child, the seeds are planted in infancy and unless the blood is purged and purified and every atom of the taint removed Scrofula is sure to develop at some period in your life.

Scrofula appeared on the head of my little grandchild when only 18 months old, and spread rapidly over her body. The disease next attacked the eyes and we feared she would lose her sight. Eminent physicians were consulted, but could do nothing to relieve the little innocent. It was then that we decided to try S. S. S. That medicine at once made a speedy and complete cure. She is now a young lady, and has never had a sign of the disease to return.

MRS. RUTH BERKLY,
150 South 5th Street. Salina, Kan.

No remedy equals S. S. S. as a cure for Scrofula. It cleanses and builds up the blood, makes it rich and pure, and under the tonic effects of this great Blood Remedy, the general health improves, the digestive organs are strengthened, and there is a gradual but sure return to health. The deposit of tubercular matter in the joints and glands is carried off as soon as the blood is restored to a normal condition, and the sores, eruptions, and other symptoms of Scrofula disappear.

SSS

S. S. S. is guaranteed purely vegetable and harmless; an ideal blood purifier and tonic that removes all blood taint and builds up weak constitutions. Our physicians will advise without charge, all who write us about their case. Book mailed free.

THE GLORIES OF ARIZONA.

Arizona has already become attractive to both tourist and settler. The ozonized atmosphere of the plateaus imparts a wonderful feeling. The color tones of the sky and distant mountain peaks, the deep translucent azures and pearl gray touches in the clear vault of heaven and the wonderful purple tones of the distant hill all have more charm for the traveler than the clear sky of the Sahara, the balmy air of the Nile or the dreamy sunlight of the shores of the Mediterranean.

This section of our great country, hidden within the vast stretches of Uncle Sam's domain, 1,200 miles from the nearest seaport, nearly surrounded by mountain ranges, separated from California by a desert, was the last to admit American civilization. But it has come. Its mineral wealth is being developed. Its fertile valleys are being tilled. Its uplands are swarming with horses, cattle and sheep. Progress in population and development and resources are so remarkable that the outlook is indeed bright for a prosperous and happy future under a state form of government.—Business Woman's Magazine.

Gas Meters For Savings.

Many of the poorer classes, as is well known, have a rooted objection to public savings banks in any shape or form and prefer to keep their little hoard concealed in a stocking or even the dust bin rather than intrust it to the postoffice. Of late years the penny-in-the-slot gas meters have become quite a popular receptacle for surplus funds in the east end of London. Instead of putting in a penny the plan is to drop in a two shilling piece or, failing that coin, a penny together with a shilling or sixpence. When the collector comes around he only takes the money to the value of the amount of gas consumed and hands back the balance to the householder. There are said to be several streets in Whitechapel where all the Christmas-boxes were purchased out of the money put aside in the gas meters. The weak point of the penny-in-the-slot savings bank is that there is no means of properly checking one's account. One must trust the collector implicitly.—London Tatler.

Russia Dominates Asia.

There can be no doubt that Russia has been holding the "whip hand" over China and in general the whole of central Asia as far south as the Indian border—ruler in substance, if not in name—quietly pushing forward to consummation her gigantic schemes for political and commercial dominance in Asia. Already her traders, her spies, her military officials and diplomatists have threaded the wilds of Turkestan and even Tibet and hitherto other inaccessible regions of central Asia, sowing sedition in one spot, conciliating the native tribes in another, blinding the Chinese government and the world at large as to her real intent, each and every step a part of a carefully thought out and prearranged plan, formulated years ago in Russian chancellieries, to undermine British influence, which is the only barrier liable to obstruct Russian policy.—W. C. Jameson Reid in Gunton's Magazine.

The Latest Trick.

Some time ago a rumor went round that astute publishers had in their pay a large number of the most attractive diners out. Your neighbor at table would lead the conversation to the latest novel, quite the easiest of conversational openings between strangers who lay their heads together over the menu and have to entertain each other for an hour. You are interested in the description of the book of the hour, you are a little ashamed of not having read it, and, going home, you sit down and order the book—from the circulating library. Every publisher, every theater manager, every deviser of a patent medicine, knows that the advice of a friend is a more concentrated and personal pull than the opinion of a critic from the empyrean. And if the idea was ever carried out it deserved to succeed. But no one ever spotted the paid diner out. There was the artistry of the thing.—London Daily Chronicle.

Venice.

At least one of the most famous cities of the world never suffers from drought. Not long ago the waters rose so high in the realm of the Queen of the Adriatic that gondolas moved to and fro with freedom in the great square of St. Mark, and those wonderful bronze horses which Napoleon took to Paris, but which were afterward taken back to Venice, became sea horses for the nonce. Fortunately, however, the dominion of the doges and the council of ten is in no peril of ever suffering a calamity like that which overwhelmed Galveston.

A DOUBLE APPOINTMENT

[Original.]

"Mabel!"

"Edith!"

"Who ever would expect to meet you here in London?"

"I am as much surprised at meeting you."

"I got your wedding cards—that was six months ago—but supposed you took your wedding trip to the south."

"We did. I came here with mother six weeks ago. My husband couldn't leave at the time, and the doctor said mother must go away at once. But, come, let us sit down. Sightseeing is such tiresome work, and this gallery is interminable. Now we can talk more comfortably."

"When is your husband coming?"

"This morning, but he is obliged to go on immediately to Paris. He wrote me to meet him here close to the station. I am expecting him now."

"You've no idea how surprised I was at your being married after all our talks on matrimony. The last word you said to me the day we left college was 'never.' I had told you that you would take a husband within a year."

"And you were quite ready to take one as soon as you should meet your ideal."

"Yes; I had more confidence in men than you. I trust men more than women."

"And I am still of my former opinion that men are not to be trusted at all. But I don't blame them. It isn't their nature to be tied down to one woman."

"How about your husband?"

"I don't expect too much of him."

"And are you satisfied with such want of confidence?"

"What can I do?"

"You could have adhered to your resolution never to marry."

"And been a sour old maid. No, I thank you. That was a college girl's talk. I didn't mean it."

"But what prospect of happiness have you with a man you can't trust?"

"I give him free rein. By and by he will tire of everybody but me and our children—when we get them. Then he'll want to spend his evenings toasting his shins before a fire at home. Companionship is better than a blighted romance."

"Oh, Mabel! Why did you not take a professorship of philosophy at college? It would have suited you better than marriage."

"But I am content with marriage. I don't expect what I have no right to expect and shall not be disappointed. But you, Edith—have you found your ideal?"

"Yes."

"Engaged?"

"Not yet. I only met him a week ago."

"Where?"

"On the steamer coming over."

"And you expect him"—

"To propose. I am sure of it. He is to meet me here this morning and has said that he shall have something very important to say to me."

"But I should think you would prefer to hear it in a less public place."

"Oh, no. There is a spice about this affair, nothing cut and dried. We met as travelers and will be engaged as sightseers."

"Look out, my dear, lest you are divorced homeward bound."

"I shall not be disappointed, nor will you when you see his frank, open face and his honest smile. But why can't I introduce him to you here?"

"You can unless he happens to come at the same time as my husband. In that case I shall be occupied."

"What time do you expect him?"

"At 11. His train arrives a few minutes before 11, and he leaves at 11:30."

"My appointment is for a quarter past 11. I fear we should clash."

"I would not for the world interfere with your expected happiness."

"Think, dear, what a prospect is before us! We are to spend a week in London and shall make up a party for the continent to go to the south of France and from there to Italy."

"Are you going to keep him by you with chain and collar?"

"You are incorrigible."

"Well, Mabel, I'm delighted at your prospect of happiness. I hope for your sake it will be fulfilled."

"The clock is striking 11. You will soon see your husband—that is, dear, if the train is on time. It may be a little late, you know."

"Or my beloved may spend some time putting a fair traveling companion into a cab, chatting with her and holding her hand before sending her away."

"Doubter!"

"You say 11:30 is the time for your meeting?"

"Eleven fifteen."

"I hope for your sake he'll be on time. You're all in a flutter."

"Nonsense. I'm perfectly cool."

"There he comes."

"The gentleman with the umbrella?"

"No; the one with the suit case."

"Heavens!"

"Oh, Theodore, I'm so glad you've come in time! I want to introduce you"—

"No occasion, my dear. I met your friend on the steamer and appointed this meeting with her and you that you should know each other. But how did you come together?"

"Theodore, you're a villain! Your companion du voyage and I are college classmates."

"Good. I'm off for Paris and will return next week. Then I will make up a party to visit the continent."

"Mabel, you see"—

"Edith, what a brain you have!"

DAIRY DEPARTMENT.

Edited by Geo. L. Austin, Manager of the Red Lake Falls Creamery.

That Wet Hand Milking.

Below we give an article by Lucien Sweet, for the Daily Record. Some of our farmers can read this article and profit thereby. Milking with wet hands is, to say the least, a filthy habit.

In one of the late issues of the Record I noticed an article written by some one in Denmark or Switzerland, or some other great dairy country, which advocated milking cows with the hands wet or with the use of vaseline. It has been the lot of the writer to milk cows most of the time for 30 years and we have never milked with wet hands, and never worked for a man that allowed his help to milk in that way. Can anybody conceive of anything worse or more unclean than washing a dirty hand or fingers in milk that is to be used as food? To be sure, you will once in a while run across a cow or a heifer that has very short teats and some milk will get on the hands, but it can usually be wiped off, if a little gets on the hands and the milking can be done in a sanitary condition. If I had a cow or a heifer that would not grow teats long enough to be milked with dry hands after she had reached maturity I would sell her to a wet hand milker and let him strip her, and I would take the money and buy a cow that I would milk with a hand practically dry, and I would do this for the simple reason that the milk must be clean or practically so, to make a prime article, and I claim that milk milked with wet hands is unclean and an expert milk inspector can detect it every time. It will have that "barny flavor," as they call it, and you know what that means. This flavor in milk caused from milking with wet hands is one of the flavors that is the hardest for the buttermaker to handle that is found. Solid chunks of dirt can be removed with the separator, but after animal refuse has been made into a condition which will be obtained after the process of milking with the hands wet, it will have permeated every atom of the milk and can not be removed in any way, and after being made up has a tendency to lower the grade of butter.

I dislike very much to see any one in this enlightened age of progress and education in the dairy business advocating an old time method in the dairy work, that common sense must surely tell us is bad.

While I was creamery inspector on the State Dairy and Food Commission I had considerable experience with milk that had this barny flavor. One morning I was inspecting a load of milk and came across a can of barny flavored milk. I asked the driver, who was a young man of about 15 years, if he milked with wet hands. He said "No." Then I asked him who did the milking at their place. He said his father, mother and himself. Well, I said, "Does your mother milk with wet hands?" He said, "No, but my father does." So there was the cause.

I know of another man who is at this time getting ten cents per cwt. extra for his milk at a very large separator cream plant where they use his milk as a starter. This man has everything in fine condition to produce the very best, cleanest milk possible, and he gets a big lot of it, but that milk was not right and the buttermaker could not exactly tell what the cause was and we were called upon to inspect the milk. The very first thing I asked the buttermaker was: "Have you asked him if any of the milkers milked with wet hands?" So at the next delivery of milk the buttermaker asked the party if any of their milkers milked with wet hands, and to his surprise this young man's father had been doing that same thing. He was told that it must be discontinued or they could not use the milk. The practice was discontinued, and I have inspected the milk several times since and it has that nice, sweet smell and flavor that makes a No. 1, and a fine article for a starter.

* * *

The flies are coming soon. A very good system is to darken the stable as much as possible and put the cows in part of the day when the flies are the worst and feed them some green corn or other green feed, using care to always arrange the ventilation so the cows will have plenty of good fresh air at all times. The one thing that is hard to do is to keep the cow on full flow of milk during the fly season.

Board of Equalization Finish Work of Adjusting the County's Valuation Schedules.

The county board of equalization finished it labors last Thursday, and the proceedings will be published in full next week. The assessed valuation as returned by the assessors is increased about $750,000 by the board, the largest increase being in the valuation of farm lauds and city lots, which were assessed ridiculously low in almost every district. The total assessed value of the real and personal property as returned by the assessors was $2,263,000. The increases by the county board will raise these figures to nearly $3,000,000, which is about $750,000 above the assessment as left by the state board last year.

The assessment of personal property returned by the assessors this year was $603,000. This has been raised to about $675,000 by the county board. It will be understood that these figures are only estimates, as the actual figures cannot be obtained until the schedules are corrected at the county auditor's office, and this work will require a couple of weeks.

Below is given the percentage of raise on farm lands and city lots, exclusive of structures and improvements:

Mrs. L. A. Kaufer Entertains Lady Friends in Novel Manner.

The charming home of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Kaufer was the scene of a party of merry-makers last Thursday afternoon, when about twenty-five invited guests assembled to display their skill in guessing. Each lady brought a picture of herself when an infant, and the problem for the others was to guess the identity of the person from the picture. As none of the guests are very young—in fact all of them have passed the "sweet sixteen" period—the task was a rather difficult one. The contest resulted in a draw, the head prize going to Mrs. J. A. Duffy while the lesser honor was awarded Mrs. F. E. Hunt.

The party then repaired to the lawn, where they posed in a pyramid for a picture.

The decorations were pictures, ferns and potted plants. At six o'clock refreshments were served, after which the guests departed, voting Mrs. Kaufer's "picture party" a brilliant success.

A fairer adjustment of the nervous system than is usually enjoyed is secured through the regular use of golden grain belt beer. It is a tonic and beverage at the same time, brewed from the finest barley malt and hops, with every consideration for purity. Fleecing the Farmer.

Iowa exchanges are telling of the latest wrinkle in fleecing the rural communities. A well-dressed chap stops at a farm house and informs the occupant that he has lost a valuable diamond pin. He and the farmer make diligent search but fail to find the article. The well dressed chap tells the farmer on going away that he will give $100 for the return of the jewel. A week or so afterward a tramp comes in and tells the farmer that he has found a diamond pin. The farmer after some dickering gets the pin for $25. After waiting some time the pin is taken to the jeweler when it is found that 15 cents is a big price for the diamond.

N. O. DAHL'S BODY IS FOUND

Is Discovered Buried at Foot of Tree and His Daughter's Remains Probably Near.

A special from Bemidji to the dailies says the body of N. O. Dahl, who together with his daughter, Miss Aagot, disappeared from their claim on section 33, range 151, town 32, two miles from Quiring postoffice, Beltrami county, about April 9. was found today by James Caldwell, a neighbor. The body was found thirty rods from the cabin, buried under a tree. It is believed that the body of Miss Aagot is buried there also, the finder, making no further search, but immediately notified the coroner, who, with the sheriff and county attorney, left for the scene of the double murder to made further investigation.

The case has attracted wide attention on account of the mystery. Dahl was a former wealthy Crookston merchant, while the daughter was a popular Polk county teacher, who came to this section a year ago and filed on a very valuable timber claim north of Black duck.

The father came over on a visit in April and was reported to carry a considerable sum of money with him, and the last seen of father and daughter was three days after the latter's arrival, when they called at the Quiring postoffice for their mail. The couple were not missed until a month later, neighbors being few and far between in that country. Failure to receive answers to letters aroused Crookston relatives, who made inquiries and instituted a search for the missing without result, and $500 was offered for the bodies. Ten days ago Gov. Van Sant offered a $500 reward for the apprehension of the murderer and the county offered an additional $500, making a total of $1500 in rewards offered to date.

The past week the Dahl homestead has been searched from end to end by different parties, including detectives from the Twin Cities and Chicago. Caldwell, who unearthed Dahl's body, is a homesteader, however, and lives on the adjoining quarter section. The authorities have parties under surveillance, who are believed to have been implicated and no arrests were made for the reason that it would be necessary to find the bodies in order to secure evidence on which to convict.

CROP PROSPECT BRIGHT.

Hon. Marcus Johnson Sees Signs of a Heavy Yield.

Crookston Journal: Marcus Johnson, the veteran Minnesota mill owner and financier, who is interested in milling plants in this city, Red Lake Falls and Atwater, his home town, while in the city yesterday stated that from what he could see of the valley crops he had already seen, all talk of a pessimistic nature in regard to the harvest and yield is nonsense.

Mr. Johnson, who was enroute to Red Lake Falls on business matters connected with the plant at the place, is a well known judge on crop conditions and an estimator of yields who seldom misses his mark. Continuing Mr. Johnson said: "Red River valley grain, according to my view of the matter, is in fine condition at this very time, the fields are in much the same condition as were those of 1895, the year in which the greatest crop ever harvested in the valley was taken off, and if no hail appears and warm weather continues the crop will be a good one. Yields in many places will go above twenty-five bushels of wheat per acre and oats and barley will be correspondingly heavy.

The grain already headed out is showing very good color and is maturing slowly, a characteristic which was in evidence in 1895. The slower the grain matures after heading the better the quality of the wheat and the heavier the crop. Pessimism, which is scattered about the Red River valley in very liberal quantities, should have no grounds for appearance this fall, but at the present time of course the usual amount of knocking and complaining is being done."

"Will the price be good this fall?"

"Undoubtedly so. Wheat throughout the winter-wheat sections of the country has been a practical failure. The demand for wheat and wheat products is heavy and the supply in sight very short. As a result the farmers will see good, if not high prices this fall and the harvest should be a very profitable as well as a bountiful one."

HILL SAYS CROP IS SHORT

Great Northern President Declares Wheat Yield Will Be 100,000,000 Bushels Less Than Last Year.

"This booming of the wheat crop is all wrong, said President J. J. Hill, of the Great Northern railroad. the other day to a St. Paul Globe reporter.

"It is all wrong," he repeated, "and it is going to hurt the farmer.

"The wheat crop this year will be about 100,000,000 bushels less than it was last year, and last year's crop was not far from an average one.

"The people who are basing their judgment as to the prosperity of the country on a big, or an average, yield of wheat have a very flimsy foundation for their conclusion."

President Hill emphasized his words with forcible gestures and continued:

"This constant booming of the size of the crop by government reports and those of grain experts is all wrong, and if the reports accomplish the object for which they were made the farmer must suffer.

"The booming of figures does the farmer a substantial injustice, for with a short crop in reality it conveys the impression that there is plenty of wheat, and as a result prices seek an abnormally low level under the circumstances, and the farmer with less wheat than he has in an average year is obliged to take less money for his wheat than the conditions warrant.

"I have been quoted in a newspaper as saying that the crop would be less than 600,000,000 bushels, and I have no reason for raising my estimate. As a matter of fact, I think it will be less than I said in the article to which I refer.

"Yes, the farmer will be the loser by this inflation of the crop figures."

As the crop last year was approximately 640,000,000 bushels, President Hill's estimate would bring the yield down to the level of some of the bad years in the last decade.

In speaking of the effect of the presence of the Vladivostok squadron in Japanese waters, Mr. Hill said:

"The fact that the Russian cruisers are hovering about the Japanese ports will have the effect of killing American commerce in those waters temporarily. I am not familiar with the sailing dates of the Pacific steamers, and, of course, could not give an opinion concerning the danger to the Shawmut or other vessels which are said to be close to the danger zone."

THE MYSTERIOUS PATIENT

[Original.]

I had just tumbled into bed after a hard day's work among my patients when there was a sharp ring at the telephone. I keep the instrument within reach of my pillow and seized the receiver.

"Doctor, my nurse is killing me. If you don't"—

There was a click, and after that silence. I had been shut off. I rang and called "Hello!" and "Central!" at last getting a reply from "Central," of whom I asked with whom I had been in communication; but the girl at the office couldn't tell me.

I was too much discomposed to lie in bed with the thought of one of my patients being murdered by a nurse whom I had recommended (I recommend all the nurses employed in my cases), so I got up, lighted the gas and waited, hoping for another call. The voice was more like that of a woman than a man, but what woman I could not tell. I have a large practice and so many patients that it would be considerable of an effort to go over the list with a view to studying probabilities. I gradually subsided to the opinion that there had been some mistake in the call and endeavored to dismiss the matter from my mind. After an hour's waiting I turned in again and finally fell asleep.

I awoke before daylight and lay thinking over the matter of my strange telephone message. At that hour, when one is rested after a night's sleep and all is yet quiet, the brain is clearer than at any other time. I reviewed all my patients, but not one of them was likely to have cause to be dissatisfied with her nurse. Patients sometimes turn against their nurses for some reason, usually because the nurse chooses to become domineering. I was forced to the opinion that this was one of those cases and resolved in my round of visits that day to keep my eyes open with this in view.

I breakfasted and started earlier than usual, proposing to spend additional time in discovering who had called me. Nevertheless, though I was extremely watchful, I failed to detect the slightest discord between any of my patients and the nurse in charge.

During the night the telephone bell rang. I put the receiver to my ear, and a voice was saying, "Doctor, doctor, doctor!" pitifully. "Well," I said, whereupon the voice continued, "My nurse is killing me!" There was a click and no more words, nor did I succeed in getting the voice again.

I made up my mind the next day to interview every woman patient of mine without her nurse being present. Wherever I called I sent the nurse out of the room and asked the patient if she was satisfied with her attendant. All of them answered in the affirmative except one or two, who, though they were not especially pleased with their attendants, were not disposed to change them. None of them intimated that her nurse was ill treating or killing her. I went home feeling very much discouraged with my investigation. The next day, of twelve nurses I had asked to leave the room while I interviewed the patient they attended, seven asked to be relieved of their duties. As every doctor needs good nurses, I was very much troubled. I asked them all to remain at their posts till I could explain my action, and I then went to a detective office, related the circumstance and asked if they had a man who would ferret out the case. One of their number was assigned the duty, and I dismissed the matter from my mind.

I was not called up again by the mysterious patient, but I learned afterward that the detective left instructions with the central office whenever I was called to call him first. If the call was not unusual I was then called. Two days after my visit to the detective office I received a note that if the next night I should go to a house occupied by a gentleman whose family physician I had once been I would receive an explanation of my singular calls. Before going to bed I went to the house in question, where I met the detective. He took me upstairs to a bedroom and there left me, and I heard him carry something into a room adjoining. This done, he came in through a door which he left open, putting a finger on his lips to insure silence.

We sat for a time without speaking. I heard nothing in the other room except a grating as of something against metal. Suddenly there was a click. It was the raising of a telephone receiver, and a cracked voice said, "I want Dr. Scarborough." Since I am the doctor referred to I was somewhat astonished. The call for Dr. Scarborough was repeated (it occurred to me that "Central" was asking for the number) till at last I heard a ring and then: "Doctor, doctor, my nurse is killing me! If you don't take her away I shall die!" This in part was repeated several times. Then there was a click. The detective went into the adjoining room and called on me to follow.

There, hopping about, was a huge parrot, the only occupant of the room.

"This parrot," said the detective, "occupied the adjoining room to this one when a patient of yours was here delirious and convinced that her nurse was trying to kill her. The bird repeatedly heard you rung up on the telephone and listened for weeks to the patient calling on you to save her from her nurse. It was not much trouble for me to locate this phone and, once located, make the discovery. The parrot is placed here every night, let out of her cage and permitted to roam about the room. She has only to take up the receiver to get "Central" and invariably hangs it up again, shutting off the circuit.

After that the parrot was kept away from the telephone.

THE MUSIC TEACHER'S REVENGE

[Original.]

Mr. and Mrs. Tillinghast had passed out of that condition wherein lovers may be said to be grown children. This was not surprising since Mrs. Tillinghast had three real children to take care of and was rather a practical woman.

Miss Madeline Fox, a very pretty young woman, a teacher of music, came to live with the Tillinghasts. Mr. Tillinghast, knowing that in such cases a husband walks on dangerous ground, was very circumspect in his behavior. If he had been content with circumspection all might have been well, but in order that his wife might have the greater confidence in him he paid her unusual attention.

Mrs. Tillinghast was altogether too wary to let her husband understand—what was really the case—that she had a strong suspicion that he was endeavoring to throw dust in her eyes to prevent her seeing that he had eyes on Miss Fox. That she never caught Mr. Tillinghast and the music teacher in anything but the most proper situations did not lessen her suspicions. She did not make a move to get rid of Miss Fox and thus relieve her husband of temptation. Not she. She just let them alone, feeling sure that sooner or later their secret would be out, and in order to throw them off their guard she concealed all suspicion. Indeed, she surprised her husband by responding slightly to his demonstrative moods.

One night Mr. Tillinghast, hearing a sound downstairs, got up, put on a dressing gown and went to see if there were burglars in the house. He did not take a light for the reason that he did not care to light himself up for burglars to shoot at. He stole very softly down the main staircase, through the hall to the drawing room and from there into the dining room. He was stumbling along in the dark when suddenly he felt a pair of arms dropped around his neck. He could feel that they were bare to the elbow and beyond that were covered by one of those finer fabrics worn by women.

Following a natural impulse, Mr. Tillinghast dropped his arms on his embracer's shoulders. Then, realizing the situation, he withdrew them. The woman's touch was felt no longer, and he could hear a soft tread in retreat. Tillinghast after recovering from his astonishment made his way back to his room and to bed.

Now, Mr. Tillinghast in one respect at least had a very level head. He knew perfectly well that he could not follow up a liaison without breaking up his home, losing his wife and placing his children in a dreadful position. He thought very long before deciding upon what course he should pursue. Finally he decided not to see Miss Fox, but to write to her. He would then go away for a few days, and when he returned Miss Fox would have left the house. So he took the precaution to address her in a disguised hand and sent his note by mail. In it he spoke of their meeting in the dining room in the dark, and gave his reasons for not wishing to proceed further in the matter, begging her to make an excuse to find a home somewhere else.

On taking his departure Tillinghast, feeling that he had acted a sensible part, bade his wife adieu with unusual affection, which was returned with icy coldness. Fortunately he had been intending to go to a distant city with a view to collecting a debt. Consequently he had no secret from Mrs. Tillinghast as to his journey. He was gone several days, and when he returned he expected that one of the first announcements made to him would be that Miss Fox had taken her departure. No such announcement was made. Mr. Tillinghast was troubled. Evidently his plan to get rid of the music teacher and temptation had failed.

On going to his office he found a note saying: "Meet me in the dining room tonight at 12 midnight. I will explain and depart." It was written in Miss Fox's hand, but there was no signature. Mr. Tillinghast was rather relieved at the prospect of getting rid of so dangerous a woman and resolved to accept the assignation. On returning to the house he was surprised to find his wife in tears. She would not explain, and Mr. Tillinghast felt very uncomfortable.

On retiring his wife would not kiss him good night, and he went to his room very much disgruntled. A few minutes before 12 o'clock he went into the hall and listened. Then, noiseless as a kitten, he went downstairs and into the dining room. He heard a sob, and, going in its direction, his hand struck a woman's arm. He tried to grasp it, but it was quickly withdrawn. Then there was a passionate burst of weeping.

But whence comes this sudden dazzling light? From a bullseye lantern in the adjoining room. And who is the woman beside him? Mrs. Tillinghast.

Then came Miss Fox, speaking as she came:

"Your note, Mr. Tillinghast, was a puzzle that I finally solved. I was convinced that your wife was jealous of you and had trapped you, expecting you to believe she was me. Yesterday I wrote you two notes, duplicates, sending one to your office, taking care that the other should fall into your wife's hands. The result is apparent. Good night. I am going to bed, and tomorrow morning I shall change my quarters."

With that she went upstairs.

Mr. and Mrs. Tillinghast have settled down again to the humdrum of matrimony. Mrs. Tillinghast is no longer jealous and has never since laid a trap for her husband.

Bouse is now only twenty-one years old, and while he has never had confidence enough in himself to compete in any of the open championships he is spoken of very highly by veteran golfers. During the season which has just closed Bouse was the professional instructor at the Lawrenceville school, Lawrenceville, N. Skeeing as a Winter Sport.

During the last ten years skeeing has grown to be almost as much of a winter sport in the northern and northwestern states as tobogganing in Canada. Where the snowfall, as in Oregon, Nevada, Michigan and Wiscinsin, lies on the ground for weeks, to the depth of several feet, skees virtually become the life preservers of the inhabitants. They furnish the only means by which the mail carriers can reach the inaccessible and outlying mountain districts of the Rockies. Skees differ radically from the Canadian or Indian snowshoe. They are about seven feet long, four inches broad and taper from an inch thick at the center to three-quarters.

Counter Golf.

London, from which the plague of pingpong came to us, has gone crazy over another game. This new affliction, which is called counter golf, is a cross between tiddledy winks and the Scotch pastime. It is played on a large parlor table with small disks which are made to skip in the manner of the old familiar tiddledy winks. A course of six holes is laid out, and each player makes the circuit three times, the players alternating and the one having the least jumps to his score winning. Rings constitute the holes, and various obstacles and bunkers are laid on the course.

The Great De Witt.

John A. De Witt, the Princeton football hero, has won laurels on other fields than that gridironed and checkered by the white marks. He has lowered the colors of Flanagan, the great hammer thrower; he has beaten Plaw of the University of California at the shot putting game, and he holds the intercollegiate championship in that field of activity.

Basket Ball Very Popular.

Increasing interest is manifested in basket ball, long accepted as a pastime worthy of the greatest athlete. League play is always more successful in arousing interest and holding it than indiscriminate competition. The Amateur Athletic union promises to devote more attention to basket ball this year than heretofore.

I made up my mind the next day to interview every woman patient of mine without her nurse being present. Wherever I called I sent the nurse out of the room and asked the patient if she was satisfied with her attendant. All of them answered in the affirmative except one or two, who, though they were not especially pleased with their attendants, were not disposed to change them. None of them intimated that her nurse was ill treating or killing her. I went home feeling very much discouraged with my investigation. The next day, of twelve nurses I had asked to leave the room while I interviewed the patient they attended, seven asked to be relieved of their duties. As every doctor needs good nurses, I was very much troubled. I asked them all to remain at their posts till I could explain my action, and I then went to a detective office, related the circumstance and asked if they had a man who would ferret out the case. One of their number was assigned the duty, and I dismissed the matter from my mind.

I was not called up again by the mysterious patient, but I learned afterward that the detective left instructions with the central office whenever I was called to call him first. If the call was not unusual I was then called. Two days after my visit to the detective office I received a note that if the next night I should go to a house occupied by a gentleman whose family physician I had once been I would receive an explanation of my singular calls. Before going to bed I went to the house in question, where I met the detective. He took me upstairs to a bedroom and there left me, and I heard him carry something into a room adjoining. This done, he came in through a door which he left open, putting a finger on his lips to insure silence.

We sat for a time without speaking. I heard nothing in the other room except a grating as of something against metal. Suddenly there was a click. It was the raising of a telephone receiver, and a cracked voice said, "I want Dr. Scarborough." Since I am the doctor referred to I was somewhat astonished. The call for Dr. Scarborough was repeated (it occurred to me that "Central" was asking for the number) till at last I heard a ring and then: "Doctor, doctor, my nurse is killing me! If you don't take her away I shall die!" This in part was repeated several times. Then there was a click. The detective went into the adjoining room and called on me to follow.

There, hopping about, was a huge parrot, the only occupant of the room.

"This parrot," said the detective, "occupied the adjoining room to this one when a patient of yours was here delirious and convinced that her nurse was trying to kill her. The bird repeatedly heard you rung up on the telephone and listened for weeks to the patient calling on you to save her from her nurse. It was not much trouble for me to locate this phone and, once located, make the discovery. The parrot is placed here every night, let out of her cage and permitted to roam about the room. She has only to take up the receiver to get "Central" and invariably hangs it up again, shutting off the circuit."

After that the parrot was kept away from the telephone.

THE MUSIC TEACHER'S REVENGE

[Original.]

Mr. and Mrs. Tillinghast had passed out of that condition wherein lovers may be said to be grown children. This was not surprising since Mrs. Tillinghast had three real children to take care of and was rather a practical woman.

Miss Madeline Fox, a very pretty young woman, a teacher of music, came to live with the Tillinghasts. Mr. Tillinghast, knowing that in such cases a husband walks on dangerous ground, was very circumspect in his behavior. If he had been content with circumspection all might have been well, but in order that his wife might have the greater confidence in him he paid her unusual attention.

Mrs. Tillinghast was altogether too wary to let her husband understand—what was really the case—that she had a strong suspicion that he was endeavoring to throw dust in her eyes to prevent her seeing that he had eyes on Miss Fox. That she never caught Mr. Tillinghast and the music teacher in anything but the most proper situations did not lessen her suspicions. She did not make a move to get rid of Miss Fox and thus relieve her husband of temptation. Not she. She just let them alone, feeling sure that sooner or later their secret would be out, and in order to throw them off their guard she concealed all suspicion. Indeed, she surprised her husband by responding slightly to his demonstrative moods.

One night Mr. Tillinghast, hearing a sound downstairs, got up, put on a dressing gown and went to see if there were burglars in the house. He did not take a light for the reason that he did not care to light himself up for burglars to shoot at. He stole very softly down the main staircase, through the hall to the drawing room and from there into the dining room. He was stumbling along in the dark when suddenly he felt a pair of arms dropped around his neck. He could feel that they were bare to the elbow and beyond that were covered by one of those finer fabrics worn by women.

Following a natural impulse, Mr. Tillinghast dropped his arms on his embracer's shoulders. Then, realizing the situation, he withdrew them. The woman's touch was felt no longer, and he could hear a soft tread in retreat. Tillinghast after recovering from his astonishment made his way back to his room and to bed.

Now, Mr. Tillinghast in one respect at least had a very level head. He knew perfectly well that he could not follow up a liaison without breaking up his home, losing his wife and placing his children in a dreadful position. He thought very long before deciding upon what course he should pursue. Finally he decided not to see Miss Fox, but to write to her. He would then go away for a few days, and when he returned Miss Fox would have left the house. So he took the precaution to address her in a disguised hand and sent his note by mail. In it he spoke of their meeting in the dining room in the dark and gave his reasons for not wishing to proceed further in the matter, begging her to make an excuse to find a home somewhere else.

On taking his departure Tillinghast, feeling that he had acted a sensible part, bade his wife adieu with unusual affection, which was returned with icy coldness. Fortunately he had been intending to go to a distant city with a view to collecting a debt. Consequently he had no secret from Mrs. Tillinghast as to his journey. He was gone several days, and when he returned he expected that one of the first announcements made to him would be that Miss Fox had taken her departure. No such announcement was made. Mr. Tillinghast was troubled. Evidently his plan to get rid of the music teacher and temptation had failed.

On going to his office he found a note saying: "Meet me in the dining room tonight at 12 midnight. I will explain and depart." It was written in Miss Fox's hand, but there was no signature. Mr. Tillinghast was rather relieved at the prospect of getting rid of so dangerous a woman and resolved to accept the assignation. On returning to the house he was surprised to find his wife in tears. She would not explain, and Mr. Tillinghast felt very uncomfortable.

On retiring his wife would not kiss him good night, and he went to his room very much disgruntled. A few minutes before 12 o'clock he went into the hall and listened. Then, noiseless as a kitten, he went downstairs and into the dining room. He heard a sob, and, going in its direction, his hand struck a woman's arm. He tried to grasp it, but it was quickly withdrawn. Then there was a passionate burst of weeping.

But whence comes this sudden dazzling light? From a bullseye lantern in the adjoining room. And who is the woman beside him? Mrs. Tillinghast.

Then came Miss Fox, speaking as she came:

"Your note, Mr. Tillinghast, was a puzzle that I finally solved. I was convinced that your wife was jealous of you and had trapped you, expecting you to believe she was me. Yesterday I wrote you two notes, duplicates, sending one to your office, taking care that the other should fall into your wife's hands. The result is apparent. Good night. I am going to bed, and tomorrow morning I shall change my quarters."

With that she went upstairs.

Mr. and Mrs. Tillinghast have settled down again to the humdrum of matrimony. Mrs. Tillinghast is no longer [illegible] and has never since had [illegible] her husband.

Jenkins Our Greatest Wrestler.

Tom Jenkins of Cleveland has again demonstrated that he is the ablest wrestler in the United States. His recent defeat of his old time rival, Dan McLeod, leaves him practically unchallenged in his class, and Jenkins will probably be forced to take on some foreign mat performer if he desires to continue activity.

Jenkins will meet George Hackenschmidt, the "Russian Lion," if the latter fulfills his present intention of invading the United States in the spring.

Bouse, Promising Golfer.

One of the most promising of the home bred professional golf players is young George J. Bouse, who made his first appearance upon the links as a caddie boy at the Oakland Golf club at Bayside, N. Y., under George Strath, who took a great interest in him and taught him how to play the game. Bouse is now only twenty-one years old, and while he has never had confidence enough in himself to compete in any of the open championships he is spoken of very highly by veteran golfers. During the season which has just closed Bouse was the professional instructor at the Lawrenceville school, Lawrenceville, N. J., and he is now in California to fill an engagement as professional in one of the clubs near Los Angeles.

Skeeing as a Winter Sport.

During the last ten years skeeing has grown to be almost as much of a winter sport in the northern and northwestern states as tobogganing in Canada. Where the snowfall, as in Oregon, Nevada, Michigan and Wisconsin, lies on the ground for weeks to the depth of several feet, skees virtually become the life preservers of the inhabitants. They furnish the only means by which the mail carriers can reach the inaccessible and outlying mountain districts of the Rockies. Skees differ radically from the Canadian or Inrian snowshoe. They are about seven feet long, four inches broad and taper from an inch thick at the center to three-quarters.

Counter Golf.

London, from which the plague of pingpong came to us, has gone crazy over another game. This new affliction, which is called counter golf, is a cross between tiddledy winks and the Scotch pastime. It is played on a large parlor table with small disks which are made to skip in the manner of the old familiar tiddledy winks. A course of six holes is laid out, and each player makes the circuit three times, the players alternating and the one having the least jumps to his score winning. Rings constitute the holes, and various obstacles and bunkers are laid on the course.

The Great De Witt.

John A. De Witt, the Princeton football hero, has won laurels on other fields than that gridironed and checkered by the white marks. He has lowered the colors of Flanagan, the great hammer thrower; he has beaten Plaw of the University of California at the shot putting game, and he holds the intercollegiate championship in that field of activity.

Basket Ball Very Popular.

Increasing interest is manifested in basket ball, long accepted as a pastime worthy of the greatest athlete. League play is always more successful in arousing interest and holding it than indiscriminate competition. The Amateur Athletic union promises to devote more attention to basket ball this year than heretofore.

Jimmy Michael to Race Here.

Jimmy Michael will not again race in Europe, but will remain in America next season, racing himself and developing his brother Willie, who promises to be as great a sensation as was Jimmy years ago. Willie is just about the same size as Jimmy and four years younger.

Albert Champion, the former pace follower, has decided that he will not return to the cycle track. In spite of his recent serious accident in an automobile he will follow that plan of racing for the future, continuing to drive the auto in which he met with his accident.

RUSSIANS DRIVEN FROM NEWCHWANG

APPROACH OF THE JAPANESE FORCES CZAR'S MEN TO EVACUATE THE CITY.

Fierce Engagement Occurs in the Vicinity—Battle Viewed from Housetops in the City—Heavy Losses Reported.

Newchwang, July 25.—The Russians have evacuated this city.

Fierce Battle Rages.

Newchwang, July 25.—A battle was fought Saturday near Tatchekalo, attended, it is believed, with heavy losses. The progress of the battle was watched by many people in Newchwang from the roofs of houses. The day was clear and the smoke of the guns could be plainly seen.

Oku's Men Fight.

St. Petersburg, July 25.—A badly mutilated dispatch from Tatchekiao, dated July 20, which has been received here indicates that an engagement of some importance had occurred on the seacoast road between Kaichow and Yinkow. The dispatch states that the Russians made a night attack on a fortified Japanese camp at Sangoss, on the seacoast north of Kaichow. They got within close range and opened fire on the camp before they were discovered, and forced the retirement of the Japanese toward Kaichow. Later, however, the Russians were forced to retreat.

Victory for Kuroki.

Tokio, July 23.—Gen. Kuroki, after a severe fight, occupied Kiaotung only July 19. The place had been fortified by the Russians, who defended it stoutly. In the fighting Gen. Kuroki's troops drove the Russians from their strongly fortified position on the Chi river, which is northwest of Motien pass and east of Anping, inflicting upon the enemy more serious losses than they sustained themselves. The fight began on the 18th and ended on the 19th. The Japanese lost 424 men in killed and wounded. The Russian losses are estimated at 1,000.

Japs Repulse Fierce Attack.

Tokio, July 19.—At three o'clock Sunday morning, a heavy fog veiling their movements, two divisions of Russians, commanded by Lieut Gen. Keller, made an assault on the Japanese positions at Motien pass. Gen. Kuroki adds that the Russians assailed all the Japanese positions at Motien pass and in its vicinity desperately. The Japanese resisted stubbornly, repulsed the Russians and pursued them for a considerable distance westward. Kuroki in his report praises the valor of his men.

Fixes Loss at 2,000.

Gen. Kuroki's Headquarters, in the Field (via Fusan), July 20.—More Russian troops were engaged in Sunday's battle at Motien pass than in previous engagements. There were probably double the number of those which took part in the fight at Yalu river, while opposed to them were only one brigade and one battalion of the Japanese forces. The Russian loss is estimated at 2,000. The burial of the dead continues. The Japanese casualties aggregated 300. The engagement has conspicuously demonstrated the wonderful efficiency of the Japanese infantry. They proved incomparably the better marksmen, more initiative and they outfought and outgeneraled the Russians on every point.

Relations to Be Resumed.

Washington, July 23.—Colombia is again to come into full diplomatic relations with the United States and the Panama matter will be a closed incident between the two republics. The state department has received a cordial letter from the Colombian minister for foreign affairs announcing that Dr. Thomas Herran has been given full letters of credit as Colombia's envoy at Washington. Dr. Herran for many years was secretary of legation here and after the hurried exit of Minister Concha was charge d'affaires until the legation was closed last winter as a result of the Panama affair.

Thousands in Prison.

Washington, July 20.—The immigration bureau has issued a statement showing a total of 44,582 inmates in the penal reformatory and charitable institutions of the United States, not including Hawaii and Porto Rico. These comprise 28,939 males and 15,643 females. There are 24,717 prisoners serving for life, 10,112 for over two years and 9,753 under that period.

Death of Wilson Barrett.

London, July 23.—Wilson Barrett, the actor, died Friday morning. He underwent an operation for cancer July 20, and the doctors thereafter said that after a few weeks' rest Barrett would be all right and able to carry out his intention of producing a new play in September. His death is attributed to heart failure.

Chicago's New Directory.

Chicago, July 22.—The new city directory for Chicago has been given to the public. Based on the number of names it gives Chicago a population for 1904 of 2,241,000. This figure is arrived at by computing upon the census of 1899. The new directory contains 657,000 names, an increase of 3,000 over the directory of 1903.

Rates Are Raised.

Detroit, July 25.—A general increase in insurance rates was ordered Saturday by the supreme tent, Knights of the Maccabees of the World. Policies hereafter will be furnished new members at rates ranging from 85 cents for each $1,000, at the age of 18 years, to [illegible] age of 50.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

The Official Program.

The official program of the Minnesota state fair of 1904 will be published, as for the past two years, by the board of managers, under the immediate supervision of Secretary E. W. Randall. Each year original designs for the cover have been prepared and the book has been printed with great care and distributed on the grounds under the direction of Mr. Randall. Mr. Randall wishes it stated that no person or persons are authorized to publish any other program or souvenir of the fair. No publication except the official program will be distributed on the grounds. The details of the publication of the official program this year will be handled by Horace B. Hudson, who will be assisted in St. Paul by G. W. Anderson. This year the fair opens August 29 and closes Sept. 3.

Lost in the Woods.

After being lost six days in the dense woods of Erie and living on berries and water and sleeping on the ground, Charlie, the 4-year-old son of Fred and Mrs. Weirauch of Frazee, was found in the woods three miles from his father's home and nine miles from Frazee.

He was almost naked, all his clothing but his shirt was torn off by the underbrush and his body was burned by the sun and torn by the brush.

Mrs. Weirauch left home to pick berries and the boy strayed away. When he could not be found at evening it was feared that he was drowned in the Ottor Tail river, where his brother was drowned some years ago.

Detriot and Frazee sent out over 100 men and the Commonwealth Lumber Company sent men and teams, but for five days he could not be found.

Fell to Death.

Charles G. Sebastian was killed by falling from a swinging stage while painting at the fourth story of the Ryan building, Seventh and Robert streets, St. Paul. Death resulted from a fracture of the skull. Mr. Sebastian was working on the stage with Hokan Liedholm. According to an eye-witness, Sebastian placed his right foot on the sill of a window to reach the framework, and in doing so his left foot pushed the stage from the wall. He lost his balance and fell between the stage and the building. He struck the awning of the window beneath him at the third floor, which was torn away by the weight of his body. The awning at the second story also gave way under his weight and he struck the sidewalk on his head and shoulders.

Frightful Death.

The most appalling accident in the history of the Minneapolis lumber mills occurred at the Itasca mill, when John Knordsik was instantly killed by a circular saw. He was a new hand and had just started to work in the afternoon. He was given charge of the conveyors that carry the wood to the saws and was told not to move from the platform on which he was at work. Forgetfully he stepped onto the conveyor and before he could cry for help was carried with the wood into the saws. His body was cut into eleven pieces and thrown several feet, almost at the feet of the horrified workmen.

Another Great Victory.

Minnesota wins another sweeping victory in the butter scoring contest. Commissioner W. W. P. McConnell received a telegram from St. Louis containing this information.

The highest score made was 98¼, and this mark was reached by three Minnesota buttermakers, N. Sivering, Knatvold; W. B. Johnson, Arlington; W. B. Fadden, Plato.

The next high score was 98, and this was reached by E. P. Greely, of Alden, and J. C. Joslin of Winston.

In the dairy butter department the tub sent by Mrs. M. A. Holmes of Owatonna scored 95, and in the prints the exhibit of the Minnesota Butter and and Cheese company scored 92.

His Image.

Marked with the indisputable evidence of an encounter with John Barleycorn and a hard fist, he ambled into a drug store for relief. His eyes were half closed; there was a wandering, bleeding laceration across his forehead; his nose was tilted to one side, and a gash in one cheek completed the damage.

The druggist cheerfully replied that he would fix up the caller.

"Wait a minute," said the apothecary as he reached for the gauze, the lint and the antiseptic. The badly marred customer disconsolately sauntered about the shop, but suddenly stopped in front of one of those convex mirrors that do such queer tricks of distortion with their reflected images.

Our friend caught a glimpse of himself out of those disturbed optics. With a yell of terror he tore himself loose from the scene and bolted for the door, scaring the druggist half to death.

"Come back here!" shouted the drug clerk.

"Not much!" almost shrieked the fleeing man. "I just saw myself in your looking glass, and if I don't get to a doctor I'm ruined for life."

And he did not stop for explanations.—San Francisco Call.

"A Bee In Your Bonnet."

Kelly in his "Scotch Proverbs" gives the phrase, "A bee in your bonnet," with a slight addition, "There is a bee in your bonnet case." The earliest reference to it seems to be in Robert Herrick's "Mad Maid's Song:"

Ah! woe is mee! woe, woe is mee,
  Alack and well-a-day!
For pity, Sir, find out that Bee
  Which bore my love away.
I'le seek him in your bonnet brave,
  I'le seek him in your eyes;
Nay, now I think th'ave made his grave
  I' the bed of strawberries.

In "Heywood's Duologue," 1546, we find, "Their partes full heavy, their heads be full of bees." The same symbol of confusion occurs in "Ralph Royster Doyster," 1560:

Whoso hath such bees as your master in his head
Hath need to have his spirits with mu-syke to be fed.

And in "Damon and Pithias," 1571, "But, Wyll, my master hath bees in his head."

Rubaiyat of Indolence.

"It never pays to rustle much," said lazy Ezra Fox, a-sittin' round the corner on an empty cracker box. "I don't believe in stirrin' up a lot o' noise at all, fer often too much energy'll bring about a fall. Now, there's the flea; his energy just gits him scratched to death. The hen thet works too hard for worms is first to lose her breath. The pig thet fights the hardest fer the corn throwed in the sty is first to fatten, first to sell an' first of all to die. The horse thet tries to do it all soon works hisself to bones. The dog thet does the barkin' is the one thet gits the stones. No, sir, this workin' hard ain't right. I don't keer what they say. An hour er two of work's enough—say, ev'ry other day." An' then he tilted 'gainst the wall his empty cracker box an' soon was snorin' reg'lar like old lazy Ezra Fox.—Pilgrim.

The Chinese Diet.

"The food of the Chinese consists principally of rice and fish." That statement has appeared in nearly every school geography or history that has been published since the flood. "It's all folderol and flapdoodle," says a concessionnaire from the interior of the great empire. "The streams were fished out ages ago, and you seldom find fish in the interior. On the coast, yes, much fish is eaten, but the main food of the Chinese is pork and chickens. Mutton and beef are rare. Less rice is eaten than you would imagine, but there is an abundance of palatable vegetables, and you would find no difficulty in making out a good dinner."

Breeding Lions In Captivity.

For years back within the classic precincts of Phœnix park the authorities of the Dublin zoo have been breeding lions at a rate that has been touched by no other menagerie in the world. The climate of Ireland, which is so inimical to poisonous reptiles, seems to benefit the raging lion of the Nubian deserts to such a marvelous extent that he actually thrives better in the open air within smelling distance of the river Liffey than he is accustomed to do in his native Africa. For some mysterious reason these animals flourish and breed in the Dublin zoo.

She Was Not Consulted.

A girl forced by her parents into a disagreeable match with an old man, whom she detested, when the clergyman came to that part of the service where the bride is asked if she consents to take the bridegroom for her husband, said, with great simplicity:

"Oh, dear, no, sir, but you are the first person who has asked my opinion about the matter!"—London Tit-Bits.

Progressing.

"I think Arthur would have proposed to me last night if you hadn't come in the room just when you did."

"What reason have you for believing that?"

"He had just taken both of my hands in his. He had never held more than one of them at a time before."

Her Dear Friend.

Bride (exchanging bridal costume for traveling dress)—Did I appear nervous at all during the ceremony, Clara? Bridesmaid (envious)—A little at first, dear, but not after George had said "I will!"

Doesn't Know What She Says.

Stella—Is she a friend of yours? Bella—How can I tell? We haven't one mutual acquaintance.—Illustrated Bits.

$1.00 Per Year, in Advance.

THE report that John Eastman is to be oil inspector under the Dunn administration is probably a campaign canard.

IT takes a good many swallows to make a summer but the Prohibitionists are attempting to make a president out of one.

IT looks as though the editor of the Hallock News will have plenty of time to devote to the newspaper business after January 1.

THIS is a poor year for straddlers. If you are not for Parker you belong on the Roosevelt side of the house. Why waste time in getting there?

THE prince of Monaco is coming over. Well, he's got a lot of Yankee money and there will be no objection to him spending some of it here.

THE Heron Lake News asserts that both Parker and Davis are protectionists. Prove that statement, Carl, and we'll agree not to vote for them.

THE Northfield News is convenced that "there are two things the American people generally are not in sympathy with, and they are trusts and strikes."

HERE is a tip: Andy Stephens of Crookston will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for congress in the year of our Lord 1906. It's on the cards.

THOMAS TAGGART of Indiana has been chosen chairman of the Democratic national committee, and headquarters will be opened at once at New York and Chicago.

SOME of the Democratic papers are talking of Sidney M. Owen for governor. There's no gainsaying he would make a strong run and if elected a model executive.

EDITOR RUANE of the Slayton Gazette is a postmaster, and he believes the president's term should be lengthened to ten years. Jim probably would object if the president happened to be a Democrat.

MR. DUNN's friends in Red Lake county will be pleased to know that the Gazette will support the Republican state ticket. But wouldn't it be well to put this erratic journal under bond to stay there until after election?

THE esteemed Gazette mixes up an old quotation thiswise: "He who fights and runs away may live to fight another day." But it remains true that the fellow shot in the back has a hard time convincing his friend that he is courageous.

S. F. FULLERTON, state game warden, has appointed forty deputies to watch over ane protect prairie chickens, in addition to the twenty employed the year aronnd. The field deputies report that the birds are unusually plentiful all over the state this year.

THE rumor that the Republicans are unable to raise a campaign fund is almost pathetic. We suggest that our strenuous president throw a scare or two into the protected manufacturers. These interests ought to be willing to cough up at least a small percentage of their ill-gotten gains.

THOMAS LOWRY is alleged to control the policies of three of the twin city dailies. For some time he has been a heavy stockholder in the Minneapolis Tribune and St. Paul Dispatch, and now it is said he has secured control of the Minneapolis Times. Tom evidently figures on getting into politics.

THE St. Louis fair is said to be a financial failure because of a lack of advertising. The trouble with the average exposition management is that they expect to get their advertising for nothing. This time they didn't get it. The newspapers of the country are not charitable institutions and they pay for most every thing they get. And they pay the trust prices, too.

THE Democratic state convention for the purpose of nominating a state ticket will be held at Minneapolis August 30. The official call for the county conventions will be issued next week. The basis of representation will be the same as for the Duluth convention, one delegate for each 150 votes for Bryan in 1900, with three delegates at large from each county.

HON. JOHN W. EASTMAN, Thief River Falls—Dear John: The information comes that you out of harmony with the Republican county organization, particularly the secretary thereof, and that you have threatened to bolt. On behalf of numerous Democrats anxious for success at the polls we have been asked to ascertain what inducement will keep you in the Republican ranks. We're not superstitious, yet it is more comfortable to have the hoodoos on the other side.

OUR esteemed contemporary is ever ready to accept a premise or assume a hypothesis unwarranted by the facts and construct an argument on his false ground-work. By one of these elaborate deductions the Gazette has surreptiously taken the editor of THE COURIER out of the Democratic party and placed upon him the brand of Republicanism. As this has been done without our consent we are justified in registering a protest against the kidnapping of our political convictions.

THE Republicans have lost that appearance of cock-sureedness evidenced early in this campaign, and they realize that there is to be a fight this fall. New York is conceded to Parker by those who understand the situation and are not blinded by partisanship. The solid South and New York make a total of 195 electoral votes, or 40 short of a majority. There are the doubtful states of New Jersey, Connecticut, West Virginia, Indiana, Montana, Colorado and Illinois to get the 40 votes necessary to elect the Democratic candidate. It may be a landslide, but it will not be a Republican landslide.

A RAILROAD ticket is good for the transportation of the body of the purchased whether he be dead or alive, according to the decision of the Western Passenger association at the Houghton meeting. The association agreed that the round-trip tickets should be good for the transportation of the body of the purchaser if he died before completing his journey, no matter at what rate it was bought. A person in charge, however, must accompany the corpse and hold a full-fare ticket. The first reports of the decision stated that no ticket purchased at reduced rates would be accepted for the transportation of bodies of persons who died before completing trips.

THE state railroad and warehouse commission has received from the interstate commerce commission office in Washington, data showing among other things, that through the United States as a whole, railroad accidents decreased last year. In spite of this fact there were killed in wrecks and other disasters 9,840 persons, of which only 355 were passengers. The remainder were men in train service, yardmen, switchmen and other railway employes and persons. Only one passenger was killed for 1,957,441 carried, which shows the percentage of chance the ordinary traveler incurs. For each passenger killed 58,917,645 passenger miles were accomplished.

UNDER close examination the so-called "Harriman victory" proves to be no victory at all, any more than the decision of the federal court of Minnesota last April was a "Hill victory." All the New Jersey court has done is to grant a preliminary injunction against the carrying out of the proposed pro rata distribution of the assets of the Northern securities company. Whether Mr. Harriman shall get back the Northern Pacific stock which he put into the securities company or receive Great Northern and Northern Pacific stock on the pro rata basis provided by the directors of the securities company remains to be decided. And while this question is pending no holder of Northern securities stock can get either its assets on the income from them.

THE Gazette is altogether too presumptuous in challenging the political regularity of those who happen to disagree with it. The latest to fall under the ban of the Gazette's displeasure is Hon. D. P. O'Niell of Thief River, who is accused of having been at different stages of his career a Democrat and a Populist. We concur in the Gazette's view that Mr. O'Niell had no good reason for becoming a Republican, but since there is no appearance of mercenary motives in his political metamorphosis there ought to be no objection from Republican quarters on the acquisition of such an able and talented champion. Mr. O'Niell has not assumed superior virtues, nor demanded anything from the party, and in decency should be spared the undignified taunts of an editor who is himself somewhat new and fresh—especially the latter—in the ranks of Red Lake county Republicanism.

The Duty of the Hour.

Two or three hundred of the remaining devoted adherents of the People's party met at Springfield, Illinois, last week and after considerable trouble nominated, against his protest, Thos. E. Watson for president and T. H. Tibbles, of Nebraska, for vice president. The platform is the most explicit and genuinely democratic of any promulgated in this campaign, but the party lacks organization as well as followers and thus is not likely to poll sufficient votes in any state to affect the main contest between the other two great political parties.—Albert Lea Standard.

The above is from the pen of a man who was at one time one of the leaders in the Populist party, but who now believes that the first and most imporant duty of voters is to overthrow Rooseveltism. He will therefore support Parker, although not entirely satisfied with the course of the national Democratic convention.—Fairmont Sentinel.

The Only Line With a World's Fair Station.

This refers to the Minneapolis and St. Louis station and means:

1st—The Shortest Line.

2nd—The most comfortable route.

3rd—Two fine through trains direct to the gates of the fair.

4th—A saving of about three hours of time.

5th—You avoid the crowds at the Union depot and on the street cars.

6th—You save money by being landed just where you want to go.

There are many other reasons but "a word to the wise is sufficient."

Try for Health

222 South Peoria St.,
CHICAGO, ILL., Oct. 7, 1902.

Eight months ago I was so ill that I was compelled to lie or sit down nearly all the time. My stomach was so weak and upset that I could keep nothing on it and I vomited frequently. I could not urinate without great pain and I coughed so much that my throat and lungs were raw and sore. The doctors pronounced it Bright's disease and others said it was consumption. It mattered little to me what they called it and I had no desire to live. A sister visited me from St. Louis and asked me if I had ever tried Wine of Cardui. I told her I had not and she bought a bottle. I believe that it saved my life. I believe many women could save much suffering if they but knew of its value.

Georgia Dunbar

Don't you want freedom from pain? Take Wine of Cardui and make one supreme effort to be well. You do not need to be a weak, helpless sufferer. You can have a woman's health and do a woman's work in life. Why not secure a bottle of Wine of Cardui from your druggist today?

WINE OF CARDUI

Political Pot-pourri

It is noised about that William Findeisen, the well-known machinery dealer, may be a candidate for county commissioner. Last Saturday a large delegation of Lake Pleasant farmers called on Mr. Findeisen and urged him to be a candidate, promising him a large vote from their part of the district. For some time there has been a sentiment at work that the business interests of Red Lake Falls should be represented on the county board. Red Lake Falls being the county-seat and the most important city in the county it has a good many interests over which the county board has jurisdiction, and it would seem that the city is entitled to the representation. Mr. Findeisen is a representative citizen with extensive property interests and his long experience in business and large acquaintance with the people and needs of the district fit him for the position of commissioner. If he will consent to the use of his name there is little doubt of his nomination, and as the job is in no sense political it is not likely that there would be any opposition from the Democrats.

The rumor is current that Ovide Moreau of Terrebonne township will seek the Republican nomination for county treasurer. Mr. Moreau is an old resident and a first-class man, but the candidate who opposes Treasurer Tandberg will find that there is many a slip 'twixt the nomination and the election.

The local Republican organ announces that Frank Jeffers will be an aspirant for register of deeds on the Populist ticket. Mr. Jeffers has been county superintendent since the mind of man runneth not to the contrary, and he doubtless feels deserving of a promotion to a larger field for the exercise of his political talents. As Mr. Jeffers seems to be assured of the Gazette's hearty support there ought to be no question of a landslide in his favor.

It is rumored that James D. Taylor will locate at the new town of Scotland and engage in the practice of law, and it is also stated that Jim will seek the Democratic nomination for county attorney this fall. Mr. Taylor is an exceptionally bright and able young attorney, and his Democracy is as unfaltering as the rock of Gibraltar. He will find a lot of staunch friends and well-wishers if he gets into the political game.

The Gazette takes up the cudgel in behalf of Daniel Shaw as a candidate for county commissioner from the Thief River district. As the Gazette is not published at Thief River its advice on a question of purely local concern is gratuitous to say the least.

Up to date there has been no announcement of a candidate in opposition to Sheriff Linnihan. Mr. Linnihan has made a model officer, and is deserving of another term. The temper of the people seems to be in favor of conceding him the election this fall.

Dr. V. Pleth and wife, of Chicago, were visitors to Red Lake Falls Monday. The Doctor is a brother of Julius Pleth of St. Hilaire, and is a physician and surgeon of wide repuputation. Dr. Pleth will spend several months in Red Lake county.

Brick-laying on the Sortedahl building was commenced yesterday, and it is expected to have the edifice completed by September 1. It will be one of the handsomest buildings in town and will make a model home for the bank and land company.

County Treasurer Tandberg was at Thief River Falls several days of this week looking after his political fences and visiting friends. Mr. Tandberg has no serious opposition in sight this fall and it is probable that his election will be practically unanimous.

Letters received from Theo. LaBissoniere indicate that he has been in Montana most of this week. Mr. LaBissoniere is selling Red Lake county cheese on his way out to Washington, and disposed of good-sized orders at Butte, Helena and other cities.

Mrs. Maria Gervais and Miss Lillie Belair arrived last Thursday from Two Harbors for a visit with the family of Joseph Belair. Their arrival was a complete surprise to the family, and Mrs. Belair had intended starting the same day for a visit to Two Harbors.

The young ladies of the summer training school held a picnic at the Healy dam last Saturday, and a large number of town people were invited to join the party. Dinner was served at 12:30, and several hours were spent in social intercourse and games.

Will Hunt, Norman Schreiter, Orson Doe, Walter Buse, Leland, Ralph and Vern Healy, Harry Garceau and Newell Olson, who have been camping at Maple Lake for the past two weeks, broke camp Tuesday and returned home. The boys report a most delightful outing.

Sauk Rapids Sentinel: Prof. Andrew Onstad, leader of the Red Lake Falls band and a musician of more than local reputation, was the guest of Sauk Rapids friends several days this week. The Professor is a most agreeable young man and we hope he will make us frequent visits in the future.

Mentor Herald: Lee Healy and his fellow campers, from Red Lake Falls, entertained thirty-seven young ladies at dinner on Monday. No one on earth but Healy would have undertaken the job, but it is said they all enjoyed themselves, but the next morning the boys had to telephone for more grub.

Mrs. Fred L. Farley and little daughter, Henrietta, arrived last Saturday from Waseca, and the family has gone to housekeeping in the Allard residence in the south side of town. Mrs. Farley was expected some weeks ago, but has been detained by a serious illness of a sister near Spring Valley.

The prairie chicken and other game in Red Lake county is to be protected this year. It is stated on reliable authority that a game warden is already stationed at Red Lake Falls and those of our people prone to take a shot at the festive chicken before they are ripe are very apt to feel the strong arm of the law.

Marriage licenses were issued by Clerk Perrault to the following persons this week: Oliver A. Mathison and Ida Lovenell, both of Thief River; John Larson and Clara Jorgenson, both of Thief River; Stanilas Carriere and Analine Boucher, both of Lambert; Hans Hanson and Hannah Hagglund, both of Thief River.

Reports received by the state game and fish commission from deputy wardens in various parts of the state indicate that prairie chickens will be numerous this year. Most of the wardens report an excellent crop of chickens in their territory. The severe winter had little effect upon the birds and they have increased greatly.

Prof. S. A. Challman, superintendent of the schools at Montevideo, addressed the teachers of the training school Saturday evening on "The American Socrates." The lecture was a biography and eulogy of Benjamin Franklin. Prof. Challman is a talented and interesting speaker, and a large audience was present to hear him.

Hon. Marcus Johnson of this city has been named as one of the members-at-large on the Republican state central committee, being the personal choice of Hon. Robert C. Dunn, the candidate for governor. The other representatives from the Ninth district on the committee are A. D. Stephens of Crookston and Chas. E. Ward of Ada.

Mentor Herald: A party of ten young ladies chaperoned by Mrs. Davison and Mrs. Rev. Knox, of Red Lake Falls, are camped on Washington Heights. They are certainly an acquisition to the Lake society and we hope for their company every season in the future. They are loud in their praises of Mr. Hunt who drove them over.

A preliminary meeting for the organization of a Red Lake county teachers' association was held at the school house yesterday. Addresses were made by County Superintendent Jeffers, H. T. McAnulty and others, and it was the unanimous vote of the teachers to perfect an organization, which will be done before the summer school acjourns today.

A number of citizens have discussed the advisability of putting a water trough on Main street for the benefit of the farmers, and it is likely that a petition for this improvement will be presented to the city council. It is argued that since the city has a good well in front of the hall a windmill could be erected and a watering place maintained at trifling cost.

Frank A. Mizen and wife returned Friday morning from their trip to the St. Louis fair and various points in Ohio, and Frank is once more on duty at the Northern Pacific depot. He reports having a most delightful vacation, and says the fair is simply beyond description. J. H. McDermott, who relieved Mr. Mizen as agent during the latter's trip, left Monday evening for his home at Fertile.

Frank E. Hunt left this evening on a three months' vacation in the East. He will first go to his old home at Little Compton, R. I., for an extended stay and from there to Boston, where a brother resides. He will also visit his sister at Providence, and Mrs. Hunt's sisters at Philadelphia and Mt. Vernon. Mr. Hunt has not taken a vacation for a good many years and needs the respite from business duties. The Red Lake Falls people will hope that he has a royal good time.

Sam Allard is the proud possessor of a pair of young gineau pigs, a present from Mock-Sad-Alli, the Hindu magician who gave an entertainment at the opera house some time ago. Sam had assisted the magician in repairing some of his electrical apparatus, and after the company had left on the train Sam found the gineau pigs in his coat pocket, where they had been placed by the magician unknown to the recipient. They are pretty and interesting pets and Sam and his family appreciate the gift very highly.

Adrian Democrat: Dr. C. C. May and son, Darwin, returned the latter part of last week from Red Lake county, where he spent a week or more looking after his farms. Some of his land is within a short distance of a new town on a branch the Soo is building through that part of the country, and as a result, the price of the land has advanced considerably. C. M. Thompson's farm is not far from the same station, and the new road will increase the value of his land also. The Doctor says the crops are very fair in Red Lake county.

A week or ten days of good weather will see the greater portion of the wheat headed out and ready for the last stretch before harvest. Already large fields near the city which were sown early have started to head out and the straw is of a good color and a good stand. Old time farmers are of the opinion that the early heading of the grain is a very favorable indication, as the kernel will have plenty of time to thoroughly mature before the harvest becomes necessary, thereby insuring a crop of good hard wheat with few soft or undeveloped kernels.

The school board held a meeting Tuesday afternoon and perfected an organization for the coming year. The old officers were re-elected as follows: Frank E. Hunt, president; A. P. Toupin, clerk, and Thos. Crompe, treasurer. Luc Dubuc was elected janitor for the Lafayette building and Joseph Beaulieu for the Washington school. A committee consisting of Theo. Garceau, A. P. Toupin and Henry Hennemrth was appointed to look after the foundation of the Washington building and have the necessary repairs made before the fall term of school commences.

One of the best ball games ever played in this city was the contest between the Fosston and Red Lake Falls teams Monday afternoon. The Fosston team contains five or six semi-pro-fessionals and they put as good an article of ball as many of the league clubs. The game required ten innings, and the Fosston boys won by a score of 4 to 3. Up to the seventh inning the locals had the best of it, but at that stage of the game a combination of errors gave the visitors three runs. Healy and Murphy were the battery for the locals and did splendid work. A. G. Bjorneby officiated as umpire. The Fosston boys played at Thief River Saturday and Sunday and defeated the team at that place in both games.

Several of the citizens of Red Lake Falls have delivered addresses before the summer school this week. Father Fayolle gave an interesting talk on "Africa," a subject with which he is especially familiar, having in his early career as a priest been a missionary to that country. W. A. McIntyre gave an address on "State Institutions," Thomas Germo on "Recreation," and E. L. Quist on "Peace." Attorney Grady and L. C. Simons are booked for short talks today, and if Father Fayolle returns from Duluth tomorrow he will continue his talk on "Africa." During the week the school has been favored with musical selection by Prof. Onstad, Mrs. E. F. Marshall and Paul Berthon.

During the time that the Red Lake Falls boys camped at Maple Lake, Leland Healy became so favorably impressed with the bright prospect for the future summer resort, and knowing that the price of the lots would be advanced, and feeling that it would be a good investment, purchased two desirable lots located at Washington Heights, of Mr. H. W. Smith, who owned and platted the land along the lake. Mr. Smith has appointed Leland Healy his agent to dispose of the lots, and will soon furnish him with plats and price-lists. It would be nice if a colony of Red Lake Falls people would purchase lots there. Why shouldn't Red Lake Falls be represented as well as Grand Forks, Crookston, Euclid and Warren? The price of these lots will be advanced this fall, another $25.00. Now is the time to buy.

RUSSIANS CAPTURE AN AMERICAN SHIP

VESSEL SEIZED IN THE FAR EAST BELIEVED TO BE THE STEAMER ARABIA.

BRITISH SHIP SUNK BY VLADIVOSTOK FLEET

Another Vessel, the Ardova, Fired on and Captured—German Steamer Searched and Released—Volunteer Fleet Ordered Home.

Portland, Ore., July 26.—The steamer Arabia, reported captured by the Russian Vladivostok squadron, is believed to be the Oregon Railway & Navigation company's steamer Arabia, which sailed from this port for the orient about a month ago with a cargo of flour.

British Steamer Sunk.

Tokio, July 26.—The British steamer Chinan has arrived at Yokohama with the crew of the British steamer Knight Commander, which was sunk by the Russian Vladivostok squadron off Izu. The Knight Commander's cargo was a general one. Her European passengers were detained by the Russians and her crew of 21 was transferred to the Tsinan, which also reports that the Russians sank two Japanese schooners.

News Received at London.

London, July 26.—The foreign office has received news of the sinking of the British steamer Knight Commander and has instructed the British consul at Yokohama to make a full investigation of the case and report at once to Downing street. Until his report is received no action will be taken. The foreign office regrets the incident as coming at an unfortunate time in connection with public opinion here, but the officials refrain from all comment pending receipt of details.

German Steamer Searched.

Berlin, July 26.—The German steamer Lisboa, of the Oldenburgh-Portugal line, has been stopped and searched by a Russian warship in the gulf of Finland. She was then released.

Protest Against Capture.

Suez, July 26.—The British steamer Ardova, which, after being fired at by the Russian volunteer fleet steamer Smolensk, was seized by that vessel, has arrived here. Capt. Smith, of the Ardova, has lodged a protest with the British consul against the capture and detention of the steamer. Part of the Ardova's crew, who are on board the Smolensk, will be landed at Jedda, Arabia.

To Intercept Captured Ships.

Constantinople, July 26.—Vessels arriving here report that a British warship is patrolling off Cape Helas, 15 miles south of the Dardanelles. She is using her searchlight, with the supposed view of intercepting any British ships which may have been captured by the Russian volunteer fleet steamers, if they attempt to pass the Dardanelles.

Ships Ordered Home.

St. Petersburg, July 26.—The press is informed that the Russian volunteer fleet steamers Smolensk and St. Petersburg have already been ordered home, and that instructions for them to return have been cabled. The assurances given Great Britain on this point are declared to be satisfactory. The instructions given the commanders of the vessels repeat the orders heretofore announced in these dispatches, directing them to refrain from further attempt to stop merchantmen either in the Red sea or the Mediterranean.

The decision not to insist upon the war status of ships was probably reached at the conference held Saturday. The two ships may be brought to the Baltic and formally recommissioned. Russia has reiterated her assurances that all vessels seized pending the receipt of instructions by the captains of the Smolensk and St. Petersburg shall at once be released, and that the British steamer Ardova will be freed upon her arrival at Suez or Port Said, the same as the Scandia.

Great Britain's bill for damages against Russia for demurrage and other indemnities connected with the arrest, detention and shelling of British ships in the Red sea will probably be very heavy. Already it is roughly estimated at $5,000,000.

Version of Trouble.

The popular version of the Red sea entanglement, which has so embarrassed the Russian foreign office, is that it grew out of Grand Duke Alexander Mikhailovich, head of the department of mercantile marine, practically taking matters into his own hands and commissioning the vessels of the volunteer fleet which had passed through the Dardanelles bound for the far east to hoist the Russian war flag and seize merchantmen in the Red sea. It is understood that the emperor has censured his brother-in-law for taking a step of such gravity without consulting the foreign office. There is general relief, however, at the fact that Grand Duke Alexander Mikhailovich's precipitate action has not resulted in irreparable complications. The blunder of the grand duke is attributed to his comparative youth and inexperience in affairs of state.

Rates Are Raised.

Detroit, July 26.—A general increase in insurance rates was ordered Saturday by the supreme tent, Knights of the Maccabees of the World. Policies hereafter will be furnished new members at rates ranging from 85 cents for each $1,000 at the age of 18 years, to $2.75 at the age of 59.

BUTCHERS' TRUCE WAS SHORT LIVED

PACKERS AND STRIKERS REACH AN AGREEMENT TO SUBMIT TO ARBITRATION.

Men Start to Resume Work, But Declare Discrimination Is Made in Reinstating Them and Strike Is Again Ordered.

Chicago, July 21.—The strike of the 50,000 butcher workmen at the great meat packing plants of the United States was settled Wednesday night.

By the terms of the agreement, signed by representatives of each side, all disputes pertaining to wages and working conditions will be submitted to a board of arbitration, and pending an adjustment of the controversy the men will receive the same wages that were paid just previous to the strike.

The question of reinstating the men on strike was the chief matter of dispute, and finally was disposed of by an agreement that the men shall be taken back as fast as possible without discrimination. After 45 days from the date work is resumed any former employe who has not been taken back will have the privilege of submitting his case to arbitration.

Strike Is Renewed.

Chicago, July 23.—The stock yards strike is on again. On the charge that the packers were discriminating against certain persons in the reemployment process the union officials Friday ordered their men to quit work, and the situation at the yards is as bad as ever. The strike was renewed in other packing centers also. Strike leaders declare that unless the employers change their attitude at once, all the allied trades workmen will walk out and that a complete stoppage of work at the packing plants will ensue.

President Donnelly, after conferring with other leaders, gave the order for the strike and then sent this telegram to union officials in other packing centers of the country: "Packers already have violated agreement by discrimination. Order men out."

When the word that another strike was ordered reached the workmen who had gone to the different departments to begin their labor, they finished the work immediately in hand and then marched in bodies out of the yards, taking their tools with them.

Fail to Agree.

Chicago, July 25.—A general strike of the teamsters, firemen and mechanical trades employed in the meat packing industries in Chicago and other packing house centers seems certain. The union committee in charge of the negotiations in the interest of the striking butcher workmen submitted an ultimatum to the packers demanding the immediate acceptance by them of the terms.

The three points in the ultimatum of the labor representatives follow: All strikers to be reinstated within ten days; workers in the killing, cutting and casing departments to be taken back within 48 hours after the resumption of work; strike of the allied trades on the nonacceptance of those terms by the employers.

In reply the packers unanimously reaffirm their previous stand. They prepared a letter, in which they declared they had an agreement with the butchers and were ready to put it in force at any time. Therefore they were in no position to negotiate for a new contract. At the same meeting at which the packers voted to make no new concessions to the strikers they decided to attempt to open all their plants here and elsewhere.

Values It Highly.

Esopus, N. Y., July 22.—Former President Cleveland's published article discussing the present democratic policy and Judge Parker's leadership is regarded by Judge Parker as likely to be of great value in the campaign and as one of the strongest appeals yet made to democratic voters.

NAMED FOR GOVERNOR.

Joseph W. Folk Is Selected as Standard-Bearer of Missouri Democrats.

Jefferson City, Mo., July 22.—After an all night session, marked by intervals of disorder and commotion that could not be quelled by the gavel, the democratic state convention unanimously nominated Joseph W. Folk, circuit attorney of St. Louis, for governor and adopted a platform which promises vigorous, unrelenting crusade against corruption and boodle in Missouri in the event of democratic supremacy at the polls.

Joseph Wingate Folk, was born in Brownsville, Tenn., October 28, 1869. His father is Judge Henry B. Folk, of Brownsville, and his mother is a descendant of the Estes family of Virginia. Mr. Folk is a graduate of Vanderbilt university of Nashville, Tenn., where he finished his literary and legal education. He practiced law in Brownsville for two years and then went to St. Louis in 1892. Soon he became identified with the younger element of the democratic party and first became prominent in political circles when he was made a charter member of the Jefferson club, the leading democratic organization. He served in the capacity of president of the organization in 1898. Mr. Folk became generally known to the citizens of St. Louis through the prominent part he took in the settlement of the great street car strike of 1900. As circuit attorney of St. Louis Mr. Folk successfully prosecuted a number of bribe takers in both branches of the municipal assembly.

President Passes Quiet Day.

Oyster Bay, L. I., July 25.—President Roosevelt passed a very busy although from a news viewpoint a quiet day at Sagamore Hill Saturday. Secretary Loeb joined him at an earlier hour than usual and together they spent several hours in the disposition of a large amount of routine business which had reached the president by mail and by wire, principally from Washington. No visitors had appointments with the president Saturday.

Indicted for Bribery.

St. Louis, Mo., July 23.—Col. Edward Butler, a prominent local politician, was indicted Friday by the June grand jury on the charge of bribing a witness. The indictment grows out of the confession of Charles F. Kelly, former member of the house of delegates, who says that Butler gave him $15,000 for leaving the country and staying away, until the bribe givers, against whom he had damaging evidence, were protected by the statute of limitations.

Canadian Wins Shoot.

Bisley, England, July 25.—Private Perry, Canada, won the king's prize with a score of 321 points. He thus takes the king's gold medal and a $1,250 purse, having defeated all the crack shots of the British empire. His score was ten better than the winning score of 1903. The prince and princess of Wales were among the spectators.

Davis to Be Notified.

Bedford Springs, Pa., July 25.—Henry G. Davis, democratic nominee for vice president, has made a decision in regard to his notification. It will be held at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., either the first or second week of August.

To Notify Parker.

Esopus, N. Y., July 25.—Judge Parker has fixed August 10 as the date for the ceremonies notifying him of his nomination by the democratic national convention as a candidate for the presidency.

Writ of Error Granted.

Frankfort, Ky., July 25.—The court of appeals Saturday granted a writ of error in the case of James Howard, under a life sentence for the murder of William Goebel. The case will go to the supreme court.

Died at the Age of 103.

Philadelphia, July 25.—Mrs. Mary Nixon, of Bryn Mawr, a suburb of this city, who last Christmas celebrated her one hundred and third birthday, died Sunday.

TRADE REVIEW.

Encouraging Factors Said to Predominate—Crop Prospects Reported Brighter.

New York, July 23.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: "Encouraging factors predominate. Little definite increase is seen in the distribution of merchandise, but developments of the past week promise better things in the near future. The most important influence for good is brighter crop prospect. For the present the best news comes from the large cities, where warm weather has stimulated retail trade in light weight fabrics, and jobbers report that orders from agricultural communities are better than from manufacturing centers. There are still many complaints of slow collections. In the principal manufacturing branches there is still much idle machinery, especially at cotton mills and iron plants, while most window glass producers will not resume until September. Reports of railway earnings for July so far show only a small loss of 1.5 per cent. as compared with the same period last year. It is gratifying to note in dispatches from iron and steel making centers that the decline in quotations has ceased and consumers making inquiries which promise to result in considerable business.

"Failures of the week numbered 213 in the United States, against 191 last year, and 20 in Canada, compared with 19 a year ago."

Bradstreet's says: Good progress by most crops strengthens belief in favorable fall trade following the present season of comparative quiet and inactivity Among the industries quietness and even dullness is still the feature, but rather more is doing in the leather trade, foreshadowing later developments in the shoe business, and the production of iron and steel is being steadily curtailed, with a resulting firmer tone to pig iron prices. Several basic industries still show little tendency to revive."

FORMALLY NOTIFIED.

Prohibition Candidates Are Told of Their Nomination, and Both Accept Honor.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 23.—Dr. Silas C. Swallow, of Harrisburg, Pa., and George W. Carroll, of Texas, prohibition candidates for president and vice president of the United States, were formally notified of their nominations Friday. A. F. Wolfenbarger, of Lincoln, Neb., chairman of the recent national convention, which met here in the same hall that witnessed the notification exercises, delivered the notification address to Dr. Swallow, and Homer L. Castle, of Pittsburg, notified Mr. Carroll. Responses of acceptance were made by both candidates, and National Chairman Stewart delivered the closing speech. The occasion brought many prominent prohibitionists of the country here.

To Resume with Full Force.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 25.—Arrangements are being made for the resumption on double turn next week of the extensive steel plant of Jones & Laughlins. The mills have been running at about 65 per cent. of the normal capacity, but orders have come in recently that the officials of the company believe warrant a resumption in full. Between 3,500 and 4,000 men will be affected beneficially by the change. Some of these have been working on short time and others were idle altogether.

Michigan Politician Dead.

New York, July 22.—William G. Thompson, a prominent politician of Detroit, is dead at a private sanitarium in Yonkers as the result of being knocked down by a bicycle scorcher on April 12 last. Mr. Thompson was twice mayor of Detroit, state senator and always prominent in Michigan politics.

Vote to Strike.

Fall River, Mass., July 25.—The cotton manufacturers Saturday unanimously voted to refuse the request for a postponement for two weeks of the cut-down of 12½ per cent. in wages. This means that the operatives will strike Monday morning.

Schwab's Resignation Accepted.

New York, July 25.—The directors of the American Steel Foundries company have accepted the resignation of Charles M. Schwab, who recently disposed of his stock in the company.

Rheumatism
Is Not a Skin Disease.

Most people have an idea that rheumatism is contracted like a cold, that the damp, chilly air penetrates the muscles and joints and causes the terrible aches and pains, or that it is something like a skin disease to be rubbed away with liniment or drawn out with plasters; but Rhuematism originates in the blood and is caused by Urea, or Uric Acid, an irritating, corroding poison that settles in muscles, joints and nerves, producing inflammation and soreness and the sharp, cutting pains peculiar to this distressing disease.

Exposure to bad weather or sudden chilling of the body will hasten an attack of Rheumatism after the blood and system are in the right condition for it to develop, but have nothing to do with the real true causes of Rheumatism, which are internal and not external.

Liniments, plasters and rubbing will sometimes reduce the inflammation and swelling and ease the pain for a time, but fail to relieve permanently because they do not reach the seat of the trouble. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism because it attacks it in the blood, and the Uric Acid poison is neutralized, the sluggish circulation stimulated and quickened, and soon the system is purified and cleansed, the aching muscles and joints are relieved of all irritating matter and a lasting cure of this most painful disease effected.

Bowling Green, Ky.
About a year ago I was attacked by acute rheumatism in my shoulders, arms and legs below the knee. I could not raise my arm to comb my hair. Doctors prescribed for me for over two months without giving me any relief. I saw S. S. S. advertised and decided to try it. Immediately I commenced its use I felt better, and remarked to mother that I was glad I had at last found some relief. I continued its use and am entirely well. I will always feel deeply interested in the success of S. S. S. since it did me so much good.

The Story of Toledo Cathedral.

The cathedral of Toledo is perhaps the finest architectural glory that Spain can boast. The site was occupied by at least three churches before the erection of the present building, the first one, according to popular legend, having been erected during the lifetime of the Virgin Mary and visited by her. Of this church we know nothing. The second was pulled down in 1032. The third was finished in 1085 and was occupied by the Moors for many years as a mosque. Afterward it was the cathedral of Spain until in the early part of the thirteenth century Alfonso IX. had it pulled down and the present one erected in its stead. It is 404 feet long and 204 feet wide, is built from material quarried in the neighborhood and is of the purest Gothic. It was designed by Pedro Perez Blaz, who supervised its erection for nearly fifty years and consecrated his life to it. During the five centuries after his death more than 250 architects were employed upon it, and for 267 years the work was uninterrupted.—St. James Gazette.

Through Women's Eyes.

As a finely dressed woman entered the "L" train every other woman in the car eyed her clothes closely. "There," said a man to his wife, who was making a close inventory of the new arrival's dress, "that is what I don't like about women. They display such interest in other women's clothes. You see it everywhere—in parlors, at receptions and balls and in public conveyances. You never see men acting that way. I am inclined to believe this is owing to men's finer judgment as to what is proper. They know that to take note of another's dress is the height of bad manners, and they abstain from doing it."

"It is very nice of you, of course, to praise your own sex so," said his wife, "but your explanation is utterly wrong. The reason women notice one another's clothes is that every woman is practically a dressmaker, and when she sees a dress she views it with the interest of a professional."—New York Press.

Confederate Coinage.

It is a matter of history that the entire coinage of the Confederate states consisted of four half dollar pieces. The obverse side had a goddess of liberty (same as United States coins) in an arc of thirteen stars, in her right hand a shield of conventional design with "Liberty" thereon and below the date, 1861. On the reverse side was an American shield beneath a Liberty cap, the union containing seven stars—representing the seven seceding states—the whole surrounded by a wreath; at the left cotton in bloom, at the right sugar cane. The legend was "Confederate States of America." In the exergue, "Half Dol." The borders were milled and the edge was serrated.—New York Tribune.

Old Time Grave Robbers.

Under the laws of Draco, the most severe code ever drawn up, all grave robbers were put to death without trial. The old Athenian laws put a slave to death for disturbing a body after interment, but in the case of a freeman a "confiscation of a moiety of his possessions" was the penalty. Constantine decreed that a woman might obtain a divorce if she could prove that her husband had disturbed the remains of the dead. At one time (in the time of the seventh and eighth Henrys) the English law held that "it is deemed unlawful to open a grave for a second person, except for a husband or wife."

Vegetables of Liberia.

The most common vegetables of Liberia are the sweet potato, cassada, yam and tania. The cassada is a root varying in size from three to eight inches in length and from three to eight inches in circumference. When it is cooked it tastes very much like a fresh chestnut. This root is the vegetable most extensively cultivated by the natives and forms, with the rice, their chief diet. The fecula of the cassada is made from tapioca.

Stage Manners.

Stage managers still consider it necessary to keep the actors bustling about the stage in a meaningless, unnatural and distracting manner. In life I do not speak three or four sentences to my friend at one side of the room and then with him elaborately cross the room before I continue my discourse. Why should I do so on the stage?—London Academy.

Man the Slave.

It has taken ages of repression to bring the husband and father to his present condition of abject slavery to the wife and mother. He is the victim of a process that began in the garden of Eden and gives no promise of ending until he is called to the reward that awaits the humble on the other and brighter shore.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Putting Words In Her Mouth.

"I declare," said Bella sweetly, "your thoughts run exactly in unison with mine, Augustus. I had those very words in my mouth."

"Yes, and I saw him put 'em there, too," said little Tommy, who had seen the kissing going on.

An Investigator.

"Yes, our boy has shown a remarkable talent for music. He wants to get at the very source of it, as it were."

"What proof have you of this?"

"Why, he knocked in the heads of three drums in as many days."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Expects to Return.

"So she has started on a life journey into matrimony, has she?"

"Well, I guess it is only an excursion trip."—Brooklyn Life.

"Kith" and "Kin."

"Kith and kin" has become a phrase vaguely applied to express relationship, but "kith" has nothing to do with kinship. "Kith" means "kent folk." It comes from "ken," which is the same as our word "can"—to know. When one can do a thing, one knows how to do it. Evidently our ancestors believed that knowledge is power. The old word for known was "kyth," as the old word for unknown was "unkyth," or "uncouth." "Uncouth"—strange, unfamiliar, unusual, unknown—has preserved much of its early meaning in Scotland. Burns uses "uncos" in the sense of news. The "unco guid" are the strangely, marvelously good. "Kith," then, meant "kent folk," people with whom one was familiar. The "kent folk" are the folk we love, and love and familiarity developed out of the word "kith" the curious vocable "kyththie," which in course of time underwent considerable phonetic and orthographic changes, but which is still recognizable in the word "cuddie."—Good Words.

A Vegetable Clock.

One of the most curious plants known is the clock plant, which is a native of Borneo, and even in that country it is said to be rare. The plant derives its name from its peculiar habits, which are known to but few who have not studied the plant from a scientific standpoint. The plant has leaves of two sizes, one of which acts in the capacity of a minute hand, which keeps moving until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and the other keeps going until morning. The larger leaves act as the hour hands. Starting in a position when all the leaves lie close to the stem, with the points hanging down, they rise gradually until they turn toward the top, and then they drop to their former position. It takes the smaller leaves about one minute to go through this performance and the longer leaves just about an hour.

A Chapel In a Coal Mine.

One of the most remarkable places of worship in the world is the miners' chapel in Myndd Menigdd colliery, Swansea, Wales, where for more than fifty years the workers have each morning assembled for worship. This sanctuary is situated close to the bottom of the shaft. The only light is that obtained from a solitary Davy safety lamp hung over the pulpit from the ceiling, and the oldest miner in the colliery is generally chosen to officiate. It is the custom in some other places for coal miners to gather together mealtimes for prayer meeting and the like, but it is said that this is the only instance where a special apartment is fitted out in a coal mine as a chapel.

How "Abide With Me" Was Written.

At the age of fifty-four Lyte found himself doomed to die of consumption, and in sorrow at having to leave his task unfinished he prayed that at the least it might be granted to him to write something which would live to the glory of God when he was dead. Then on the last evening he ever spent at Brixham, after preaching his farewell sermon, he took pen and as the sun was setting over the ships that lay in the harbor "Abide With Me" was written. Next morning he started for the Riviera and there died a month later.—London Telegraph.

Torture In Colombia.

It is a common thing for a Colombian boy of twelve to fourteen to be thrashed to death with cowhide whips for "deserting" from the army—that is to say, running back home after he had been forcibly enlisted. It is generally common for a mere child to be hung up by the thumbs until he dies because he will not—or cannot—say where his father is hidden. Women have been crucified because they have refused to betray their husbands, and others have been treated infinitely worse.—World's Work.

Didn't Know How to Play.

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Tomkins, "I have done you a great injustice."

"In what way?"

"I suspected you without reason. I asked several of your friends that you go out with of evenings whether you knew how to play poker, and every one of them thought a minute and said you didn't."—Washington Star.

The Envious One.

The envious person is in pain upon all occasions which ought to give him pleasure. The relish of his life is lost, and the objects which administer the highest satisfaction to those who are exempt from this passion give the quickest pangs to persons who are subject to it. All the perfections of their fellow creatures are odious.

Chinese Terms of Endearment.

In China a wife is never spoken of by her husband in a plain and straightforward way. Such playful terms as "my thorn in the ribs" and "my dull companion" are more usual, but leave something to be desired on the score of elegance. "The mean one of the inner room" has a distinct flavor of masculine selfishness about it.

Not Always Safe.

Newitt—Well, there's one thing about the weather—it's always a safe topic of conversation. Borroughs—I thought it was today when I met Lendham, but when I started to speak of it he said, "Yes; it's unsettled, and that reminds me of that account of yours."

Two of a Kind.

New Girl (timidly)—I s'pose you are a fine cook, mum? Young Mistress—Bless me, no! I don't know anything about it. New Girl (relieved)—Then we'll get on famously, mum. I don't either.—New Yorker.

If a man makes me keep my distance, the comfort is he keeps his at the same time.—Swift.

The Story of Toledo Cathedral.

The cathedral of Toledo is perhaps the finest architectural glory that Spain can boast. The site was occupied by at least three churches before the erection of the present building, the first one, according to popular legend, having been erected during the lifetime of the Virgin Mary and visited by her. Of this church we know nothing. The second was pulled down in 1032. The third was finished in 1085 and was occupied by the Moors for many years as a mosque. Afterward it was the cathedral of Spain, until in the early part of the thirteenth century Alfonso IX. had it pulled down and the present one erected in its stead. It is 404 feet long and 204 feet wide, is built from material quarried in the neighborhood and is of the purest Gothic. It was designed by Pedro Perez Diaz, who supervised its erection for nearly fifty years and consecrated his life to it. During the five centuries after his death more than 150 architects were employed upon it, and for 266 years the work was uninterrupted.—St. James Gazette.

Through Women's Eyes.

As a finely dressed woman entered the "L" train every other woman in the car eyed her clothes closely. "There," said a man to his wife, who was making a close inventory of the new arrival's dress, "that is what I don't like about women. They display such interest in other women's clothes. You see it everywhere—in parlors, at receptions and balls and in public conveyances. You never see men acting that way. I am inclined to believe this is owing to men's finer judgment as to what is proper. They know that to take note of another's dress is the height of bad manners, and they abstain from doing it."

"It is very nice of you, of course, to praise your own sex so," said his wife, "but your explanation is utterly wrong. The reason women notice one another's clothes is that every woman is practically a dressmaker, and when she sees a dress she views it with the interest of a professional."—New York Press.

Confederate Coinage.

It is a matter of history that the entire coinage of the Confederate states consisted of four half dollar pieces. The obverse side had a goddess of liberty (same as United States coins) in an arc of thirteen stars, in her right hand a shield of conventional design with "Liberty" thereon and below the date, 1861. On the reverse side was an American shield beneath a Liberty cap, the union containing seven stars—representing the seven seceding states—the whole surrounded by a wreath; at the left cotton in bloom, at the right sugar cane. The legend was "Confederate States of America." In the exergue, "Half Dol." The borders were milled and the edge was serrated.—New York Tribune.

Old Time Grave Robbers.

Under the laws of Draco, the most severe code ever drawn up, all grave robbers were put to death without trial. The old Athenian laws put a slave to death for disturbing a body after interment, but in the case of a freeman a "confiscation of a moiety of his possessions" was the penalty. Constantine decreed that a woman might obtain a divorce if she could prove that her husband had disturbed the remains of the dead. At one time (in the time of the seventh and eighth Henrys) the English law held that "it is deemed unlawful to open a grave for a second person, except for a husband or wife."

Vegetables of Liberia.

The most common vegetables of Liberia are the sweet potato, cassada, yam and tania. The cassada is a root varying in size from three to eight inches in length and from three to eight inches in circumference. When it is cooked it tastes very much like a fresh chestnut. This root is the vegetable most extensively cultivated by the natives and forms, with the rice, their chief diet. The fecula of the cassada is made from tapioca.

Stage Manners.

Stage managers still consider it necessary to keep the actors bustling about the stage in a meaningless, unnatural and distracting manner. In life I do not speak three or four sentences to my friend at one side of the room and then with him elaborately cross the room before I continue my discourse. Why should I do so on the stage?—London Academy.

Man the Slave.

It has taken ages of repression to bring the husband and father to his present condition of abject slavery to the wife and mother. He is the victim of a process that began in the garden of Eden and gives no promise of ending until he is called to the reward that awaits the humble on the other and brighter shore.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Putting Words In Her Mouth.

"I declare," said Bella sweetly, "your thoughts run exactly in unison with mine, Augustus. I had those very words in my mouth."

"Yes, and I saw him put 'em there too," said little Tommy, who had seen the kissing going on.

An Investigator.

"Yes, our boy has shown a remarkable talent for music. He wants to get at the very source of it, as it were."

"What proof have you of that?"

"Why, he knocked in the heads of three drums in as many days."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Kith and Kin.

"Kith and kin" has become a phrase vaguely applied to express relationship, but "kith" has nothing to do with kinship. "Kith" means "kent folk." It comes from "ken," which is the same as our word "can"—to know. When one can do a thing, one knows how to do it. Evidently our ancestors believed that knowledge is power. The old word for known was "kyth," as the old word for unknown was "unkyth," or "uncouth." "Uncouth"—strange, unfamiliar, unusual, unknown—has preserved much of its early meaning in Scotland. Burns uses "uncos" in the sense of news. The "unco guid" are the strangely, marvelously good. "Kith," then, meant "kent folk," people with whom one was familiar. The "kent folk" are the folk we love, and love and familiarity developed out of the word "kith" the curious vocable "kyththle," which in course of time underwent considerable phonetic and orthographic changes, but which is still recognizable in the word "cuddle."—Good Words.

A Vegetable Clock.

One of the most curious plants known is the clock plant, which is a native of Borneo, and even in that country it is said to be rare. The plant derives its name from its peculiar habits, which are known to but few who have not studied the plant from a scientific standpoint. The plant has leaves of two sizes, one of which acts in the capacity of a minute hand, which keeps moving until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and the other keeps going until morning. The larger leaves act as the hour hands. Starting in a position when all the leaves lie close to the stem, with the points hanging down, they rise gradually until they turn toward the top, and then they drop to their former position. It takes the smaller leaves about one minute to go through this performance and the longer leaves just about an hour.

A Chapel In a Coal Mine.

One of the most remarkable places of worship in the world is the miners' chapel in Myndd Menigdd colliery, Swansea, Wales, where for more than fifty years the workers have each morning assembled for worship. This sanctuary is situated close to the bottom of the shaft. The only light is that obtained from a solitary Davy safety lamp hung over the pulpit from the ceiling, and the oldest miner in the colliery is generally chosen to officiate. It is the custom in some other places for coal miners to gather together mealtimes for prayer meeting and the like, but it is said that this is the only instance where a special apartment is fitted out in a coal mine as a chapel.

How "Abide With Me" Was Written.

At the age of fifty-four Lyte found himself doomed to die of consumption, and in sorrow at having to leave his task unfinished he prayed that at the least it might be granted to him to write something which would live to the glory of God when he was dead. Then on the last evening he ever spent at Brixham, after preaching his farewell sermon, he took pen and as the sun was setting over the ships that lay in the harbor "Abide With Me" was written. Next morning he started for the Riviera and there died a month later.—London Telegraph.

Torture In Colombia.

It is a common thing for a Colombian boy of twelve to fourteen to be thrashed to death with cowhide whips for "deserting" from the army—that is to say, running back home after he had been forcibly enlisted. It is generally common for a mere child to be hung up by the thumbs until he dies because he will not—or cannot—say where his father is hidden. Women have been crucified because they have refused to betray their husbands, and others have been treated infinitely worse.—World's Work.

Didn't Know How to Play.

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Tomkins, "I have done you a great injustice."

"In what way?"

"I suspected you without reason. I asked several of your friends that you go out with of evenings whether you knew how to play poker, and every one of them thought a minute and said you didn't."—Washington Star.

The Envious One.

The envious person is in pain upon all occasions which ought to give him pleasure. The relish of his life is lost, and the objects which administer the highest satisfaction to those who are exempt from this passion give the quickest pangs to persons who are subject to it. All the perfections of their fellow creatures are odious.

Chinese Terms of Endearment.

In China a wife is never spoken of by her husband in a plain and straightforward way. Such playful terms as "my thorn in the ribs" and "my dull companion" are more usual, but leave something to be desired on the score of elegance. "The mean one of the inner room" has a distinct flavor of masculine selfishness about it.

Not Always Safe.

Newitt—Well, there's one thing about the weather—it's always a safe topic of conversation. Borroughs—I thought it was today when I met Lendham, but when I started to speak of it he said, "Yes, it's unsettled, and that reminds me of that account of yours."

Two of a Kind.

New Girl (timidly)—I suppose you are a fine cook, mum? Young Mistress—Bless me, no! I don't know anything about it. New Girl (relieved)—[illegible] well get on famously, mum, [illegible] neither.—New Yorker.

DAIRY DEPARTMENT.

Edited by Geo. L. Austin, Manager of the Red Lake Falls Creamery.

Dairy Dots.

The good milk and butter cow will turn her food into milk and butter instead of flesh, and this is precisely what is wanted by the dairyman.

An expert milker must be quick, as the quicker the milking the richer the milk. Try the experiment and you will find that of two milkers, one fast and the other slow, the former will have the most fat, though each may get about the same quantity of milk.

Dairymen who have visited Europe on tours of inquiry come back convinced that the general use of women in the foreign dairies is a decided advantage. Women are gentler and cleverer than men, and vastly better than the average farm laborer, who does all sorts of work during the day.

Don't imagine that "just anybody" can milk. Good milking is an accomplishment, and, like all accomplishment's comes only from study, experience and natural adaptability for the business. Truth is that a superior milker is as valuable an asset in the dairy as superior cows. In fact the latter are easier to replace than the former.

In two successive butter scoring contests Minnesota dairymen have won sweeping victories at the world's fair at St. Louis. It is significant that the highest scores were made by dairymen at co-operative creameries. It is not only true that Minnesota grasses are the most nutritious and succulent, but Minnesota methods are the best. There may also be something in the fact that the best combined churn and butterworker in the world was invented by a Minnesota man, is made by a Minnesota manufacturer and is almost universally used in Minnesota creameries.

OUR TREASURY SEAL.

The Inscription It Bears and Its Early Significance.

Probably few Americans, young or old, have had sufficient curiosity in examining a bank note to translate the Latin device on the seal of the treasury and to inquire how it happened to read as it does. A writer in the Washington Star believes the inscription throws light on the hopes of our forefathers regarding American dominion.

"Thesaur. Amer. Septent. Sigil." is the legend, an abbreviation of "Thesauri Americæ Septentrionalis Sigillum," "Seal of the Treasury of North America."

The Continental congress in 1778 authorized a committee, consisting of Messrs. Witherspoon, Robert Morris and R. H. Lee, to design seals for the navy and the treasury. The treasury seal has come down to us with very little change.

In those days it was still hoped that Canada would eventually join the Revolution or would at least be wrested from Great Britain before the struggle was over and would become one with this country. That was apparently a project dear to Robert Morris, and he looked upon his country as the whole of North America.

Later, when authorized to establish a bank and a mint "of North America," Morris maintained the legend on the seal, showing that he still hoped for a continental nation. Whenever the seal has been recut the original legend has been adhered to.

INDIA SUPERSTITIONS.

A Typical Story Illustrating the Belief In Animal Ghosts.

India is full of animal ghosts, from the Himalayas to Cape Comorin, if the natives may be believed. Here is a typical story:

"By the beard of my father, sahib, I speak straight words," said an old Mohammedan mahout. "One evening we were hunting wild elephants in the jungle for our lord, the maharaja of Gidhaur. I saw a large tusker alone by a pool. His color was grayish white, and my heart beat fast, for I thought Allah had been gracious to me and had placed in my hands that greatest of all prizes, a lord white elephant. Cautiously I urged my own tame elephant toward him, hoping that while they made friends I could bind him fast to a tree by the rope. My beast trumpeted in terror and trembled violently, but I goaded him on, and then when I put my hand on the white elephant I felt nothing but air. It was a ghost elephant, one of those elephants which come back after death to walk the earth because in this life they went forth and murdered men. I went from the spot as if Shaitan himself were at my heels, and soon afterward I made a pilgrimage to Mecca to avert the curse. But my elephant fell sick and died."

Proving the Convexity of the Earth.

An experiment was made a hundred years ago or so on the Bridgewater canal, in England, to prove the convexity of the earth. At intervals of five miles in a straight stretch of the canal three posts were driven until their tops were precisely six feet above the surface of the water. Then careful measurements and observations were made from either end, with the result that the top of the center post was found to be some distance above a line drawn from top to top of the first and last posts.

The experiments were repeated a number of times, always with the same result. This proves for ordinary persons that the earth is convex, but scientists reached the same conclusions by more scientific ways.

A Sure Thing.

A witty individual one morning wagered that he would ask the same question of fifty different persons and receive the same answer from each. The wit went to first one and then to another until he had reached the number of fifty. And this is how he won the bet: He whispered, half audibly, to each:

"I say, have you heard that Smith has failed?"

"What Smith?" queried the whole fifty, one after another, and it was decided that the bet had been fairly won. —London Tit-Bits.

"Yes," replied the brunette, with tears in her eyes. "But not until I have copied them all. They will make a splendid book, and I have a lovely title for them already, 'The Letters of a Lazy Lover.'"—Cincinnati Times-Star.

A Telltale Sign.

"Old Blinker is a confirmed bachelor, isn't he?"

"Yes, but I am sure that he was once engaged."

"Why?"

"Because he tells me there was a certain period of his life when he went to church regularly."—Detroit Free Press.

QUEEN BEES.

Wonderful Provision of Nature by Which They Are Made.

A marvelous phase of bee life is the power which they possess to raise queens, or mother bees, from eggs or very young brood that would in the ordinary course produce workers, which are neuters, or undeveloped females.

If by any chance a queen is killed or lost the whole colony would perish were it not for this wonderful provision of nature. Much perturbed at first at their loss, the bees after some hours settle down and deliberately build a pear shaped structure known as a queen cell. This is much larger than an ordinary cell, rough, irregular and strong.

In this the selected eggs, or larvæ, are lavishly supplied with "royal jelly," which is highly stimulative and in which the baby queen literally floats during her period of growth. The result is that certain organs and ovaries which remain dormant in a worker bee are perfected, and the new queen hatches out in about fifteen days, or six days sooner than the workers.—London Answers.

Headdresses In Africa.

The married women and the men of the upper Mobangi wear their hair long and in braids, which are profusely adorned with colored beads woven in and out among the locks. This coiffure excites the astonishment of all travelers who see it. Coquetry is the privilege of the sex under the tropics as well as in civilized lands, and the women are very proud of their headdresses. The arrangement of their hair requires a number of days, and while it is in progress or when they fear that it will be disarranged they cover the hair with a finely woven net of wood fiber. Ivory needles handsomely carved keep the arrangement in position and give it a truly artistic aspect.

Curious Legal Custom.

A curious custom is in vogue in many parts of India. If a dispute arises between two landowners two holes are dug close together, in each of which defendant's and plaintiff's lawyers have to place a leg. They have to remain thus until either one of them is exhausted or complains of being bitten by insects, when he is judged to be defeated and his employer loses his case.

Hidden Water Supply.

The investigation of a neglected spring or rivulet may bring to light a valuable supply of water for gardening or domestic purposes. A surprising quantity is often obtainable by installing a ram at some seemingly insignificant source. A ram is cheap, because the first expense is the last, there being no cost of maintenance, and it is satisfactory, because the ram requires no attention. Once started, it takes entire care of itself.—Country Life In America.

Twenty Shots In His Head.

At the present time there is a keeper on a Hertfordshire estate who has about twenty shots in his head. Nearly thirty years ago this man was accidentally shot by an under keeper, and there were twenty-two holes in the hat he wore, which is preserved to this day. The injured man never had the shots extracted, was long between life and death and completely lost his hearing.—London Standard.

Qualified Approval.

"How did you like the opera?"

"First rate," answered Mr. Cumrox. "I didn't care much about the tunes they played, but it was a great comfort to have enough noise to drown the vacuous conversation that was going on around me."—Washington Star.

A hog is a person who "breaks in" while you are negotiating in a store and takes the attention of the salesman or saleswoman away from you.

A hog is a person who opens his window in the railway car and allows dust and cinders to fly in the face of the passengers behind, though he would not tolerate an open window at the seat next in front.

A hog is a person who insists on discussing "the mutability of human affairs" with the ticket seller at the theater when there is a long "Indian file" in his rear and the curtain is about to be rung up on the performance.—Cincinnati Commercial.

Testimonial.

To whom it may concern: This is to certify that J. A. Button, principal of Button Business College of this city, guarantees situations to graduates of his school under a forfeit of the full tuition, if one is not secured. He also guarantees the pupil to hold the position successfully. Money has been deposited by students in this bank with the understanding that if the guarantee was not fulfilled that the money was to be returned to the depositor, and in every instance the contract has been carried out by Mr. Button and the money paid over to him, upon the order of the depositor, after pupil had worked successfully for at least six weeks. Such depositors always signified their satifaction with Mr Button's methods of doing business and were well pleased with the situations secured. Respectfully, Scandia American Bank, By A. P. DEATH OF HENRY GONIGAM

A Prominent Citizen of Red Lake Falls Claimed Suddenly Summoned by the Grim Reaper.

People of Red Lake Falls were inexpressibly pained and shocked Monday forenoon to learn that Henry Gonigam, one of our most prominent and highly respected citizens, had died very suddenly at eleven o'clock of heart failure. The dread summons came without the slightest warning, and it was hard to believe that the sad tidings was true. It will be remembered that nearly four weeks ago Mr. Gonigam had the misfortune to have his leg broken. He was leading a horse to water, when the horse slipped and fell upon his leg, breaking both bones above the ankle. He was recovering rapidly from the injury, and it was generally believed that in a few weeks he would be around town again. Sunday evening he was in the best of spirits, and laughed and joked with the family and the friends who called to see him, telling them they couldn't keep him in bed much longer. At eleven o'clock Monday morning, however, he gave an almost inaudible cry of pain, and threw his hand over his heart. He became unconscious almost immediately, and when Dr. Watson reached the bedside a few minutes later the death pallor had already become apparent, and in a few moments he was dead. Scarcely twenty minutes elapsed between the beginning of the attack and the end. No autopsy was held, and the precise nature of the ailment is not known, as there are many complications that might have induced the attack.

The remains were prepared for shipment immediately and were accompanied to Walnut, Ill., the former home of the deceased by Mrs. Gonigam and daughters, Mrs. Conrad Nauman and Rev. H. W. Knox. The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon from the Methodist church at Walnut.

Henry Gonigam has been a resident of Red Lake Falls for a little more than two years, coming here on July 7, 1902, to take charge of the business of the Gonigam Real Estate agency, of which he was the senior partner, his brother, J. P., of Ottawa, Ill., being the other member of the firm. The business was fairly successful and Mr. Gonigam anticipated quite a large number of landseekers from Illinois during the summer and fall.

Mr. Gonigam was born August 24, 1857, in Sullivan county, New York, and when he was two years of age his parents moved to Princeton, Ill., where the family resided until Henry was nineteen years of age, when they moved to a farm near Walnut. In 1880 he was married to Miss Carrie Meihsner, of Walnut. In 1887 he engaged in the farm machinery business at Walnut, continuing in that work until a few months before coming to Red Lake Falls.

Mrs. Gonigam and three daughters, Almeda, Grace and Gladys, survive him. The only son, Oliver E., a young man 23 years of age, died at Red Lake Falls in April, 1903. Mr. Gonigam was a staunch Methodist, and was always an active worker in the church and Sunday school. He was a member of the Court of Honor and the Mystic Workers, and carried insurance policies in both societies. He also had several old line policies, and the total amount of his life insurance is thought to be about $6,000.

Mr. Gonigam was beloved by all with whom he came in contact. He was a model husband and father, and in all the relations of life was upright, honorable and fair-minded. Few business men in Red Lake Falls stood higher in the community, and all of our people feel that the town and county has suffered an irreparable loss. The hearts of all go out in sympathy to the bereaved ones, bereft of husband and father.

KILLED BY FALLING DERRICK

Little Pauline Bray Fatally Injured While Visiting at East Grand Forks.

Saturday morning at about ten o'clock Ed. Bray received a telephone message from East Grand Forks telling of the accidental death of his little daughter, Pauline, who in company with her mother had been visiting at the home of M. Verbouncer, father of Mrs. Bray. The Northern Pacific train happened to be late that morning and Mr. Bray left at once for the scene of the terrible accident, returning the same evening with the body of the little girl.

Pauline was fatally injured by a well-drilling derrick falling on her and died less than half an hour after the accident. The little girl was playing around the derrick when a heavy wind struck it. Her little brother shouted to her to run, but she failed to get out of the way in time. One of the heavy timbers struck her on the head, crushing the skull. Physicians were at once summoned but she was dead before they arrived. No inquest was deemed necessary, as it was clearly an accident for which no one could be blamed.

The funeral was held Sunday afternoon from St. Joseph's, and an unusually large concourse of friends and relatives was in attendance. A large party of relatives came over from Crookston. The remains were interred in the Catholic cemetary east of town.

Pauline was about six years of age, and a very bright and handsome little girl. The many friends of the family will extend condolences in the hours of their bereavement.

BURGLARS ARE GETTING BOLD

Store of O. H. Camp & Bros., at Dugdale Robbed Monday Night of $500.

The safe in the general store of O. H. Camp & Bros.. at Dugdale, was blown open by burglars at about one o'clock Tuesday morning, rifled of its contents and about $500 in cash and notes was secured. The perpetrators of the crime made good their escape. In burglarizing the store a hole was bored in the safe door, dynamite placed therein and a fuse attached. The report, though muffled, awoke the proprietors of the store living near, who got up from bed, but hearing nothing further, again retired. The front of the safe is completely wrecked. The burglars had skeleton keys which fitted the door of the building and had no difficulty in effecting an entrance.

For two days, a gang of six suspicious characters had been hanging about Dugdale and two in particular, who were in town the day of the burglary are thought to be the men who turned the trick. One of these was of dark complexion, of stout build and about 35 years of age. The other was his opposite in personal appearance being slight in build and of light complexion. The men purchased shoes and wearing apparel at the store Monday. One of them wore a pair of shoes the soles of which were cracked and which left a distinct mark in the soil. It is thought this may aid the police in tracing them.

SUMMER SCHOOL IS ENDED

Most Successful Session Ever Held in the County, and Also the Largest Enrollment.

The four weeks' session of the teachers' training school ended Friday, and it is violating no confidence in saying that the meeting was the most successful in the history of the county. The school was exceptionally fortunate in securing Prof. E. E. McIntyre, superintendent of the Crookston schools, as conductor. He is one of the ablest instructors in the state, and his merit is so generally recognized that he will likely be the next state superintendent in the event of Bob Dunn's election this fall. Prof. McIntyre was ably assisted by Prof. C. S. Yaeger of Fosston and Miss Lydia Fletcher of this city.

At the closing session Friday morning the school was addressed by John E. King, of the Courier, his theme being the duties and responsibilities of the teachers to the pupils and to the community. Various pupils of the school expressed their thanks to the instructors and to the county superintendent for their efforts in making the session successful. Messrs. McIntyre, Yaeger and Jeffers and Miss Fletcher each complimented the school on the work they had accomplished. Mr. Jeffers took the occasion to announce that he would not again be a candidate for county superintendent, having decided to try for an office that pays a larger salary.

Charles Moller, chairman of the committee, read the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:

"Be it resolved, by the teachers of Red Lake and Polk county assembled, that we extend our hearty thanks to Profs. McIntyre and Yaeger and Miss Fletcher for their untiring efforts throughout the term to better us for our school work, and we hope they may be with us in our next summer school.

"Be it resolved, that we thank County Superintendent Jeffers for his continued hard work to better the schools of the county.

"Be it resolved, that we thank those friends who have so kindly entertained us during the term with music and instructive talks, and also Miss Gonigam for her services as pianist.

"And be it resolved, that we especially thank the board of education for the use of the school building and books."

INFANT KILLED IN RUNAWAY

Little Child of Mr. and Mrs. Regis Gagnon Thrown from Carriage and Killed.

The past week has been fraught with fatal accidents, burglaries and other unusual events. One of these sad occurrences took place in Terrebonne township last Friday afternoon. Mrs. Regis Gagnon and children, accompanied by some of her neighbors, were driving to the home of D. Champoux to spend the day when the horses became frightened and ran away, throwing the occupants out of the carriage.

Mrs. Gagnon was thrown on top of her three months' old child, crushing the life out of the little one instantly. None of the other persons were injured. The funeral was held Sunday from the Terrebonne church.

ATTEMPT TO SWINDLE.

Hiram Belair and Joseph Lefevre Got Too Much Money on Checks.

Sheriff Sullivan was over from Crookston Friday with warrants for the arrest of Hiram Belair and Joseph Lafevre, charged with victimizing Otto Burkhardt, a Crookston hotel-keeper of small amounts on time-checks issued by the Clearwater Logging company.

The men were employed by the Clearwater Logging company and were in the city early in the week. On Tuesday they attempted to pass two pay checks at the Merchants National bank and at the C. O. D. Clothing house for their face value, when each had been endorsed with a partial payment. They were not successful in either place but by an ingenious explanation of the endorsements they succeeded in getting the face value from Mr. Burkhardt. Both were issued by the Clearwater company for $36 and one had been endorsed by a partial payment of $4.50 and the other by $11.40.

Belair was found by Sheriff Sullivan and taken to Crookston, where he settled the claim against him. Lafevre had left town and up to the present time has not been located, though it is thought he is in the vicinity of Thief River Falls.

The boys claim that they had no intention of defrauding the person cashing the check and allege that they thought the full amount of the check was due them.

In regard to the affair the Crookston Times insinuates that the police force of Red Lake Falls did not give Sheriff Sullivan proper assistance in locating the offenders, and Chief of Police Brunelle requests the Courier to say that the charge is wholly false. The Crookston chief telephoned over Thursday night to have Belair and Lefevre arrested and Nightwatchman Lizee complied with the request; but upon being informed by competent lawyers that the arrest might be illegal and that the officer making the arrest might be held responsible the young men were released. When Sheriff Sullivan came over Friday Chief Brunelle located Belair for him and used every effort to find the other party, but without success. The charge against the boys was not a grave one, anyway, and Sheriff Sullivan has no reason to feel that the local police did not use their best efforts to assist him.

"Golden Rule Jones."

The campaign speeches of the late Samuel M. Jones, mayor of Toledo, are decidedly interesting. The following are sample extracts:

"I do not believe that God intends that a man should waste his time looking for a job. Adam didn't."

"The government must get rid of the last vestige of aristocracy."

"Police courts are charnel houses for the destruction of human souls. You can not coerce people into righteousness."

"The word 'gentieman' is becoming intolerable."

"Borrowers of money are life's real direlicts."

"Political organization are relics of a savage state."

"The most pitiable object in the world today is an idle man."

"So long as the capital crime of capital punishment exists there will be murder."

"The golden rule is the law of action and reaction in physic translated into morals."

"Men think there are circumstances where one can deal with human beings without love, and there are no such circumstances."

"I claim no privilege for myself or for my children that I am not doing my utmost to secure for all others on equal terms."

TEACHERS ORGANIZE.

A County Association Formed and Regular Meetings to be Held.

Permanent organization of the Red Lake County Teachers' association was perfected during the last day's session of the summer training school. The officers are as follows: President, Charles Moller; vice president, Miss Grace Meehan; secretary, Miss Florence Columbus; treasurer, Miss Nanie Swanson; librarian, H. T. McAnulty.

The object of the association is to promote better methods among the rural teachers, and at least three general meetings during the year are planned, one each at Red Lake Falls, St. Hilaire and Thief River Falls. The city teachers will be invited to co-operate with the association and contribute to the programs at the meetings.

In most of the older counties of the state teachers' associations have been productive of much good, and there is every reason to hope that beneficial results will accrue from the organization in this county.

SANDERS.

Amer C. Matheson will come home August 12, for a week's vacation from Tabor, where he is teaching.

Earnest L. Quist, who is seeking the nomination for superintendent of schools on the Republican ticket, has been here this week making friends and acquaintences.

Mr. Holter from Iowa, brother of Mrs. Osness, is visiting with his sister.

Mrs. Arne Bergene and her son Olaf from Crookston, are visiting friends and relatives in the neighborhood where they used to live.

The Temperance Society of the Towns of Norden and Sanders met Sunday in the Landstads' church where an interesting program was given. The next meeting will held at the same place two weeks hence.

A ball game was played at Gilbert Peterson's place between the boys of Sanders and Bray on Sunday. The score being 29 to 31 in favor of Sanders.

Edward Ericson of Crookston came up here last Sunday and arranged with Helmer Albue to buy cattle for them. Albue will bring quite a number of select stock down on Friday next.

Robert Ford of Red Lake Falls was here this week to see his land in section 7.

Emma Anderson has been in St. Hilaire, receiving medical treatment from Dr. Cummings.

The Only Line With a World's Fair Station.

This refers to the Minneapolis and St. Louis station and means:

1st—The Shortest Line.
2nd—The most comfortable route.
3rd—Two fine through trains direct to the gates of the fair.
4th—A saving of about three hours of time.
5th—You avoid the crowds at the Union depot and on the street cars.
6th—You save money by being landed just where you want to go.

There are many other reasons but "a word to the wise is sufficient."

For excursion rates, berth reservations and a complete guide to the fair, free, address A. B. Cutts, G. P. & T. A., Minneapolis, Minn.

A Test of Strength.

Tradition has immortalized one Adargoma of Grand Canary, who could wrestle for two consecutive hours and, having been thrown undermost in a certain contest, got his antagonist between his legs and arms and squeezed him so that his bones began to crack.

The native was subsequently sent as a prisoner to Spain, where he astounded the people by his performances. One day in Seville he was visited by a brawny youth of La Mancha, who was anxious to try a bout with him. "My good friend," said Adargoma, "as we are going to wrestle together it is only reasonable that we should begin by drinking something."

A large bowl of wine having been brought, he took this in one hand and continued to address his challenger: "If with both your arms you can overpower one of mine so as to hinder me from drinking every drop of this wine we will try our strength together; if not, you may return to your home." The struggle took place, and Adargoma by degrees drained the bowl in the coolest manner without spilling a drop of the wine. His one hand was more than a match for the other's two.

Why People Stammer.

Stammering depends on a want of harmony between the action of the muscles (chiefly abdominal) which expel air through the larynx and that of the muscles which guard the orifice by which it escapes with that of those which modulate the sound to the form of speech. Over either of the groups of muscles by itself a stammerer may have as much power as other people, but he cannot harmoniously arrange their conjoint action. Nervousness is a frequent cause of stammering. It is possible that the defect in some instances may result from malformation of the parts about the back of the mouth. The fact that stammering people are able to sing their words better than to speak them has been usually explained on the supposition that in singing the glottis is kept open so that there is less liability to spasmodic action.

A Bit of Good Advice In Time.

An Antoinette Sterling story relates to "The Lost Chord," which she made famous. The song did not appeal to her when the manuscript was sent to her by Sullivan. But Sir Joseph Barnby spent an evening at her house at that time, and in a casual way she remarked: "By the way, Arthur Sullivan has sent me a manuscript of a new song, which he has asked me to sing. You might look at it. Personally, I don't think much of it and am going to return it." Barnby tried it over there and then, and before he had gone half through it he stopped and said: "'Going to return it,' did you say? It is wonderful—an inspiration. Certainly, tell him you will sing it. It is bound to 'make' both you and him." Mme. Sterling always thanked the fates for bringing Barnby to her house that night.—London Chronicle.

The Wickedest Bit of Sea.

Nine out of ten travelers would tell inquirers that the roughest piece of water is that cruel stretch in the English channel, and nine out of ten travelers would say what was not true. As a matter of fact "the wickedest bit of sea" is not in the Dover strait or in yachting, for example, from St. Jean de Luix up to Pauillac or across the Mediterranean "race" from Cadiz to Tangier, nor is it in rounding Cape Horn, where there is what sailors call a "true" sea. The "wickedest sea" is encountered in rounding the Cape of Good Hope for the eastern ports of Cape Colony.—Shipping World.

The Mails In Sweden.

In certain parts of Sweden, where the most absolute confidence is reposed in the honesty of the people, a very informal postal system is in vogue. As the mail steamer reaches a landing place a man goes ashore with the letters, which he places in an unlocked box on the pier. Then the passerby who expects a letter opens the box, turns over the letters and selects his own without being questioned by any one.

The Wrong Notion.

"I would like to get a ribbon for my typewriter," said the man to the young woman with the yellow, home destroying hair behind the notion counter of a department store.

"Woman or machine?" asked the clerk.

"Machine."

"Stationery counter to your left."—Cleveland Leader.

Trustful.

"A woman will not esteem a man whom she cannot trust," said the moralist.

"Yes," answered Mr. Meekin, "and I am delighted to note that Henrietta always trusts me to put the cat out and fix the furnace fire and lock the basement door and do a lot of things."—Washington Star.

Perhaps It Was.

"I wonder what time Mary's young man left last night," said mamma.

"It must 'a' been exactly 1 o'clock, ma," said the younger brother.

"The idea! How do you know?"

"Why, just as he was leavin' I heard him ask Mary some question, and she said, 'Just one, only one.'"—Philadelphia Ledger.

Would Then Be Useful.

Grinder—What! Asleep at your desk, and work so pressing! Meekly—Excuse me, sir, baby kept me awake all night. Grinder—Then you should have brought it with you to the office.—Town and Country.

POLITICAL ANNOUNCEMENTS.

SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS.

I will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for county superintendent at the primary election, and desire the support of all my friends,

REGISTER OF DEEDS.

I hereby announce that I will be a candidate for re-election as Register of Deeds for Red Lake county, and respectfully solicit the support and votes of all my friends.

SAMUEL GIBEAU.

THE Missouri people seem to think that Joseph W. is the right kind of Folk.

IT would seem that Bro. Eastman of the Thief River News is looking for a convenient excuse to bolt the Republican ticket.

JUDGE PARKER is to be officially notified on August 10. After that date there will be no occasion to feel disappointed because the Judge doesn't talk.

BRO. EASTMAN uses poor logic to sustain his assumption that the editor of the Courier is eager to get on the band wagon. A band-wagon editor is not a Democrat—not in Minnesota.

THE Grand Forks Courier announces that "just as the Courier is going to press a telegram is received which states that Port Arthur has fallen." It is too bad that these black type "just as we go to press" items do not always prove authentic advices.

THE official call for the Democratic county convention to select delegates to the state nominating convention has been issued. The convention will be held at St. Hilaire on Monday, August 22, and the basis of representation will be the same as at the last convention.

ROBERT E. PATTISON, the only Democrat who has occupied the governor's chair in Pennsylvania since the civil war, died Monday at his home in Philadelphia. Mr. Pattison was one of the able men of the nation, and has long been prominent in the councils of the Democratic party.

For Register of Deeds......

THE COURIER is authorized to announce this week that Samuel Gibeau, our efficient and accommodating register of deeds, will be a candidate for re-election this fall.

By reason of faithful performance of duty, and because of recognized ability and integrity, Mr. Gibeau has a large claim on the suffrage of the voters of Red Lake county.

There is but one argument advanced against Mr. Gibeau. He has held the office for several terms. This never was and never should be a legitimate excuse for ousting a capable official. One term is too much for a poor official. A good one should be retained. That's the way a business man looks at the question of employing men to work for him. He doesn't discharge a faithful employee because the employee has worked for him four or six years. Rather he makes an effort to retain him.

Mr. Gibeau has many friends in all the parties. He has dealt fairly and honorably with the people, and in his official capacity has been courteous and obliging. His friends believe there is no doubt of his re-election.

TOTAL abstinence pledges, prohibition laws, the exhibition of "horrible examples," and the preaching of intemperance as a sin may have had a certain amount of influence in detering men from drinking, but the social sentiment against intemperance as an imprudence has accomplished far more, says the New York Sun. Drunkenness has become disreputable, or is looked upon as a horrible disease. People are more sensible. The strain of modern social conditions, it has been found, compels sobriety. The drunkard cannot keep up the pace and falls behind those who hold their appetites in restraint.

A SCHOOLBOY'S composition on "The Editor," ran as follows: "The editor is one of the happiest individuals in the world. He can go to any circus in the afternoon and evening without paying a penny; also to inquests and hangings. Has free tickets to theatres; gets wedding cake sent him—and sometimes gets a licking, but not often, for he can take things back in the next issue, which he generally does. While other folks have to go to bed early, the editor can sit up late every night and see everything that is going on. When I am a man I mean to be an editor, so that I may stay out late at night. That will be jolly."

THE settlement of the beef strike agreed upon proved to be only a momentary cessation of hostilities. All the packing-house employees were ordered out for the second time because, it was claimed, the packers had not lived to their agreement. All difference were to be arbitrated, according to the Wednesday agreement, the packers meanwhile to take back the strikers. Because they did not re-employ the strikers in a body on the morning set for resumption of work the strike was resumed. Bad faith is charged by both sides, and a sympathetic strike by the allied butcher's trades is threatened as a means of bringing the packers to term.

MRS. J. J. DOE announces this week that she will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for county superinfendent, and solicits the support of her friends. Mrs. Doe has been a successful teacher of twenty-one years' experience, and possesses every qualification for the office she seeks. For the eight years she has been a teacher in the Red Lake Falls schools, and has been a resident of this city for twelve years. Mrs. Doe is highly esteemed as a lady of the highest educational ability, and there is no doubt but that she will receive practically a solid vote from this city and its environments, as it is the belief of her friends that she is deserving of the office and would make an excellent superintendent. This office is no sense political, and Mrs. Doe would use every effort in her power to improve the rural schools. The voters can be assured that the office will fall into capable hands if Mrs. Doe is successful in her aspirations.

BLACK-DRAUGHT STOCK and POULTRY MEDICINE

Stock and poultry have few troubles which are not bowel and liver irregularities. Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine is a bowel and liver remedy for stock. It puts the organs of digestion in a perfect condition. Prominent American breeders and farmers keep their herds and flocks healthy by giving them an occasional dose of Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine in their food. Any stock raiser may buy a 25-cent half-pound air-tight can of this medicine from his dealer and keep his stock in vigorous health for weeks. Dealers generally keep Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine. If yours does not, send 25 cents for a sample can to the manufacturers, The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine is the best I ever tried. Our stock was looking bad when you sent me the medicine and now they are getting so fine. They are looking 20 per cent. better.

DAIRY DEPARTMENT.

Edited by Geo. L. Austin, Manager of the Red Lake Falls Creamery.

Drying off the Cow.

It is quite a common thing to find good dairy cows at this season of the year that should be dried off that are persistently milking. It is advocated by some good dairymen that the cow should be kept milking until within three or four weeks of her time of calving. This might do once in a while with some individual cows, but with the average dairy cow we believe that time too short by half. Experience with this class of cows and with the ordinary cows proves to our mind that seven or eight weeks is short enough time to let the cow go dry. I believe that with the average dairy cow you will lose two pounds of milk for every one you gain the next year by milking her longer than seven to eight weeks before calving. Nature requires about so much time to recuperate, and if the flow is expected to be up to normal and the offspring strong and vigorous there must be a time to recuperate, and we believe that seven or eight weeks is short enough time. When cows calve in September and October, which we believe is the right time to have the special dairy cow to freshen, it is not so easy to dry them off in June and July, when the grass is good, and especially when the flies are as scarce as they are this year.

Our method is this: When the time comes, say ten weeks before the cow is to freshen, we take away all of her grain ration and milk her a week and if she shows no marked signs of drying up we put her in the barn, darken the doors and windows, using care that she has plenty of fresh air and give her nothing to eat except dry hay and plenty of water. After a few days milk her but once a day, being very careful not to allow her udder to get caked or inflamed. This method we have used for a good many years and has never failed. It usually takes but five or six days to dry them off in this way. After milking a day or two once a day milking her dry, milk once a day and do not milk dry. The cow while being dried off should be kept from lying in a wet place or being in a place where she could take cold and have milk fever. We lost one of the best cows we owned this way. While she did not die, her udder was spoiled and she was useless as a milker ever afterwards.

Hints About Milking.

1. Have the stable clean, and have the cow clean, or you can't get clean milk. Lime and whitewash for walls and posts is a good thing. Land plaster is a good absorbent in the stable.

2. Before commencing to milk brush all loose dirt from the sides and udder of the cow.

3. After a manipulation of the teats and udder, the milk is ready to "come down." Then is the time to take it and do not delay.

4. Milk as rapidly as possible without irritating or worrying the cow.

5. No definite rule can be given as to how the teats should be handled in milking, as cows differ and hands differ so much; but be sure of one thing, please the cow if possible.

6. There should always be a friendly feeling between the cow and the milker, and milkers should not be changed if it can be avoided.

7. A cow will not "give down" her milk to a milker she hates or is afraid of, and what she does give will be deficient in butterfat.

8. Alway milk a cow in the same manner, at about the same time and speed. Any change will tend to irritate and excite her.

Used Pe-ru-na For Dyspepsia With Great Benefit.

HON. M. C. BUTLER,
Ex-United States Senator From South Carolina.

EX-U. S. Senator M. C. Butler from South Carolina, was Senator from that state for two terms. In a recent letter from Washington, D. C., he says:

"I can recommend Peruna for dyspepsia and stomach trouble. I have been using your medicine for a short period and I feel very much relieved. It is indeed a wonderful medicine besides a good tonic."--M. C. Butler.

Peruna is not simply a remedy for dyspepsia. Peruna is a catarrh remedy. Peruna cures dyspepsia because it is generally dependent upon catarrh of the stomach.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

The cash drawer of the J. F. Mathews store at Dorothy was robbed Mondav morning of about $9. The robbery was reported to the county officiails at once, but so far there is no trace of the burglars. Wheat is ripening beautifully, and some fields will be ready to cut the fore part of the week, and within ten days practically all of the crop will be ready for harvest. The crops generally are good in this vicinity, better than in any portion of the valley, and as prices will probably be high the Red Lake county farmer ought to be happy.

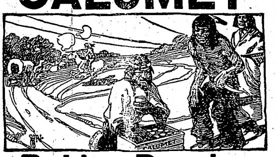
CALUMET



Baking Powder

The estate of the late Charles E. Winslow, formerly manager of the Thief River Falls Lumber company, who was killed in the Iroquois theatre disaster at Chicago last winter, is being probated by Judge Tarrant. The petition recites that Mr. Winslow was possessed of personal property worth $30,000 and real property valued at $2,500. Mrs. Winslow and son are the sole heirs to the property.

The Odd Fellows have installed officers for the ensuing term as follows: Noble grand, William Schwalen; vice grand, F. A. Grady; recording secretary, M. A. Hatten; financial secretary, James E. Ford. Hennemuth right supporter and Frank Jeffers left supporter to vice grand.

Next Thursday is Red Lake Falls days at the Thief River fair and doubtless a large crowd from here will be in attendance. Up to the present time there has been no assurance of a special train, and this fact will deter many from going. The band will go up, and quite likely every available team will be brought into requisition. The Thief River people were exceptionally liberal in their patronage of our Fourth of July celebration, and next Thursday would be a good time to repay the compliment.

J. B. O'Brien was down from St. Hilaire Monday circulating among his friends and looking after his chances for nomination as county superintendent on the Republican ticket. Mr. O'Brien says he has been over the county quite a little during the past few weeks and thinks the outlook is decidedly flattering. While in the city Monday Mr. O'Brien paid the necessary filing fee to the county auditor. The only other candidates who have filed up to date are C. C. Ecklund of Bray for register of deeds and W. W. Prichard of Thief River for county commissioner, both on the Republican ticket.

Red Lake county's first rural mail route will be established September 1, starting at Wylie and running north into Bray township a distance of about ten miles from the starting point. This route was petitioned for by P. A. Eckstrom and others about a month ago, and Congressman Steenerson has done quick and effective work to get the route through the red tape of the postoffice department so soon. It is altogether likely that the postoffice at Bray will be discontinued, as the rural route will serve practically all of the patrons now supplied by that office.

Lewis Sieff returned Sunday from Thief River Falls, where he has been selling horses for the past week or ten days. While there Mr, Sieff run into a bunch of trouble, but he seems to be none the worse for the experience. He was assaulted by J. W. McGinty, so it is alleged, and received quite a severe pounding. McGinty plead guilty before the municipal court and was fined $20 and costs by Judge Bishop. Afterwards he was arrested under the state law, and the hearing is set for August 9. McGinty attempted to have Sieff arrested for threatening to shoot him, but it appears the charge was not substantiated and he was released.

ASSASSIN ACTS IN ST. PETERSBURG

THROWS BOMB AT CARRIAGE IN WHICH MINISTER OF INTERIOR RIDES.

M. von Plehve Instantly Killed—Body Badly Mangled—Coachman Slain and Many Persons Hurt—Assassin Captured.

St. Petersburg, July 29.—M. von Plehve, minister of the interior, was assassinated at 9:50 o'clock Thursday morning by a bomb thrown at his carriage while he was driving to the Baltic station to take a train for the palace at Peterhof, where he was to make his weekly report to the emperor. The coachman was killed and the wounded and maddened horses dashed wildly away with the front wheels of the carriage, the only portion of the vehicle remaining intact.

Immediately there ensued a scene of the wildest confusion. Police and gendarmes hurried up from every direction and vast crowds gathered about the spot where the mangled body of the minister lay sweltering in his blood. The roadway was strewn for a hundred yards with the wreckage of the carriage and pieces of the red lining of the minister's official overcoat. A few yards from von Plehve's body lay a shapeless heap of the coachman's remains.

Altogether 14 outsiders were injured by the explosion. Capt. Tzventsky, of the guards, who was driving in a cab, sustained a fracture of the skull. It has been trepanned, but the captain is not expected to recover. The bomb was filled with nails, not bullets as at first believed.

Assassin Captured.

The assassination is believed to be the outcome of a widespread plot, the existence of which has been suspected for several days. Numerous arrests have already been made, including that of the assassin, a young man who is believed to be a Finn named Leglo, and who is now in a hospital severely and perhaps fatally injured by the explosion of his own bomb. An accomplice of Leglo, also apparently a Finn, but whose name is unknown, has been arrested. He had in his possession a bomb which he tried to throw, but he was overpowered by the police just in time to prevent great loss of life.

Emperor Hears News.

The prefect of police notified the emperor of the tragedy immediately upon its occurrence. The emperor, who was at the Villa Alexandria at Peterhof, was greatly affected by the news, coming, as it did, atop of the bad tidings from the seat of war, and fears of international complications.

Whatever may have been the motive for the crime, nothing but the utmost indignation and condemnation of the assassin's act is voiced anywhere.

The Dead Diplomat.

Senator von Plehve was appointed minister of the interior April 18, 1902, succeeding M. Sipiagine, who was assassinated April 16, 1902, by a student named Balmashoff. He had formerly been director of the department of police, which position he practically assumed of his own accord, when in charge of the department of political prosecutions, owing to the incompetency of the official who was in charge of the police when Emperor Alexander II. was killed, March 13, 1881. M. von Plehve conducted the prosecution of the regicides and afterwards reorganized the police. From that time on the power of M. von Plehve increased until it became only second in importance to that of the emperor. Several plots to assassinate the minister have, according to reports, been discovered during the last two years, which period has been marked by strong political rivalry between the interior minister and the former minister of finance, M. Witte, now president of the committee of ministers. He was regarded as being in many ways the power behind the throne and was dread on account of his control of the third (secret) section of police and also owing to the fact that he controlled the press of Russia, through the censors, who, it has been understood, did M. von Plehve's bidding without question.

The Funeral.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 1.—M. von Plehve, the minister of the interior, who was assassinated Thursday morning last, was buried Sunday and in every city and hamlet of this vast empire church bells were tolled and masses and prayers said for the repose of the soul of the murdered minister. The services here, which were according to the rites of the orthodox church, were of an impressive and imposing character. Emperor Nicholas and the dowager empress stood with the broken-hearted widow and the children of the minister at the foot of a great mound of flowers, on which rested the casket. Among those present were other members of the imperial family, the foreign representatives, including Spencer Eddy, charge d'affaires of the American embassy. At the most solemn moment when all knelt and many were affected by tears, the widow was overcome and fainted. The emperor came to her assistance and she was carried out by gentle hands. The sidewalks along the route traversed by the funeral procession were crowded, but lines of police kept the streets clear to the curbs. As the body passed every head was uncovered and thousands crossed themselves. The monastery stands on a plain beyond the Narva gates, and at these gates fully 50,000 persons were gathered. After a burial service in the church the body was interred in the adjoining cemetery.

PRESIDENT TOLD OF HIGH HONOR

OFFICIALLY NOTIFIED OF HIS NOMINATION BY THE CONVENTION IN CHICAGO.

Replying to Speaker Cannon, Mr. Roosevelt Accepts, and Expresses His Approval of the Platform Adopted.

Oyster Bay, L. I., July 28.—Theodore Roosevelt on Wednesday formally opened the political campaign of 1904 at his beautiful country home, Sagamore Hill, when he received and accepted the nomination of the republican party for president of the United States. In accordance with the wish of the president the ceremony was made as simple as possible. The formal notification of the action of the convention was made, on behalf of a committee representing every state and territory in the United States, by Joseph G. Cannon, speaker of the house of representatives.

Mr. Cannon declared that the office of president of the United States is the greatest on earth and many competent in the republican party are ambitious to hold it, yet the republican convention met at Chicago June last and unanimously, with one accord, nominated Mr. Roosevelt as the candidate of the party for president. Mr. Cannon asked the president to accept the nomination tendered to him.

At the close of Mr. Cannon's address, the president advanced to the veranda railing, and, standing under a great festoon of American flags, delivered his address in response to the notification. As he faced the assemblage he was warmly applauded.

Reply of the President.

In accepting the nomination the president said that he heartily approved the declaration of principles which the republican national convention had adopted. He declared that from the time he had succeeded to the presidency it has been his purpose to carry out the principles and policies of McKinley for the honor and best interests of the country, and he would continue to do so if reelected. He said the record of the party during the past could be taken as an earnest of what they would continue to do. He pointed out that the laws for the regulation of trusts have been enforced and that legislation has been enacted to increase the effectiveness of their enforcement. He said the gold standard had been settled in accordance with what is regarded as the fundamental principles of national morality and wisdom. On the tariff question he said it was true that a readustment of tariff schedules should be made whenever the need arises, but such readjustment must retain and not destroy the protective principle. The construction of the Panama canal he declared to be an assured fact, but it would be unwise to intrust the carrying out of so momentous a policy to those who have endeavored to defeat the whole undertaking.

Stands on Past Record.

He declared the nation's honor had been upheld among foreign countries. and in conclusion said: "During the seven years that have just passed there is no duty, domestic or foreign, which we have shirked; no necessary risk which we have feared to undertake, or which we have not performed with reasonable efficiency. We have never pleaded impotence. We have never sought refuge in criticism and complaint instead of action. We face the future with our past and our present as guarantors of our promises; and we are content to stand or fall by the record which we have made and are making."

At the conclusion of the address, President Roosevelt held an informal reception and received the congratulations of the committeemen on his speech.

PROSPECTS IMPROVE.

In Spite of Some Unfavorable Factors, Trade Confidence Appears to be Returning.

New York, July 30.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: "Confidence appears to be returning, despite a large edition to the army of unemployed. Labor disturbances are the most favorable factors in the industrial and commercial situation at the present time, curtailing the output of a few much needed products and reducing the demand for all commodities. Aside from this adverse influence, the situation has improved, although progress is slow and frequently interrupted. Another week has put much wheat and cotton beyond danger and brought other crops nearer maturity. Dealers are providing for the future a little more freely, and in several important branches of industry orders come forward in greater bulk. Earnings of the railways thus far reported for July are only 2.7 per cent. less than last year.

"Failures this week numbered 220 in the United States, against 190 last year, and 18 in Canada, compared with 19 a year ago."

Bradstreet's says: "More activity is noted at a few western centers, but fall trade is slow to assume form, pending assurance as to crop results and settlement of existing industrial disturbances. Crop conditions are, on the whole, favorable, though irregularity in sections prevents generalization. Fall inquiry and shipments of goods are livening up at the west and are expected to become active early in August. The movement of winter wheat to market, somewhat delayed this year, has begun in earnest. Coincidently, improvement in collections is shown at some centers and the demand for money from the country has increased. The movement of currency to move the crops has assumed good proportions this week. Unrest in industry is a feature of importance."

DIVORCE AND ALIMONY.

Mrs. Sidney C. Love Secures a Decree and Fifty Thousand Dollars at Chicago.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—Mrs. Minnie C. Love was given a decree of absolute divorce Saturday from Sidney C. Love by Judge Honore with $50,000 alimony, $25,000 of which was paid in court.

After Judge Honore had granted the decree Mr. Forrest gave Mrs. Love a certified check from her husband for $25,000 and another for $4,929 to cover Mrs. Love's expenses from August 1, 1903, when the couple separated. The decree, which already had been written out and which was entered and became effective at once, provides for the payment of the remaining $25,000 of the alimony in three installments. Mrs. Love is to receive $10,000 July 1, 1905; $10,000 July 1, 1906, and $5,000 July 1, 1907. She was granted, besides, $2,000 for attorney's fees.

The Loves were married in October, 1898. The bride formerly was Miss Minnie Cool, of Faribault, Minn. At the time of her marriage to Mr. Love she was the widow of a wealthy Philadelphian. The couple's infelicities began soon after marriage. They separated in August, 1903.

Sidney C. Love has been in the brokerage business in Chicago since 1898, and is well known in club circles. He is an enthusiastic horseman and secretary of the Chicago Horse Show association. He was formerly a resident of Keokuk, Ia.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

This official headquarter's train will leave Minneapolis Saturday, August 13, at 9 a. m., and St. Paul at 9:35 a. m. Smugglers.

Special agents of the treasury department have unearthed a systematic scheme of smuggling along the Northern Minnesota border near Rainy lake and vicinity.

While nothing official is given out, it is learned that Canadian manufactured articles, including hardware, clothing and other wearing apparel has been smuggled into Minnesota and sold to country people at prices much less than they can purchase the same class of articles on this side of the border.

It is claimed that two or three professional smugglers from New York and several Canadian brokers promoted the enterprise and they are soon to be taken up to justice.

An Old Relic.

A relic of the fifteenth century in the shape of a pony cannon has become one of the valuable posessions of the University of Minnesota through the generosity of Captain Stacy of Ft. Snelling and Major George H. Morgan, commandant of the University Cadet corps.

The fieldpiece was brought from the Phillipines by Captain Stacy. He presented it to Major Morgan, who in turn decided to make it a part of the university museum. It weighs 250 pounds and was in all probability used in the early days of Castilian conquest and settlement of the islands.

Found on a Log.

Men employed on the Shevlin-Carpenter boom, Minneapolis, were surprized, when they started to work, to discover a women desperately hanging to a log. She was immediately rescued and removed to the city hospital.

Further than volunteering the information that her name is Jessie Shorley, the woman refused to explain.

It was learned from different persons living on Plymouth avenue that a woman answering to her description was seen to walk out on Plymouth avenue bridge at about 7 o'clock, but the workmen employed on the east end of the bridge aver no woman crossed at such an early hour of the morning.

Shorthorns at the Fair.

B. O. Cowan, secretary of the American Shorthorn Breeder's association, has just completed a trip of several weeks during which he has visited many breeders in the Northwest and finds that conditions are exceptionally good this year for the best cattle exhibit at the state fair ever seen in Minnesota. His trip was made with special reference to the auction sale which takes place at the state fair, it being the custom to examine all animals before they are accepted for sale.

The fair opens Aug. 29 and closes Sept. 3.

State Wins Suit.

The State of Minnesota has won the final appeal in the contest for title to the thirty-seven-acre tract of mineral land on the Mesabe range, which the state auditor estimates has at least 2,000,000 tons of iron ore on which the state will receive a royalty of 25 cents per ton. The state auditor received a decision from Secretary Hitchcock of the United States department of the interior holding that the tract in question is swamp land and therefore the property of the state under the swamp land grant of 1860.

Burglars at Fire.

The general store of S. H. Blake, at Long Lake, was burned early in the morning.

It is believed that the store was fired by burglars who entered the place, blew the safe and then fired the store.

The Minneapolis fire department was telephoned for assistance but deemed it unwise to send apparatus because of the distance and delay in loading.

The whole village was greatly excited as it feared that the whole village would burn down.

News Notes.

Oscar Freeburg's body was found in Detroit lake.

Matthew Skumantz, dealer in paper and paints at St. Cloud, has filed in the United States court a voluntary petition in bankruptcy, placing his liabilities at $3,000, with assets about the same.

Those state officials who owe their appointment to the governor and who supported the losing candidate for the Republican nomination, are making arrangements to connect with other public places.

Three persons were burned to death in a fire in an immoral resort at Nashwauk, on the Mesaba range, fifteen miles from Hibbing.

County Attorney E. W. Crane was examined before the insanity board in Judge Sanborn's office at Brainerd, and was ordered committed to the insane hospital at Fergus Falls.

John Covell, an old resident of White Bear, fell from a load of hay and was instantly killed. He was hauling hay with his nephew, Eben Lawton, and while the boy was pitching the hay up to him he lost his balance and fell.

CHRONIC SORES

Signs of Polluted Blood.

There is nothing so repulsive looking and disgusting as an old sore. You worry over it till the brain grows weary and work with it until the patience is exhausted, and the very sight of the old festering, sickly looking place makes you irritable, despondent and desperate.

A chronic sore is the very best evidence that your blood is in an unhealthy and impoverished condition, that your constitution is breaking down under the effects of some serious disorder. The taking of strong medicines, like mercury or potash, will sometimes so pollute and vitiate the blood and impair the general system that the merest scratch or bruise results in obstinate non-healing sores of the most offensive character.

Often an inherited taint breaks out in frightful eating sores upon the limbs or face in old age or middle life. Whenever a sore refuses to heal the blood is always at fault, and, while antiseptic washes, salves, soaps and powders can do much to keep down the inflammation and cleanse the sore, it will never heal permanently till the blood itself has been purified and the deadly germs and poisons destroyed, and with S. S. S. this can be accomplished—the polluted blood is purified and invigorated, and when rich, pure blood is again circulating freely throughout the body the flesh around the old sore begins to take on a natural color, the discharge of matter ceases and the place heals over.

SSS

S. S. S. is both a blood purifier and tonic that puts your blood in order and at the same time tones up the system and builds up the general health. If you have a chronic sore write us. No charge for medical advice.

Your Heart

May Be Weak. One Person in Four Has a Weak Heart.

One of the surest signs of a weak heart is shortness of breath after exercise.

Your heart is not able to pump the blood fast enough to your lungs.

Some of the other symptoms of Heart Trouble are: Pains in the Side, Back and Shoulder; Fainting or Weak Spells; Dry Cough; Swelling of Feet and Ankles; Cold Feet or Hands.

No one can afford to allow a weak heart to go without medicine, because weak heart means poor circulation, and poor circulation means weak lungs, stomach, liver, kidneys, etc.

If, therefore, you suspect heart trouble, begin taking Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure. The Heart Cure will do you good, as it is a splendid tonic for the blood and nerves, and will revitalize your entire system.

Finally, remember, Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure is sold under a guarantee that the first bottle will do you good.

If it doesn't—your money back.

"I was afflicted with heart trouble for three years. I would be apparently all right, and without a moment's warning would fall as though shot. The attacks were frequent, and a terrible dread possessed me, as I never knew when or where, nor under what conditions I would be attacked, and whether I would survive them. I consulted and was treated by some of the most eminent physicians of the state. Not finding relief from this source, I began taking Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, and began to improve at once. I used ten bottles, which entirely cured me, as I have not had an attack for five years."—MRS. JOHN DRESBACK, Leipsic, O.

DECISIVE BATTLE ON AT HAICHENG

KUROPATKIN REPORTS TERRIFIC FIGHTING AT MANY PLACES ALONG HIS LINES.

JAPANESE ATTACKS REPORTED REPULSED

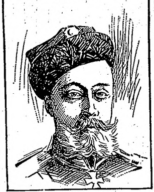
Czar's Forces Still Held Their Positions at the Close of the Fighting Sunday Night—Losses Are Not Known—Gen. Count Keller Killed.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 2.—The latest reports from the scene of the battle are to the effect that the Russians up to Sunday night had successfully repulsed the Japanese attacks against Simoucheng.

Report of Kuropatkin.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 2.—The emperor has received the following dispatch, dated July 31, from Gen. Kuropatkin:

"Three Japanese armies have renewed offensive operations on our southern front. Our rear guard made an obstinate defense until the appearance of considerably superior forces of the enemy and then gradually retired in the direction of Haicheng. A detachment near Simoucheng, 15 miles southeast of Haicheng, successfully withstood the enemy until three in the afternoon.



GEN. COUNT KELLER.

"The attack was directed against our right flank, which, from its position at Kanhua pass, inflicted great losses on the Japanese.

"The efforts of the Takushan army and Gen. Oku's army Monday were being mainly directed to cutting our communications between Simoucheng and Haicheng, their operations starting from a line traversing Yanshukan, Tapunuse and Liaohantse. On our eastern front the Japanese began the offensive this morning against our Ikhavuen position, the enemy's main concentration being against its right flank, which it turned.

"The enemy is also acting on the offensive between Liaoyang and Saimatzsa, almost due north of Fengwangcheng, against our troops posted at Houtsiatse, 25 miles from Liaoyang.

"Intelligence has been received of a considerable number of Japanese landing off Yinkow under the cover of several warships."

Japanese Repulsed.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 2.—A further dispatch from Gen. Kuropatkin to the emperor, dated Monday, says:

"All our positions were retained at Simoucheng when the fighting ceased at 6:45 p. m., July 31, but I have not yet received reports of the operation on our extreme right flank.

"We retained all our positions held by our eastern force at Yangse pass. Gen. Keller, commanding, has chosen these as the points from which to watch the fight. A battery near him was exposed to heavier fire than any other, and he was mortally wounded at three o'clock this afternoon. He died 20 minutes later."

Gen. Kuropatkin also reported the retirement of the Russian vanguard on the south front a short distance in the direction of Haicheng.

After determined fighting near the village of Sanchengtse, the Japanese apparently concentrated considerable forces on the Siamatsza side of the Liaoyang.

The Russian losses in the fighting on July 31 have not yet been reported, but the Russians hold their positions.

Gen. Keller Killed.

Mukden, Aug. 2.—Lieut. Gen. Count Keller was killed July 29 while resisting the preliminary attack of Gen. Kuroki's army on the Yanze pass, 30 miles east of Liaoyang. The general was standing near a battery which was subjected to a terrific fire when a shell burst close to him and he fell, mortally wounded, dying 20 minutes later. Before he expired, Gen. Keller had the satisfaction of knowing that the Japanese attack had been repelled.

Gen. Keller was the first high Russian military commander to lose his life in this war. He resigned the high and lucrative position of governor of Ekaterinoslaff to go to the front and exchanged with Gen. Zassalitch, who may now resume the command of the First Siberian army corps.

Account of the Battle.

Haicheng, Aug. 2.—The Japanese on Saturday attacked the heights of Kangwa pass, the right of the Russian position at Simoucheng. Under cover of their artillery the Japanese infantry charged, but the Russian guns drove them back in confusion and silenced two of their batteries. The Russian losses were slight.

Between Haicheng and Tatchekiao, the same day, there was a long distance artillery duel, which had little effect.

SERIOUS BLOW TO RUSSIA.

Forced to Evacuate City of Newchwang After Two Days of Severe Fighting.

Paris, July 27.—The Yinkow correspondent of the Matin says that 50 Japanese cavalrymen entered Newchwang at five o'clock in the morning and hauled down the Russian commercial flag which had been substituted for the military standard on the residence of the governor. The Japanese standard was hoisted, the Chinese flag flying from the neighboring buildings and the custom houses. The consular authorities had taken precautions to insure the safety of the European residents, who were armed.

Paris, July 27.—The Japanese occupation of Newchwang is regarded here as a serious blow to Russia, which thereby is prevented from closely watching the doings of the Chinese army commanded by Gen. Ma.

London, Aug. 1.—The correspondent of the Daily Mail at Newchwang, in a dispatch dated July 31 says that there has been heavy fighting for two days in the marshes south of Haicheng during the gradual retreat from Tatchekiao of 5,000 Russians forming the rear guard, and that the peril of this force increases daily.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 1.—The situation at the front is regarded as critical. The enveloping movement of the three Japanese armies of Gens. Kuroki, Nodzu and Oku around Gen. Kuropatkin's position appears to be almost complete, and the extended line of the Japanese seems to be the only drawback to concerted action. It is realized here that the Russian general must now either fight or withdraw the whole army northward. He is being closely pressed at Haicheng.

London, Aug. 1.—A dispatch from Tokio says: "The general staff announced this evening that five Japanese officers had been killed and 41 wounded in the fighting which has been going on around Port Arthur since last Tuesday. The losses in men are not given. This is the first announcement of its kind since the beginning of the siege of the fortress, and it indicates that there has been serious fighting."

Frankfort, Germany, Aug. 1.—The Tokio corespondent of the Zeitung says that the Vladivostok squadron has returned to Vladivostok.

UNCLE SAM PROTESTS.

Steamer Arabia, with Cargo of American Flour, Seized by Vladivostok Fleet.

Washington, July 28.—Acting on a formal protest received from the American owners of a portion of the cargo of the Hamburg-American steamship Arabia, the state department has cabled to R. S. McCormick, United States ambassador at St. Petersburg, to get full statement of the seizures of that vessel by the Russian Vladivostok squadron. This is the first protest which has come to the department from American owners of goods seized by Russia and was in the form of a telegram from John H. Mitchell, United States Senator and attorney for the Portland Milling company, of Portland, Ore. Mr. Mitchell declared that his clients had shipped on the Arabia 99,000 sacks of flour, valued at $100,000; that the flour was consigned largely to Hong-Kong, and was not a war order, but a part of the normal trade of the company and therefore it should under no circumstances be considered contraband. The owners ask the United States to demand indemnity from Russia.

Washington, July 29.—The state department has addressed itself to the Russian government through Spencer Eddy, the American charge at St. Petersburg, on the subject of the seizure of the cargo of the Arabia by the Vladivostok squadron. The state department officials decline absolutely to make any public statement respecting the character of the representations made to the Russian government regarding the seizure.

Wisconsin Prohibitionists.

Madison, Wis., July 29.—The Wisconsin prohibition convention made these nominations Thursday: Governor, W. H. Clark, Ripon; lieutenant governor, George H. Trever, Whitewater; secretary of state, Charles L. Hill, La Crosse; treasurer, John Berg, Holman; attorney general, Matthew Mott, Neenah; railroad commissioner, Alfred A. Meling, Milwaukee; insurance commissioner, Jasper Dexter, Cambria.

World's Fair Admissions.

St. Louis Aug. 1.—The statement of the recorded admissions for the week ending July 30 shows an attendance during that period of 551,842 persons, a considerable gain over the record of 512,150 of the week previous. Last week's attendance brings the grand total of admissions to the world's fair since its opening up to 5,657,577.

Watson Will Accept.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 1.—Joseph A. Parker, a member of the executive committee of the populist party, received a telegram from Thomas E. Watson, of Georgia, stating that he will accept the nomination for president recently tendered him by the national populist convention.

Returned to Washington.

Washington, July 29.—President Roosevelt, accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt, Secretary Loeb and the executive staff, arrived in Washington at 6:16 o'clock p. m. Thursday and were driven directly to the white house.

Auto Strikes Electric Car.

Sidney, O., July 30.—Arthur Nutt and Amelia Davis were killed at Swanders, four miles north of Sidney, by their automobile being struck by a work car on the electric line.

SAFE BLOWN OPEN AT WYLIE

Robbers Secure $260 From P. E. Smidesang & Sons Saturday Night—Suspects Arrested.

Sometime during Saturday night robbers entered the store of P. E. Smidesang & Sons at Wylie, drilled open the safe and secured $260 in cash, and checks and notes worth several thousand dollars. The robbery was not discovered until morning and the burglars made good their escape.

The cash drawer of the safe was taken to one of the elevators, where the robbers destroyed all of the valuable papers and pocketed the cash. The safe was an old one, and it was drilled with ordinary blacksmith tools taken from Peter Hansel's shop. Entrance to the store was made through a rear window, and the manner in which the job was done leads to the belief that the perpetrators of the crime were not amateurs.

On Sunday M. P. Dargan, Hans Wilson and Fred Leppert went to St. Hilaire on a hand-car and on the way met a couple of suspicious characters, who were arrested at St. Hilaire and held there until Monday when Sheriff Linnihan brought them to Red Lake Falls. They were put in the sweat-box by County Attorney Grady, but at the time of writing no admissions have been secured that would connect them with the robbery. The men arrested had no money on their persons.

The money taken belonged to Polk Center township, Mr. Smidesang being the township treasurer. The destruction of the checks, notes and other valuable papers, will occasion Mr. Smidesang a lot of inconvenience if not actual loss.

IN ERSKINE AUGUST 9.

Soo Will Run Regular Trains by September First.

It is expected that the first Soo train will be run into Erskine on August 9th. The contractors have figured the thing down that close and the people of Erskine are planning on quite a celebration in honor of the event.

The regular train service on the Soo line to Erskine will be inaugurated September 1st unless present plans are disarranged by unforseen circumstances.

The head-work train on that road is in charge of Conductor Peter Keeley who was running on the Great Northern for many years, and was also station agent on that line for several years, having been located at both Angus and Euclid. He is particularly valuable in his present work for the Soo as he is an all round man, and can tap a wire and fire in a message any time, being an expert operator.

Not a Candidate.

EDITOR COURIER: Regarding the article which appeared in the last issue of the Courier intimating that I was a candidate for county commissioner, I wish to say that the only foundation for the article was that a delegation of farmers called on me and insisted that I should run for commissioner, but I told them that I did not want the office, as I have enough to do to attend to my private business affairs. I still hold the same opinion, and wish it understood that I am not at this time a candidate for any office.—WILLIAM FINDEISEN.

MIGHT HAVE BEEN MURDER

Remains of Unkuown Man Found Two Miles North of Thief River Falls.

The decomposed remains of a man were found last Wednesday near the road running along the northern part of the Langseth farm two miles from Thief River Falls. The body was discovered by one of the men employed on the Langseth farm and the road near which he was found is one little traveled. Who he was or how he met death are the question to be solved.

When found he was laying on the ground face downwards resting his head upon his arm and a small bundle of clothes laying upon his head. Nothing but bones and hair were left, the flesh having all decayed, and this is thought to be a very strange thing as he could not have been dead for more than a month as he had a Swedish newspaper published in Chicago dated June 21, 1904. He wore good clothes and in the package which he carried was a pair of new overalls and canvas shoes which had been purchased at the C. O. D. clothing store in Thief River. In his pocket was found a five cents piece, a tooth brush, a pair of sissors and a letter. Both the address and signature to the letter, which was in Swedish, were so multilated that nothing could be made out, but it refers to someone in Grafton, N. D. The man was apparently of medium height and had brown hair, and wore a dark blue suit of clothes.

Quite a few people are of the opinion that he was murdered for his money, and as there have been numerous parties about here of late that would just as soon as not do a job of this kind, it maybe the correct theory.

A horrible accident happened here Friday, Mrs. R. Gagnon and children, Mrs. Louis St. Ives and daughter, Emma, and Mrs. Willie St. Ives. were riding home from D. Champeau's in the afternoon, and the horse ran away. They all fell out of the rig with the exception of Mrs. Gagnon and her little one-year-old child, who fell at the turn of the road on a pile of rocks, and the baby was fatally injured, and died a few hours later. The mother was hurt also but is now better. All the rest had a pretty bad shock. The child was buried in the Terrebonne cemetery. The parents are very much grieved over the loss of their little child.

JIM HILL BLOCKS CROSSINGS

Soo Line Will Experience Grief in Getting Over Great Northern Tracks at Two Points.

The Soo railroad may have a hard time getting across the Great Northern tracks at Erskine and Thief River Falls. It seems to be the policy of the Great Northern to harass and delay the Soo as much as possible, and if legal proceedings are resorted to the Soo trains will not run this fall or winter.

At Erskine the Great Northern has built a new side-track just where the Soo is to cross that road and lowered the grade about three feet. By this little piece of sharp practice the Soo is unable to cross. The same proceedure is being taken at the crossing north of Thief River.

It is probable that the people of Thief River would not object to a temporary tie-up of Soo operations, as the people of that city have a bond from the Soo company guaranteeing that trains will be running by October 1. If this is not complied with the $30,000 bonus promise dthe road will not be collectible.

There are interesting possibilities in the situation. Of course the Soo will get across in due time, but the delay may be very expensive for the Soo people as well as for others interested in the new Soo towns.

JOHN A. JOHNSON AS LEADER

Prominent Democrats Favor St. Peter Editor as Their Candidate for Governor.

Red Lake county people will be interested in knowing that in all likelihood Hon. John A. Johnson, the St. Peter editor and orator, who delivered the Fourth of July speech in Red Lake Falls, is very likely to receive the Democratic nomination for governor of Minnesota at the convention to be held at Minneapolis August 30. In regard to a meeting of prominent Democrats held at St. Paul Monday evening the St. Paul Globe says: At a conference in St. Paul of some twenty prominent Democrats from different points in Minnesota, sentiment very largely favored John A. Johnson, of St. Peter, as the Democratic standard bearer in Minnesota this fall.

Fully as important is the development of the existence of Johnson sentiment for governor was the knowledge that the men in conference, reflecting the feeling in their respective communities, where unanimously of the opinion that John Lind should be nominated as a candidate for the supreme bench.

Sidney M. Owen, of Minneapolis, was thought to be the most available candidate for lieutenant-governor, and W. S. Hammond, of St. James, and Frank Zins, of St. Cloud, were favored for attorney general and treasurer, respectively.

The defeat of Judge Lovely of the present bench for renomination has aroused a widespread feeling of resentment on the part of his friends throughout the state, and a proposition looking towards his nomination by the Democratic convention was discussed. It found many supporters in the group gathered at St. Paul and it was said that with the Democratic nomination Judge Lovely could easily be elected.

The conference continued until nearly six o'clock and it was said it was one of the most harmonious meetings ever held under similar circumstances.

Irish Wit.

Adrian Democrat: An Irishman was sitting in a smoker's seat in a street car in St. Paul the other day, when a woman sitting down remarked: "Sir, if you were a gentleman, you wouldn't smoke here." "Mum" he said, "If yez wus a leddy, ye'd go up front." Pretty soon the woman burst out, "If you were my husband I'd give you poison." "Well mum," returned the Irishman as he puffed away at his pipe, "If yes wus me woife I'd take it."

To Pull Stumps.

The following method of getting rid of stumps is recommended by the Scientific American: In the autumn bore a hole one or two inches in diameter, according to the girth of the stump, veritcally in the centre of the latter, and about eighteen inches deep. Put into it one or two ounces of saltpeter, fill the hole with water and plug up close. In the ensuing spring take out plug and put in about a gallon of kerosene oil, and ignite it. The stump will smoulder away, without blazing, to the very extremities of the roots, leaving nothing but ashes.

CROP OUTLOOK IS SPLENDID

Grain Experts Declare Red Lake County's Crops to be the Best in Seven Years.

Red Lake county crops are excellent. The yield on all of the small grains will be the largest per acre in seven years. From every quarter of the county comes the good news that wheat is ripening rapidly and that the rust is noticeable only here and there, always in the fields close by the timber where the wind had no opportunity to dry the grain.

Last Sunday C. F. Johnson, of the Northern Minnesota Milling company, and W. T. Spillane, local agent for the Thorpe Elevator company, drove south and west of town and examined about fifteen fields of wheat. There are few better judges of grain and crop conditions in the county, and their estimate is worth something. In speaking of the outlook Mr. Johnson says:

"On the fifteen fields of wheat we examined we estimate that the highest yield will be 22 bushels per acre, and the lowest 12. The average will over rather than under 15 bushels. There is practically no rust in Red Lake county. Oats and barley will be heavy crops this year, and the crop conditions generally have not been better in a great many years.

"We have had reports from practically every section in the county, and a fair estimate of the average yield of wheat is between 14 and 15 bushels. Oats will average better than 35 bushels and barley fully 32. Flax is the best in years, and practically all of it will be out of the way of the frost.

"Last year the average for wheat in the county was under 12 bushels. This year the crop is 25 per cent. better, and the acreage of wheat has increased from 5 to 10 per cent.

"Red Lake county has a good crop; better perhaps than any other county in the valley."

Eli Lasha, just west of town, cut his wheat Tuesday, and he estimates the yield at 20 bushels.

C. Moren, north of Wylie, was in town yesterday. He has finished cutting wheat, and thinks his crop is good for at least 20 bushels per acre.

Harvesting generally will commence today and tomorrow. There is little danger but that all of the grain will be ripe next week.

The Loaded Gun.

When a man playfully points a pistol or gun at you knock him down; don't stop to inquire whether it is loaded or not, knock him down. Don't be particular what you hit him with, only see that it is properly done. If a coroner's inquest is held, let it be on the other fellow; he won't be missed.—Sauk Center Herald.

LATE LOCALS.

School commences September 5.

Mrs. Otto Ittner is visiting relatives at Grand Forks this week.

J. H. Reuttell, the Crookston clothier, was a visitor to Red Lake Falls last Friday.

W. A. McIntyre, J. B. Armstrong, Mrs. P. W. Mabey and Miss Lydia Fletcher drove to Crookston last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gerlach, of Wylie, report the addition of a son to their family, the event taking place last Thursday.

Harvest will be in progress generally throughout the county this week, and before long we shall know what the yields are.

Mrs. Theo. LaBissoniere and daughter Erin went to Crookston on Saturday's train for a short visit with the former's parents.

Mrs. Frank Persons and daughter, Essie, returned on Friday last from an extended visit with relatives and friends at St. Charles, Minn.

Wm. Ittner and Eugene Bray spent Sunday with the home folks. The boys are employed at St. Hilaire painting during the summer months.

Mrs. John Belair, who has been visiting for the past five weeks at Terrebonne with her parents Mrs. Joseph Dupont, left Friday for her home at St. Paul.

Mrs. Robinson, of Eau Claire, Wis., arrived last Friday for a visit with her sister, Miss Nellie Curran. They left Saturday for Thief River Falls, where their parents reside.

Messrs. Sam E. Hunt, Milton Converse, Ralph E. Wyer and Will Hunt drove to Scotland on Sunday last to see that Julius Pleth's town was being started in the proper manner.

Arthur LaPlante and wife rejoice in the arrival of a girl baby at their home, the event taking place last Thursday evening. Wife and daughter are doing nicely, and Arthur bear up remarkably well under his new honors.

Misses Clara Cyr, Rose Allard, Clare Patnode and Lillian Belair went to Grand Forks last Saturday to visit friends for a week or ten days. Some of the young ladies intend to file for a piece of land on the Fort Totten reservation.

Rev. H. W. Knox returned Saturday morning from Walnut, Ill., where he assisted at the funeral of the late Henry Gonigam. The funeral was held from the Methodist church at Walnut last Wednesday and a large concourse of friends attended the service.

Mr. J. J. Carter of Grand Ridge, Ill., was a visitor in our city the latter part of last week. Mr. Carter owns a farm in Lake Pleasant and was well pleased with our crop prospects. So much so in fact that he decided that his holdings in Red Lake county are not on the market.

L. C. Simons informs us that three Mosler screw-door burglar-proof safes have been ordered for the Simons-Bourdon banks at Wylie, St. Hilaire and Brooks. The banks in the smaller towns about the country are becoming somewhat alarmed at the recent burglaries, and precautions are being taken to guard their monies and valuables.

L. C. Simons has been in Beltrami and Clearwater counties during the past week looking after his candidacy for representative. Mr. Simons says he has heard of no opposition from the Republican side of the house and expects to receive the unanimous support of his party at the primaries.

Prof. James A. Wilson, an attachee of the state dairy and food commission, with headquarters at Crookston, was in the city Monday on business connected with his office. Prof. Wilson took up this work several months ago and is meeting with splendid success, which will be good news to his many Red Lake county friends.

Mrs. Henry Gonigam and daughters expect to return from Walnut, Ill., the latter part of next week, and will probably remain in Red Lake Falls during the winter, or at least until the business affairs of the estate are settled. Mrs. C. Nauman, who accompanied the Gonigam family on their sad mission, will return with them, and it is likely that Mr. Gonigam's mother will also come for an extended visit with her relatives in this vicinity.

Charles N. Bourdon and wife returned Saturday from their visit to Kansas City and St. Louis. During most of the time they were guests at the home of Mrs. Bourdon's brother, Dr. B. B. Ralph, at Kansas City. Of course they visited the fair and pronounce it a great sight. Mrs. Bourdon is much improved in health, having taken a course of treatment at her brother's sanitorium. Charlie shows no indications of losing flesh during his perinigrations.

Frank E. Hunt has the Courier's thanks for recent copies of West Baden, Ind., papers. From them we learn that there is considerable doing in social and political circles at that popular resort. The reception given recently in honor of Hon. Thomas Taggart, chairman of the Democratic national committee, was attended by many of the prominent Democrats of the country. Mr. Taggart owns the big hotel at West Baden and has long been identified with the interests of the resort.

Inevitably the business man who does not keep his establishment before the public will be forgotten, and, as long as there are men who advertise constantly and loudly, nobody will charge his mind with remembering those who do not advertise. Gladstone said that "nothing except the mint can make money without advertising." The famous statesman might have gone farther and said that advertising is the mint in which money is coined for wide awake business men.—Printer's Ink.

The young ladies of the Y. P. S. C. E. are arranging for a supper to be held at the Presbyterian church parlors next Wednesday evening, August 17. The usual charge of 25 cents will be made, and an additional charge of ten cents will be made for ice cream and cake. The proceeds will be applied towards paying a $100 installment on the church vocalion. The cause is a worthy one and we hope the young ladies will be given a generous patronage. The menu for the supper will be as follows: Beef loaf, roast meat, sandwiches, cucumber and beet pickles, sliced cucumbers, cabbage and potato salads, baked beans, coffee, peaches and plums.

A number of state papers are calling attention to the state dairy laws which applies to licenses in all cities of 1000 or more population and this provides that all persons selling milk or cream at wholesale or retail shall on the 1st day of May or thirty days thereafter pay a license of $1 to the state dairy and food commissioner. All persons keeping not more than one cow are exempt but the law specifies that every person or firm offering milk or cream for sale in a store, booth or stand, creamery or factory or who sells to customers in any manner or from any place in said city shall procure license. Failing to procure license or selling dirty, unwholesome or adulterated milk or cream are punishable by fine or imprisonment.

Political Pot-pourri

The sizzle of the local political pot indicates that things are warming up and that there is going to be something doing before long. During the last few days several new booms have been launched, and many more are due within a few days.

Ernest Buse, an old resident of Red Lake Falls, has filed for the Republican nomination for sheriff. Mr. Buse is a pioneer of Minnesota, having resided in the state a period of fifty years, twenty-six of which have been spent in what is now Red Lake county. He is an old soldier, having seen service in the civil war and in the Sioux uprisings. He did good service at the time Red Lake county was set off from Polk. He has always been a staunch Republican and a hard worker for the good of the party.

For the Democratic nomination for sheriff there is not likely to be any opposition to Daniel Linnihan, the present incumbent of the office. Mr. Linnihan is serving his first term, and has made a capable and obliging official. He is an ardent Democrat and a hard worker for Democratic success, but has many warm friends among the Republicans. It is usually conceded that a good official is entitled to at least a second term, and as Dan is not a novice in politics there is every reason to believe he will be re-elected.

So far no Republican has been mentioned for auditor or judge of probate, and it is unlikely that the opposition to Messrs. Ford and Tarrant will be serious enough to endanger their chances of re-election. Mr. Ford won a magnificent victory two years ago in a three-cornered race, having both a Republican and Populist opponent. The fight was somewhat acrimonious, but the voters seemed to consider Mr. Ford best qualified for the office. His record fulfills and justifies all the good words said for him by his friends in the first campaign. The office has never been conducted in better shape. Being a business man of rare discernment and tact and possessing most excellent judgment as well as a thorough knowledge of the duties of the office many of the reforms and economies of the past two years are due to Mr. Ford's efforts. Beyond and above all; he is as honest as the day is long. The people of the county cannot afford to displace him at this time, and the Courier is pleased to note that there is no likelihood that he will be defeated.

And what has been said of Mr. Ford can apply with equal force to Judge Tarrant. Mr. Tarrant's entire time and efforts have been given to the work of the probate office. Those who have occasion to know say that the work of the office is up to date, and he is in every way qualified to perform impartially and with signal ability all of the duties incumbent upon him. Nick deserves a re-election, and it would be a mistake to turn him down.

So far Thomas Germo has the field all to himself for county attorney. At one time it was thought that J. D. Taylor would seek the Democratic nomination, but for some personal reasons he has given up the idea. Mr. Germo is popular with the Republicans and will have many Democratic advocates. His run two years ago was considered remarkable in view of the political conditions at that time, being defeated by only five votes by County Attorney Grady, who was then making the race for a second term.

The fight for the office of register of deeds promises to be strenuous. Three candidates are announced for the Republican nomination, viz: H. E. Albue of Norden, C. C. Ecklund of Bray and K. J. Weeks of Thief River. None of them have an extensive acquaintance throughout the county, nor is any of them considered an unsually strong candidate.

Frank Jeffers, who has drawn a salary regularly from the county since its organization as superintendent of schools, is a candidate for register, but it is not given out whether he will seek the Populist nomination or run as an independent. In some quarters it is alleged that he may go after the Democratic nomination. Mr. Jeffers is a vigorous campaigner and has an extensive acquaintance and will make a hard run for the office. The fact, however, that Frank has on sundry and divers occasion freely expressed his opinion of almost everybody in the county with choice if not always chaste Jeffersonian simplicity and directness will alienate a large number of influential voters who under more favorable conditions would be with him.

A rumor has gained circulation that S. A. Swanson may also be a candidate for register, but Mr. Swanson refuses to commit himself further than to say than he has considered the question and may later on get into the game.

JIMMY MAGUIRE'S LAST JOB

[Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure.]

When Jimmy Maguire—by which name they knew him at McCoy's—came downstairs into the office carrying a suit case of considerable weight and wearing on his freckled face an air of virtue which was glaringly artificial, the clerk behind the desk looked him over carefully and then deliberately dropped one eyelid.

At McCoy's hotel, which is near the water front, the guests are very seldom questioned on any matter, but on this particular afternoon there was no one save the clerk in the office when Jimmy entered. It was because the clerk's acquaintance with Jimmy extended over a period of seven years that the gentleman behind the desk inquired casually:

"Anything on, Jimmy?"

"I'm getting my clothes pressed for Sunday," said Jimmy meekly.

The clerk laughed spasmodically.

"Anything funny in that?" Jimmy inquired peevishly. "Can't I get my clothes pressed for Sunday?"

"Course, Jimmy, course," the clerk tittered. "Going to get 'em pressed in town?"

"Maybe," said Jimmy, walking over to a rack of time tables and spreading out a folder.

Two hours later Jimmy Maguire and his suit case were speeding through the early evening gloom on a southbound train. The smoker was nearly deserted, and in the dim light of the lamps Jimmy was examining a plan crudely drawn on the back of an envelope. In one place on the rough map was a heavy cross, and near it was drawn an arrow, along whose shaft ran these words: "Alley here. Enter third window from this end."

Jimmy folded the envelope carefully and placed it in an inner pocket. Then he lay back and dozed until the brakeman called "Redpath!" Jimmy caught up the suit case and alighted.

He went down the dark street from the station, took the first left, then the second right, as the map had directed, and suddenly stopped before a squat brick building. In the dim light of a neighboring street lamp he read the tarnished gilt sign beneath the cornice, "Redpath County Loan and Construction Company." He went to the rear and found the alley indicated on the map. He also found the third window which was mentioned. He pulled out his watch.

"Quarter past 10," he mused. "Whole town's in bed probably. This is too easy!"

In a few moments Jimmy was inside and standing before the heavy door of a vault which he was examining critically.

"Dynamite nothing," he mused to himself. "'Twon't take me thirty minutes to open that."

Jimmy went swiftly and quietly to work. In just twenty-six minutes from the time he opened the suit case he swung open the door of the vault. He took one step forward and then staggered back, for out of the vault tottered a young woman, who stood beside him swaying to and fro. Jimmy sprang forward and caught her just as she fell.

He laid her gently on the floor, with his coat beneath her head. Then he brought water from a faucet he found in the inner office and deftly laved her wrists and temples. Presently she opened her eyes and sat up.

"Pretty narrow squeak that," said Jimmy cheerfully.

"Where—where are the rest?" she asked dazedly.

Jimmy brought a chair and lifted her into it.

"I know all about it," he said soothingly. "You work here, and some one accidentally locked you in the vault at closing time. I confess I didn't expect to find you in there when I opened it. I came of my own accord, you understand, for quite another purpose."

"Oh!" she gasped and regarded him with wide opened eyes. "It was just in time for me anyway. I couldn't have lived in there much longer."

Jimmy had risen and was putting his tools in his suit case, after which he shut the door of the vault.

"I have interrupted your—your business," she said.

Jimmy smiled. He noted she was a very pretty girl. There was something, too, in the way she accepted the situation that won his admiration.

"Really," he said, "I'm not in the mood for work tonight. If you feel able to stay alone here for a moment I'll call a carriage to take you home."

The girl gave him a grateful look.

"I didn't realize there were gentlemen in your—your profession," she said. "But I fear you'll run too much risk in getting the carriage. You'd better not go."

"Nonsense," laughed Jimmy and disappeared through the window.

It was two years from the night that Jimmy Maguire and his suit case left McCoy's that Mr. Andrew Rider—"Silent Andy," more commonly—opened a letter in the office of the same hotel and read as follows:

> Dear Andy—You remember that job you put me next to down in Redpath. Well, what do you think I got out of that vault? Old boy, it was a wife, the best and sweetest woman in the world. We were married here in Redpath last Tuesday. You see, she was accidentally locked in that vault I cracked, and I cracked it just in time to save her too.
>
> As I hope for peace and happiness the rest of my days, Andy, I've been an honest man from the moment I first looked into her eyes.
>
> This note is to let you know what has become of me and also to inform you that I have found the best way to live—straight. I wish you would meet me at Southport some day and take away that case of tools. My regards to all the boys.

GLASS VESSELS DISSOLVE.

They Are Materially Affected by Water and Other Liquids.

It is well known that glass has now almost completely replaced metal, horn and leather for the bottle or drinking cup, although it is not so very long ago that the leather bottle and horn drinking cup were extant. Whether this change could possibly have introduced any prejudice to the common health is an interesting matter for speculation. It is not true, though it is commonly supposed to be so, that glass is unattacked or completely undissolved by water and many other fluids in household use. On the contrary, the indelible marks which often appear on a water bottle arise from the action of the water upon the glass. Pure distilled water, showing neither an acid nor an alkaline reaction, which has been allowed to remain in a closed glass bottle for some time will gradually develop an alkaline reaction owing to the base of the mixed silicate of the glass dissolving in the water. At the same time a deposit of silica will generally be found at the bottom. This obviously shows a dissociation of constituents and the glass yields up its silica and its alkali to water.

With acid fluids the same action may be observed, and it is conceivable that with acid wines kept long in bottles some considerable action upon the glass may occur. Weak acid solutions cease to be acid after being kept in glass bottles for some time owing to the neutralization of the acids by the alkali of the glass, and at the same time a flocculent and generally iridescent deposit is found in the bottle consisting of silica. This deposit is a constant source of trouble to druggists. Though the glass dissolving power of most fluids in domestic use must be very small, yet, considering that these fluids are continually in contact with glass, either in the bottle or the tumbler, there can be little doubt that traces of the constituents of glass are ingested. It has even been suggested that the practically universal use of glass in this way in the place of the old drinking vessels of wood or horn or of the glass bottle for the leather or skin vessel has contributed a means of rendering the vermiform appendix easily liable to an inflammatory process by the irritation set up by siliceous particles. This ingenious theory of the increased prevalence of appendicitis being due to the universal use of glass for drinking vessels can hardly be seriously regarded when it is considered that silica is a frequent constituent of a number of foods. As is well known, silica is the support of the wheat stalk, as lime associated with phosphates is of the human frame.—Scientific American.

A Handy Question.

Joseph Chamberlain was delivering a political speech in Birmingham, England. The hall was so packed that not another human being could have crowded in. The enthusiasm was tremendous, but suddenly a scowling man arose in the middle of the crowd.

"What did Mr. Gladstone say in 1872?" he howled.

"Shame!" "Put him out!" yelled the crowd.

Three sturdy men hurled the interrupter a few yards, and others helped hustle him to the street.

As he was picking himself up and brushing off the dust he grinned pleasantly at a man who had followed him from the hall and who asked, "What did Mr. Gladstone say in 1872?"

"I don't know," he replied, "and I don't care. I had a terrible toothache, and I couldn't butt my way through that crowd, and the only thing to do was to get thrown out."

In Case of Poison.

When any one is accidentally poisoned and you are not sure of the antidote give an emetic of some kind immediately. Mustard and salt are two things found in every household, but a bottle of ipecac costs little and is better than either and should always be kept in the house. If mustard is to be used put a dessertspoonful in a glass of lukewarm water and make the patient take two or three glasses. Then by tickling the throat with the finger vomiting is certain. The dose should be repeated in about ten minutes so that the stomach may be thoroughly emptied. No matter what the poison, remember, the thing you should do is to give an emetic.

Why He Paid.

Lord Alvanley in the first part of the last century had a duel with a political opponent, but nobody was hurt. His lordship was so pleased at returning without injury that he paid his hackney coachman with a liberality that surprised the latter, and on the man remarking that it was more than his due for driving him that distance Lord Alvanley replied, "It is not for carrying me there, but for bringing me back."

MANNERS IN BUSINESS.

Brains and Good Deportment a Winning Combination.

The value of brains in business cannot be overestimated, of course; but neither can the value of manners. Don't make the error of supposing that brains are everything. You may have the best set of brains in the town, but if you haven't the manners of a gentleman nobody is going to appreciate you. Your manner is the outward indication of what you are within in the estimate of most people, and if the manner is disagreeable few will take the trouble to examine into you any further.

The consensus of general opinion is that the man who goes about with porcupine quills as his manners hasn't any brains worth bothering about. Did you never notice that the men who employ large forces of intelligent people look at an applicant closely, ask a few seemingly unimportant questions and promptly employ or dismiss him? They don't sound his brain depth; they don't obtain his biography; they don't inquire into his social standing; they size him up from his manners, and if he is brass on the surface they don't look for gold within.

The employer knows that if an applicant's manner strikes him favorably it will also favorably strike people with whom he comes in contact in his work. And nobody knows better than a big business man that a favorable first impression means half the sale. People are apt to think that if there is any place where manners are of little consequence it is in business, where cold calculation so largely takes the place of feeling. But the truth is that nowhere else are manners of such importance as in everyday dealings. There is no capital and equipment any young man can have that will pay him better than good manners. There is no possible calling for which this does not better fit him. If he has brains the world owes him something, but unless he has good manners he will have a hard time collecting it.—Kansas City World.

A WHISTLER PICTURE.

The Dramatic Manner of Its Finish and an Anticlimax.

Whistler was one day visited by a foreign artist, an old acquaintance, with whom Whistler had not as yet quarreled. He was received with genuine cordiality, and, artist-like, he ran round the studio looking at everything. One small picture seemed to charm him especially, and he said, "Now that is one of your good ones." "Don't look at it, dear boy," said Whistler airily, "it's not finished." "Finished!" said the visitor. "Why, it is the most carefully finished picture of yours that I have ever seen." "Don't look at it!" persisted Whistler. "You are doing injustice to yourself, you are doing injustice to my picture, and you are doing injustice to me!" The visitor looked bewildered, when Whistler, in a theatrical tone, cried out: "Stop! I'll finish it now!" Then he procured a very small camel's hair brush, fixed it on a long and slender handle, mixed a little speck of paint on his palette, dipped the tip of his brush into it, and then, standing off from his picture and with the action of a fencer with his rapier, he lunged forward and touched the picture in one spot with his pigment. "Now it's finished," said he. "Now you may look at it." This was all highly dramatic, and indeed very well acted, but, as in the case of some stage plays, the final act of Whistler's performance proved to be an anticlimax. The foreign artist took his leave, but, finding that he had left his umbrella behind him, called for it next day. The servant, recognizing him, told him that Mr. Whistler had gone out for the day, but invited him to go to the studio and seek his umbrella. He went there and found it, but also took the opportunity of having one more look at the picture which had been "finished" for his special benefit the day before, and then he saw that the little dab of wet paint which Whistler had so dramatically put on he had afterward scrupulously wiped off again!—Frederick Keppel in The Reader.

Hidden Water Supply.

The investigation of a neglected spring or rivulet may bring to light a valuable supply of water for gardening or domestic purposes. A surprising quantity is often obtainable by installing a ram at some seemingly insignificant source. A ram is cheap, because the first expense is the last, there being no cost of maintenance, and it is satisfactory, because the ram requires no attention. Once started, it takes entire care of itself.—Country Life In America.

Twenty Shots In His Head.

At the present time there is a keeper on a Hertfordshire estate who has about twenty shots in his head. Nearly thirty years ago this man was accidentally shot by an under keeper, and there were twenty-two holes in the hat he wore, which is preserved to this day. The injured man never had the shots extracted, was long between life and death and completely lost his hearing.—London Standard.

HON. C. W. VAN DYKE, one of the brightest and cleanest young men in the state, has filed for the Democratic nomination for congress in the sixth district. THE annual demand for railway ties is 400 for each mile of track, and the average life of a tie is seven years. It is an unusual acre of forest that has 300 trees that will make three ties each, and it takes fifty years to grow a tree that will make three ties. Therefore twenty-five acres of forest are necessary for every mile of track. Electric railways included, there are in the United States about 250,000 miles of track.

AN "all too sudden" proposal of marriage to a Hoboken, N. J., girl provided the newspapers with an interesting story. The Hoboken correspondent for the Cincinnati Commercial Tribune, under date of July 25, says: "When William S. Kerrigan proposed to Miss Elizabeth Muir she was so astonished that she fainted on the street and had to be taken to a drug store to be resuscitated. Kerrigan made the suggestion of matrimony in front of the office of a justice of the peace. As soon as the girl revived he repeated the proposal and Kerrigan was equally astonished by her promise of acceptance, in view of her prostration at his suggesting marriage. They went to the office of the justice and Elizabeth is now a happy bride."

ONE hundred thousand is not an excessive estimate of the number of men now idle in various parts of the country as a consequence of strikes. The strike in the packing industry involves somewhere near half this number, the number of striking cotton-mill operatives increases the total to 75,000, and a dozen or more labor disputes have thrown at least 25,000 employees out of work in other industries. The beef strike, centering at Chicago, very quickly reached the disorderly stage, there being almost daily out-breaks of violence, intimidations, and rioting which the police do not seem able to suppress. Nor is the outlook improved by such actions on the part of the authorities as the unjustifiable arrest of strike leaders while rioters usually escape before the police arrive.

IN order for a foreign person to vote he must take out his naturalization papers three months before election. Those who came to this country before they were 21 years of age need not be naturalized if their fathers were naturalized before the sons became of age. In case a father did not take out naturalization papers before the son became of age, the latter can take out both first and second papers at the same time. First or declaration papers can be taken out at any time after coming to this country. Second papers cannot be taken out until two years after first papers are issued, but at that time a five years' residence in the United States must be sworn to, and there must be two witnesses. Naturalization papers can be taken out before any district judge.

THERE is a story that Noah Webster was, as might be supposed, a stickler for good English, and often reproved his wife's misuse of the language. On one occasion, according to a fanciful yarn, Webster happened to be alone in the dining room with the pretty house-maid, and being susceptible to such charms, put his arm around her and kissed her squarely on the mouth. Just at that moment Mrs. Webster entered the room, gasped, stood aghast and in a tone of horror exclaimed: "Why, Noah, I am surprised!" Whereupon Mr. Webster, cooly and calmly, but with every evidence of disgust, turned upon her. "How many times must I correct you on the use of simple words?" he remarked. "You mean madam, that you are astonished, madam, I am the one that is surprised.

JOHN BURROUGHS, writing in Harper's Magazine, disputes the claim that any of the lower animals is capable of thought. After recounting many interesting tests, Mr. Burroughs said: "Animals have keen perceptions—keener in many respects than our own—but they form no conceptions, have no powers of comparing one thing with another. They live entirely in and through their senses. To all that inner world of reflection, imagination, comparison, reason they are strangers. They never return upon themselves in thought. They have sense memory, sense intelligence, and they profit in many ways by experience; but they have not soul memory or rational intelligence. All the fundamental emotions and appetites men and the lower animals share in common, such as fear, anger, love, hunger, jealousy, cunning, pride, curiosity, play; but the world of thought and thought experience, and the emotions that go with it, belongs to man alone. It is as if the psychic world were divided into two planes, one above the other—the plane of sense and the plane of spirit. In the plane of sense live the lower animals, only now and then just breaking for a moment into the higher plane. In the world of sense man is immersed also; this is his start and foundation; but he rises into the plane of spirit, and here lives his proper life. He is emancipated from sense in a way that beasts are not."

THOUSANDS OF FAIR WOMEN HERALD PRAISES FOR PE-RU-NA.

[Catarrhal Dyspepsia and Nervous Prostration Makes Invalids of More Women Than all Other Diseases Combined.]

Miss Anna Prescott, in a letter from 216 South Seventh street, Minneapolis, Minn., writes:

"I was completely used up last fall, my appetite had failed and I felt weak and tired all the time. I took Peruna for five weeks, and am glad to say that I am completely restored to health."—Anna Prescott.

Mrs. Leone Dolehan, in a letter from the Commercial Hotel, Minneapolis, Minn., writes:

"For two months my physician experimented with me trying to cure a hard cold which settled in my stomach, causing inflammation and catarrh. I have now been well for six months, and I give all the credit to Peruna."—Mrs. Leone Dolehan.

Peruna will be found to effect an immediate and lasting cure in all cases of systemic catarrh. It acts quickly and beneficially on the diseased mucous membranes, and with healthy mucous membranes the catarrh can no longer exist.

Miss Louise Matt, 1259 Van Buren St., Chicago, Ill., writes:

"Peruna is a most wonderful medicine for catarrhal and stomach troubles.

"I suffered so long with indigestion and dyspepsia, and tried many things to cure me, without relief. I finally bought a bottle of Peruna and in just six weeks I was entirely rid of my stomach trouble."—Louise Matt.

A Letter From Mrs. Senater Warren.

The following letter is from the wife of late Governor and now U. S. Senator, F. E. Warren of Wyoming:

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

DAIRY DEPARTMENT.

Edited by Geo. L. Austin, Manager of the Red Lake Falls Creamery.

A Good Idea.

Every farmer should have a good tester and a pair of accurate scales, and no matter where he sells his milk or cream they should be used and careful account kept. In this way you can usually find out how some of the centralizing plants can afford to pay as high prices as they do. In taking samples of milk be sure to pour the milk from one pail to another before taking the sample, then take it immediately. Unless this care is taken you are very apt to get a sample that is too high, as the last milk taken from the cow is usually two or four per cent higher in fat content than the first of the milking. This milk being the last milked is usually on top and it is from here that the sample is usually taken, so it is readily seen that the sample may be inaccurate. The same care should be used in sampling, so as to mix the thin and thick particles evenly.

When is the Best Time of the Year to Have Cows Freshen to Make the Most Profit From Them During the Year?

This question has been asked many times and we will try to answer it at this time. To give an intelligent answer to this question it is necessary to know the kind of cows that are kept. We believe that the common, ordinary, average Minnesota cow will yield the most profit if she freshens, say in the last week in March. She can be fed a light grain ration for a few weeks before freshening in conjunction with her roughage. After that time she can be fed liberally until grass comes; then she can be kept in full flow during the grass season, and with some corn silage, with green corn fodder she can be milked until the late fall, then she can be dried off and kept through the winter on rough feed at a very small expense. On the other hand if she comes fresh in September, October or November, she will have to be fed heavily on a grain ration all the fall and winter and the chances are many times that she will be dry by the first of June or earlier. To be sure if you have a cow that will give a good mess of milk that will make from three-fourth of a pound to one pound of butter a day, and milk from September to July, you have a cow that should not be classed with the ordinary or common cow of Minnesota that makes on the average less than one hundred and fifty pounds of butter a year.

Since the advent of the cold storage the wide difference between the price of summer and winter butter and eggs has to some extent passed away. If this one hundred and fifty pounds of butter can be made on feed that costs but little, although the price of butter is less, the profit will be greater. In handling the cow the cost of keeping should never be lost sight of. It is not the cow that will make the most butter that is the most valuable to keep, but the cow that will make the most butter in the year on the least cost for feed that is the most valuable.

On the other hand, if you have a cow that will make from 225 to 300 pounds of butter in a year it will most certainly pay you to have your cows calve as near September as possible, using care to feed them well before calving so they will be ready for a good year's work.

Feed liberally on the right kind of concentrated feed during the fall and winter and your cows will come on grass, having shrank but little since fall; then when they go on grass the flow will pick up and they will do nearly as well through May and June as cows freshening in the spring and by July first you will be obliged to put them in the barn and feed them on hay to be able to dry them off, as they must have rest from milking at least eight weeks. If the cow will milk persistently for ten months, the chances are that she would be a good cow to try at least and see if she would not make a profit as one freshening in the fall.

Miss Ella Krueger will return next week from Bemidji, where she has been visiting for the past month with her sister, Mrs. Joseph Hayton. She will be accompanied by Miss Mildred Hayton, who will attend school in Red Lake Falls this winter.

Dr. John E. Argue and wife (nee Miss Bessie Hunt) returned last Friday from their honeymoon trip, having visited friends and relatives at Duluth, Minneapolis and Hamilton, N. D. They will go to housekeeping at once in the Klepper residence on the north side.

We have a full supply of all the requisites for the preserving and pickling season; glass and earthen jars, jelly glasses, pure vinegars and spices, with daily receipts of California and Washington fruits. Just now blueberries are at their cheapest and best.—Bangs & Co.

Thief River Press: Dr. F. D. Patterson, the Lambert physician, has decided to locate here and will have his offices and residence over the Jackson hardware store. He will remove here sometime next week, having been here to make his arrangements Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Nauman arrived in Red Lake Falls this morning, and they expect to go to housekeeping in the Sivigney residence on Third street in the near future. Sam's many friends will be glad to see him back and they will give a cordial welcome to Mrs. Nauman.

Among the passengers to Thief River Falls yesterday were Daniel Linnihan and family, Mrs. F. A. Grady and children, Mrs. Ovide Emard, Mrs. S. L. Lewis, Ernest Buse, Misses Ida Tandberg, Beatrice Emard, Lillian Buse and Margaret McAndress and Rudolph Helm.

Fire last night destroyed the barns in the rear of Paul's hotel owned by Louis Lefaive and Frank Noel. It is supposed that they were set on fire by tramps sleeping in the barns. The loss is probably about $500. we did not learn whether or not there was any insurance on the property.

Wheat sold in Red Lake Falls yesterday for $1.03, the highest price paid since the Leiter plunge in 1898. There is every reason to believe that the price of wheat will hold strong this fall, and grain men give it as their opinion that little wheat will be sold for less than 80 cents.

Paul I. D. Ostby and family returned yesterday from an extended visit to Freeborn county, where they formerly resided. Mr. Ostby says the crop is fairly good in that section this year, though no better than in Red Lake county. He tells us there was a slight frost there last Thursday.

The many friends of Judge Ives will regret to learn that he is seriously ill at his home in Cass Lake. Harry Ives of the St. Hilaire Spectator was summoned Monday morning, and as he has not yet returned it is surmised that his father is quite ill. The telegram received by Harry gave no details of the Judge,s illness.

E. W. Chamberlain, the new superintendent of schools, arrived last Thursday from Pine City, in company with his wife. They have gone to housekeeping in the Sieff residence on Champagne avenue. Mr. Chamberlain has the appearance of being an able and enthusiastic educator, and his successful experience in the past indicates the board of education made no mistake in selecting him. Prof and Mrs. Chamberlain will be given a hearty welcome to the social circles of Red Lake Falls.

Joseph Bealieau came near meeting with a serious accident at the Healy dam yesterday afternoon. Several men were at work repairing the sluiceway when the pry became dislocated and hit Mr. Bealieau on the head. Fortunately he was not seriously injured, but had the pry struck from a little different position he could hardly have failed to be instantly killed.

Rust is doing great damage to the wheat in Otter Tail, Douglas, Grant, Wilkin and other north central counties. At first it was thought there was no appearance of rust in Red Lake county, but during the last few days several farmers have reported slight damage, although the rust seems to be confined to small areas and in no section of the county will the loss from this source be serious.

A "bean roast" at the residence of Joseph Belair attracted quite a percentage of the male population Monday evening. The feast was prepared by Mr. Swanson, the famous wanagan cook, assisted by Mrs. Belair. Though not from Boston, Mr. Swanson's specialty is beans, and he knows how to prepare them in the most delicious and appetizing manner. The band was out and the occasion was thoroughly enjoyable.

A number of threshing machine owners in this vicinity held an informal meeting yesterday for the purpose of taking steps toward organizing a threshermen's association for Red Lake county. A meeting has been called for Monday, August 22, at one o'clock at the city hall in Red Lake Falls, and every thresher in the county is cordially invited to attend and take part in the organization of the association.

Two small boys were watching the band the other evening, and were particularly interested in Harry Healy's contortions with the trombone. Suddenly seizing his companion's arm one cried out excitedly: "Goodness, Jim, look at that!" "What's the matter?" asked the other. "Look, he's done it again." "Done what?" "Why, sent half that instrument down his throat and blowed it out again! He keeps a-doing it. Well, if that don't beat everything."

Mrs. J. J. Doe went to Thief River Falls Monday in the interest of her campaign for county superintendent. Mrs. Doe has resigned as a teacher in the Red Lake Falls school and expects to devote all of her time to the campaign. She has had flattering encouragement from all parts of the county, and her friends seem to think there is no question of her success either at the primaries or at the polls.

William McIntosh, who has been doing carpenter work at Scotland, returned home Tuesday to recuperate from slight injuries received in the falling of a scaffold on the Brown & Buskirk saloon building. It seems that four carpenters were at work on one section of the scaffold when the supports gave way and all of them took a sixteen-foot fall. Geo. Brown, Will Hennings and Mr. McIntosh were all slightly bruised.

Crookston Journal: Banker J. K. Hannay, the prosperous St. Hilaire financer, tarred in the city yesterday morning while enroute home from a trip to Fergus Falls which was made necessary by pressing business matters. While at Fergus Mr. Hannay enjoyed a pleasant trip through the state hospital for the insane and reports that institution as one of the best equipped and most conveniently arranged of any in the country. Mr. Hannay went through all of the wards and will long remember the pitiful sights which he saw in many of the departments.

UP RIVER MURDER MYSTERY

Identity of the Murdered Man is Discovered—No Trace of Assailants is Found.

The Thief River Review says of the Thief River Falls murder mystery: "As announced exclusively in the Review last week, the body found two miles north and west of this city on July 29th, proved to be Hilding Olson of Aitkinson, Minn., and there is no longer any doubt but that he met his death by foul play. An examination of the dead body shows what apparently are bullet holes in the skull and knife wounds would likely be found in the back, could the body be examined closely, which is impossible owing to its decomposed condition.

Hilding Olson, in company with a number of fellow workmen left Rileys camp, north of this city on June 25th and came here. Checks were cashed by different members of the crowd at Langseth Bros., and Ole Arneson's, Olson getting his two checks cashed at Langseth's store. One of the crowd named Barker, whom it was first thought might know something of the affair and who had been a chum of Olson, left soon after for Aitkinson, but it is now thought he left here before the crime was committed.

A number of clews have shown up and warrants are now out for two or three parties who are thought to know something of the affair and it is likely that something definite will be known by the time the inquest is held which will be the first of the week.

To Dr. Grundy, coroner of Red Lake county, Mikkel Bekken stated that his son, Seigart, had been one of the number that came down from the railroad camp on the Saturday before Olson's death, says that Olson came out to his place on Sunday to see if Seigart was going back to work, that Seigart was not at home and he talked with Olson for sometime during which time Olson took a gold watch from his pocket a number of times; says Olson left there Sunday afternoon, June26, with the intention of going back to camp, describes Olson's clothes exactly as those found on the dead man.

The checks issued on June 25th and cashed the same day after banking hours are as follows:

Henry Konkle, $15.35; John Gorder, $19.57; Joe McGreevy, $13.25; Seigart Bekken, $15.05; Hilding Olson, $18.80.

Olson also cashed one other check, issued June 3, for $10.30 at the same time.

Evold Erickson, talking to Dr. Grundy says that he works at railroad camp north of town, that he came to town on June 25, in company with Hiram Barker, that the latter left camp with the intention of going home to Aitkinson, Minn., and that he bought a ticket amounting to about $9.00.

Ed. Johnson, working on the Soo, claims to have known Olson and says that he (Olson) started to leave town, date not known exactly but thought the last of June, in company with a short thick set Swede, who seemed not to want any one else to go along with them, did not know party and have not seen either since.

Mail sent to Olson at Sandridge has been received by Dr. Grundy, one letter is from the party in Grafton, who wrote the letter found on the dead man's person, one is from Olson's brother, Victor, at Aitkinson, dated July 31, from which it appears that Barker was there at that time.

Bert Warren, suspected of knowing something about the Olson murder at Thief River Falls, was arrested Monday and brought to the county jail It is alleged that Warren quarrelled with Olson shortly before the murder and that he followed him out of a saloon. Others say that the man who quarrelled with Olson was larger and wore different clothing.

HONOR ACCEPTED BY MR. FAIRBANKS

FORMALLY NOTIFIED OF NOMINATION BY REPUBLICANS FOR VICE PRESIDENT.

The Ceremony Takes Place at His Home in Indianapolis—He Delivers an Address Announcing His Acceptance.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 4.—Charles W. Fairbanks, senior United States senator from Indiana, was Wednesday formally notified of his nomination for vice president of the United States by the republican national convention. The notification address was made by Elihu Root, ex-secretary of war, who was temporary chairman of the convention. The exercises were held on the wide veranda of Senator Fairbanks' beautiful home at Sixteenth and Meridian streets.

Root's Address.

Mr. Root, in his address of notification said in part:

"The nomination comes to you in accordance with the best methods and practices of representative government. It was the result of long and earnest consideration and discussion by the members of the convention. It was not the chance product of an excited hour, and it was not upon the demand of any powerful influence—political or otherwise—constraining the judgment of the delegates. It was not made for the purpose of conciliating possible malcontents, or of swelling the campaign fund of the party. No bargains or intrigues contributed to it. No suppressions of the truth or misleading of the convention as to your principles and opinions were necessary to bring it about. It was the deliberate, informed and intelligent judgment of the delegates from every state and territory, and it was their unanimous judgment."

Referring to the vice presidential nominee of the democratic party, Mr. Root said in part:

"Before the next administration is ended he will be approaching his eighty-sixth birthday. It is no disparagement of this gentleman, for whom I believe we all have the highest respect, to say that he shares the common lot of mortals, and that the election of any man of such great age would furnish no safeguard to the American people against the disaster which would ensue upon the death of a president with a successor not competent to perform the duties of the presidential office."

Fairbanks Accepts.

Senator Fairbanks was given another ovation as he arose to accept the nomination. He said, in part:

"I accept the commission which you bring with a profound sense of the dignity and responsibilities of the exalted position for which I have been nominated. My utmost endeavor will be to discharge in full measure the trust, if the action of the convention shall meet the approval of the American people.

"The convention was wise not only in its enunciation of party policies, but its nomination of a candidate for the presidency. During the last three years President Roosevelt has been confronted with large and serious questions. These he has met and solved with high wisdom and courage. The charges made against him in the democratic platform find an irrefutable answer in his splendid administration, never surpassed in all the history of the republic and never equaled by the party who seeks to discredit it."

He fully approved all the various planks in the party platform, and gave special reference to that touching the monetary question, saying that he believed it unwise for the American people to intrust the safety of the republic to a party in which the enemies of sound money were powerful enough to prevent an open indorsement of the gold standard.

Senator Fairbanks touched briefly upon other planks of the platform, and promisel a fuller expression of his views upon the question at issue at a later time.

INVADE SACRED CITY.

Five Thousand British Troops Occupy Lhassa, the Capital of Thibet.

London, Aug. 8.—Maj. Gen. MacDonald, with 5,000 British and Indian troops, occupied Lhassa, the capital city of Thibet, known as the sacred city, at noon last Wednesday. The marching of British soldiers into Thibet is the most astounding event in a thousand years of Asiatic history. For 1,200 years Lhassa has been the most hallowed spot in Asia. It is the religious metropolis of the Buddhist world. For centuries Thibet has been the forbidden land. Its capital has been the world's one unsolved mystery. Lhassa has been seen from a distance, but never before has the white unbeliever stepped foot on its sacred streets.

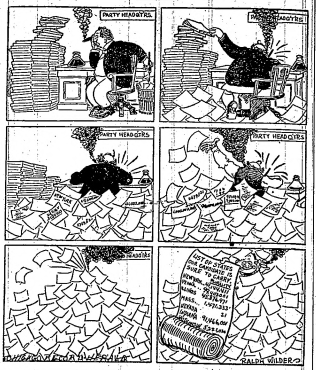
Taggart Seeking Quarters.

New York, Aug. 8.—Chairman Taggart, of the democratic national committee, called on Senator Gorman early Saturday, and then visited the different buildings which are under consideration for headquarters in this city. Arrangements are about completed for the assembling of the Parker notification committee in this city next Tuesday and the trip to Esopus Wednesday morning.

Decline in Wheat.

Kansas City, Aug. 8.—Reports from nearly 300 grain men and millers in Kansas, Nebraska and Oklahoma indicate a wheat crop [illegible] bushels less than in 1903. [illegible] the deficiency is the direct result of the excessive rains in June and July on fields that were ready for harvest or on wheat in the stacks awaiting the threshers.

THERE OUGHT TO BE SOME NEWS OF THE PREDICTION CROP SOON.



FIERCE ASSAULT ON PORT ARTHUR

JAPANESE FORCES SAID TO HAVE MET WITH AWFUL SLAUGHTER IN BATTLE.

Loss of 10,000 Killed and Wounded Is Reported—Russian Losses Also Heavy—Japanese Troops Capture and Occupy Haicheng.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 8.—A telegram from Chefoo dated August 7 says that according to Chinese information a fierce battle was fought on the land side of Port Arthur. The Japanese are reported to have been repulsed with great loss, the killed alone being estimated at 10,000, while the Russians lost about 1,000. The telegram says that Lieut. Gen. Stoessel was personally in command and that the conduct of the Russian troops was splendid.

Stoessel Reports.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 8.—Lieut. Gen. Stoessel, commanding the Russian military forces at Port Arthur, in an undated dispatch to the emperor says:

"I am happy to report that the troops repulsed all the Japanese attacks of July 26, 27 and 28, with enormous losses. The garrison's enthusiasm was extraordinary. The fleet assisted in the defense by bombarding the Japanese flank. Our losses during the three days was about 1,500 men and 40 officers killed or wounded. According to statements of Chinese and prisoners the Japanese lost as many as 10,000. The losses were so great that the enemy has not had time to remove the dead and wounded."

Capture of Haicheng.

Tokio, Aug. 5.—The Japanese victors at the battle of Simoucheng have advanced and occupied Haicheng. The Russians began abandoning Haicheng August 2. The Japanese entered Haicheng without resistance at noon Wednesday.

Slaughter at Haicheng Fight.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 6.—Detailed reports reaching the war office from Gen. Kuropatkin's generals show that the Russian losses July 30, 31 and August 1 did not exceed 4,000. The Japanese are believed to have lost at least an equal number.

PROVE A DRAWBACK.

Labor Troubles Seriously Affect Business—In Other Features Trade Situation Improved.

New York, Aug. 6.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: "Labor controversies are the most serious drawbacks to recovery in business; most other important factors tending toward improvement. Despite some reduction in the yield of wheat, crop prospects are most encouraging, and the loss in quantity of wheat promises to be fully offset by higher prices, so that the agricultural communities will be in position to purchase commodities freely. Railway earnings in July were only 2.4 per cent. smaller than a year previous, and at many cities there is evidence of returning confidence, with a little improvement in mercantile collections. But several strikes in progress and others under consideration militate against a resumption of normal conditions in trade and manufacture.

"Failures this week in the United States are 230, against 220 last week, 231 the preceding week and 178 the corresponding week last year. Failures in Canada number 18, against 18 last week, 20 the preceding week and 19 last year."

Bradstreet's says: "Business and industrial conditions are still irregular and render generalization as to the future difficult. Dispatches to Bradstreet's indicate an appreciable enlargement in the distribution of merchandise at western points, collections show a slight gain and southern advices, buoyed by good crop advices, are optimistic. The iron trade, too, is showing improvement, and even bituminous coal is looking up."

A WESTERN HORROR.

Train Plunges Through Bridge Over a Colorado Creek—Loss of Life Probably Heavy.

Pueblo, Col., Aug. 8.—Between 30 and 50 persons are believed to be dead at the bottom of Fountain creek, at Pinon, Col., and it is feared that many others have been lost in the wreck of the Missouri Pacific fast express, which plunged through the bridge Sunday night. The accident happened at dusk.

The accident took place while the train was rushing west at high speed. The underpinning of the bridge, which had been weakened by the heavy rains, gave way just as the engine and five heavily laden coaches dashed upon it. With a crash it collapsed and the train fell into the rushing stream below.

It is feared that many of the dead may not be recovered. The stream, swollen far beyond its usual volume by the rains, likely will wash away many of the victims. The cars are said to have been almost dashed to pieces by their fall.

Word was brought to this city at nine o'clock, and immediately a relief train with all the available surgeons, was made up and started with a siwft engine for the spot.

Aged Father Kills Son.

Waupaca, Wis., Aug. 8.—Edward Kemp, of Blain, aged 75, killed his son, aged 35, with a small knife by stabbing him in the neck. The young man died within ten minutes. The trouble was a family dispute. Kemp was taken to Stevens Point and placed in jail.

MICHIGAN DEMOCRATS.

State Convention Meets at Grand Rapids—The Ticket and the Platform.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 4.—After it had been generally conceded that Justus S Stearns, of Ludington, would be nominated for governor by the democratic state convention, following Mr. Stearn's statement in the early hours of the day that he had bolted the republican party and would support the democratic ticket, both national and state, the convention Wednesday evening nominated for governor, on the first ballot, Woodbridge N. Ferris, of Big Rapids. Mr. Stearns was three times a prominent candidate for the republican nomination for governor. The vote was: Ferris, 412; Stearns, 329.

At the evening session nominations to complete the ticket were made as follows: Lieutenant governor, Hiram B. Hudson, Mancelona; secretary of state, James T. Balch, Kalamazoo; state treasurer, Edwin R. Smith, Clinton county; auditor general, George A. Curry, Ironwood; superintendent of public instruction, John E. Mealley, Plymouth; land commissioner, Henry McCarty, Newaygo; member of board of education, H. Kirk White, Owosso; attorney general, F. O. Gaffney, Missaukee county; judges of the supreme court, Allen C. Adsit, Grand Rapids; Cinton Roberts, Flint; Thomas A. Boyle, Ann Arbor; presidential electors-at-large, Thomas F. Carroll, Grand Rapids, Gilbert M. Stark, Saginaw.

The platform adopted indorses the platform and candidates of the national convention recently held at St. Louis. It favors the nomination of all candidates for office by direct vote of the people. It recommends a constitutional amendment for the election of state railroad and state tax commissioners by a direct vote of the people. It also favors the election of United States senators by popular vote and the adoption of legislation or constitutional amendment to regulate compensation for transportation of freight and passengers on electric and steam railroads, also to give city and township authorities power to fix maximum charges for street car service, gas electric lights and other public utilities.

FLEET SAILS FOR SMYRNA.

American Squadron to Support Demands on Sultan for Fairness Toward Our Interest.

Washington, Aug. 8.—The European squadron, commanded by Rear Admiral Jewell, has been ordered to cruise in Turkish waters to enforce the demands of the United States upon the sultan. The president and his advisers are of the opinion that the sultan has insulted and humiliated the United States and that to delay longer a show of force would be to demonstrate timidity. The correspondent of the New York World telegraphed that paper that if the presence of the ships does not bring the sultan to time the port of Smyrna will be seized and held until all questions in dispute are settled. Rear Admiral Jewell's squadron consists of the cruisers Cleveland, Olympia, (which was Admiral Dewey's flagship at Manila bay) and the Baltimore.

No money is involved in the long-drawn-out dispute with Turkey, which is now becoming acute. Turkey is not giving American schools and missions within her dominions such liberal treatment as she accords to similar institutions of France and Germany. The American demand has long been for equality of rights and opportunities with the most favored nation in this and in several other respects regarding American citizens in Turkey.

Ville Franche, France, Aug. 8.—The American European squadron, commanded by Rear Admiral C. T. Jewell, sailed for Smyrna Sunday morning.

CHICAGO STRIKERS PARADE.

Thirty Thousand Employes of Stockyards March in Labor Demonstration.

Chicago, Aug. 8.—Thirty thousand stock yards strikers and their families marched in the labor parade Saturday. The younger generation furnished most of the life. They sang and shouted, and many of them carried banners bearing such inscriptions as these: "Take Our Mothers from the Stock Yards." "Give Father Living Wages, so Mother Can Stay at Home." "Shall We Be Compelled to Work in the Stock Yards, or Be Allowed to Attend School?"

At the close of the fourth week of the strike of the butcher workmen at the meat packing plants Saturday night, the men and the employers were further apart than at any time since the beginning of the struggle.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—Conditions growing out of the strike led to a run Friday on the Drovers' trust and savings bank, Forty-second and Halsted streets. Shortly after the bank opened a crowd of people appeared with their savings deposit books, and, forming in line, demanded their money. The bank began paying, and the officials declared that every depositor who wanted his money would get it in full.

MALARIA
Germ Infected Air.

Malaria is not confined exclusively to the swamps and marshy regions of the country, but wherever there is bad air this insidious foe to health is found. Poisonous vapors and gases from sewers, and the musty air of damp cellars are laden with the germs of this miserable disease, which are breathed into the lungs and taken up by the blood and transmitted to every part of the body. Then you begin to feel out of sorts without ever suspecting the cause. No energy or appetite, dull headaches, sleepy and tired and completely fagged out from the slightest exertion, are some of the deplorable effects of this enfeebling malady. As the disease progresses and the blood becomes more deeply poisoned, boils and abscesses and dark or yellow spots appear upon the skin. When the poison is left to ferment and the microbes and germs to multiply in the blood, Liver and Kidney troubles and other serious complications often arise. As Malaria begins and develops in the blood, the treatment to be effective must begin there too. S. S. S. destroys the germs and poisons and purifies the polluted blood, and under its tonic effect the debilitated constitution rapidly recuperates and the system is soon clear of all signs of this depressing disease.

RUSSIANS SUFFER A SEVERE ATTACK

JAPANESE TROOPS ENGAGE THE CZAR'S FORCES IN BATTLE NORTH OF HAICHENG.

KUROKI THREATENING THE TOWN OF MUKDEN

Russians Reported Retreating Northward—Important Conference on Military Situation Held at St. Petersburg.

Berlin, Aug. 9.—The Tageblatt Monday morning printed the following dispatch:

"Liaoyang, Aug. 7.—The western Russian forces north of Haicheng suffered a heavy attack to-day. Many wounded Russians are here. There is a rumor current that Gen. Kuroki is threatening Mukden from the northeast. Viceroy Alexieff and Gen. Kuropatkin were yesterday in Liaoyang."

Russians Retreat.

Gen Kuroki's Headquarters in the Field, via Fusan, Aug. 7 (delayed in transmission).—The Russian forces in front of Gen. Kuroki's army are reported retreating northward. A part of it has encamped at Anping, 12 miles from Liaoyang. Guns were heard this morning on the Japanese right, meaning that possibly the Japanese are following the Russian retirement. In connection with the death of Lieut. Gen. Count Keller, killed by shrapnel on July 29 while watching the battle at Yangse pass from a battery position above Maowan, the Chinese living there say that the Russians moved two coffins from that place with great ceremony.

Important Conference Held.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 9.—An important conference on the military situation was held at the Peterhof palace Monday. The ministers of war and marine, Grand Duke Alexis, the high admiral, Gen. Motte, one of Gen. Kuropatkin's aides-de-camp, who had just arrived from the front with personal dispatches for the emperor, and others were present.

The report that the Japanese are landing troops in Louisa bay, about nine miles northwest of Port Arthur, evoked no surprise at the war office. The officials there are astonished that the Japanese had neglected to do so at the outset of the siege of Port Arthur. This enables the besiegers to surround the outer defenses and feel out the weakest point, and drive home an attack where least expected.

The war office does not confirm the Chefoo report of an attack on Port Arthur August 5, and believes the telegram refers to the assault of July 26, 27 and 28. It is pointed out that if the Japanese lost 10,000 men then, it would be impossible for them to repeat the attack within eight days. A private telegram from Chefoo, believed to be from the Russian consul there, reports the loss of the Japanese protected cruisers Chiyoda and Itsukushima, by the explosion of mines off Port Arthur.

RIGHTS OF SHIPPERS.

Summary of Declaration by Secretary Hay Regarding Neutral Nations During War.

Washington, Aug. 9.—"The recognition in principle of the treatment of coal and other fuel and raw cotton as absolutely contraband of war might ultimately lead to a total inhibition of the sale by neutrals to the people of belligerent states of all articles which could be finally converted to military uses. Such an extension of the principle, by treating coal and other fuel and raw cotton as absolutely contraband of war, simply because they are shipped by a neutral to a non-blockaded port of a belligerent, would not appear to be in accord with the reasonable and lawful rights of a neutral commerce."

This is a summary of a declaration by Secretary Hay on the right of neutral nations during war. It was embodied in a circular to American ambassadors in Europe which was issued from the state department June 10 last, but for some reason was withheld from the public, although certain shippers who inquired at the department after their rights were supplied with copies. The circular is based on a declaration by the Russian government that coal, naphtha, alcohol and other fuel have been declared contraband.

New Swimming Record.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 9.—Miss Eleanor Sears, of Boston, has established a new woman's record for long distance swimming. With a male companion and followed by a rowboat, Miss Sears swam from Bailey's beach to Eastons, a distance of four miles, through difficult water. No attempt was made at fast time and the swimmers were in the water three and one-half hours.

Woman Burned to Death.

Topeka, Kan., Aug. 9.—Mrs. A. E. Jones, aged 60, wife of the superintendent of the Kansas dairy exhibit at the St. Louis exposition, was burned to death at her home in the western part of the city Monday, by the explosion of a gasoline stove.

Former Congressman Dead.

Owatonna, Minn., Aug. 9.—Mark H. Dunnell, former republican congressman from the Eighth Minnesota district, and who was the first superintendent of public instruction in Minnesota, died Monday of heart disease.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Growth of Trade.

Twenty years ago the first trainload of iron ore was shipped in Minnesota over the Duluth & Iron Range railroad from the Minnesota iron mine at Tower. The train consisted of fifteen cars, and the engineer in charge was Thomas Owens, now superintendent of the road. The total shipment for that year, 1884, was 62,121 tons, and all from the Vermillion range. The Mesabi range made its first shipment in 1892 of 4,245 tons, less than half the total of tonnage now carried by the steamer Wolvin. During the two decades of the industry a total of about 90,000,000 tons has been shipped from the state. There are now on the two Minnesota ranges about sixty mines that are being operated and are shippers and about twice that number non-shipping properties. The total valuation of the mines, as returned by the board of equalization, including the real and personal property, is $42,079,189.

Terrible Crime.

Bound, gagged and assaulted by two tramps, Mrs. Albert Brazier, who resides on the outshirts of Elk River, lay for five hours vainly attempting to attract the attention of passersby. Finally, a man was attracted by her pitiful appeals and released her. She is in a critical condition from fright and abuse.

While the woman was busy with her househould duties, the two men came to the door and forcing an entrance, seized her and threw her to the floor. They securely bound and gagged her, and also took rings from her fingers. Before leaving they secured food and then went leisurely away.

Mrs. Brazier was able to give a good description of the men and the authorities have started in pursuit.

A Good Cow.

W. W. P. McConnell, state dairy and food commissioner, has completed the investigation of the productivity of various breeds of cows and the nutritive qualtity of various kinds of feed.

Speaking of the results of the investigation, Mr. McConnell said:

"Of 200 herds tested, the best results were obtained from a grade Shorthorn cow, 8 years old. The cow gave 8,144 pounds of milk in one year, producing 1,430.08 pounds of butter. The owner realized a net profit of $50,19. The poorest showing was made by a full-blooded Durham, which produced but 173.5 pounds of butter and a net profit of 18 cents."

Killed by Derrick.

Five-year-old Pauline Bray, a daughter of Edward Bray of Red Lake Falls, was killed by the falling of a well derrick.

She was in East Grand Forks visiting her grandparents and was playing in a yard where the derrick was. There was a high wind and the derrick was blown down.

A boy standing near shouted to the the child, but it was too late. She was struck on the head by the falling weight and her skull was crushed.

She died instantly.

Twine Sales.

The sales of binder twine at the state prison amount to 10,200,220 pounds or more than 3,000,000 pounds above the output of last year, an increase of about 43 per cent. The spindles are being worked overtime in order to help out the farmers of the state as much as possible. The value of the product this year is about $900,000, as compared with $702,000 last year, when prices were higher.

Diamonds and Dogs.

Diamonds and pug dogs are becoming more popular in Minnesota each succeeding year, if the abstracts of personal property assessments being received by State Auditor S. G. Iverson are to be relied on. Nearly all the counties that have reported so far show an increase in the valuation of diamonds and the number of dogs two years ago.

Watonwan and Traverse are the only two counties reporting so far that show a decrease in the valuation of diamonds.

State Forestry.

Plats and lists showing lands selected by the state for experimental forestry purposes have been filed at the land office by C. C. Andrews, state fire warden and secretary of the state forestry board. A total of 19,984 acres has been selected by the board in townships 64-12 and 63-14. The land chosen is practically one body, and all lies in the northern part of St. Louis county, a distance of six to ten miles northwest of Ely. Several lakes are included within the limits of the reserve.

News Notes.

The prohibitionists of Clay county held a two days' rally at Hitterdahl.

Owing to the depleted condition of the permanent school fund, the state board of investment has decided to loan no more money at present.

Peter E. Nelson, a farmer living near Rock Creek, was killed by the cars.

The seventeenth annual convention of the Finnish Temperance Brotherhood of America was held at Hibbing.

BUSINESS MEN NOT WORRYING.

Public Examiner Said Minnesota Banks are in Prosperous Condition.

Information received by Public Examiner S. T. Johnson is that the banks of Minnesota are in good condition and that business conditions in the Northwest are not at all disturbed in anticipation of the of the presidential campaign. This is a remarkable presidential year in this respect, Mr. Johnson says, since usually during the campaign and just before it opens the confidence of business men is shaken to a reater or less extent and conditions become unsettled.

The belief of the business men that there will be no radical change in the financial policy of the United States government, the public examiner believes, is largely responsible for the settled conditions in the Northwest and throughout the country.

"Bankers and business men do not expect a change in the financial policy of the government, and for this reason they are not much alarmed at the outcome of the presidential campaign," said the public examiner. "Advices received by this department from points in the Northwest are very favorable."

The state banks of Minnesota as a general rule have been very prosperous in the last few years. There have been no failures to speak of since 1896 and 1897, when bankers and business men were trying to pull through the panic of the early nineties.

Corrects a Wrong Impression.

In an article of two weeks ago The Press stated that the representative elected from this district to the state legislature should be deeply interested and closely in touch with drainage questions. We are since in receipt of a letter from Representative L. C. Simons in which he states that he will and has done all in his power to promote better drainage in the Valley. Last session at his own solicitation he was placed upon the drainage committee and in company with the other members labored for an appropriation of $100,000. But as the money was all to be spent in Northern Minnesota the proposed appropriation met with strong opposition and was ultimately cut down to $50,000, which sum is being expended but does not go far. Mr. Simons pledges himself if nominated and elected to again do his utmost for the district in matters pretaining to drainage as well as all other questions that may come up of material benfit to this section of the state.—Thief River Press.

LIKES RED LAKE COUNTY.

A Visitor Writes His Impressions of This Section.

A recent issue of the Glasford (Ill.) Gazette contains the following article:

Mr. Geo. F. Laswell, the photographer whose ad has so long appeared in this paper is in Glasford for three days of this week. Mr. Laswell has just returned from a five weeks trip in the north western part of Minnesota. He comes freighted with much valuable information concerning this northern country. He says,

"In a country where land is high, made so by over-population, competition is fierce in every line, wages are low and expenses are high. Every condition is hard to meet. In a new country these conditions are all reversed. A young man filled with energy and ambition to have a home will find openings in every line. The harvest fields of the north are not as far advanced as here, but soon they will be ready for the reapers and the demand for harvest hands will be greater than the supply. Then comes threshing time. The very lowest wages is $2 per day and from that on up. One man from Washburn, Ill., who knew how to run an engine went to the superintendent at Red Lake Falls, Minn., and just on the recommendation of a friend, without taking an examination, secured a first grade certificate. This will enable him to get $6 per day. They all extend you a helping hand. Their cry is for men. The saw mills are running night and day. A constant stream of logs are floating down the great rivers of the north. Armies of men are invading and depopulating the forests. Rail roads are extending their lines and branches in every direction. They are offering reduced rates to travelers. The government of the U. S, and Canada are opening up reservations to actual settlers and it is possible for men with small or moderate means to obtain fertile productive lands. The west and the great north west wait with open arms to receive you. Every inducement to get you to go is offered. Wages are high and land is cheap. It may be had by paying a part down and the banks will advance you ½ the value of the land to make your payment. Owing to rapid imigration it is increasing in value. It is only a question of a few years more until all the good land will be out of reach of the poor. Now is the time to go. All kinds of building is going on creating a demand for carpenters, blacksmiths and labor of all kind. Lumber and wood are plentiful for building and for fuel. The country is full of resources. The seasons are short but the days are 2 hours longer than here, giving sufficient light and heat to mature the crops. The wood substance in the stock of the grain enables it to stand against the hardest winds while here it is blown to the ground and rots. From two to three crops will pay for the land outright. Instances can be given where a single crop has paid for the land. White Russian oats, near Red Lake Falls, Terrebonne or Perrault station, Minn., will average 60 bu. to the acre. The average price 35c per bu. The land is from $22 to $28 per acre. Wages for farm hands here are about $26 per month and board. There is but little to do between seedtime and harvest. Wages go on just the same. Average yield of flax is 13 bu. to the acre and the average price is $1.25 per bu. In 1895 the elevator at Perrault station bought one hundred and twenty thousand bu. of grain. Wheat averaged thirty bu. to the acre. A man by the name of Circle Blandin near Terrebonne made $20 per acre clear. For the year 1904 wheat averaged 87c per bu.

I saw the sun set on June 18th at 8:23. It sets now just a little before 9 o'clock, I measured the depth of the soil and found sixteen inches of black loam. We bored down four feet and did not get through the clay subsoil. Some places, the black soil will reach a depth of nearly two feet, I brought home samples of the soil and all the grains raised in this latitude besides photos of many well inproved farms, beautiful lakes, rivers, saw mills, grist mills, elevators, etc. Here the climate is mild and delightful in summer but cold in winter. On June 22 the temperature was 63 in the shade. Before I left it went as high as 96 but generally stood at 70 or 80. In winter it is a clear dry cold and is not noticed much more than here. You just burn a little more wood. Fish abounds in the Red Lake rivers. Deer and moose near Red Lake upon the Indian reservation about 60 miles north of Red Lake Falls and Thief River Falls. There will be a new railroad built through this section of the country this summer. The Northern Pacific is also extending its line on up into Canada. I have stated nothing but facts and don't wish to mislead any one. I went to the north to seek a home for my family and found opportunities awaiting me that I never dreamed of. I have written this that men who feel the yoke of bondage or the hand of oppression as I have felt it for 21 years who have given the fruits of their toil to others who want to be free men may strike for Liberty. I shall take advantage of the cheap rates and go up there again this fall.

Rufus Choate and Justice Shaw.

Rufus Choate was sitting next to Judge Hoar in the bar when Chief Justice Shaw was presiding and the Suffolk docket was being called. The chief justice said something which led Mr. Choate to make a half humorous and half displeased remark about Shaw's roughness of look and manner, to which Judge Hoar replied, "After all, I feel a reverence for the old chief justice." "A reverence for him, my dear fellow?" said Choate. "So do I. I bow down to him as the wild Indian does before his wooden idol. I know he's ugly, but I bow to a superior intelligence."—George F. Hoar in Scribner's Magazine.

The Way to Float.

This is the advice of an old swimmer to those who cannot swim: "Any human being who will have the presence of mind to clasp the hands behind his back and turn the face toward the zenith may float at ease and in perfect safety in tolerably still water. When you first find yourself in deep water you have only to consider yourself an empty pitcher. Let your mouth and nose, and not the top of your heavy head, be the highest part of you and you are safe. But thrust up one of your bony hands and down you go—turning up the handle tips over the pitcher." There are reason and logic in this.

Tolerance.

Tolerance is a calm, generous respect for the opinions of others, even of one's enemies. Tolerance is silent justice blended with sympathy. Tolerance always implies wisdom and kindness. It seeks to convert others from error by gently raising them to higher ordeals, by leading them to broader lines of thinking, by patiently helping them to help themselves. Tolerance does not use the battering ram of argument or the club of sarcasm or the rapier of ridicule.—Selected.

BUSINESS MEN NOT WORRYING.

Public Examiner Said Minnesota Banks are in Prosperous Condition.

Information received by Public Examiner S. T. Johnson is that the banks of Minnesota are in good condition and that business conditions in the Northwest are not at all disturbed in anticipation of the of the presidential campaign. This is a remarkable presidential year in this respect, Mr. Johnson says, since usually during the campaign and just before it opens the confidence of business men is shaken to a reater or less extent and conditions become unsettled.

The belief of the business men that there will be no radical change in the financial policy of the United States government, the public examiner believes, is largely responsible for the settled conditions in the Northwest and throughout the country.

"Bankers and business men do not expect a change in the financial policy of the government, and for this reason they are not much alarmed at the outcome of the presidential campaign," said the public examiner. "Advices received by this department from points in the Northwest are very favorable."

The state banks of Minnesota as a general rule have been very prosperous in the last few years. There have been no failures to speak of since 1896 and 1897, when bankers and business men were trying to pull through the panic of the early nineties.

Corrects a Wrong Impression.

In an article of two weeks ago The Press stated that the representative elected from this district to the state legislature should be deeply interested and closely in touch with drainage questions. We are since in receipt of a letter from Representative L. C. Simons in which he states that he will and has done all in his power to promote better drainage in the Valley. Last session at his own solicitation he was placed upon the drainage committee and in company with the other members labored for an appropriation of $100,000. But as the money was all to be spent in Northern Minnesota the proposed appropriation met with strong opposition and was ultimately cut down to $50,000, which sum is being expended but does not go far. Mr. Simons pledges himself if nominated and elected to again do his utmost for the district in matters pretaining to drainage as well as all other questions that may come up of material benfit to this section of the state.—Thief River Press.

A Visitor Writes His Impressions of This Section.

A recent issue of the Glasford (Ill.) Gazette contains the following article:

Mr. Geo. F. Laswell, the photographer whose ad has so long appeared in this paper is in Glasford for three days of this week. Mr. Laswell has just returned from a five weeks trip in the north western part of Minnesota. He comes freighted with much valuable information concerning this northern country. He says,

"In a country where land is high, made so by over-population, competition is fierce in every line, wages are low and expenses are high. Every condition is hard to meet. In a new country these conditions are all reversed. A young man filled with energy and ambition to have a home will find openings in every line. The harvest fields of the north are not as far advanced as here, but soon they will be ready for the reapers and the demand for harvest hands will be greater than the supply. Then comes threshing time. The very lowest wages is $2 per day and from that on up. One man from Washburn, Ill., who knew how to run an engine went to the superintendent at Red Lake Falls, Minn., and just on the recommendation of a friend, without taking an examination, secured a first grade certificate. This will enable him to get $6 per day. They all extend you a helping hand. Their cry is for men. The saw mills are running night and day. A constant stream of logs are floating down the great rivers of the north. Armies of men are invading and depopulating the forests. Rail roads are extending their lines and branches in every direction. They are offering reduced rates to travelers. The government of the U. S. and Canada are opening up reservations to actual settlers and it is possible for men with small or moderate means to obtain fertile productive lands. The west and the great north west wait with open arms to receive you. Every inducement to get you to go is offered. Wages are high and land is cheap. It may be had by paying a part down and the banks will advance you ½ the value of the land to make your payment. Owing to rapid imigration it is increasing in value. It is only a question of a few years more until all the good land will be out of reach of the poor. Now is the time to go. All kinds of building is going on creating a demand for carpenters, blacksmiths and labor of all kind. Lumber and wood are plentiful for building and for fuel. The country is full of resources. The seasons are short but the days are 2 hours longer than here, giving sufficient light and heat to mature the crops. The wood substance in the stock of the grain enables it to stand against the hardest winds while here it is blown to the ground and rots. From two to three crops will pay for the land outright. Instances can be given where a single crop has paid for the land. White Russian oats, near Red Lake Falls, Terrebonne or Perrault station, Minn., will average 60 bu. to the acre. The average price 35c per bu. The land is from $22 to $28 per acre. Wages for farm hands here are about $26 per month and board. There is but little to do between seedtime and harvest. Wages go on just the same. Average yield of flax is 13 bu. to the acre and the average price is $1.25 per bu. In 1895 the elevator at Perrault station bought one hundred and twenty thousand bu. of grain. Wheat averaged thirty bu. to the acre. A man by the name of Circle Blandin near Terrebonne made $20 per acre clear. For the year 1904 wheat averaged 87c per bu.

I saw the sun set on June 18th at 8:23. It sets now just a little before 9 o'clock. I measured the depth of the soil and found sixteen inches of black loam. We bored down four feet and did not get through the clay subsoil. Some places, the black soil will reach a depth of nearly two feet. I brought home samples of the soil and all the grains raised in this latitude besides photos of many well improved farms, beautiful lakes, rivers, saw mills, grist mills, elevators, etc. Here the climate is mild and delightful in summer but cold in winter. On June 22 the temperature was 63 in the shade. Before I left it went as high as 96 but generally stood at 70 or 80. In winter it is a clear dry cold and is not noticed much more than here. You just burn a little more wood. Fish abounds in the Red Lake rivers. Deer and moose near Red Lake upon the Indian reservation about 60 miles north of Red Lake Falls and Thief River Falls. There will be a new railroad built through this section of the country this summer. The Northern Pacific is also extending its line on up into Canada. I have stated nothing but facts and don't wish to mislead any one. I went to the north to seek a home for my family and found opportunities awaiting me that I never dreamed of. I have written this that men who feel the yoke of bondage or the hand of oppression as I have felt it for 21 years who have given the fruits of their toil to others who want to be free men may strike for Liberty. I shall take advantage of the cheap rates and go up there again this fall.

Provisions of New Law that Does Away With Expensive Election Return Messengers.

According to the provisions of a new law that will go into effect this fall there will be no further use of the fleet-footed messenger with the election returns from the far away election precincts, for he has been legislated out of a job at $1.00 per, and ten cents per mile. The last session of the legislature passed a law providing that all election returns from precincts fifteen miles or more away from the county seat of any county shall be sent by the election clerk to the county auditor by registered mail. It takes only a few pennies to register the package containing the returns, while under the old way of sending messengers the cost was considerable. The law provided that the party carrying the returns should receive the fee of $1, and ten cents a mile for going and coming. Here in Red Lake county the cost of getting the returns from the east precincts was no small sum, and the highest sum paid two years ago was $14 for returns from one of the east precincts, In Red Lake county many of the precincts will come under the operation of the new law, and there willbe twelve out of the twenty-three precincts that will forward election returns by registered mail. The precincts within the fifteen mile radius of the court house are Red Lake Falls city and township, Louisville, Lake Pleasant Terrebonne, Gervais, Emardville, Polk Center, Black River, River Falls and St. Hilaire.

County Auditor Ford has received the paraphernalia for the primary election, and among the implements of citizenship are small boxes containing twine and needle for stringing the ballots, six cheap stub pencils with chord attached so that the voter cannot graft one of the very valuable pieces of lead, a bar of sealing wax, a candle and a small seal on which appears the words, "Election Returns Red Lake County." The wax, the candle and the seal are used in sealing up the returns for mailing. The new law is a good thing for the stationery and supply men who furnish the counties with their supplies, and for that matter it is a good thing for the county and the tax payer as it will mean the saving of many hundreds of dollars in securing returns at every election. It is just as safe and much cheaper for Uncle Sam to carry the returns and the innovation will prove a good one.

SCHOOL SYSTEM HAS IMPROVED.

More Schools Are Qualifying for State Aid.

Minnesota's public school system is more extensive and more efficient this year than ever before in the history of the state. Reports received at the office of the superintendent of public instruction show that the number of semi-graded and rural schools in Minnesota that are entitled to state aid has materially increased during the present year.

This is considered significant, as the requirements exacted from schools seeking state aid are much more rigid than a year ago, and under ordinary circumstances there would be a weeding out process.

The state department of public instruction is receiving many applications for state aid from rural and semi-graded schools. The state high school board has charge of the high and graded schools. Last year 155 high schools, 120 graded, 275 semi-graded, and 916 rural were granted aid. There will be a substantial increase in the number of rural and semi-graded schools this year, and it is probable that there will be several new high and graded schools.

Present indications are that so many schools will qualify for state aid that the amounts named by the legislature will have to be cut down owing to the limited appropriation.

The maximum aid allowed by law is: high school, $1,500; graded $550; semi-graded, $250; rural, $125. Last year the high school aid had to be reduced to $1,360, and the aid for the other schools was reduced proportionately. There will probably be a stilll greater reduction this year.

BODY OF MISS DAHL FOUND

Crookston Young Lady Was Murdered in Beltrami County Two Months Ago.

A message from Bemidji yesterday reports the finding of the remains of a womn near the Dahl claim near Quiring. The details are lacking, but the report which reached Crookston was to the effect that the body was found by one of the homesteaders who owns the claim adjoining that of Miss Aagot Dahl, who so mysteriously disappeared several months since. John Gooler was raking hay when the teeth of the rake caught on a woman's shoe. Investigation revealed the fact that the badly discomposed body of a woman was hidden in a depression under a pile of debris and brush. The body has not positively been indentified as that of Miss Dahl, but the settlers feel sure that there is no mistake. The authorities have started for the scene of the finding.

TO ENFORCE GAME LAWS.

Precautions Taken to Prevent Illegal Shooting.

The state game and fish commission is taking every precaution to prevent the destruction of prairie-chickens before the opening of the season, Sept. 1. Executive Agent Fullerton has divided the state into six districts, in each of which are stationed an experienced warden who will supervise the work of a large number of regular wardens, some of whom are new men and not as experienced as those that have served the state several years. It is thought that under this arrangement the shooting of chickens before the opening of the season will be reduced to the minimum.

One experienced warden will be in charge of the territory around Duluth. Another will make his headquarters at Crookston. A third man will operate in the vicinity of Fergus Falls. Bemidji will be the headquarters of the fourth man. Granite Falls will be the center of another district and New Ulm will be the headquarters of the sixth man. In addition to these six men, there will be approximately 160 regular wardens scattered throughout the districts.

One Use For it.

George Ade at a recent banquet was asked to speak on success. "I suppose that failure is more familiar than success to all of us," he said. "We work away. Four things fail. The fifth thing succeeds. The hardest workers have the most failures, but then they have the most successes too.

"One of my early failures was a melodrama that I traveled all the way from Chicago to New York to sell to a manager. This was in my youth, when I had confidence in myself. The manager returned my melodrama. He said he didn't care for it.

"I pointed out the merits in it which he had overlooked. I proved that he would make a great mistake if he should not accept this work. But he shook his head.

"Can't you use it at all?" I asked desperately.

"Well," said be, "I might grind it up and use it for a snow-storm."

TO DECIDE VOTER'S PARTY

Mr. Ewert, of the Attorney General's Office, Interprets Parf ot Primary Law.

The state legal department takes the view that the state and congressional tickets is more representative of party principles than a county or city ticket.

The state ticket, Assistant Attorney General Ewert declares, in a primary election opinion just handed down, is the only one upon which a conclusion can be based when a voter's party affiliations are in doubt.

The attorney general's office is being deluged with requests for an interpretation of the primary act, chiefly for advice on the section relating to party affiliations.

Many voters contend that their judgment alone should prevail in the selection of ballots, and for their guidance and that of the judges of election at these coming primaries, Mr. Ewert has laid down some rules, with an interpretation that is probably new in its relation to how a voter's party affiliations should be determined.

"If a voter," says Mr. Ewert, "who is otherwise duly qualified, has changed his politics and party affiliations since the last general election, he is not entitled to receive a ballot at the September primary. It is not required, however, that a voter shall have voted his party ticket 'straight' at the general election, it is sufficient if he generally supported his candidates. The question as to whether a voter generally supported the candidates of the politcal party which he claims to be affiliated should be determined by his own declarations as to his general espousal of the principles advocated by that party at the last general election.

"Party affiliation should not be determined one by the number of candidates of each party for which the voter cast his ballot at the last general election, but rather by the support given to those candidates whose candidacy was based upon party principles. To arbitrarily set off a vote for a candidate of one political party on a county ticket against a vote for a candidate of another politcal party on a state, congressional or national ticket would be manifestly unjust, and would not be in harmony with the spirit of the law.

"A voter who, at the last general election, generally supported the candidates of the state and congressional ticket of that party with which he declares himself affiliated and which party he proposes to support at the coming election, is entitled to receive a ballot of that party at the September primary. A voter who cast his ballot for the Republican candidate for governor at the last general election and voted the Democratic ticket for the other state officers, would not be entitled te receive a Republican ballot at the coming primary election, although he then declares that he proposes to affiliate with the Republican party in the coming campaign and generally support its candidates."

N. W. TARRANT Judge of Probate

CANDIDATE FOR RE-ELECTION.

N. W. Tarrant, who is now serving his first term as judge of probate will be a candidate for re-nomination in the Democratic primaries, and there will be no opposition in his own party, and it is doubtful if he will have an opponent at the general election. Mr. Tarrant has made an unusually competent and obliging official, and there seems to be no disposition to withhold a second term.

Mr. Tarrant was born at Fox Lake, Wis., March 11, 1861. His parents were well-to-do merchants, and the youth received an excellent and thorough education in the high school of his native town. Early in life young Nicholas went to work in his father's store, learning book-keeping and the general run of the business. Having a fondness for law, young Tarrant was at the early age of 21 elected police justice of his home town. This position he retained until 1885, when he moved to South Dakota and engaged in farming and as a machinery agent, in both of which occupations he prospered, as was to be expected from a young man of his push, ability and unimpeachable honesty.

Seeing great possibilities in northern Minnesota Mr. Tarrant moved to Red Lake [then Polk] county in 1892, and for the first two years of his residence here he was engaged in farming. In 1894 he moved to Thief River Falls, where he opened a confectionery store. He immediately took an active interest in the affairs of the embryo city, and in 1899 was elected justice of the peace, which office he retained until the municipal court was established in 1901, when he was elected the first judge of this important legal station by a large majority over three other well-qualified citizens. During his incumbency of that position he gave the utmost satisfaction. He resigned this office to accept the office of judge of probate, to which he was elected two years ago by nearly 200 plurality.

As judge of probate Mr. Tarrant has shown great capacity for work and splendid equipment for the multitudinous duties of that important office. He richly deserves re-nomination and election.

BILIOUSNESS AND CONSTIPATION CURED BY THEDFORD'S BLACK-DRAUGHT

Because the liver is neglected people suffer with constipation, biliousness, headaches and fevers. Colds attack the lungs and contagious diseases take hold of the system. It is safe to say that if the liver were always kept in proper working order, illness would be almost unknown.

Thedford's Black-Draught is so successful in curing such sickness because it is without a rival as a liver regulator. This great family medicine is not a strong and drastic drug, but a mild and healthful laxative that cures constipation and may be taken by a mere child without possible harm.

The healthful action on the liver cures biliousness. It has an invigorating effect on the kidneys. Because the liver and kidneys do not work regularly, the poisonous acids along with the waste from the bowels get back into the blood and virulent contagion results.

Timely treatment with Thedford's Black-Draught removes the dangers which lurk in constipation, liver and kidney troubles, and will positively forestall the inroads of Bright's disease, for which disease in advanced stages there is no cure. Ask your dealer for a 25c. package of Thedford's Black-Draught.

JAMES E. FORD..... County Auditor

CANDIDATE FOR RE-ELECTION.

The many friends of James E. Ford will be pleased to know that he will again be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for county auditor. Mr. Ford as county auditor has proven a credit to the Democratic party, which placed him in nomination two years ago, to the people who ratified that choice at the polls, and in honor to himself. He has conducted the office with marked ability, and has made not only a most capable official but a most courteous and obliging one. He has been especially attentive to the details of the office and no matter has been too small for him to overlook. That he will again be nominated at the approaching primaries there is no doubt, as he will have no opposition, and up to date no person has been suggested in any of the other parties to make the race against him. He has made such a good auditor that his re-election is a foregone conclusion.

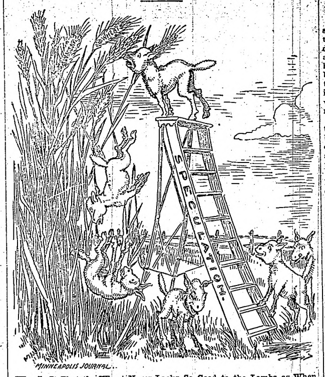
HIGH WHEAT.



Why Is It That the Wheat Never Looks So Good to the Lambs as When It Is So High That It's Dangerous?

RUSSIAN THRONE HAS NOW AN HEIR

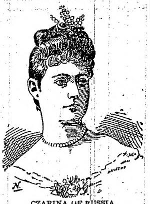
A SON IS BORN TO EMPEROR AND EMPRESS AT THE ALEXANDRA VILLA.

Manifestations of Joy Throughout the Empire Over the Important Event —The Child Will Be Christened Alexis.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 13.—A son and heir to the Russian throne has been born. The empress and the child are doing well. The birth occurred at 12.30 p. m.. The child will be christened Alexis. The birth so greatly wished for, that of an heir to the Russian crown, occurred, not in the great palace at Peterhoff, but in the Alexandra villa, one of a group of four small palaces in a secluded corner of the magnificent Peterhof park.

Birth Attended with Ceremony.

The birth of the heir to the throne was attended with all the ceremonial ordained by imperial tradition. In accordance with the Russian law there were present, besides the emperor, Baron Fredericks, the master of the ceremonies, and Prince Dolgorouky, the grand marshal of the court. Dr. Rott, the emperor's family physician, was the accoucheur, and Dr. Hiruch was the surgeon in attendance. Dr. Rott personally announced the birth of the heir to the awaiting imperial family. An imperial salute of 101 guns was subsequently fired, first from Peterhof and it was then repeated by all the forts around St. Petersburg. The christening of the heir will take place in a fortnight. It will be a ceremony of the most elaborate sort.



CZARINA OF RUSSIA.

A day marked by the display of flags, the firing of salutes, the holding of religious services, and the extending of official congratulations was followed by a night of brilliant illumination. Garlands and lamps were strung to-night across almost every house front, while from many of the larger buildings flashed the Russian arms, the imperial monogram and other devices picked out in electric globes. Early tens of thousands of tapers glimmered before the altars of St. Petersburg's many shrines. In chapels and cathedrals everywhere there were solemn choruses of thanksgiving from the imperial chapel to the Peterhof palace to the humble lamp-lit shrines of the streets.

Have Four Daughters.

The emperor and empress of Russia (formerly Princess Alix of Hesse), who were married November 14, 1894, had, previous to the birth of the child born Friday, four daughters, Olga, Born November 3, 1895; Tatania, Born May 29, 1897; Marie, born June 14, 1899, and Anastasia, born June 5, 1901.

Brothers Are Rivals.

Ocean City, Md., Aug. 11.—Former Gov. Elihu E. Jackson was nominated for congress Wednesday by the democratic convention of the First Maryland district. Ex-Gov. Jackson's opponent will be his brother, William H. Jackson, the present republican representative in congress from this district, who has been renominated.

FRENCH STATESMAN DIES.

Following an Operation Former Premier M. Waldeck-Rousseau Passes Away.

Paris, Aug. 11.—Former Premier Waldeck-Rousseau died Wednesday afternoon as the result of an operation. Pierre Marie Erneste Waldeck-Rousseau was born at Nantes, France, December 2, 1846, and was a son of Rene Waldeck-Rosseau, at that time a prominent member of the assembly. Waldeck-Rousseau studied law at Saint Lazare, where he practiced for some time before settling at Rennes. There he made his first entrance into politics, being elected deputy in 1879. He then became prominent in the ranks of the republican union, which was very conspicuous in opening the way for innovation and the present republicanism and was considered one of the most prominent orators of the assembly. His best work was for the reform of the judiciary. He was reelected on August 21, 1881, and on November 14 of the same year, although only 35 years old, was admitted into Gambetta's cabinet as minister of the interior. In 1886 he was elected senator, although he was not present at the election. In 1889 Waldeck-Rousseau was entered at the bar of Paris and since then pleaded some of the most important cases of the time. He also favored a revision of the Dreyfus case. On June 22, 1899, Waldeck-Rosseau was called upon to form his own ministry, and after having been successfully in office for over three years he resigned in June, 1902, his ministry having the longest duration of any cabinet under the republican regime.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Killing Cattle.

Dr. H. S. Ward, executive agent of state live stock sanitary board, said that the board will continue to condemn cows afflicted with tuberculosis, although State Auditor S. G. Iverson has refused to issue warrants reimbursing the owners in accordance with the Krostue bill passed by the last legislature. This means that the cows will be killed, but the owners will not receive anything from the state.

"We shall go on with our work just the same," said Dr. Ward. "We have been killing cows afflcted with tuberculosis at the rate of 75 to 100 a month, and I should say that the average cost to the state was about $17."

The action of the state auditor in holding up the warrants is on advice of Judge Daniel Fish of the statue revision commission who says that the Krostue bill authorizing the payment was repealed by the law creting the live stock sanitary board and has brought many protests from Minnesota dairymen who have cows afflicted with tuberculosis. These dairymen say that it was bad enough when the state killed their cows and paid three-fourths of their value.

Live Stock at Fair.

In the various announcements of Minnesota's great representation in the live stock department at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition it has been stated that the admirable display would be sent to St. Louis early in September. This is true, but it should be remembered that this stock will not go to St. Louis until after the Minnesota State Fair and that it will all be exhibited at the State Fair grounds during the week of August 29th to September 3rd. No one will need to go to St. Louis to see what Minnesota can do in the way of pure bred live stock, and, further, no one need go to St. Louis to see the prize winners at that great show, for a great majority of the animals which will take premiums at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition will have been exhibited at the Minnesota State Fair this year. The Minnesota fair is the only one this year which will have national exhibitions in connection with the American Hereford Cattle Breeders' Association and the American Short-horn Breeders' Association. The fair opens August 29 and closes Sept. 3.

Mark H. Dunnel, former congressman and a distinguished citizen of the Northwest, died at his home in Owatonna of heart failure, aged eighty-one years.

Mr. Dunnell was born in Buxton, Me., July 2, 1822, of Scotch and Eng. parentage. He was graduated from Waterville college in 1849 and spent the next five years in teaching.

In January 1865, Mr. Dunnell came to Winona, Minn., becoming a member of the Minnesota legislature in 1867. At the close of this session he was appointed state superintendent of public instruction, holding that position for three and a half years.

He resigned this office upon election to congress in the fall of f870. He served twelve consecutive years in the national house of representatives. He was retired by a change of political control of his district. He was in private life until 1889, when he was reelected to congress.

Wild Cat Spoils Sale.

A half-grown wild cat spoiled the sale of a piece of Minnetonka real estate for P. P. Swenson, a Minneapolis real estate agent, a day or two ago. While Mr. Swenson was showing a prospective buyer and his wife a piece of lake property the cat jumped out of underbursh and cut across the lot, frightning the buyer's wife almost into hysterics and giving the agent and prospective customer something of a scare.

The man was satisfied with the property and so was his wife until the cat made its appearance, after which they took the first train back to the city. Swenson has bought a gun and is looking for the wild cat, and the woman has changed her mind about a summer home at Minnetonka.

Another Explosion.

A second launch explosion occurred on Lake Minnetonka, and it was only by the rarest good fortune that no lives were lost.

The gasoline tank in Frank Muffet's handsome launch, the Piccatonica, exploded with terrific force, while Robert McCune, E. L. Jarvis and C. C. Noble were on their way across the lake, and for a few moments it seemed as if there was to be a repetition of the disaster in which Mrs. George L. Upton lost her life only a few weeks ago.

Ivanhoe wins out in the county seat election in Lincoln county by sixty-eight votes over the required 55 per cent of the votes cast, receiving 1,311 votes to 948 for Lake Benton.

N. W. TARRANT.

THE czar doesn't mind so much about Port Arthur since the arrival of that new son and heir.

COMMENTING on the Nebraska situation the Minneapolis Times sees indications that William J. Bryan is well in line for a senatorship from that state.

THERE are various kinds of fools in this world. One of the most harmless and yet disgusting is the fool who is forever writing his name in public places.

A RED WING paper says the people will vote for Roosevelt this fall because wheat is a dollar a bushel. A contemporary makes the trite retort that the Republican party must then be responsible for the rust.

W. W. P. McCONNELL's forthcoming report will show that during the year the number of creameries in Minnesota has increased 191. The cheese factories have increased 25. The total number of creameries in operation in the state is 779.

THE Minnesota country editor seems to be coming in to his own. Senator Johnson's nomination by the Democrats will insure an editor in the governor's chair. We have one of them in the congress and a couple more trying to break in. Hurrah for us!

IT would seem that John Johnson has no particular desire to be governor of Minnesota. He says: "The man who has a business which makes him a modest living and a comfortable home in which to dwell is a 33d-degree idiot to contract that awful disease itch for office."

SUPPORT

A TEXAS editor hits the right spot when he says: "The sorriest fellow on earth is the man who will sit around and cuss his own town. If I lived astride the north pole, I would call it 'home' and be ready to boost it up. If I could not say anything nice about it I would say that my ice bill didn't come high. I would not stay in a town I had to cuss—not while the world is as big as it is now.

THE latest report of the state board of health upon the prevalence of small pox in Minnesota, shows that the disease has been crowded nearer to the point of extinction now than it has been for several years. In a week but six cases were reported from all parts of the state, and no township, village or city had more than one case. Small pox has been regarded as epidemic in Minnesota since 1898, but the present status of the disease indicates that its obliteration is at hand.

ELIHU ROOT made a most unfortunate blunder in his speech nottifying Senator Fairbanks of his nomination for vice-president. For the first time in the history of these functions the speaker took occasion to make personal remarks about the candidate on the opposing ticket, dwelling particularly upon the age of Senator Davis. Whatever truth there may have been in Root's statements, the time and place was not in accord with such remarks. Mr. Root is alleged to be shrewd and tactful, but on this occasion he certainly "slopped over" badly.

AN interesting suit to be brought by the state against the Northern Pacific Express Company will determine whether express companies must pay a gross earnings tax on a share of their interstate business, or only on business beginning and ending within the state. In the past the companies have only reported their business done entirely within the state, but public examiner Johnson contends they should also report the interstate business passing through Minnesota, paying on a mileage basis, as the railroads do. The companies decline to take this view, and a suit will test the point.

THE Kansas Democratic and Populist conventions in Topeka agreed last week to fuse on a state ticket, each party to nominate seven candidates. Judge David M. Dale (Dem.) of Wichita was unanimously nominated for governor. The principal plank in the platform is a demand for the enactment of a railroad law similar to that in Texas. The Democratic and Populist leaders in Nebraska have agreed on a plan of fusion which provides for the nomination of ex-Senator William V. Allen for governor, and the choice of William J. Bryan for United States senator.

JUDGE PARKER was told officially last Wednesday that he had been nominated for president by the Democratic party, and his acceptance speech was remarkably able and lucid, proving that he is fully cognizant of the importance of the issnes stated in the platform on which he was nominated. The Parker candidacy seems to be gaining strength as the election approaches, and Democratic hopes are high. It happens this year that two-fifths of the electoral vote is sure for Roosevelt and two-fifths certain for Parker. The fighting ground is in the states representing the remaining one-fifth, and the best judges seems to agree that the Parker chances are better than the Roosevelt.

Political Pot-pourri

Samuel Luxenberger, one of the prominent farmers of Lake Pleasant township, will file for the Democratic nomination for for county commissioner from Red Lake Falls district. Mr. Luxenberger is one of our most progressive farmers and is well qualified to look after the affairs of the office to which he aspires.

Paul Ostby of Emardville township threatens to get into the political game this fall. He tells the Courier that he has not as yet made up his mind what office he will go after, but intimated that either auditor, treasurer or judge of probate would be to his liking.

The primary law has made the independent candidate more respectable. Under the old convention system an independent candidate was usually—in fact almost invariably—a sorehead defeated in the regular convention. In the new order of things persons defeated at the primaries are barred from becoming independent candidates.

The candidate is getting busy, and the glad hand is out-stretched on every street corner.

Judge Tarrant, Auditor Ford and Treasurer Tandberg appear to have no opposition from the newspapers of Red Lake county. Even so ardent a Republican as John Eastman speaks a good word for all three of them.

The esteemed Gazette seems to be rather chary about expressing political views. It must be that "a burnt child dreads the fire."

The Ida Index does not mince words in dealing with Former Senator Myran, who started the story that Dunn delegates from Norman county rode to St. Paul on Great Northern passes. To a long-distance observer it appears that Charlie Ward has succeeded Myran as leader of the Norman county Republican forces against the wishes and desire of the latter.

Ovide Moreau of Terrebonne filed yesterday for the Republican nomination for county treasurer, and it is likely he will have no opposition at the primaries. Mr. Moreau is an old resident of Red Lake county and bears a good reputation for honesty and ability. He will undoubtedly make as strong a run as any candidate the Republicans can put up.

Wiley Tindolph, the well-known Thief River hustler, returned this week from a several weeks' trip to the St. Louis exposition and points in southern Missouri and Arkansas. Mr. Tindolph tells the Courier that his varions business interests will not permit sparing the time to become a candidate for the legislature this year, and therefore he must decline to enter the race. Mr. Tindolph further observes that if at some future time the voters desire his services in a legislative capacity he will be glad to serve them.

The "Gawky" Boy.

Catholic Citizen, Milwaukee: There is a type of the raw, overgrown boy that needs to be pen pictured for his own good. Let him look upon himself and see whether he is an object to admire. His face wears an expression of constant leering. If his mouth is not occupied with the nasty weed, it is relaxed to that half-open condition which signifies gawky attention. This type occupies itself with noticing what it can guffaw at in the attitude or manner or dress or appearance of passing humanity. "Get onto that feller's hat," or "Will you's mind the gait of him?" are its characteristic expressions. It jeers at the hobbling old man, cracks addlepated jokes at the lame and roars with pleasure at the victim of accident. It is naturally inclined to loaf about and sight see, shambling along when it has to move, and staring or gaping or leering as it goes.

Thief River News: Mrs. Doe, of Red Lake Falls, one of the well known educators of southern Red Lake county, has announced her candidacy for the Republican nomination for superintendent of schools. Mrs. Doe will receive strong support, it is said, in the southern part of the county, and has many friends in this city.

Thief River Review: At the recent Socialist meeting held in this city the Thief River Falls Local of the Public Ownership party was organized, and the following gentleman were elected to office: F. S. Jacobson, A. A. Wassen, C. O. Anderson and quite, a number united with the club, which will likely meet twice a month. Rev. Carl D. Thompson, state organizer, will attend the next meeting and will address a public meeting, due notice of which will be given in the papers.

Thief River Review: The continued case of State of Minnesota against W. J. McGinty for assault and battery upon the person of Louis Seiff on July 27, was heard at the city hall before a jury Tuesday afternoon and evening. The jury consisted of Messrs, McAandress, Mulry, Oen, Bailey, Benzie, Asleson, Greibstein, Langseth, Burns, Roleau and Amundson. Most of the time was taken up by the defense in trying to show cause why the case should be dismissed on the grounds that a person cannot be tried twice for the same offense. The jury returned a verdict of not guilty after taking but one ballot.

Thief River News: H. S. Lanning, an Iowa farmer, who bought a farm a few miles from Wylie two years ago, has completed the model of a monster windmill which he will erect in the center of his farm, and by which he expects to secure power from the elements to do the greater portion of his farm work. His idea is to fasten his plows to long cables connected with a long shaft that greared to the windmill. He believes his plan will be successful, and will have the mill completed in time to experiment with it this fall in doing his plowing. When in Iowa he was in the windmill business, and built several after a model of his own that proved very satisfactory. His neighbors cannot figure out how he can distribute his power where he wants to use it without machinery, the expense and cumbersomeness of which would make it impracticable, but the inventor insists that he will be able to demonstrate that his idea is practicable, and that the expense connected with the scheme will not be prohibitive.

Testimonial.

To whom it may concern: This is to certify that J. A. Button, principal of Button Business College of this city, guarantees situations to graduates of his school under a forfeit of the full tuition, if one is not secured. He also guarantees the student to hold the position successfully. Money has been deposited by students in this bank with the understanding that if the guarantee was not fulfilled that the money was to be returned to the depositor, and in every instance the contract has been carried out by Mr. Button and the money paid over to him, upon the order of the depositor, after pupils had worked successfully for at least six weeks. Such depositors always signified their satisfaction with Mr. Button's methods of doing business and were well pleased with the situations secured. Respectfully, Scandia American Bank., By A. P. Hanson, Assistant Cashier.

Reports from the grain fields are conflicting, yet indications are that Red Lake county will have at least an average crop, and with the high prices that will undoubtedly prevail the farmers will realize a handsome profit. Harvest is in progress all over the county this week.

Joseph Dupont, the Terrebonne merchant, was a caller yesterday, and he informs us that the new bridge across the Clearwater river is completed and open to traffic. The Terrebonne people are naturally very much pleased, as the north trade has been shut off during the time the bridge has been out. The repairs on the dam of the Terrebonne roller mill are also finished, and Metsrs Kankel and Zeigler are now in shape to run the mill at full capacity.

The Catholic people of Terrebonne are arranging for a fair on Sunday, October 30, and this week the Courier office is printing 10,000 tickets for use in conducting the various raffles and contests. Hon. L. C. Simons was at Erskine yesterday looking after business affairs and informs the Courier that the newspaper reports relative to the Great Northern attempting to prevent the Soo from crossing at that point are wholly untrue. The Soo track was laid into Erskine yesterday and the crossing will be effected without protest from the Great Northern. The Soo construction train will be north of Erskine this evening. It is altogether likely that trains will be runsing into Thief River Falls before October 1.

An exchange tells of a lady that decided to scare her husband, who was a hard drinker, so he would reform. To do this she procured the costume of a devil worn at masquerades. The next time the erring spouse came home feeling happy she quickly donned the costume. As he opened the door she stepped forward and said in sepulchral tones: "Come with me; I am the devil." The result rather startled her, as the response which greeted her was: "Zat so? Shake ol' boy; I'm your brother-in-law. I married your sister."

Judge Watts came up from Crookston yesterday to try the case of Smith and Preston vs. Gervais township. This township 15 or 20 years ago issued bonds in the sum of $1,500 as a bonus to the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railroad Co. The interest was paid regularly to Smith & Preston, who purchased the bonds, until recently, when payment of interest was stopped and the officials of the township refused to pay either interest or principal, claiming that the bond issue was illegal. The case was taken under advisement.

Fully three hundred people from Red Lake Falls attended the Thief River fair last Thursday. A special train left at 10 o'clock, and by the time it left St. Hilaire it was loaded to the rafters. There were plenty of attractions at the fair to make the visit enjoyable, and the music of the Red Lake Falls band added greatly to the day's program. Senator Moses E. Clapp delivered an address just after dinner. The Thief River people treated their visitors royally and expressed themselves as being pleased at the large number of people going up from Red Lake Falls.

The Thief River murder mystery is still unsolved, and it will be a mere chance if the guilty parties are discovered. Detectives are still at work on the case but they are not hopeful of satisfactory results. Bert Warren, who was suspected of complicity in the affair, and who has been confined in the county jail for the past ten days, will be released in a few days, as the authorities are convinced that he had nothing to do with the murder. The murder took place on June 27, and that time there were hundreds of people coming in and going out of Thief River Falls, and this fact alone makes it almost impossible to trace any of the suspicious characters hanging around town at that time.

Fortune Tellers Find Victims.

St. Paul Globe: The police department of St. Paul is to be congratulated on the stand it has taken in regard to fortune tellers, astrologers and others of their ilk who obtain a livelihood by pandering to the superstition of a credulous public. Just why this public should be more superstitious at one time than another it would be difficult, perhaps, for the closest student of human nature to say; but certain it is that there is an ebb and flow in the fortune telling tide, as anybody who reads the papers and who keeps his eyes open generally can easily detect. Just at present, in St. Paul, at least, it appears to be flow tide. The streets are made untidy by the handbills which the various seers and soothsayers have scattered about, and in certain neighborhoods every other house displays the sign of the fortune teller.

JAP WARSHIPS SINK CRUISER OF VLADIVOSTOK FLEET—OTHERS IN FLIGHT.

Port Arthur Squadron Tries to Escape—Japs Give Battle—Russian Ships Left in Pitiable Plight—Admiral Withof Killed.

Tokio, Aug. 15.—Vice Admiral Kamimura encountered the Russian Vladivostok squadron at dawn Sunday north of Tsu island, in the strait of Korea, and attacked the enemy at once. The battle lasted for five hours and resulted in a complete Japanese victory. The Russian cruiser Rurik was sunk and the cruisers Rossia and Gromoboi fled to the northward, after having sustained serious damage. Tokio is joyous over the news, as it gives Japan the mastery of the sea and restores commerce.

The News Confirmed.

Chefoo, Aug. 15.—The reports that the Russian cruiser Rurik was sunk in the engagement with the Japanese fleet in the strait of Korea and that two other Russian warships escaped has been authoritatively confirmed.

Nagaski, Aug. 15.—Confirmation has reached here of the reports that the Russian cruiser Rurik was sunk in the fighting in the strait of Korea and that the Russian cruisers Rossia and Gromoboi escaped to the north, having suffered serious damage.

Fleet Tries to Escape.

Tokio, Aug. 13.—Admiral Togo has reported as follows: "On August 10 our combined fleet attacked the enemy's fleet near Gugan rock. The Russian vessels were emerging from Port Arthur trying to go south. We pursued the enemy to the eastward. Severe fighting lasted from one o'clock Wednesday afternon until sundown. Toward the close the enemy's fire weakened remarkably. His formation became confused and then his ships scattered. The Russian cruisers Askold and Novik and several torpedo boat destroyers fled to the southward. Other of the enemy's ships retreated separately toward Port Arthur. We pursued them and it appears that we inflicted considerable damage. We found life buoys and other articles belonging to the Russian battleship Czarevitch floating at sea. The Czarewitch probably was sunk. We have received no reports from the torpedo boats and the torpedo boat destroyers which were engaged in the attack on the ships of the enemy. The Russian vessels, with the exception of the Askold, the Novik, the Czarevitch and the cruiser Pallada, appear to have returned to Port Arthur. Our damage was slight. Our fighting power has not been impaired.

Tells of Hard Fight.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 15.—Viceroy Alexieff in a dispatch to the emperor gives the following report from Capt. Matausevitch, the late Rear Admiral Withoft's chief of staff, under date of August 12:

"At dawn of August 10 our Port Arthur squadron began to make for open sea and emerged from the port at nine o'clock. The squadron consisted of six battleships, the cruisers Askold, Diana, Pallada and Novik, and eight torpedo boats.

"The Japanese opposed us with the following force: A first detachment consisting of the battleships Ashai, Mikaska, Fuji, Yashima and Shikishima, and the cruisers Nisshin and Kasuga; a second detachment, consisting of the cruisers Yakumo, Kasagi, Chitose and Takasago; and a third detachment, consisting of the cruisers Akitsushima, Idsumo, Matsushima, Itsukushima and Hashidate, and the battleships Chin Yen, with about 30 torpedo boats.

Broke Through Japanese Line.

"Our squadron maneuvered to gain a passage through the line of the enemy's ships. Meantime the Japanese torpedo boats were laying floating mines in the way of our squadron, thus rendering evolutions difficult.

"At one p. m. our squadron, after 40 minutes' fighting, succeeding in effecting a passage, and shaped its course towards Shantung. The enemy, following at full speed, caught up with us slowly, and at five o'clock fighting again began and continued for some hours without either side obtaining any advantage.

Admiral Withoft Killed.

"In the battle the commander of our squadron was killed and the captain of the battleship Czarevitch was wounded and lost consciousness. Almost at the same time the engines and steering gear of the Czarevitch were damaged and it was obliged to stop 40 minutes. This forced the other ships to maneuver around it. The command of the squadron devolved upon Rear Admiral Prince Outomsky, and the command of the Czarevitch upon the second in command.

"After nightfall the Czarevitch, being unable to follow the squadron and losing sight of it, took a southerly direction in order to attempt to reach Vladivostok under its own steam. It was attacked by torpedo boats during the night, and at dawn was in the vicinity of Shantung. The officer commanding the squadron, having examined and determined the extent of the damage to the ship, concluded that it could not make Vladivostok and allowed its captain to proceed to Kiauchau for repairs."

In a Pitiable Plight.

Chefoo, Aug. 15.—With Admiral Withoft's death, five battleships damaged, one torpedo boat destroyer stranded, another blown up near Weihaiwei, other damaged cruisers and torpedo boats warned to leave ports in which they took refuge and with still others somewhere on the high seas, the Russian squadron from Port Arthur is in a pitiable plight after the battle with the Japanese fleet.

Must Be Taken at Any Cost.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 15.—The Bourse Gazette has received the following from its Liaoyang correspondent: "Twelve Japanese regiments have left in the direction of Port Arthur. It is stated on trustworthy authority that the mikado has ordered that Port Arthur must be taken at any cost.

Armistice Reported.

Chefoo, Aug. 15.—A Chinese junk just arrived reports that the Russians and Japanese at Port Arthur on August 8 agreed to a short armistice on August 12. It is stated here that the empress of Japan suggested that the Japanese arrange with the Russians for the safe departure of women and children and non-combatants to Dalny.

RIOTERS SPILL MEAT.

Driver Set Upon by a Crowd at Chicago and Load Is Scattered About Street.

Chicago, Aug. 11.—Disorder connected with efforts of stock yards strikers to block deliveries from cold-storage warehouses took place Wednesday. There was rioting near the warehouse of A. Booth & Co., 152 Kinzie street, shortly before noon. One driver was set upon by a crowd and slightly injured. The contents of his wagon was scattered about the street and the meat was seized by hoodlums, who ran in different directions carrying sections of beeves with them.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—With an army of more than 300 pickets the Ice Wagon Drivers and Helpers' union Tuesday began a blockade of the retail market and cold-storage business of Chicago. In front of the markets, including big downtown meat stores, and before the cold-storage warehouses, one picket or more was assigned to duty to prevent delivery from the stock yards or elsewhere. The union's determination to extend the strike to the cold-storage warehouses came as a surprise to the packers. It means, according to union officials, that truck teamsters are now involved, as they haul meat from the cold-storage plants.

Chicago, Aug. 13.—A break in the strike ranks is threatened. There is dissatisfaction among the packing house teamsters over the manner in which the strike is being conducted. A report is being circulated that the teamsters are discouraged and are ready to go back to work.

St. Joseph, Mo., Aug. 12.—One packer estimates that over a quarter of a million dollars has been lost to wage earners here since the strike was inaugurated a month ago. But the employes of the packing houses have not been the only losers. The railroads, the street railway company and stock growers have suffered heavily. If losses in all lines were computed the estimate would run beyond $1,000,000. Of the 5,000 men who struck about two-thirds have returned to work.

REVIEW OF TRADE.

Fairly Encouraging Conditions Exist—Labor Troubles Most Harmful Feature.

New York, Aug. 13.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: "Moderate improvement in midsummer means more than an equivalent increase at any other season, and the better trade reported during the past week is consequently most encouraging. Dispatches from all parts of the country are by no means uniform, in some cases the outlook showing no change, while at a few points there have been setbacks; but on the whole the progress is unmistakable. Despite some injury to spring wheat the agricultural prospect is very bright, while higher prices promise to neutralize the effect of such loss in quantity as occurred. Interior buyers have placed liberal fall orders in the leading dry goods markets, and confidence in a large spring trade is becoming general. The approaching presidential election is viewed with more equanimity than any other contest of recent years, both in financial and industrial circles.

"Failures this year were 222 in the United States, against 174 last year and 32 in Canada, compared with 22 a year ago.

Bradstreets says. "Industrial conditions are not altogether promising, in view of the continuance of the meat strike, the Fall River difficulty and the calling out of large numbers of building hands at the metropolis. To the influence of the meat strike is directly traceable the demoralized markets for live stock, which are reported too freely supplied with live animals, and in the advanced quotations for hides, and consequently for tanned leather, growing out of the scarcity of domestic supplies of the raw material. The scarcity of hides is reported causing a number of tanneries to suspend operations."

The Sultan Yields.

Constantinople, Aug. 15.—After prolonged pour parlers and considerable haggling on the part of the Turks, a satisfactory solution of the American school question has been arrived at. This matter, which is the most important of the American demands, was settled by extending to American schools the same treatment as that accorded to schools under the protection of other powers.

Bryan Loses.

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 13.—The supreme court which has been considering W. J. Bryan's appeal from the lower court decision, which excluded the "sealed letter" in the Bennett will case, has adjourned, having found no error. By this decision Mr. Bryan loses the $50,000 bequest.

MINNESOTA'S GREAT FAIR.

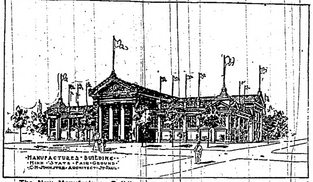
The Forty-Fifth Annual Show Will Open on August 29, and Closes on September 3.

A Holiday Week of Pleasure and Profit for All—The Railroads Have Made Half-Fare Rates—Some Things to See.

With the near approach of the opening day of the Minnesota State Fair of 1904 it becomes evident to those familiar with the situation that the fair will be even larger in every department than the record breaker of 1903.

The best information available shows there will be more cattle than last year, in spite of the competition of the St. Louis show a few weeks later. All the great show herds which will be at St. Louis will appear previously at the Minnesota Fair, and the winners at St. Louis will wear Minnesota blue ribbons. Horses and other animals will be equally numerous.

For horses something new has been provided this year. This is a great tent in which all the horses will be judged and where the exhibitions of carriage horses and other special classes will be held. The tent is a great circus affair, about 300 feet long, and will accommodate thousands of people. As horse showing is always popular, it is safe to say that the horse tent at the State Fair this year will be well filled every day.



The New Manufactures Buildinng on the Minnesota State Fair Grounds.

When the Minnesota State Fair of 1904 opens Monday, Aug. 29, visitors will find the most conspicuous new thing on the grounds to be a building devoted exclusively to Minnesota manufactures.

The Manufactures Building is, perhaps, the handsomest on the grounds and the first to be of thoroughly permanent and absolutely fire-proof construction. In size it is 120x160 feet. Above the stone foundation, pressed brick walls rise to a cornice about 25 feet from the ground, both wall and cornice having only a sufficient ornamentation to relieve their plain surfaces, while the main facade receives its principal adornment through a beautiful entrance, adorned with stone pillars. This stone, as well as the brick and all other materials, as far as possible, are Minnesota products. The cost of the building was $30,000.

As for the other horses—the racers—they will be there in great numbers. Here again another record has already been smashed into very small pieces; for entries for the Minnesota State Fair races close invariably on July 1st and this year Sec. E. W. Randall received 339 nominations, or 72 more than in 1903, and 109 more than in 1902.

In other departments of the fair a similar gain over 1903 is reasonably to be expected. The superintendents of divisions, who keep in close touch with intending exhibitors, find that all well known indications suggest substantial gains in totals.

An improvement which will be appreciated by everyone who goes to the fair this year is the street railroad terminal station. The new system of handling the state fair passenger traffic will make it possible for visitors to travel to and from the fair with perfect comfort. A system of loops and storage tracks has been constructed at enormous expense. Operation of this system will be such that passengers will alight almost in the center of the fair grounds and within 200 yards of the grand stand. When leaving the grounds there will be found electric cars always standing ready, and at the close of the afternoon and evening performances there will be about 150 cars waiting on the storage tracks and with gates open so that they may be boarded at once, avoiding all pushing and crowding. This great supply of cars on the storage tracks will remove the possibility of discomfort when leaving the grounds.

The theme chosen by the famous pyrotechnist, Pain, as a subject for his annual spectacle at the Minnesota State Fair this season is "Mt. Pelee, or the Destruction of St. Pierre." With the exception of an all-summer engagement in Boston, this spectacle has never been produced elsewhere in this country, so that its engagement at the Minnesota Fair will be its first production in the West. The terrible catastrophe on the Island of Martinique offers a subject for the pyrotechnist second only to his greatest success, "Last Days of Pompeii," and it is needless to say that he has taken every advantage of the opportunity offered for startling volcanic effects and picturesque scenic environment. To reproduce the quaint old city of St. Pierre, fully five acres of massive scenery is required, and in the thrilling scenes of the great spectacle more than four hundred performers will participate.

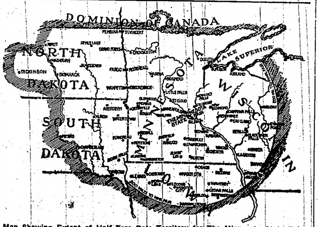
The fireworks feature this season will be on the same elaborate scale that has always characterized pain productions, and will include many pyrotechnic novelties never before seen, many of the fiery devices being duplicates of pyrotechnic designs especially prepared for the great display given at the dedication of the St. Louis Exposition.

The Minnesota State Fair is making abundant provision for the special department devoted to woman's work and interests, and it is expected that for this and other reasons there will be a larger attendance of women than ever before. The new Woman's Building, which was opened last year, is in charge of Mrs. M. L. Luther, assistant superintendent, and will contain all the articles exhibited by women and for which premiums or diplomas are offered. The State Federation of Women's Clubs will have its headquarters in the building formerly known as the Institute Building, and which is within a few rods of the Woman's Building. Lectures, entertainments and social gatherings will be among the items on the federation program.

A new, novel and unique feature will be added to the Minnesota State Fair this year in the way of amusements.

There will be a "Pike," where will be presented all of the amusements engaged to entertain the thousands of sightseers. The committee on amusements have arranged to have fifteen separate shows, each and every one high-class, clean, moral and refined. The special big feature attraction will be the Grecian Stadium Show, presenting a performance consisting of the World's greatest sensational out-door acts, including the Japanese marvel Youturkey in a high bounding wire display. The great Le Fluer, acknowledged premier of athletes. The Brothers Steiner, aerial bar display par excellent. The Chillian wonders; the Pechecos, seven in number; the world's foremost acrobatic family, this is their first American engagement; Miss Florence Spray, the world's champion female diver, diving from a height of 65 feet into a tank containing four feet of water; "Big Abadallah," the Arabian chieftain, and his troupe of whirlwind abrobats, eleven in number; Charles Milton Felton, America's champion high diver, diving from a height of 110.

Another feature of the "Pike" will be the Trained Wild Animal Zoo, consisting of 57 trained lions, tigers, leopards, hyenas, pumas, bears, jaguars, and panthers, besides performing elephants and camels. Other features engaged for the "Pike" are: the dog, monkey, and pony show, presenting a program especially arranged for ladies and children, Creation, the latest craze; The Crystal Maze, where one gets lost; the laughing parlors, where you go to laugh; the House-up-side-Down, or Topsy Turvy Land; the Palace of Mysteries; The Girl From Up There; "Roberta" in poses; The Electric Theatre; The Cave of the Winds; the Glass Palace, and the Hall of Illusions. The list of attractions offered will be varied, instructive and interesting and no doubt will prove a popular feature of the State Fair this year.



Map Showing Extent of Half-Fare Rate Territory for The Minnesota State Fair, Aug. 29-Sept. 3, 1904.

Practically the entire Northwest can reach Minneapolis and St. Paul at State Fair time for a half-fare rate. The lines of the Western Passenger Association have granted a one way rate from all points within 200 miles of Minneapolis and St. Paul, while the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and "Soo" lines have made the rate cover practically the whole of North Dakota, northern Minnesota, northern Michigan and a large part of South Dakota.

Tickets at these rates will be on sale Aug. 27th (the Saturday before the fair) and will be good returning until Monday, Sept. 5th, thus giving the users plenty of time in the cities for buying and inspecting goods.

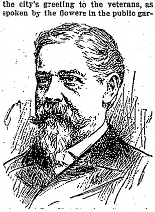
VETERANS OF WAR MEET AT BOSTON

ANNUAL ENCAMPMENT OF G. A. R. OPENS WITH A LARGE ATTENDANCE.

EX-PRISONERS' PARADE FIRST DAY'S FEATURE

Commander-in-Chief Black Assumes Active Command of Encampment —Subsidiary Organizations Also in Session.

Boston, Aug. 16.—For the thirty-eighth time since the civil war the surviving veterans who fought in the union army assembled Monday in annual encampment, gathering in Boston. The encampment of the veterans, as well as of the subsidiary organizations, including the National Woman's Relief Corps, the National Daughters of Veterans, the National Sons of Veterans and other organizations, was formally opened under circumstances which promised a most successful week of parades, reunions, receptions, business and enjoyment. Throughout Sunday and during the night the grand army veterans and the members of the affiliated organizations arrived steadily from many sections of the country. Massachusetts Sons of Veterans stationed at the railroad terminals received the incoming delegations and escorted them to their hotels or headquarters. The American flag was seen everywhere, and red, white and blue bunting, the seal and badge of the Grand Army and the words "Fraternity, Charity and Loyalty," the motto of the order, were shown from the fronts of business houses, hotels, theaters, newspaper offices and residences from one end of the city to the other. Notable in all the display was the city's greeting to the veterans, as spoken by the flowers in the public garden, where beautiful designs had been made to reproduce the stars and stripes and the various insignia of the veteran organizations. The visitors expected a week of activity.



GEN. JOHN C. BLACK.
(Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic.)

Parade of Ex-Prisoners.

There were 15 events scheduled for Monday, principal of which was the parade of the union ex-prisoners of war, Massachusetts naval brigade, jackies and marines from the warships in Boston harbor and others. Of this parade the men of the G. A. R. were to be spectators. Their own big parade will come on Tuesday, with business sessions later in the week and with camp fires and receptions interspersed.

Commander in Chief John C. Black, of the Grand Army, has assumed active command of the great encampment. A conservative estimate of the people in this city on account of the encampment placed the number at 100,000, with the likelihood of another 100,000 for the G. A. R. parade of Tuesday. The streets were thronged.

Monday's parade was scheduled to move at 12 o'clock. The chief marshal was Capt. Don Read, U. S. N. The parade formed in the Back Bay on streets adjacent to Commonwealth avenue and started from the corner of Commonwealth avenue and Arlington street, passing through the principal downtown streets.

At the state house, where the decorations are of particular appropriateness and beauty, the column was reviewed by Gov. John L. Bates, with members of his staff. From a stand in front of the state house several thousand people saw the marching men, as also did thousands from the stands erected on Boston Common and other parts of the city. At city hall Mayor Patrick A. Collins and the city council reviewed the sailors and the veterans while the procession passed in review before Chief Marshal Read at the corner of Beacon and Charles streets.

Harsh Criticism.

"When I was a boy in Washington," said John Philip Sousa, "there was an old Scottish musician with whom I played now and then. One afternoon I ran through for this old gentleman a new waltz of my own composition.

"'Well, sir,' I said, when I had finished, 'what do you think of that?'

"'It carries me back to the home land, laddie,' said the old man. 'It carries me back ti a day when I played at an entertainment in a Scottish lunatic asylum. My instrument was the fiddle, and after I had ended my fiddle solo the head of the institution said to an aged lunatic on the front row:

"'Well, Saunders, how do you like that man?'

"Saunders answered, frowning at me:

"'It's a guid thing we're all daft here.'"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Science at 15,000 Feet.

The fact that the British armed expedition into Thibet has suffered from imperfectly cooked food and the congelation of the oil on magazine rifle locks leads a writer in the London Times to remark that the application of a little scientific knowledge would have saved much trouble in this case. The military authorities should have known that at 15,000 feet altitude oil ceases to be a lubricant, and that the boiling point of water descends about two degrees Fahrenheit for every 1,000 feet of ascent above sea level. Cooking-pots with air-tight lids, furnished with safety-valves blowing off at a pressure of 15 pounds to the square inch, would have prevented the difficulty found in boiling food. Pure glycerine instead of machine oil would have saved the trouble with the rifles and Maxim guns.

The Stadium of Athens.

The restoration of the famous Stadion, or Stadium, of Athens, begun in 1895, with funds given by a Greek merchant, has progressed until they are now placing the last of the 52,000 marble seats which the great amphitheater contains. The seats, railings, etc., are all of the creamy-white Pentelikon marble. It is the intention of the committee having the restoration in charge to build a marble "propylaea," or entrance, resembling the ancient one. Some urge the finishing of the outer walls of the Stadium by surmounting them with a marble colonnade. When the propylaea will be commenced is not known.—Consular Report.

The United States—The Orient.

Japan contains 162,655 square miles, hence it is a little larger than California, and more than three times as large as New York. If the southwestern part of Japan were placed on the Mexican border, near San Antonio, Tex., the country of the mikado would stretch northeastward till Yezo would almost touch the Strait of Mackinac, and the Kurile islands would project into Hudson bay, the latitudes corresponding very nearly. Formosa would then lie off the southern part of Lower California.—Success.

In Praise for Knitting.

Knitting is declared by specialists in the treatment of rheumatism to be a most helpful exercise for hands liable to become stiff from the complaint, and it is being prescribed by physicians because of its efficacy. For persons liable to cramp, paralysis, or any other affection of the fingers of that character, knitting is regarded as a most beneficial exercise. Besides the simple work is said to be an excellent diversion for the nerves, and is recommended to women suffering from insomnia and depression.

Durham's Rise.

In 1865 Durham was a village of a dozen houses. When the soldiers plundered the place, they got a quantity of smoking tobacco. They liked it so well that they hardly got home before they began to write to Durham to get more. There were in the town men of enough enterprise to see the opportunity which this situation offered them. It was not long before Durham salesmen were selling Durham tobacco in every part of the world.—World's Work.

PREPARE FOR FROSTS.

Latter Part of Month Likely to Be Danger Period.

A. L. Hanson of Ada, one of the noted farmers of the Valley, writes the Herald: It seems to me that it would be only the part of wisdom for every farmer in the Red River Valley to be prepared to smudge to prevent frost destroying crops; and that it is a matter of so much importance that every business man in every village should interest himself and everybody else in the matter. We are all dependent on the crops and they are very late. We have already escaped frost by only a very narrow margin and that during that part of the season which we have been in the habit of considering absolutely safe from it. The month of August is not secure from frost in any year and with the temperature running so uniformly cold as it has this year, are we not liable to have a killing frost? In most years the larger portion of our crops are secured before that part of the month in which frosts are liable to occur. This year but a very small portion of the crop will be secured and if we should have a general frost what interest will not suffer? There is nothing I know of can be done to prevent rust but by united action frost can be prevented. Let everyone interested in the Red River Valley see to it that every farmer gets ready to smudge and then let every village get the weather forecasts from the U. S. Weather Bureau, Minneapolis, Minn., and when frosts are predicted spread the information through the surrounding country. Act at once. Better be ready even if we should have no frost than have the frost and not be ready to prevent it.

Keep Killing Cows.

Executive agent Ward, of the state live stock sanitary board, says that the board will continue to condemn cows afflicted with tuberculosis, although State Auditor S. G. Iverson has refused to issue warrants reimbursing the owners in accordance with the Krostue bill passed by the last legislature. This means that the cows will be killed, but the owners will not receive any pay from the state. The action of the state auditor in holding up the warrants on the advice of Judge Daniel Fish of the statute revision commission, who says that the Krostue bill authorizing the payment was repealed by the law creating the live stock sanitary board, has brought many protests from Minnesota dairymen who have cows afflicted with tuberculosis. These dairymen say that it was bad enough when the state killed their cows and paid three-fourths of the value.

Boxing The Ears.

There are several things very commonly done which are extremely injurious to the ear, and ought to be carefully avoided. One of these is the practice of boxing children's ears. The passage of the ear is closed by a thin membrane, especially adapted to be influenced by every impulse of the air, and with nothing but the air to support it internally. What, then, can be more likely to injure this membrane than a sudden and forcible compression of the air in front of it? If any one designed to break or over stretch the membrane, a more efficient means could scarcely be devised than to bring the hand suddenly and forcibly down upon the passage of the ear, thus driving the air violently before it, with no possibility of its escape without the membrane giving way. Medical authorities assert that many children are in this way made deaf by boxing on the ear.—Buffalo Evening Times.

GROWTH OF SWEARING HABIT

Striking Phenomenon of the English Life of To-Day—Is Steadily Becoming More Pronounced.

One of the most striking phenomena of English life at the present day is the habitual use of bad language by many workingmen.

It is a habit which is daily becoming more pronounced, and an East End clergyman suggests that it is due to a desire on the part of the workingman to be picturesque and emphatic, and that it might be eradicated by a more thorough teaching of the English language in the elementary schools.

"There can be no doubt that the use of bad language is increasing, especially in towns," said Max Pemberton. "That may be due to the more crowded conditions of life. The man living in town has more experiences and sensations than the agricultural laborer. I think there is little doubt that England takes first place for bad language. The old swears used in Sheridan's plays—'Zounds,' 'oddsfish,' and so on—have fallen out of use, and stronger words have taken their place. One reason, probably, is that nothing has been done for the past 30 years to check the use of bad language, and it is the easiest habit to fall into, and one that grows. It ought to be stopped, and I think that a sharp campaign, with a fine of £1 for every offense, would strike the imagination of the workingman and induce him to leave out the bad words. The strangest feature of the phenomenon is the meaninglessness of many of the expressions used. Some one might draw up a new list of forcible but harmless expressions. The educated man, of course, has an advantage. A man with the latest edition of Murray's dictionary could knock the average bricklayer into fits."

NEW POWERFUL ANESTHETIC

Eucaine Renders Patient Unconscious to Pain, But Leaves Him Conscious During Its Use.

The recent discovery of eucaine, a powerful anesthetic, is looked upon as another scientific triumph.

It will make possible operations which might not otherwise take place owing to heart weakness, for the patient remains conscious during its use, although, of course, those parts of the body to which it is applied are insensible to pain. It will also give the surgeon more time for his work, and do away with certain people's conscientious objections to anesthetics.

Although it can be used for amputations, it will probably be most useful for treatment of the thyroid glands. In such operations the use of chloroform is often impracticable.

A successful operation of this kind which was recently performed with eucaine in a London hospital lasted nearly an hour and a half.

Eucaine is injected by a hypodermic needle under the skin at the place where the incision is to be made. After a few moments the skin may be cut without the patient feeling anything. As different and deeper parts are exposed the drug is dropped at intervals of a few minutes.

To the observer the operation appears similar to those of the days before chloroform, as the patient is conscious and now and again makes some remark. The eyes are covered with a cloth to minimize nervousness, and the patient is strapped to the operating table to prevent involuntary movements. He is conscious, but he cannot feel.

PEARL-FISHING IN SOUTH.

Amateur Divers Reap Rich Rewards in Tennessee River by Simple Method.

Fishing for pearls in Clinch river, in Tennessee, has begun. The river has been low, but the rains have caused the stream to swell and made fishing more difficult.

More fishing will be done this summer on Clinch river than ever before. Inexperienced fishers often destroy mussels which if untouched might produce valuable pearls. The industry has shown signs of waning on Clinch river, although one of the most valuable pearls ever found in this region was picked up last summer.

Fishers become expert in detecting the value of their finds. Small skiffs are sent out a short distance from the bank, and the pearl hunters dive for the gems. When the boat is loaded with mussels it is rowed to the bank and the finds are investigated.

The season opens with the coming of warm weather and continues until September, but the best of the season is in July, August and September. Some hunters have become wealthy, but the work is now overdone by inexperienced fishers. Knoxville jewelers make a business of handling the pearls found in East Tennessee.

Better Be Blind.

The Chicago minister who felt it was his bounden Christian duty to speak to the ladies of his congregation in a most confidential, heart-to-heart manner concerning their petty faults and foibles, has now had it made clear to him that he had better be listening for a call to some other pulpit. "Never be critical upon the ladies," was the maxim of an Irish peer, remarkable for his homage to the sex. "The only way that a gentleman should look at the faults of a pretty woman is—with his eyes shut."

The Champion Jury.

The frontier justice of the peace has had so many airings that the theme is becoming encumbered with cobwebs, but I am called upon to record the conduct of the most remarkable jury which perhaps was ever impanelled.

Before his Honor Judge Jefferson Davis, of Walnut Grove Precinct No. 8, in the territory of Arizona and county of Yavapai, one John Doe, whose other name I withhold because he has permanently reformed, was solemnly arraigned for stealing a certain saddle, carefully described in the complaint. After an elaborate trial, the jury retired, with the written admonitions of the court, to Old Abner Wade's cow-barn to deliberate.

In the course of three-quarters of an hour they brought in a verdict of murder in the first degree. The court promptly admonished them that such a verdict "wouldn't go," since the man had only been charged with stealing a saddle, and sent them back to redeliberate on the fate of the bow-legged knight of the riata. A few minutes later a brother of the defendant came along and presented them with a quart of Bourbon and a couple of sacks of smoking-tobacco, along with a new deck of cards, accompanied with the compliments of the defendant, and an hour later the jury returned the following verdict: We the jury, with a supreme reverence for the principle of justice and profound deference for this honorable court, find that the defendant, John Doe, stole the saddle in self-defense, and therefore acquit him."—Harper's Magazine.

Sealskin and Muskrat.

A Vermont minister says that a man cannot support a sealskin wife on a muskrat income. Any fair-minded minister would be content with muskrat, provided it kept the wind out. Life's little daily adjustments require considerable philosophy and the man who reasons that he will keep a case of golden grain belt beer for his family in his home is a philosopher. Judge Parker has make public a letter from Gen. Nelson A. Miles, retired, congratulating him upon his speech at the notification ceremonies. The letter follows:

"Dear Sir: I wish to express my appreciation of your most excellent address in accepting the Democratic nomination. It was more comprehensive, deeper, and presented in clearer light the most important principles of our government than any speech or state paper produced in many years. I would not erase a line, and cheerfully indorse every sentiment. It will attract the attention of the thoughtful, patriotic citizens of our country; it will be a bow of promise and a star of hope to millions in the Orient who are now praying for liberty, and it will vibrate down through the republics of the hemisphere, giving confidence to fifty millions of people living under democratic governments copied after our own. Wishing you every success, I remain, very truly yours,

TRAIN PROMISED BY SEPT. 1

Manager Pennington Says Trains will Be Running on the Soo in a Few Weeks.

Wiley Tindolph, of Thief River, who returned from St. Paul Tuesday morning says that while there he saw Mr. Pennington of the Soo road, and that official stated positively that trains would be running into Thief River Falls on the Soo by the first day of September. At the present time the rails are within 40 miles of Thief River Falls and are being laid at the rate of over two miles per day. While Thief River may not be reached by the first of the month, there is little doubt but what that point will be getting Soo trains very near that date.

It is understood from an authoritative source, from the engineering department of the Soo; that the survey of the Soo will not be changed at Erskine on account of any tactics that might be employed by the Great Northern to delay operations, and it is not believed the Great Northern will hinder or attempt to hinder the Soo from crossing at that point.

DEMOCRACY'S DAY AT BAT

Enthusiastic Gathering at St. Hilaire to Select Delegates to the State Convention.

Judging from the enthusiastic convention held at St. Hilaire Monday afternoon the Democrats of Red Lake county are very much alive and prepared to give an interesting battle to the opposition in the campaign this fall. The cities of Thief River, Red Lake Falls and St. Hilaire were represented by full—and sober—delegations, and a number of the country precincts were on hand. All of those in attendance were imbued with the spirit of enthusiasm which portends interest in affairs political, and the Republicans who are prophecying a walkaway this fall are evidently reckoning their without host.

The convention was called to order at one o'clock by John E. King, chairman of the county central committee. On motion Dr. George Tupper of Thief River was made temporary chairman, and, K. M. Hansen of the same place temporary secretary.

The first business was the appointment of the following commttees:

On credentials—James E. Ford, E. M. Hoff and C. C. Jackson.

On permanent organization—N. W. Tarrant, F. J. Cernosek and Daniel Linnihan.

On resolutions—John E. King, John Morgan and W. A. Arthur.

After a recess of ten minutes to give the various committees an opportunity to report the convention reconvened and disposed of the business in hand. The commitee on permanent organization reported in favor of Dr. George Tupper for permanent chairman and Fred Borchers for permanent secretary, which report was unanimously adopted.

The committee on resolutions submitted the following report:

"The Democrats of Red Lake county in convention assembled heartily endorse the platform of the Democratic party as adopted by the national convention at St. Louis, and pledge their hearty support to the nominees, Alton B. Parker of New York and Henry G. Davis of West Virginia.

"As Democrats we believe in equal rights and privileges to every citizen under the flag of the Republic. We believe in the Democracy of Thomas Jefferson, who in his immortal Declaration of Independence said that all men were "entitled to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness:" that no men or set of men were entitled to favors or concessions save those guaranteed to the lowliest citizen. We are opposed to "carrying a big stick;" we are opposed to the coercion of South American republics; we believe that the constitution should follow the flag, and that no man is good enough to rule another man against his will.

"We insist that the United States should tear down the tariff barriers between this country and Canada, and that all tariffs should be levied for purposes of revenue only.

"The Democrats of Red Lake county pledge their hearty support to the nominees of the state convention, and to all who labor under the Democratic banner in national, state or county affairs. We heartily endorse the work performed by the Democratic county officers of Red Lake county and offer our hearty support to their re-election."

The following delegates were elected to attend the state convention at Minneapolis: Dr. George Tupper of Thief River, chairman; John Morgan, G. G. Willians, Andy Erickson and K. M. Hansen of Thief River; Anton Anderson of St. Hilaire; John E. King, James E. Ford, Frank Jeffers, S. A. Swanson and J. T. Knight of Lake Falls.

Alternates were selected as follows: Daniel Linnihan, Otto Zaiser, W. H. Krueger and N. W. Tarrant of Red Lake Falls; Jacob Thill of Wylie; J. J. Soll of St. Hilaire; P. J. Zeh, F. J. Cernosek, C. A. Robbecke and Jos. Johnson of Thief of Thief River Falls.

On motion the county central committee was elected as follows: Dr. George Tupper, Thief River, chairman; Fred Borchers. Red Lake Falls, secretary; James Sutor, first district; Matt Skala, second district; E. M. Hoff, third district, Andy Erickson; fourth district, Louis Parenteau, fifth district.

John Morgan of Thief River was recommended as a member of the state central committee from Red Lake county.

The candidacy of K. M. Hansen as a memberfor the legislature from the district comprising Red Lake, Beltrami and Clearwater counties, was unanimouly endorsed.

The convention extended a vote of thanks to the retiring chairman of the county central committee.

The Farmer Gets in Evidence.

Princeton Union: From reports of county auditors to the state auditor there is a falling off in personal property returns from thirty-two counties of over $2,000,000 as compared with last year's personal valuation. At this rate the state of Minnesota is undergoing a wonderful shrinkage in assets. The cow and calf, melodeon, sewing and knitting machines, old family clocks, grandpa's hats, etc., has no doubt contributed their share of taxes.

The goods and merchandise and invisible assets are not running neck and neck with the few items of personal property which the poor man and the man of moderate means possess.

THOS. SHEVLIN WINS SUIT

Judge Simpson Holds That Brother Edwin is Not Entitled. to $200,000.

Judge Simpson has sustained Thomas H. Shevlin in every point of his contention in the famous brother against brother suit brought by Edwin C. Shevlin to recover $200,000 on some stock which the defendant was alleged to have secured from his brother by the exercise of fraud and undue influence.

The verdict is a sweeping victory for the defendant, and a stay of sixty days is given to take an appeal. It is probable that the case wlll be appealed.

The case occupied six weeks in court, and attracted a good deal of attention, party owing to the prominence of the persons involved and party because of its peculiar nature.

The contention of the plaintiff was that Thomas used fraud and undue influence in getting possession of a block of stock in the Crookston and St. Hilaire lumber companies, and that the price paid was fully $200,000 less than the market value.

The defendant denied that there was any fraud or undue influence used in acquiring the property, and the court sustained him in this contention. In his verdict Judge Simpson says:

That the defendant at no time made any false or fraudulent representations, assurances or statements to plaintiff concerning said shares of stock or the value thereof or as to the extent or amount of assets of said company or as to the value thereot or of any part of the same, but that defendant exhibited to and examined with the plaintiff a schedule correctly showing the character, extent and amount of all the properties of said companies, taken from the books and records of said compaines. That defendant did not conceal or withhold from plaintiff any facts or information had by him affecting the value of said stock.

That defendant at no time used or exercised toward or over plaintiff any improper or undue influence in reference to said shares of stock or the sale thereof, and that he made no threats during or in connection with the negotiations for the transfer of said stock, and that he did not have or exercise any domination or control over said plaintiff, but that said plaintiff was at all time a man of strong and positive charcter naturally self-willed, self-reliant and combative and not subservient to the wishes of either the defendant or any other person.

RUN BY MOUSE POWER.

A Thrifty Scotchman's Scheme For Operating His Thread Mills.

Thrift is generally acknowledged to be one of the leading characteristics of the native of Fifeshire, and it never was more forcibly exemplified than in the person of David Hutton, a native of Dunfermline, who actually proved that even mice, those acknowledged pests of mankind, could be made not only to earn their own living, but also to yield a respectable income to their owners.

About the year 1820 this gentleman actually erected a small mill at Dunfermline for the manufacture of thread—a mill worked entirely by mice. It was while visiting Perth prison in 1812 that Mr. Hutton first conceived this remarkable idea of utilizing mouse power. In an old pamphlet of the time, "The Curiosity Coffee Room," he gave an account of the way in which the idea dawned on him. "In the summer of the year 1812," he wrote, "I had occasion to be in Perth, and when inspecting the toys and trinkets that were manufactured by the French prisoners in the depot there my attention was involuntarily attracted by a little toy house, with a wheel in the gable of it that was running rapidly round, impelled by the insignificant gravity of a common house mouse. For 1 shilling I purchased house, mouse and wheel. Inclosing it in a handkerchief, on my journey homeward I was compelled to contemplate its favorite amusement. But how to apply half ounce power, which is the weight of a mouse, to a useful purpose was the difficulty. At length the manufacturing of sewing thread seemed the most practicable."

Mr. Hutton had one mouse that ran the amazing distance of eighteen miles a day, but he proved that an ordinary mouse could run ten and a half miles on an average. A halfpenny's worth of oatmeal was sufficient for its support for thirty-five days, during which it ran 736 half miles. He had actually two mice constantly employed in the making of sewing thread for more than a year. The mouse thread mill was so constructed that the common house mouse was enabled to make atonement to society for past offenses by twisting, twining and reeling from 100 to 120 threads a day, Sundays not excepted. To perform this task the little pedestrian had to run ten and a half miles, and this journey it performed with ease every day. A halfpenny's worth of oatmeal served one of these thread mill culprits for the long period of five weeks. In that time it made 3,350 threads of twenty-five inches, and as a penny was paid to women for every hank made in the ordinary way the mouse at that rate earned ninepence every six weeks, just one farthing a day, or 7s. 6d. a year.

Taking sixpence off for board and allowing 1 shilling for machinery, there was a clear yearly profit from each mouse of 6 shillings. Mr. Hutton firmly intended to apply for the loan of the empty cathedral in Dunfermline, which would have held, he calculated, 10,000 mouse mills, sufficient room being left for keepers and some hundreds of spectators. Death, however, overtook the inventor before this marvelous project could be carried out.—Edinburgh Scotsman.

Not the Kind He Wanted.

"If you're so hard up," said the easy mark, who was temporarily unable to extend the accommodation asked, "why don't you borrow some money from Titefist?"

"Heavens, no!" exclaimed the other. "Why, he always expects to be paid back."—Chicago Post.

Music as Medicine.

From the days of Saul and David music has no doubt been the means of alleviating, if not of actually curing, many serious cases of mental disease. Modern experience has proved this conclusively, and many instances may be quoted from ancient history.

Pythagoras commended music in the treatment of the insane, and Thales when a pestilence ravaged Sparta, found in music his most powerful means of combating it. Henocrates soothed maniacs by it, and Theophrastus held that even the bites of venomous reptiles were rendered less fatal by subjecting the victims to the influence of melody.

When Philip of Spain was in a morbid and desponding condition, Farinelli, the vocalist, was sent for by the queen, with a party of musicians, to sing and play in the adjoining room. The effect was a speedy and rapid cure.

Both Buckman and Hafeland relate instances in which music has cured cases of St. Vitus' dance, and Becker and Schneider demonstrated practically its influence in different cases of hysteria.

The Conscientious Citizen.

"This conscience doth make cowards of us all," said the thoughtful and sanctimonious citizen as he stepped off a Druid Hill car.

"Yes?" said his friend.

"Now, if there's one thing I'm conscientious about it's about extravagance."

"Yes, I noticed that," murmured the friend.

"This morning I started downtown in plenty of time to have walked to the office. A car came by me, and, largely through force of habit, but more through man's natural laziness, I hopped it."

"Yes?" said the friend.

"I hadn't any more than got on that car than my conscience began to upbraid me for the unnecessary extravagance in little things. It kept worrying me so much that I was just impelled to atone for the reckless step by beating the conductor and thus saving my nickel after all, since which time my conscience has been perfectly clear."—Baltimore American.

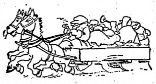
THE BOBSLED.

The old fashioned sleigh, with the box full of hay,
For runners a pair of rough, unpainted bobs:
A steady old team, with just enough steam
To jog down the highway and jolt over knobs,
And huddled together in crisp winter weather
A party of young folks warm, happy and bright—
Oh, that was a pleasure forever to treasure,
To talk about still on a cold winter night!



With blankets and wraps of buffalo perhaps
And plenty of comforts to keep out the frost
You sped down the road a live, joyous load,
Your laughter and shouts in the distant hills lost,
And then when the moon made midnight as noon
The horses turned homeward, the wind might be raw,
But who would complain when each country swain
Was nestled down close to a girl in the straw?

The bright modern sleigh is chipper and gay;
Its outline is graceful, its regular curve
Is pleasant to spy, and as it sweeps by
Behind a swift roadster you pause and observe.
A flash! It is gone, and then you jog on,
And as in the distance its form fades away,
Wherever you are your mind wanders far
To the old fashioned sled with the box full of hay.

Had the Evidence.

"Did you know that the Ables were among the first families in New York?"

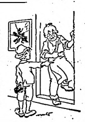
"That is news to me. I never see their name in the society columns."

"No; but if you will look in the directory you will find them on the first page."

Knocks the Romance.

To take a trip aboard a ship
Across the broad Atlantic
And sail and sail through calm and gale
Is said to be romantic,
But when in pain with might and main
Seasickness you are fighting
And long for land on which to stand
The romance goes a-kiting.

Thinking of the Present.



"Johnny, what becomes of little boys who tell lies when they grow up?"

"I don't know, but when they are small they escape half of the lickings."

Its One Advantage.

Oh, love within a cottage
Is certainly all right,
But love within a humble flat
By some is rated to beat that;
There isn't room to fight.

Victories of Peace.

Peace hath its victories no less than war!
If you have never thought of this before,
And should the statement to your mind seem raw,
You'll own it when you get a mother-in-law.

An Insinuation.

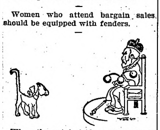
"Truth is stranger than fiction."

"That may be, but how do you know?"

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

A preacher is first aid to the injured when Cupid has made the trouble.

Women who attend bargain sales should be equipped with fenders.



When the cat looked at the king it did not show any surprise.

Traded Laps.

She was raised in the lap of luxury
On a strictly modern plan,
But when she grew up she preferred to sit
In the lap of a nice young man.

He Had a Guess.

"Did he marry her for her money?"

"Well, I like to be charitable, and still I would hate to think that the young man was not bright."

The Important Thing.

"How do you like your new girl?"

"Oh, that is immaterial. I wish you would pump her and see how she likes me."

Keeps Us Out of Mischief.

Perhaps to waste our time is wrong,
But also this is true:
If we were busy right along
What mischief we might do!

Still In the Dark.

"What would you say if I were to ask you to marry me?"

"You might ask me and find out."

One Advantage.

Knicker—Do you believe in a college education? Bocker—Yes. It teaches a boy's father how to take care of his money.—Life.

THE HOME IN FRANCE.

It Is Mainly an Adjunct to Life on the Outside.

The father and mother in Paris eat at home when they do not eat out, but absolutely no informal social intercourse invades the apartment, which is more than anything else a sort of factory in which is produced whatever the family needs for life outside. A vast amount of sewing is done here. French girls of even wealthy parents, after they finish school, attend courses of dressmaking and millinery and, to a great extent the industry which turns out the French woman as a model of good dressing, to be followed by the world, is carried on by the women of the family in what would be the home if the French knew the meaning of the word.

A reception day is rigorously kept, and much entertaining at dinner and dejeuner may be done, but always of a formal character. A person having the penetrating qualities of a book agent might venture to try "dropping in" on a French woman on a day when she is not regularly receiving, but in the natural course of ordinary social experience in Paris this would never happen, says Flora McDonald Thompson in Harper's Bazar.

Such order of living readily permits great economy. One has not to waste time, good clothes or house room in daily preparation for the unexpected guest. Six days of the week a French woman may run her sewing machine in the middle of her salon if she likes, secure from the interruption of chance callers. It is said that the chief function of the petit salon of a Paris apartment is to provide storage room for ball gowns which on reception days are taken down from the chandelier and locked up in a bedroom till the guests have departed.

Perils of the Lumbermen.

A crew of seven men were loosening timbers from the rocks above a great cataract on the River Des Quinze. The nearer they worked to the head of the rapids the more imminent grew their peril. At last the cautious steersman, a half breed named Polson, refused to venture further the lives of his crew. The foolhardy foreman ordered him out, stepped aboard and took Polson's steering paddle. Out from the bank they shot swiftly and down the steep incline. All went well until they wished to turn their boat beside the rocks that blocked the timber when to their consternation, the speed of the boat slackened. Managing to point her bow up stream, they rowed with all their strength. For some seconds she never moved. Surely the demon of the rapids had caught them. With pounding heart and panting breath they tugged with all their might and main, but to no purpose. Inch by inch, with increasing rage, he drew them until at last with a deafening roar he hurled them, boat and all, like a javelin, into the very depths of the gigantic caldron of boiling foam.—Arthur Heming in Scribner's.

Fateful Order to Halt.

In less than half an hour my troops would have swept up and over those hills, the possession of which was of such momentous consequence. It is not surprising, with a full realization of the consequences of a halt, that I should have refused at first to obey the order. Not until the third or fourth order of the most peremptory character reached me did I obey. I think I should have risked the consequences of disobedience even then but for the fact that the order to halt was accompanied with the explanation that General Lee, who was several miles away, did not wish to give battle at Gettysburg. It is stated on good authority that General Lee said some time before his death that if Jackson had been there he would have won in this battle a great and possibly decisive victory. I cannot vouch for the truth of this statement, as I did not hear it; but no soldier in a great crisis ever wished more ardently for a deliverer's hand than I wished for one hour of Jackson when I was ordered to halt.—General John B. Gordon in Scribner's.

He Would Be Left.

"Huh," grumbled Mr. Skinnay, who was being uncomfortably crowded by the jolly looking fat man in the trolley car, "these cars should charge by weight!"

"Think so?" replied the fat man. "Then they wouldn't think it worth while to stop for you."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Sleep Producing Vegetables.

People who are of a sleepless tendency should remember that diet is a most important matter in regard to sleeplessness. A heavy meal will often destroy sleep, and in other cases a too long interval between a meal and bedtime causes great restlessness. A glass of milk sipped slowly while a cracker is eaten is often of benefit. Milk, however, does not agree with everybody. Some people recommend as sleep producing a dish of boiled Spanish onions with butter sauce or onion soup for dinner. Fresh lettuce is also said to be very good for sleeplessness.—Exchange.

The Hedgehog.

The hedgehog runs the roads in England freely. He is a quaint little fellow, our hedgehog, having far more intelligence than people give him credit for. It is curious, as you stand perfectly still in the middle of the road, to see him come running along, then stopping to sniff and whine and examine the high, strange object that hardly breathes lest he startle the little creature. Then, with a gentle grunt, he will pass you by. A very low yet decided grunt he gives, and he whines as well.—Blackwood's Magazine.

TWIN CITIES HIT BY A TERRIFIC STORM

FIFTEEN LIVES AND $3,000,000 OF PROPERTY LOST BY TORNADO IN MINNESOTA.

GREAT HAVOC WROUGHT IN BUSINESS DISTRICT

High Bridge Across the Mississippi Is a Wreck—Two Theaters Are Wrecked—South Dakota in Path of the Cyclone.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 23. — Fifteen people were killed in the fierce tornado which overwhelmed the Twin Cities, and which wrought devastation in other parts of the state Saturday night. The aggregate property loss is conservatively placed at $3,000,000. Of this amount St. Paul suffered to the extent of about $1,000,000; Minneapolis' damage is estimated at $1,500,000, while in the outside districts it is feared that $500,000 will not cover the damage done to crops and farm property.

Great Bridges Destroyed.

Beginning at a point below Fort Snelling there is the first known evidence that the storm struck with damaging effect. It came from the southwest and, howling in its fury, uprooted trees and demolished buildings in its pathway toward St. Paul. It tore off two spans of the high bridge as completely as if they had been unbolted from the rest of the structure and carted away by workmen.

Theater Buildings Wrecked.

The storm tore along the flats, uprooting trees on Harriet island, and with deafening roar and the hiss and splash of falling sheets of rain it struck this city at the Wabash street bridge. Here were located at the bridge entrance, on opposite sides of Wabash street, the Tivoli concert hall and Empire theater, both of which were fairly crowded with men watching the performance. Both buildings stood on the edge of the bluff overlooking the river with sides of the buildings open and were wrecked. The full force of the tornado struck them. The buildings began to sway and rock and the audience became panic-stricken. Men and boys rushed over each other for the exits. The lights went out and the sheet lightning flashes, one following another with gunfire rapidity, illuminated a scene of pandemonium which was intensified by the crash of glass and the tearing of timbers as the frame structure gave away before the tornado. Sections of the roof were blown through the air and landed east in Third street, a block distant.

Path of Ruin.

On the storm rushed to the northeast over the wholesale district, and every building facing the south from Wabasha street for blocks east on Third street had scarcely a whole pane of glass in any window, while many on the opposite side were also broken. Tin roofs on several buildings were rolled in bundles as one would roll a huge sheet of paper and deposited in the street.

The German-American bank building, the Pioneer Press building, ten and 12-story structures, had scarcely a whole pane of glass left above the second or third story on the sides exposed to the storm. These, with the First national bank buildings on East Fourth street, and several wholesale houses farther east, had the appearance of having been bombarded by a battery of guns.

In Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 23. — The worst wind and rain storm in the history of this place broke here Saturday night about 8:30, when three storms, from north, west and east, gathered and broke over the city. Hundreds of buildings were badly damaged, all the great wire systems were paralyzed and thousands of beautiful shade trees uprooted. For three minutes the wind blew at the rate of 90 miles an hour and the rain fell in torrents. So far as know two people are dead.

Family of Four Killed.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 23.—A resident of this city who has returned from Waconia, says that the tornado of Saturday evening killed a family of four—father, mother and two children—and injured 12 other residents of that village. He did not learn the names of the victims. Considerable property damage was done. The people who were killed kept a general store and were crushed beneath the timbers when it collapsed.

At Stillwater.

Stillwater, Minn., Aug. 23.—The terrific wind storm that created such havoc in St. Paul and Minneapolis also reached Stillwater and vicinity, and the estimated damage along the St. Croix river is placed at from $75,000 to $100,000. In the city the damage is confined principally to broken trees, but on Lake St. Croix about 80,000,000 feet of logs were broken loose and are scattered in every direction.

In South Dakota.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Aug. 23.—A tornado has visited Bryant, S. D., and vicinity. Many buildings were wrecked. Mrs. H. S. Hilling was killed. Her daughter Nellie was injured and may die. A number of others were seriously injured. Loss of crops is heavy. It is reported that Willow Lakes was entirely destroyed, but the report is unconfirmed.

Town Destroyed.

Clark, S. D., Aug. 23.—A tornado struck Willow Lakes, destroying almost the entire town and also buildings in the vicinity. A farmer by the name of Erickson, living a mile west of Willow Lakes, was killed. He was in his barn, which was demolished.

Six or seven persons in Willow Lakes were injured, but none fatally. Nearly all store buildings, the churches, the schoolhouse, railway station and a majority of the dwelling houses are more or less wrecked, some totally demolished.

OHIO RAILROAD WRECK.

Passenger and Freight Trains Come Together with Fatal Results at Massillon.

Massillon, O., Aug. 23.—A fast Wabash passenger train collided with a Baltimore & Ohio freight train at the crossing of the two roads here Monday. The freight train plowed into the second coach of the passenger train. G. V. Hawley, of Norwalk, O., a brakeman on the passenger train, jumped and was crushed to death between a car and a freight house. Mrs. Alice Elmensdorf, of Chicago, a passenger, was slightly injured about the head.

Mormon Temple Damaged.

Salt Lake City, Aug. 23.—During a storm at Panguitch, in southern Utah, lightning struck the steeple of the Mormon tabernacle, and, following the roof downward and coming in at a window, struck and killed M. J. Burgess.

Wealthy Philadelphian Dead.

Philadelphia, Aug. 23.—John Lowber Welsh, one of the wealthiest and most prominent citizens of Philadelphia, died Monday at his home here.

Harsh Criticism.

"When I was a boy in Washington," said John Philip Sousa, "there was an old Scottish musician with whom I played now and then. One afternoon I ran through for this old gentleman a new waltz of my own composition.

"'Well, sir,' I said, when I had finished, 'what do you think of that?'

"'It carries me back to the home land, laddie,' said the old man. 'It carries me back ti a day when I played at an entertainment in a Scottish lunatic asylum. My instrument was the fiddle, and after I had ended my fiddle solo the head of the institution said to an aged lunatic on the front row:

"'Well, Saunders, how do you like that man?'

"Saunders answered, frowning at me:

"'It's a guid thing we're all daft here.'"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Science at 15,000 Feet.

The fact that the British armed expedition into Thibet has suffered from imperfectly cooked food and the congelation of the oil on magazine rifle locks leads a writer in the London Times to remark that the application of a little scientific knowledge would have saved much trouble in this case. The military authorities should have known that at 15,000 feet altitude oil ceases to be a lubricant, and that the boiling point of water descends about two degrees Fahrenheit for every 1,000 feet of ascent above sea level. Cooking-pots with air-tight lids, furnished with safety-valves blowing off at a pressure of 15 pounds to the square inch, would have prevented the difficulty found in boiling food. Pure glycerine instead of machine oil would have saved the trouble with the rifles and Maxim guns.

The Stadium of Athens.

The restoration of the famous Stadion, or Stadium, of Athens, begun in 1895, with funds given by a Greek merchant, has progressed until they are now placing the last of the 52,000 marble seats which the great amphitheater contains. The seats, railings, etc., are all of the creamy-white Pentelikon marble. It is the intention of the committee having the restoration in charge to build a marble "propylaea," or entrance, resembling the ancient one. Some urge the finishing of the outer walls of the Stadium by surmounting them with a marble colonnade. When the propylaea will be commenced is not known.—Consular Report.

The United States—The Orient.

Japan contains 162,655 square miles, hence it is a little larger than California, and more than three times as large as New York. If the southwestern part of Japan were placed on the Mexican border, near San Antonio, Tex., the country of the mikado would stretch northeastward till Yezo would almost touch the Strait of Mackinac, and the Kurile islands would project into Hudson bay, the latitudes corresponding very nearly. Formosa would then lie off the southern part of Lower California.—Success.

In Praise for Knitting.

Knitting is declared by specialists in the treatment of rheumatism to be a most helpful exercise for hands liable to become stiff from the complaint, and it is being prescribed by physicians because of its efficacy. For persons liable to cramp, paralysis, or any other affection of the fingers of that character, knitting is regarded as a most beneficial exercise. Besides the simple work is said to be an excellent diversion for the nerves, and is recommended to women suffering from insomnia and depression.

Durham's Rise.

In 1865 Durham was a village of a dozen houses. When the soldiers plundered the place, they got a quantity of smoking tobacco. They liked it so well that they hardly got home before they began to write to Durham to get more. There were in the town men of enough enterprise to see the opportunity which this situation offered them. It was not long before Durham salesmen were selling Durham tobacco in every part of the world.—World's Work.

Permanently Ineligible.

"Mr. Biggins has just inherited a fortune," said the woman who knows all the news. "I suppose he will now succeed in geting into the smart set."

"No," anskered Miss Cayenne; "before he was rich they said he had more brains than money. Now they say he has more money than brains."—Washington Star.

Freshest Yet.

"This order of poached eggs on toast doesn't look very nice," said the cranky guest. "Are you sure the eggs were fresh laid?"

"Sure," replied the waiter, "they were laid right on the toast."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Piping Boiling Springs.

A cheap and noval plan for heating houses is in operation at Glenwood Springs, Col. Water from the famous boiling springs is piped into town, and so great is the pressure that houses can be heated at a very small expense.

Quite the Reverse.

Victim—I've paid this debt twice over, and you know it. Why can't you let up on me now, for heaven's sake!

Loan Shark—Because I'm not in the business for heaven's sake.—Chicago Tribune.

Clubmen's Real Worries.

McJigger—Here's a rather clever little book—'Don'ts for Clubmen.'

Thingumboo—Huh! It isn't the 'don'ts' that worry clubmen; it's the dues.—Philadelphia Press.

What Spurs Do.

Spurs do not give a horse speed; they merely make him use what speed is in him.—Judge.

N. W. TARRANT.

EDITOR GREELY of the Big Fork Compass argues that "Ability means stability. The wavering man is a fool."

THERE are 226 lead pencil factories in Germany, which employ 2,813 persons and export each year 1,614 tons of pencils, worth $2,000.000.

BY all means let us have torchlight parades during the presidential campaign this fall. They are pretty to look at, even if they don't win votes.

THE Galveston News adds two new verbs to the language by remarking to its readers: "Now worm your tobacco and unweevil yonr cotton crop."

SOME of the Republican papers hold up their hands in holy horror at the mention of Dr. Ames for congress. So long as they can swallow Ray Jones without a grimace there ought be no balk at so eminently a respectable boodler as the Doctor.

MAINE and Vermont will hold elections next month. The Democrats do not expect to carry either, but they would be much comforted by a reduced Republican majority, and with that end in view they are sending in lots of speakers and literature.

THERE are only three of the nine congressional districts in Minnesota where there are contests for the Republican nomination. Representative Tawney of the first, Davis of the Third, Stevens of the Fifth, Volstead of the Seventh, Bede of the Eight, and Steenerson of the Ninth have a clear field. In the Second there is a hard fight on between Congressman McClearly and Senator Miller. In the Fourth Uncle Loren Fletcher is pitted against A. H. Hall. In the Sixth Congressman Buckman is opposed by Col. Foster of Litchfield.

UNLESS all signs fail Hon. John A. Johnson, the St, Peter editor, will be nominated for governor by the Democratic state convention at Minneapolis next Tuesday. Nearly half of the county conventions in the state have instructed for him, and in many counties where no instructions are given the delegates are known to be friendly to Mr. Johnson. The Democrats could hardly do better. Johnson is young, enthusiastic, able and clean. He is not and never has been a self-seeker, and his candidacy will be calculated to inject plenty of vim into the campaign.

THE Bemidji Pioneer tritely remarks: "It cost Minnesota this summer $25,000 to give 5,000 teachers a four weeks training in modern methods. Most of these teachers were rural school teachers and it will be safe to say that the rural schools will take a big profit from the states investment. Minnesota has been very buisy the past few years giving money to its high and graded schools. If the legislature next winter will be as liberal with the country schools we may confidently expect to see a wonderful improvement in the rural school system of the state. Improvement is urgently needed."

PRAYER FOR THE REPUBLIC.

In the midst of the turmoil of politics and mad race for wealth it is good for the mind and conscience to turn occasionally to something truly ennobling and elevating, says Frank Day's Fairmont Sentinel. Along this line we have seen nothing of late more beautiful than a Prayer for the Republic, made by the Rev. Robert Holland before the recent National Educational convention. It can with profit be preserved and read aloud in every family. We copy in full:

"Bless, Heavenly Father, we beseech thee, all who teach thy truth to men. Thou hast called them to a great task. Thou hast made them the trainers of civilization and put into their hands the future of nations. Give them the wisdom and courage of their higher duty.

"Especially do we pray for those whom thou hast charged with the destiny of our own republic, and who are forming now the statesmen, the war captains, the judges, the editors, the authors, the professions of every kind, the vast citizenship that will soon constitute the republic's whole mind and heart. May they look upon their work as thine.

"Many hindrances are in the way, perils that might intimidate heroes, dragon evils to be slain, but thine is the teacher-soldiery, and thy banner waves over them. Having taught them to pray for the coming of thy kingdom, thou wilt not disappoint their prayer. Thy kingdom will come. It comes even now. Every day is one of arrival as well as of approach, and some augury, some evidence, some cohort of heavenly power appears. No mere golden haze that hangs over a far-away time, but a sun in the sky overhead, which shines both far and near, thy reign warms and fructifies our present world. Tokens of it are on every hand. Men do not hate each other as of old. National feuds are dying out. Wars themselves contend for mercy, and would be merciful. Schools multiply, colleges prosper, churches abound. Higher life gains steadily upon lower; the angel in man has the beast down, though the beast still writhes and snarls. If sins look grosser than ever, it is because they are seen in a diviner light. They look large to a conscience that is quick and clear-eyed to behold their iniquity. And the same conscience has thy promise to smite with its arm, and to conquer whatever iniquity it dares to condemn.

"Be these teachers its standard bearers to lead the youth of our land. Embolden them in their teaching to rebuke defiant wrongs—the greeds and dishonesties and foolish prides of successful trade, the hounding of man by man, the lack of civic honor, the rowdyism and fraud and thievery of politicians, the grinding of poverty by wealth, the envy of wealth by poverty, the anarchy of strikes, the unsexing of sexes, the loosening of marriage ties, the legalized disruption of families, the lawlessness of households, the chartered atheisms of fashionable pleasure.

"Put thy scouage, O Lord, in the hands of thy servants, and with it cleanse city and commonwealth. Whip out the corrupters of courts. Set over our courts judges who have knowledge and who can not be corrupted by corporations or parties. Shut the doors of jails upon the proud villians who scoff at justice. Hasten the day when our rulers shall be public servants, and public servants shall not huskster the people's trust for private gain. Give parties sincere principles and a right conception of their place in the state, as existing only for its welfare, and to be abolished whenever they plot its injury.

"Advance the fulfillment of prophecy, thou Prince of Peace. More than once thou hast trodden the earth in anger. Thou hast shaken it with wars. Thou hast shattered its thrones. Thou hast cast out peoples from their domains. Thou hast overtaken the crimes of ages with terrible retributions. So come not now, but with nail-pierced feet that while they bring chastisement, shall draw a contrite nation away from doom. And thine shall be the praise of salvation. Amen."

IN LINE FOR PARKER.

The tremendous slump in the East from Republicanism to Democracy is fairly indicated by the change in the great journals in New York. Not a single Democratic paper has deserted the party but other notable changes are noted as follows:

New York World—Supported McKinley in 1900; now strongly for Parker.

New York Evening Post—Supported McKinley 1900; now for Parker.

New York Herald—Supported McKinley 1900; now opposes Roosevelt.

New York Staats-Zeitung—Supported McKinley 1900; now for Parker.

Brooklyn Daily Eagle—Supported McKinley 1900; now for Parker.

New York Times—Supported McKinley 1900; strongly for Parker.

Syracuse Herald—Suppr r ed McKinley 1900; now independent.

Troy Press—For McKinley 1900; now strongly for Parker.

Schenectady Morning Gazette—Democratic paper which refused to support Bryan in 1900, now for Parker.

DEMOCRATIC ORATORS.

Some of the speakers to be put in the field by Chairman Taggart, of the Democratic national committee, are:

John G. Carlisle, William J. Bryan, Judson Harmon, Hoke Smith, Melville E. Ingalls, General Patrick A. Collins, Charles S. Hamlin, Senator Joseph W. Bailey, Senator John W. Daniel, W. Bourke Cockran, Charles A. Towne, David B. Hill, Senator E. W. Carmack, John Sharp Williams, James H. Eckles, Senator William Joel Stone, Benjamin F. Shively, John W. Kern, Carter Harrison and Edward W. Shepard.

"These," Chairman Taggart explained, "have all volunteered their services, and they show the character of the men who are to take the stump for us. We are going to have a great deal of speaking, and the first of it will not begin until after the middle of September."

FOR REGISTER OF DEEDS.

K. J. Weeks of Thief River Falls, Seeks Republican Nomination.

Thief River Press: K. J. Weeks authorizes us to anounce that he is a candidates for the office of Register of Deeds of Red Lake county. Mr. Weeks has been urged to enter the field by his many friends here and in other parts of the county and has been promised and will receive a hearty support. Mr. Weeks was born in Mower county in 1866 and was brought up on a farm, attending the country schools until fifteen years of age when he entered the high school at Grand Meadow, which he attended four years. He then clerked in a store for eight years when he went into the mercantile business for himself. In 1901 he moved to this city and opened a real estate and insurance office, and enjoys a fine business, In the summer of 1903 he was chosen as alderman in the First ward in place of C. L. Dobner, resigned, and was duly elected as alderman-at-large at the November election, which office he is now holding.

Mr. Weeks was president of the successful county fair of last year and was again elected to same position last winter and is carrying the preparations forward in his usual hustling manner. During the winters of 1901-02 he was appointed to a responsible position in the state legislature as a reward for his active participation in support of the Republican ticket in his home town. Mr. Weeks can count upon the active support of the people of his home town and the northern end of the county and he will also be strongly supported by his many friends in other portions of Red Lake county.

SANDERS.

Harvest has begun on the ridges and the yield of wheat this year would have been heavier than the average had it not been for the damage from rust.

Nels B. Swanson gave a sociable to a number of young folks last Sunday. Everybody had a good time.

Mrs. Erick Hoard may be congratulated on receiving three first premiums at the fair. viz. for butter and fancy knittings.

Omer Matheson left to-day for Tabor after a week's visit at home.

Teamsters and other farm hands have begun to pass through here for the wheat regions of North Dakota.

Misses Mary and Hilma Peterson leave today (Monday) for Crookston where they will stay for a short time.

This town was well represented at the young people's society in Black River Sunday.

Miss Nora Anderson left last Friday for Gilby, N. D., where she will visit with her sister, Mrs. Johnson.

Charles Anderson of River Falls township visited with Herman Anderson last Sunday.

All kinds of berries are very scarce this year, even the choke cherries have totally disappeared by the time they ought to have been ripe.

THE COUNTY PRESS.

Thief River News: The candidates and prospective candidates for county offices in Red Lake county were much in evidence at the county fair. As a general thing they were all good fellows—and will continue to be good fellows until after the votes are counted.

Thief River Press: The latest acquisition to the Thief River legal fraternity is a young man, G. K. Fargo by name, who arrived from St. Paul Tuesday and will probably occupy offices in the Evenson block. Mr. Fargo is a recent graduate of the St. Paul law school.

Thief River Review: The Red Lake Falls band is certainly a splendid organization. We question seriously whether there is a city in the land with a better band. Our citizens greatly appreciated the music they furnished last Thursday at the fair and hope they will come again.

Thief River News: The Great Northern does not expect to get the extension north of this city completed until after it freezes up. North of Middle River there are some very bad swamps to cross and rails can not be laid there until after it freezes up as the ground is to soft too work upon.

Thief River Review: Wiley Tindolph, who has been spending a couple of months in the south, returned home Monday much benefited by his trip. Mr. Tindolph says he is glad to return to the city, and he looks it. He says the weather is ideal for all kinds of crops and he greatly misses the fruit which was so plentiful, but he thinks the girls in Red Lake county beat the fruit or anything he saw while away on his trip and he is glad to be among them again.

Thief River Review: The broad expansive smile on Mayor Hanson's face is not caused from the fact that the fine flour mill he is one of the owners of will soon be finished, nor from the fact that he will soon lay down the arduous duties of county commissioner, to which office he could easily have been re-elected had he only said the word, but is caused by the arrival of a daughter at his home, which put in an appearance last Thursday, and which with the mother are doing well.

St. Hilaire Spectator: Some of the small boys brought in a horrifying tale about seeing an Indian in the woods east of town last Sunday evening with a boy gagged and tied to a tree with a log chain. Marshal Christ Hall at once organized a squad consisting of Messrs. Harting, Edstrom, Ittner, Swenson and several others whose names we did not learn. After a diligent search they returned without seeing anyone and it is now dawning on them that they were the victims of some practical joker.

Thief River News: The new town on the proposed line of the Soo which was to have been named Baltic has been changed to Newfolden taking the name of the postoffice near where the new town is to be located and to which the postoffice will be removed. The change in the name was made at the request of residents of that section. D. B. Bakke, of this city, who formerly resided at Newfolden, will be the townsite agent and will open up a bank there. The new town will be a good one and it is surrounded by a good farming country.

Thief River Press: In order to be frank and above board with our readers we are going to state right here and now that we are going to support our old friend Nick Tarrant. Democrat though he is, for re-election as Judge of Probate. Nick has made as good an official as the county ever had, he has been honest, capable and obliging, and what more can any one ask for. Furthermore, he is a Thief River man, so local pride may influence us to some extent, but as we started out by saying we would be honest we will stand by that part of our text and say that the Judge has always toted fair with us and therefore it is more than fair that we should stand by him, which we will do through thick and thin.

Thief River News: A movement is on foot to have the local creamery turned over to a co-operative company and have the farmers about here own stock in the concern. This is a move in the right direction. Under the present management the creamery has lost money for its owners and will probably continue to do this until the farmers own stock in it and take more interest in the management. At present a Minneapolis cold storage company is buying cream of the farmers about here and paying a much better price and giving a better test than the local creamery can afford to give. It is the history of this concern, however, that after it has frozen out the local creamery that it reduces the price it pays for cream and then the farmers will regret that they did not patronize the local creamery.

Thief River Press: The amicable spirit existing between the cities of Red Lake Falls and Thief River is growing rather than receding. The people of the Lower Falls again did themselves proud by turning out by the hundreds to the county fair. They appreciate that the fair is a good thing for Thief River, but this does not deter them from coming up here to help make the fair a big success, and in fact were it not for the attendance from the southern end of the county it would be difficult to carry the exhibition through to a successful termination each year. Not only Red Lake Falls, but St. Hilaire, Wylie and in fact the whole county of Red Lake and all of eastern Marshall gave the exhibition good support not only in attendance but in exhibits, and this friendly spirit Thief River people appreciate and will strive to reciprocate whenever occasion permits.

Olaf Tande of Garnes was a business visitor to Red Lake Falls yesterday. Mr. Tande says there is practically no rust in his vicinity, although the crops are very late. The yield in Garnes and Equality will be fully as large and the grade as good as last year.

W. S. Day of Warren was in the city several days of this week buying lumber and having it hauled to the new towns of Brooks and Scotland for lumber sheds and offices for the Bovey-Shute Lumber company, which concern is putting in a line of seventeen sheds along the line of the Soo.

Anthony LaFreniere's Northome Record comes to our table in a new dress and printed on a new press. The paper tells us, too, that the Record is enjoying the luxury of a brand new office building. The many Red Lake Falls friends of the enterprising publisher will be glad to note his success.

Bruce G. Warren of Park River, N. D., was the first name drawn in the Fort Totten land lottery at Devils Lake yesterday. No Red Lake county person was among the first 100 names drawn. Harry L. Keller of Crookston and Obert Overland and Frank H. Bailey of Fertile drew valuable claims.

L. E. Davidson, of the state dairy and food department, was a visitor to Red Lake Falls Saturday. Mr. Davidson says the pure food laws are quite generally observed in Red Lake county, and that the merchants are co-operating with the department in the work of stamping out the evils of adulteration.

J. D. Taylor and Joseph McCaffrey will leave next Wednesday for Warroad, where they will engage in the law, loan and land business. The boys are well qualified for the line of work they have taken up and we are pleased to learn that Warroad has good prospects for growth and development during the coming year.

The Woodmen held a picnic at Clearwater island last evening, and nearly a hundred people were down to enjoy the hospitality of the lodge. A basket supper was served, and the band turned out to give a concert. At the conclusion of the festivities appropriate remarks were made by Samuel Allard and Attorney Germo. In the evening a dance was given at the Woodmen hall.

Fred Borchers got home last Friday from his trip to Germany, having been gone from Red Lake Falls just three months. It has been twenty-two years since Fred has seen the home folks, and of course the visit was thoroughly enjoyable. Fred says the appearance of the country has changed very little, but of course upward of twenty years made a decided change in the people.

William Ittner left Monday for Minneapolis, where he will enter the state university this fall. Mr. Ittner has joined the foot ball squad, which goes to Waconia this week for practice. If Mr. Ittner shows up in the form expected of him he will be a member of the Minnesota team this season, in which event Red Lake Falls people will watch the scores with more than usual interest.

Scotland is to have a newspaper, The proprietor will be Julius Pleth, townsite promoter, banker, and general overseer of the embryo village. Chas. W. Latta, formerly local editor of the St. Hilaire Spectator, will be editor and manager of the new aspirant for public favor. This makes the seventh newspaper for Red Lake county, and the "long felt wants" will soon be pre-empted.

Dr. L. L. Mayland of Bagley was a visitor to Red Lake Falls yesterday. The Doctor has filed for the Republican nomination for member of the legislature from this district, and is making the rounds looking up his chances. Of course he didn't expect to meet with a great deal of encouragement at Red Lake Falls, since it is the home of Hon. L. C. Simons, the present member of the house and a candidate for re-election.

A. F. Langdon, of London, Eng., was the guest of C. F. Johnson, of the Northern Minnesota Milling company, yesterday. Mr. Langdon is a wholesale flour dealer and the London agent for a large number of American mills. He handles a large share of the output of the Northern Minnesota mill. Mr. Langdon is a practical country miller and a native American, having been for many years manager of a Michigan mill.

Not every action taken at the school meeting is legal. At Montgomery it was voted at the last annual school meeting to reimburse the district treasurer for $800 lost in a defunct bank. The funds were deposited in the individual's name not as district treasurer, and the attorney general says there was no authority for reimbursing the treasurer for his loss, which would amount to an unlawful gift. This is not only a pointer for school district treasurers, but for treasurers of townships and villages as well.

The district convention of the Modern Brotherhood of America will be held September 25 at Moorhead, and the delegates from the local lodge will be Samuel Allard, Samuel Gibeau and Joseph Belair. Mr. Allard will be a candidate for delegate to the state convention, which meets at Minneapolis October 2, and it is quite likely he will land the honor. Red Lake Falls will be a candidate for the district convention next year and THE COURIER hopes the delegates from this part of the country will be able to bring it here.

Prof. Jacob Hoffman, the aeronaut who gave an exhibition at Thief River Falls during the fair, was killed last Thursday afternoon at Fergus Falls by falling into Lake Alice and drowning. In making the ascent at Lake Alice last Thursday Hoffman landed in the lake and was unable to reach shore on account of the weeds. A crowd witnessed his predicament but many minutes elapsed before it was realized that he was struggling for his life. An attempt was made to launch a boat to go his assitances but when it was placed in the water it was swamped and Hoffman sank in sight of the crowd.

The marriage of Miss Lydia Eudora Fletcher to Mr. William A. McIntyre is announced for Wednesday, September 7, at the First Prssbyterian church in Red Lake Falls. Miss Fletcher has for the past ten years been a teacher in the public schools of Red Lake Falls, St. James, Devils Lake and other places, and during the summer has assisted in conducting the state training school. Mr. McIntyre is one of the leading attorneys of this section of the state. Both of the contracting parties are well and favorably known to the Red Lake county people, and their legion of friends will extend hearty congratulations in advance of the ceremony.

A large number of the threshermen of Red Lake county met at the city hall last Monday and started the organization of a threshermen's association. The principal feature of interest to the general public was the fixing of prices for threshing. It was decided to thresh wheat and buckwheat at not less than four cents per bushel, oats at two cents and barley at three cents. Flax was fixed at ten cents. Another meeting is called for next Monday, August 29, at the city hall in Red Lake Falls, and all threshermen are requested to be present. A number of the leading threshermen of the county say that the condition of the grain this year will not warrant threshing at the old prices.

Notice to Customers.

Our mill is again in operation, and we now grind feed at all times.

RUSSIAN VESSELS STILL AT SHANGHAI

CZAR'S WARSHIPS STILL REMAIN IN NEUTRAL WATERS DESPITE CONSULS.

AMERICAN DESTROYER CARRYING DISPATCHES

Did Not Intervene to Save the Askold from Japanese Guns—St. Petersburg Dispatch Says Ships Will Disarm—China Grants More Time.

Shanghai, Aug. 23.—The meeting of the foreign consuls here Monday resulted in the preparation of a statement of the established facts regarding the Russian warships Askold and Grozovoi. The Russian authorities show a disinclination to reconsider their refusal to comply with China's demand that the two ships leave Shanghai or disarm.

The Japanese torpedo boat destroyer which entered the harbor Sunday has left the harbor with dispatches for the fleet.

The taotai has by orders of the waiwoupou (ministry of foreign affairs) again taken a hand in the affairs, and has issued another extension of time to the Russian vessels, which have been ordered now to leave at noon Tuesday. At low tides the Askold could not get over the bar this week. Therefore repairs must cease.

The American men-of-war in the harbor, while retaining the outward appearance of inaction, have for several days been practically cleared for action, with gun sights in position and steam up.

Rear Armiral Stirling is determined that the Japanese shall not interfere with the Russian vessels. He has, it is reported, offered to escort the Askold and Grozovoi beyond the three-mile limit.

Only Carrying Dispatches.

Shanghai, Aug. 23.—Rear Admiral Stirling says that the trip of the American torpedo boat destroyer Chauncey from Woosung to Shanghai Sunday was to carry dispatches. Her movements had no connection with the arrival of the Japanese torpedo boat destroyer.

Goodnow Cables Washington.

Washington, Aug. 23.—Consul General Goodnow cabled the state department Monday from Shanghai telling of the appearance of the Japanese vessels in the harbor there. He made no mention of the reported action of the American torpedo boat. The cablegram referred to the valuable American property on the docks near where the Russian cruiser is, and also said that the Russian consul general had refused to disarm the Askold.

It is asserted positively at the navy department that the American fleet at Shanghai is not charged with the protection of Chinese neutrality by any special instructions. The officials here are convinced that the Japanese have no intention of violating Chinese neutrality, and, furthermore, that they would not jeopardize the immensely valuable foreign interests in Shanghai by making the harbor a battleground. No instructions have been sent to Admiral Stirling to interfere with the action of Japanese vessels.

Satisfaction in St. Petersburg.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 23.—The dispatches saying that energetic action had been taken by the American warships at Shanghai to protect the neutrality of China has aroused the liveliest satisfaction in official and unofficial circles here. The protected cruiser Askold and the torpedo boat destroyer Grozovoi will be disarmed.

The admiralty realizes that it would be folly to send the ships out to face the Japanese squadron in the offing and as announced in these dispatches last week had already decided that the ships shall be disarmed.

The refusal of the Russian consul general at Shanghai to comply with the requests of the taotai, is, it is said at the foreign office, due to the fact that no agreement had previously been reached between the Chinese and Japanese authorities, and Russia did not propose to allow the Chinese to disarm the ships, as they did in the case of the Ryeshitelni at Chefoo, with the possibility that they might subsequently be attacked by the Japanese in port.

According to the governor of Sakhalin five government buildings and 11 houses were demolished during the bombardment of Korsakovsk by the Japanese.

Excitement at Shanghai.

Shanghai, Aug. 23.—Shanghai was thrown into a fever of excitement Sunday afternoon by the arrival of a Japanese torpedo boat, which was sighted coming in from the south at half past four o'clock. She passed the Woosung at full speed and started up the river Ju for Shanghai. The United States torpedo boat destroyer Chauncey slipped her cable and followed the Japanese destroyer. The Japanese boat was cleared for action. She anchored off the Cosmopolitan dock, where the Russian cruiser Askold is undergoing repairs. The Chauncey came to anchor practically between the dock and the Japanese destroyer.

Garment-Workers Meet.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 23.—The United Garment Workers of America convened here Monday in annual convention with about 175 delegates present, representing a membership of 60,000. President Larger stated that the question of open shops would no doubt be the most important matter considered.

MINERS DEPORTED BY MOB

FRESH OUTBREAK OCCURS AT CRIPPLE CREEK.

Action Justified by Those Participating on Ground That Public Policy Demands It.

Cripple Creek, Col., Aug. 23.—Bloody rioting is in prospect here, as the result of the deportation of men not in sympathy with the citizens' movement. A mob is in control of the town and the seizures of men have been followed by property depredations. Though the town already is roused to a high pitch of excitement, armed men on horseback are making a round-up to gather more men to drive from the district.

The outbreak, which was entirely unexpected, was justified by the deporters by the statement that a conspiracy to commit violence had been discovered, and the move was necessary in order to prevent bloodshed. Nearly all the men against whom the present campaign is directed are prominent. Among those already sent out are the following:

Former Attorney General Eugene N. Engley, now attorney for the miners.

Frank J. Hangs, attorney for the Western Federation of Miners.

J. W. Higgins, former president of the Cripple Creek Carpenters' union and republican candidate for alderman at the last city election.

H. M. N. Heimerdinger, one of the principal owners of the Interstate Mercantile company, of Butte, Mont.

J. W. Hall, a heavy stockholder in the Interstate Mercantile company, of Butte.

J. C. Cole, former district attorney for Teller county.

M. J. O'Neill, deputy county clerk.

T. H. Parfet, former manager of the union store in this city.

Albert Pierce, for ten years a prominent resident of this city.

Frank Aikman, employed by the Interstate Mercantile company.

These men were corralled at various points, beginning at five o'clock Saturday, and at 6:30, when all had been herded together, they were started over the hills west of town and marched toward Florissant under a heavily armed guard. The crowd then marched through the streets, gathering known union men and sympathizers, who were marched away. There was little disorder on the part of the deporters.

The Cripple Creek Miners' union will appeal to the federal courts and will ask that United States troops be sent to the mines to preserve order. Gov. Peobody now refuses to act unless the county officials will ask for troops.

MEAT STRIKE SITUATION.

Both Picket and Police Lines Are Strengthened in the Chicago Stockyard District.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—Fearing worse violence than before in connection with the stockyards strike the police Monday strengthened their lines and adopted stringent measures.

Practically every striker went on duty as a picket Monday, all working under thoroughly-organized plans. Each squad has a specific territory and each man has a specific portion of a division. To combat this a large number of policemen were assigned to help the force already at work.

The number of cattle killed by the packers last week, according to packing house reports, was 29,576, which was 3,000 in excess of the number killed the week before, and about 14,000 fewer than in the corresponding period of last year. It was 13,000 in excess of week before last.

There was no reduction in the Lake Shore train service into the yards Monday morning, but the cars, usually crowded, were only partially filled, showing a great falling off in the number of "strike-breakers." This is considered due to the fatal shooting Saturday night, when one man was killed and others badly wounded. It is estimated that fully 1,000 "strike-breakers" who went out on Saturday failed to return to work Monday morning. There were a few new men employed.

WILL NOT MAKE SPEECHES.

A Friend Announces That Judge Parker Will Not Take the Stump in His Own Behalf.

Esopus, N. Y., Aug. 23.—It was made plain at Rosemount that there is no certainty of Judge Parker making any speeches in the west, in connection with his St. Louis trip, or at any other time or place. The principle on which Judge Parker will act in the matter was learned from an intimate associate of the judge, who said:

"Judge Parker has no faith in the utility of speechmaking for its own sake, and will make no speeches anywhere for the mere purpose of appearing in any given locality. He believes a stumping tour by a presidential candidate to be improper, and he will undertake no such tour. The only condition upon which he will make any speech, anywhere, will be the fact that he has some definite thing to say, and that he is convinced by his own reason that some given time and place best suits the saying of it there and then. You may say with the utmost confidence that under no other conditions will Judge Parker make any speech anywhere."

Teachers Win Fight.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—The long legal contest waged by the school-teachers of Chicago, headed by Miss Catharine Goggin, for the $249,554 held by the board of education from the corporation taxes of 1900 was ended Monday by a decision of Judge Dunne in favor of the school-teachers.

MINNESOTA'S GREAT FAIR.

The Forty-Fifth Annual Show Will Open on August 29, and Closes on September 3.

A Holiday Week of Pleasure and Profit for All—The Railroads Have Made Half-Fare Rates—Some Things to See.

With the near approach of the opening day of the Minnesota State Fair of 1904 it becomes evident to those familiar with the situation that the fair will be even larger in every department than the record breaker of 1903.

The best information available shows there will be more cattle than last year, in spite of the competition of the St. Louis show a few weeks later. All the great show herds which will be at St. Louis will appear previously at the Minnesota Fair, and the winners at St. Louis will wear Minnesota blue ribbons. Horses and other animals will be equally numerous.

For horses something new has been provided this year. This is a great tent in which all the horses will be judged and where the exhibitions of carriage horses and other special classes will be held. The tent is a great circus affair, about 300 feet long, and will accommodate thousands of people. As horse showing is always popular, it is safe to say that the horse tent at the State Fair this year will be well filled every day.

As for the other horses—the racers—they will be there in great numbers. Here again another record has already been smashed into very small pieces; for entries for the Minnesota State Fair races close invariably on July 1st and this year Sec. E. W. Randall received 339 nominations, or 72 more than in 1903, and 109 more than in 1902.

In other departments of the fair a similar gain over 1903 is reasonably to be expected. The superintendents of divisions, who keep in close touch with intending exhibitors, find that all well known indications suggest substantial gains in totals.

An improvement which will be appreciated by everyone who goes to the fair this year is the street railroad terminal station. The new system of handling the state fair passenger traffic will make it possible for visitors to travel to and from the fair with perfect comfort. A system of loops and storage tracks has been constructed at enormous expense. Operation of this system will be such that passengers will alight almost in the center of the fair grounds and within 200 yards of the grand stand. When leaving the grounds there will be found electric cars always standing ready, and at the close of the afternoon and evening performances there will be about 150 cars waiting on the storage tracks and with gates open so that they may be boarded at once, avoiding all pushing and crowding. This great supply of cars on the storage tracks will remove the possibility of discomfort when leaving the grounds.

The theme chosen by the famous pyrotechnist, Pain, as a subject for his annual spectacle at the Minnesota State Fair this season is "Mt. Pelee, or the Destruction of St. Pierre." With the exception of an all-summer engagement in Boston, this spectacle has never been produced elsewhere in this country, so that its engagement at the Minnesota Fair will be its first production in the West. The terrible catastrophe on the Island of Martinique offers a subject for the pyrotechnist second only to his greatest success, "Last Days of Pompeii," and it is needless to say that he has taken every advantage of the opportunity offered for startling volcanic effects and picturesque scenic environment. To reproduce the quaint old city of St. Pierre, fully five acres of massive scenery is required, and in the thrilling scenes of the great spectacle more than four hundred performers will participate.

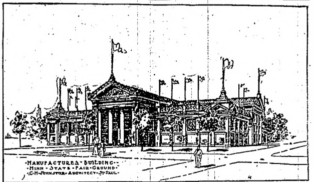
The fireworks feature this season will be on the same elaborate scale that has always characterized pain productions, and will include many pyrotechnic novelties never before seen, many of the fiery devices being duplicates of pyrotechnic designs especially prepared for the great display given at the dedication of the St. Louis Exposition.

The Minnesota State Fair is making abundant provision for the special department devoted to woman's work and interests, and it is expected that for this and other reasons there will be a larger attendance of women than ever before. The new Woman's Building, which was opened last year, is in charge of Mrs. M. L. Luther, assistant superintendent, and will contain all the articles exhibited by women and for which premiums or diplomas are offered. The State Federation of Women's Clubs will have its headquarters in the building formerly known as the Institute Building, and which is within a few rods of the Woman's Building. Lectures, entertainments and social gatherings will be among the items on the federation program.

A new, novel and unique feature will be added to the Minnesota State Fair this year in the way of amusements.

There will be a "Pike," where will be presented all of the amusements engaged to entertain the thousands of sightseers. The committee on amusements have arranged to have fifteen separate shows, each and every one high-class, clean, moral and refined. The special big feature attraction will be the Grecian Stadium Show, presenting a performance consisting of the World's greatest sensational out-door acts, including the Japanese marvel Youturkey in a high bounding wire display. The great Le Fluer, acknowledged premier of athletes. The Brothers Steiner, aerial bar display par excellent. The Chillian wonders; the Pechecos, seven in number; the world's foremost acrobatic family, this is their first American engagement; Miss Florence Spray, the world's champion female diver, diving from a height of 65 feet into a tank containing four feet of water; "Big Abadallah," the Arabian chieftain, and his troupe of whirlwind abrobats, eleven in number; Charles Milton Felton, America's champion high diver, diving from a height of 110.

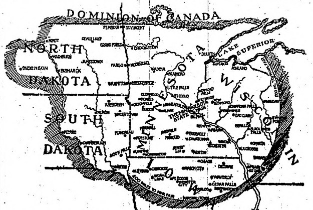
Another feature of the "Pike" will be the Trained Wild Animal Zoo, consisting of 57 trained lions, tigers, leopards, hyenas, pumas, bears, jaguars, and panthers, besides performing elephants and camels. Other features engaged for the "Pike" are: the dog, monkey, and pony show, presenting a program especially arranged for ladies and children, Creation, the latest craze; The Crystal Maze, where one gets lost; the laughing parlors, where you go to laugh; the House-up-side-Down, or Topsy Turvy Land; the Palace of Mysteries; The Girl From Up There; "Roberta" in poses; The Electric Theatre; The Cave of the Winds; the Glass Palace, and the Hall of Illusions. The list of attractions offered will be varied, instructive and interesting and no doubt will prove a popular feature of the State Fair this year.



The New Manufactures Buildinng on the Minnesota State Fair Grounds.

When the Minnesota State Fair of 1904 opens Monday, Aug. 29, visitors will find the most conspicuous new thing on the grounds to be a building devoted exclusively to Minnesota manufactures.

The Manufactures Building is, perhaps, the handsomest on the grounds and the first to be of thoroughly permanent and absolutely fire-proof construction. In size it is 120x160 feet. Above the stone foundation, pressed brick walls rise to a cornice about 25 feet from the ground, both wall and cornice having only a sufficient ornamentation to relieve their plain surfaces, while the main facade receives its principal adornment through a beautiful entrance, adorned with stone pillars. This stone, as well as the brick and all other materials, as far as possible, are Minnesota products. The cost of the building was $30,000.



Map Showing Extent of Half-Fare Rate Territory for The Minnesota State Fair, Aug. 29-Sept. 3, 1904.

Practically the entire Northwest can reach Minneapolis and St. Paul at State Fair time for a half-fare rate. The lines of the Western Passenger Association have granted a one way rate from all points within 200 miles of Minneapolis and St. Paul, while the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and "Soo" lines have made the rate cover practically the whole of North Dakota, northern Minnesota, northern Michigan and a large part of South Dakota.

Tickets at these rates will be on sale Aug. 27th (the Saturday before the fair) and will be good returning until Monday, Sept. 5th, thus giving the users plenty of time in the cities for buying and inspecting goods.

SKIN DISEASES THE OUTCROPPING OF BAD BLOOD

And while not always painful are aggravating beyond expression. With few exceptions they are worse in spring and summer when the system begins to thaw out and the skin is reacting and making extra efforts to throw off the poisons that have accumulated during the winter. Then boils and pimples, rashes and eruptions of every conceivable kind make their appearance, and Eczema and Tetter—the twin terrors of skin diseases —Nettle-rash, Poison Oak and Ivy, and such other skin troubles as usually remain quiet during cold weather, break out afresh to torment and distract by their fearful burning, itching and stinging. A course of S. S. S. now will purify and enrich the blood, reinforce and tone up the general system and stimulate the sluggish circulation, thus warding off the diseases common to spring and summer. The skin, with good blood to nourish it, remains smooth and soft and free of all disfiguring eruptions.

I suffered with Eczema of the hands and face for over a year, it was not only annoying and painful but very unsightly, and I disliked to go out in the streets.

I tried at least a dozen soaps and salvse and became very much discouraged until I read in the paper of the cures performed through the use of S. S. S. I had little faith at first but determined to give it a month's fair trial at least. I am pleased to state that I soon noticed a slight improvement, sufficient to decide me to keep it up. After the use of six bottles my skin was as smooth and soft as a baby's. This was a year ago and I have never had any trouble since.

DESPERATE FIGHT AT PORT ARTHUR

RUSSIANS AND JAPS STRUGGLING FOR DECISIVE VICTORY AT THE FORTRESS.

THE JAPANESE RECEIVE HEAVY REINFORCEMENTS

Thirty Thousand Men from the North Said to Have Joined the Attacking Force—Russia Glories in the Determination of Her Troops.

Chefoo, Aug. 23.—The first detailed news of the general assault on Port Arthur indicates that a tremendous conflict is raging and that victory is hanging in the balance.

Chinese who left Port Arthur Sunday and arrived here Monday state that the Japanese by making desperate charges, which were reinforced by an artillery fire from Shushi Yen and Louisa bay, swept from the north into Pigeon bay territory and drove the Russians back from the main forts. The ground being comparatively flat in this vicinity, the Japanese were unable to hold it in the face of the Russian artillery fire and they retired north an eighth of a mile beyond the scene of fire.

The Chinese declare that the Japanese captured one important fort located on the Itzshan hills, midway between the western coast and the railway on a line drawn approximately from a point midway between Pigeon and Louisa bays.

The fighting resulting in the capture of this fort was very severe. The position was first subjected to a bombardment for over 48 hours. Then the Japanese infantry assaulted it and compelled the Russians to retire. The Russian artillery then directed a heavy fire on the spot, compelling the Japanese in turn to retire.

Attack Russian Center.

The Chinese just arrived, who bring the latest information from Port Arthur, were employed by the Russian authorities carrying the dead off the field and also ammunition, which they say is plentiful, confirm the statement that the Liati promontory was not assaulted for the reason that it is impregnable from the sea side and the Japanese are unable to move on it from the north.

The Japanese main attack has been the heaviest against the Russian center and right, particularly against the center fronting which the Japanese have taken up a strong position at Shushiyen.

The Japanese believe that their superior physical condition will win the battle for them by wearing out the Russian garrison, which is constituted of less hardened material, down to the point of exhaustion by the persistency of their attack and their refusal to accept a repulse.

The temperament of the Russian garrison is dogged and determined.

Jap Reinforcements.

Chefoo, Aug. 23.—It is asserted in reliable quarters at Port Arthur that the Japanese have received reinforcements of 30,000 men from the north.

The steamer Victoria, which arrived here Monday evening from Newchwang, reports hearing spasmodically heavy firing at Louisa and Pigeon bays respectively northwest and west of Port Arthur between ten o'clock Sunday night and one in the morning. She saw searchlights playing freely and skyrockets signaling at one o'clock Monday morning. The ship was too far away to hear or see anything further.

Praised at St. Petersburg.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 23.—The storming of Port Arthur, which the foreign dispatches say is progressing, is riveting all attention. The brave, stubborn resistance which Gen. Stoessel is making is evoking high praise, and the war office and public are hoping almost against hope that he will be able to hold out in spite of the heavy odds against him. The latest news, that the Japanese are unable to establish a foothold at Louisa bay and at the most westerly fort of the inner defenses, is considered encouraging.

A dispatch from Rear Admiral Prince Ouktomsky, at Port Arthur, by way of Chefoo, says that only two officers were killed on board the ships which returned to the harbor after the fight of August 10, but his information about the condition of the ships is unsatisfactory, the admiralty explaining that he probably avoided going into specific details, owing to fear that the dispatch might fall into the hands of the Japanese.

News that the Port Arthur squadron has again sallied out is expected at any hour, as Rear Admiral Prince Ouktomsky's orders are imperative to go out or destroy his ships before the fortress falls.

The loss of the gallant Novik in a fight against two Japanese cruisers at Korsakovsk, island of Sakhalin, is not yet known here, as the authorities are awaiting the report of Vice Admiral Skrydloff before making the news public. The cruiser by her exploits had endeared herself to the whole country, and her loss will create a more sentimental effect than that of any ship in the fleet.

Russian Cruiser Sunk.

Tokio, Aug. 23.—After a severe engagement with the protected cruisers Chitose and Tsushima, the greyhounds of the Japanese navy, the fleet Russian cruiser Novik has been vanquished. The fight occurred Sunday. After it the Novik, in a sinking condition, was run ashore in Korakovsk harbor on the island of Sakhalin.

Firemen Injured.

Nine firemen were injured and property valued at $60,000 was destroyed in a fire which broke out in a five-story building in Minneapolis. None of the firemen were fatally injured, while the fire loss is nearly covered by insurance. The origin of the fire is unknown. It was discovered by the night watchman at the Lyman-Eliel Drug company, who saw smoke issuing from the front windows in the fifth story. No sooner did the first piece of apparatus arrive at the fire than a general alarm was sounded and the battle began in earnest. No fewer than eleven hose lines were laid and every effort was made to keep the flames confined to the burning building.

Summer Schools.

Minnesota teachers' summer schools are becoming more popular each succeeding year, according to statistics compiled by J. W. Olsen, state superintendent of public instruction. Mr. Olsen reports that, although the number of schools was reduced from 32 in 1903 to 29 in 1904, the enrollment increased from 4,359 to 4,906, and the average daily attendance increased from 3,011 to 3,623. In spite of this increase the cost of maintaining the school fell off from $26,346 to $25,840. The per capita cost fell off from $6.05 to $5.26.

A Novel Scheme.

A sneak who has been operating in the hotels of St. Paul has a novel method of getting into the rooms. He dispenses with the use of jimmies. He asks the clerk for the key to a room. The clerk, believing him to be a guest, gives him the key. A well dressed young man asked for a key to room 63 at the Clarendon and got it. When John Haynes went to his room a suit of clothes and $4 were missing. Several similar thefts in hotels have been reported to the police.

Amusement Park.

The Interurban amusement park, which was originally scheduled to be in operation this summer, will be a certainty for next season, according to a declaration made by the promotor, George W. Porter. He now announces that land has been secured on the Como Interurban line, between Hamline and Minneapolis, but outside the corporate limits of both Minneapolis and St. Paul, and that nothing can interfere with it being in operation at the opening of the outing season next summer.

Butter Score.

First prize in the August scoring of the state butter contest was won by O. Westbig, of Mananah, whose score was 97½; second, by M. Sondegaard, who has won several former prizes, and this time scored 97; third, by Otto Hanson, of Gibbons, with a score of 96½. The samples, as a whole, showed better in this scoring than at any previous time, there having been 32 out of 200 that scored 95 or better.

Capitol Will Be Ready.

The board of capitol commissioners hopes to have the new state capitol ready for the legislature when it meets in January, and will not call on the legislature for any further appropriations. It has about $200,000 left of the last appropriation, and with this amount will be able to complete the work still to be done on the building and the grounds.

News in Brief.

Hunting dogs will not be allowed in townships where there is hog cholera.

Wanderer is selected to represent White Bear at the inland lake regatta.

Forty Minneapolis saloonkeepers are arrested for keeping open on Sunday.

Gov. Van Sant grants the request for the return of Fred B. Havens to Kansas.

A Moral Show.

The question, can a circus be a moral show? has often been asked, and the answer, Yes, has always been given by the many admirers of this wholesome form of entertainment.

The organizers of the Great Floto Shows have answered this question, not by words, but by placing in the circus field the most moral as well as the most instructive show that the minds of successful businnss men could conceive.

Founded upon the strictest business principles and composed of the best acts that money and brains can procure, this wonderful exhibition stands out a living proof that a circus can be made as free from objectionable features as the theater or any other popular place of amusement.

The name circus beautiful will always be a guarantee of beauty, honesty and morality.

IMAGINATION.

Instances Showing How It Has Made Well Men Sick.

The domination of imagination over the normal exercise of the faculties is no new idea. Samuel Rogers suffered from a violent cold from the effects of what he believed to be an open window at his back, which in reality was closed. An instance of this known to the medical faculty is more strange still. Two men stayed at a house in which an inmate had died of cholera. One man placed in the room in which the patient had died was in ignorance of what had occurred. He slept well and was no worse. The other, wrongly told that the room in which he slept was that in which the cholera patient had died, spent a night of mental agony and in the morning was actually found to be suffering from this complaint. He died of cholera.

A similar instance was mentioned the other day by a friend of the writer. Two London men stayed in the country at a house where scarlet fever was reported. One, an unimaginative, healthy minded fellow, awoke all right in the morning. The other, a nervous, sensitive man, was very ill—had not slept and had broken out into a terrible rash which both declared to be scarlet fever. A wire to a London medical man was dispatched, and by the first train he hurried down. The supposed fever patient proved to have no fever at all beyond an imaginary one. As a fact, there was no scarlet fever in the house, the case had been wrongly diagnosed, and the frightened visitor had tortured himself into a violent rash, all without cause.—St. James Gazette.

BASKET BALL.

An American Game With No Uncertainty as to Its Origin.

Basket ball as a recreative game is unique in its origin for two reasons: First, it is our one positively sure home American production; secondly, the name, date and place of its authorship are exactly known. Basket ball was born in the year 1891 at Springfield, Mass., and its author was James Naismith. The story is short enough to be interesting. In that town is a training school connected with the Young Men's Christian association and of course professors, among them a professor of psychology, who is paid to teach the young ideas how to think effectively. In one of his lectures he called attention to certain conditions upon which the brain could with advantage be exercised and challenged his class to supply the requirements to meet them. The conditions were the invention of a new game which could be played indoors in a limited area by a defined and unalterable number of contestants and adaptable to both sexes. Upon this hypothesis one of his pupils, James Naismith, the same night evolved basket ball. It was put into practice the next day experimentally and found to meet the conditions and limitations laid down by the professor admirably. But it had more than an academic value, as its spread as one of our most appreciated pastimes attests.—Illustrated Sporting News.

Fooling the Colonel.

I doubt if the pranks of the present day subaltern are as pluckish as those of his predecessors. I can remember a story that went the rounds some years ago of a daring junior of the Grenadier guards who chaffed his colonel in a fashion that would not be tolerated today. But the colonel was not disposed to deal leniently with him. He kept unusually late, or rather early, hours, so one day an early parade was ordered unexpectedly, and five minutes before the hour the colonel rode past the culprit's quarters.

Cheerfully unconscious of impending doom, the latter leaned out of his bedroom window in the airy garments of sleep to say good morning. The colonel chuckled and rode on, but to his surprise at the stroke of time the subaltern stepped out on parade fully dressed and all in order. He knew of the trap and had donned the looser garment over his uniform to take a rise out of his superior.—London Tatler.

Where Wives Are Pawned.

They have a curious way of utilizing wives and daughters in some parts of India. If a man wants money he puts these members of his establishment in pawn, and his creditor detains them until the debt is discharged. The custom varies in different localities. In Nellore the Yercalls pledge their daughters to creditors, who may either marry them or give them away, and a man who has to go to jail deposits his wife with another man of her tribe until his return. In North Arcot unmarried daughters are frequently mortgaged and become the absolute property of the mortgagee until liquidation.

BURNING A WIDOW.

The Story of a Witness of This Cruel Indian Custom.

I had the opportunity of seeing a young widow burn herself by the side of her deceased husband. The funeral pile was about ten feet high. In the middle of the pile lay her deceased husband, an old and miserable looking man. The devoted victim was a young creature about seventeen, dressed in white, with all her jewels on. There was a confused noise of singing and shouting, intermixed with the sound of tomtoms and at intervals the hollow and sonorous sound of gongs and trumpets. The priests and her friends crowded round her, all speaking to her at once, apparently to distract her attention and to prevent her shrinking at the last moment from sacrificing herself.

There was a small tank of water close to the funeral pile. They led her to this. I was very near her when I saw her quietly take the jewels from her ears, her nose, unclasp her gold bracelets as well as the bangles from her ankles and every ornament she had on, which were received by her relations.

She then stepped into the water, divested herself of her clothes of pure white and replaced them with clothes of a yellow color. She then performed her ablutions, came out of the water and, unassisted, walked three times round the pile, followed by the priests and her friends, who at this period appeared to be more urgent and loud in their discourse to her to distract her attention. She then, unassisted, mounted the pile, laid herself down by the side of her husband and put his head under her arm, turning herself toward him.

Then they sprinkled large quantities of oil and straw on the pile. The fatal fire was then applied, and amid loud shouts and while the fire reached her I distinctly heard her utter the words "Nirva! Nirva!"

I was very near her during the different parts of the ceremony and could have saved her life by merely touching her, as she would then have been defiled and would not have been permitted to have the honor of sacrificing herself.

But in saving her life I stood the chance of being torn to pieces, and I certainly should have been brought to a court martial for disobedience of orders, for the English in those days were strictly forbidden to meddle with the customs and prejudices of the natives.—Georg Ebers' "Memoirs."

PITH AND POINT.

In order to be popular forget to say a good deal.

Wisdom is always conceded to a rich man until he loses his riches.

Do not emphasize your own virtues by enlarging on the failings of others.

A safe way to judge a man is to ascertain just what friends he doesn't make.

A genius is a man who refuses to believe in the impossibilities of other people.

The claims to wisdom of owls and a multitude of men rest upon their looks, and nothing more.

To get rid of a bore ask him to repeat his longest and favorite story twice. Even he cannot stand that.

Only a smart man can conceal from a woman the fact that he isn't as smart as he would wish her to think he is.

One of the curious things about a man who wants to borrow money from you today is his eager determination to repay it tomorrow.

There are three stages in the existence of the average man when he is of particular interest to his community—viz, at his birth, marriage and funeral. —Success.

Another Way Out.

In one of Glasgow's finely laid out cemeteries a rich citizen, who was notorious as a skeptic, had erected a massive mausoleum on what he terms "his ancestral plot." One day he met a worthy elder of the kirk coming away from the vicinity of the imposing mass of masonry, so he said to him, "Weel, Dauvit, ye've been up seein' that gran' erection o' mine?"

"Deed, hiv I, sir."

"Gey strong place that, isn't it? It 'll tak' a man a' his time tae raise out o' yon at the day o' judgment."

"Hoot, ma mon," said David, "ye can gie yerself little fash aboot risin' gin that day comes. They'll tak' the bottom oot of o't tae let ye fa' doon."—Spare Moments.

Forestalling Trouble.

Sam Tate at one time owned a big cotton plantation on the Mississippi river. Once Tate called on the governor of Arkansas and said, "Governor, if you're not too busy this morning I'd like to have a pardon."

"Who for?"

"For myself."

"Ah, for yourself! And what for?"

"Killing a nigger."

"When did you kill him?"

"Oh, I haven't killed him yet—thought I'd get a pardon in advance, so there wouldn't be any trouble about it."

Publicity Has Its Disadvantages.

"You weather prophets make a great many mistakes," said the man who sneers.

"Yes," answered the observer, "and if other people had all their mistakes published in the daily papers as we do I suspect that our record would seem pretty good."—Washington Star.

Two of His Strong Points.

The Young Man—I don't take any credit to myself for being able to spell better than other people can. Spelling is a gift.

Miss Snappeigh—You acquired your modesty, I presume, by diligent application.—Chicago Tribune.

BAKED APPLES.

The Way to Make a Convenient and Delicious Dessert.

The difference between apple sauce stewed quickly over the fire and that baked slowly for several hours in a moderate oven is so great that one could easily believe that different fruits had been used. Each method, if carefully followed, produces a delicious result, and, while some persons have a strong preference for one or the other, to my mind it is difficult to decide which is the better way. Therefore it is well to use both methods, cooking the first apples that come in midsummer by stewing, and later, when the cool days of early autumn make a fire less objectionable, trying the baking.

The dish for baking is as important as that for beans baked properly and also for Indian puddings, and should be the same in style and material. Cut the fruit (and you may use in this way any kind of apples or pears which are too green or hard to use uncooked) into quarters; then remove the cores and skins. Allow one cup of sugar and one-half cup of water to two quarts of fruit. The amount will vary with different apples, and it is important not to use too much sugar, for the long cooking seems to develop the natural sweetness of the fruit. Cover them closely and cook in a slow oven four or five hours or until they have a deep rich red color. If they cook too fast, the steam will cause them to burst and run over the edge and result in a mushy sauce, but a moderate heat, long continued, will leave each quarter distinct in the clear sirup. Let it cool in the pan and turn it out without any stirring of the fruit. This may be poured at once into sterilized jars and sealed the same as canned fruit, if you are not likely to use it all soon. As a sauce for a breakfast or dinner it is acceptable; with cream and hot biscuit for supper it is delicious, and as a filling for pastry shells it is convenient.—Home Science Magazine.

THE CAVE OF GHOSTS.

This Is One of the Wonder Places of New South Wales.

One of the curiosities of Oakley creek, N. S. W., is a cave which very few people care to enter. It is of the usual order of stalactite and stalagmite shapes and figures, but in order to get inside it the visitor must crouch down and squeeze himself through a narrow opening and grope his way in the inky darkness for a few yards till he can stand erect and light a torch.

As soon as he has done this he sees faintly the weird shapes assumed by the water dripping from the limestone and he hears a whirring noise. He feels inclined to make his exit at once, but he hears something moving all round him, and presently something touches him.

He concludes that there are uncanny spirits about, and this sensation is multiplied many times in intensity when on turning to retrace his steps he finds himself confronted by a tall, ghostly figure.

If the visitor has a strong nerve or has been forewarned, which is not always the case, he recognizes that the ghostly figure is a senseless block formed by the dripping from the limestone, and that the moving creatures are bats.

There is one part of the cave which no man has dared to explore. It is called the blowhole. One adventurous visitor was about to squeeze himself through this narrow aperture when it occurred to him to throw a stone through. He did so, listening for the stone to touch bottom, and the dull sound that finally reached him convinced him that there was a sheer drop of 200 feet on the other side of the blowhole.

Condensed For Four Days.

"There was a good old lawyer of the good old southern type," said a judge, "who had a most eloquent way of pleading. His brief for three days had been a marvel of classical allusion and legal erudition.

"The judge, however, became a trifle impatient and, as gently as he could, intimated that the docket was somewhat crowded, and it might be to the client's interest if the lawyer could contrive to end his plea. And, do you know, the old barrister declared that the last four days of his argument were a marvel of condensation."

Critics.

A party of compositors and printers from the country, up for a day's outing in London, visit the National gallery and pause in front of Turner's "Ulysses."

Foreman (to his companions, both lost in admiration)—It's marvelous! All done by hand too!

Born Diplomat.

"What is the matter?" asked his elderly blossom of a customer.

"It's no use!" he cried. "I can never reproduce your loveliness."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

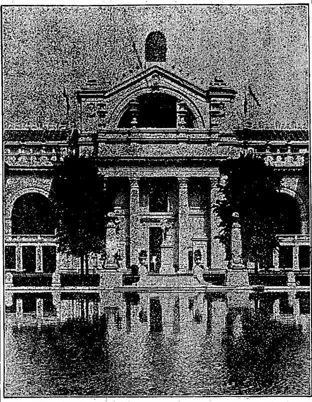
Interesting Facts for Farmers

An Education in Display of the Department of Agriculture at the World's Fair.

In the United States Government building at the World's Fair the department of agriculture occupies a full eighth of the immense floor space. This is in fair proportion to the importance of the industry on which the real wealth of the nation depends. For it is from the soil, from inexhaustible Mother Earth, that vast tribute is drawn year by year, from generation to generation.

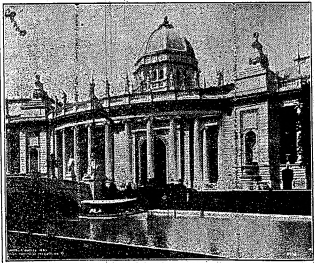


EAST ENTRANCE, PALACE OF ELECTRICITY.

Agriculture not only supplies the food of the people, but it is the foster-mother, direct or indirect, of all our manufacturing industries and commercial enterprises. In recognition of this great truth the government spends lavishly of its revenues for the maintenance of experimental stations and for the constant services of a small army of experts in every department of research that has a bearing on the land and its productiveness. These efforts are focused, so to speak, at the World's Fair in St. Louis, where a magnificent demonstration is given of what the department is accomplishing to aid the farmer, the stock raiser, the lumberman, the fruit grower, and all who derive their livelihood from the soil. If there are enemies to be fought, new methods to be learned, the experience of other nations to be drawn upon, here is the place to come in quest of knowledge.

One of the chief methods adopted to inculcate truths established by experience is the effective one of contrast. The inquirer is invited to look on this picture and on that. In this show case, for example, are apples of a particular kind grown on sandy soil, and side by side are apples of the same kind produced under identical conditions of climate but grown on a heavy clay soil. Even a child, if asked to "take one," will put his hand into the proper box. Again, there are about 50 varieties of strawberries shown by means of models that exactly reproduce size, shape and color. All are excellent, all are marketable. But the problem presented to the grower is—which is the one variety that best suits my climate and my soil? The department helps him to make the decision on which commercial success or failure depends. Once more, the question may arise: "Have I handled my fruit properly?" Look on this box of pears that after gathering were promptly put away for safe keeping, and compare it with the juxtaposed box of the same fruit that had been left carelessly lying around for several days; or contrast the fruit gathered at the proper stage of its ripening with the fruit picked too soon or too late. The difference in each case is so manifest, the market loss so very apparent, that surely such an error, once so convincingly brought home, will never be repeated. Or the packing may be defective—here are oranges that have traveled far without damage, shown as they should be packed; close by are others that are bruised and discolored, simply because they were improperly packed, as the eye guided by contrast can tell at a glance. And so on, and so on. These are merely illustrative examples of scores of telling object-lessons of the same kind.

Perhaps the man of the soil is in search of some product that will thrive in his particular locality, replace an imported luxury, and so afford him a profitable return for his enterprise and industry. The department places at his disposal facts and figures gathered by experts who have traveled all over the world for this very purpose. Ranged in show-cases are many fruits and vegetables all capable of acclimatization in America, some of them in gradual process of successful acclimatization—Jordan almonds from Spain, pistachio nuts from Italy, broad beans from England, truffles from France, Deglet Noor dates from Algeria, mangoes from India, mangosteens from Ceylon, leitchees from China, even a new salad plant from Japan.



SOUTH ENTRANCE, PALACE OF VARIED INDUSTRIES.

What can be done in America to establish or extend their growth? This is a question which intelligent observers who flock to St. Louis from all parts of the United States will answer, and will be aided to answer by inspecting these government exhibits. Again, there are barks for tanning, woods for dyeing, herbs for medicinal purposes, leaves that yield essences, shrubs that give spices, seeds that render oils, roots of commercial value for a variety of uses—all at the present time mainly imported. These are shown in large bulk samples that can be handled and examined, and are accompanied by suggestive hints as to the possible extension of cultivation. Was there ever a more important practical lesson provided for the agriculturists of America?

LIVE STOCK SHOW AT FAIR BREAKS ALL RECORDS.

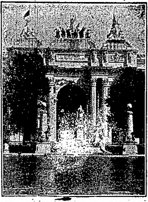
Chief Mills Announces Staff Will Have Charge of Exposition Events from August 22 to November 12—$250,000 in Prizes.

St. Louis, Aug. 15.—Beginning August 22 and continuing until November 12, there will be held on the World's Fair grounds the greatest live stock show in history. More than a quarter of a million dollars have been set apart for prizes and there will be exhibitors from every state in the Union and nearly every nation in the world.

Dates for the exhibition of stock are so arranged that each class will have a season and something will be continuously on display. Horses, asses and mules will be exhibited from Monday, August 22, to Saturday, September 3. Cattle will be exhibited from Monday, September 12, to Saturday, September 24. Sheep and swine will occupy attention from Monday, October 3, to Saturday, October 15. Poultry, pigeons and pet stock will be exhibited from Monday, October 24, to Saturday, November 5. Dogs and cats will be exhibited from Tuesday, October 25, to Friday, October 28. The southern breeding cattle exhibit will continue from Monday, November 7, to Saturday, November 12, and on the same days there will be displays of cattle in carload lots.

Col. Charles F. Mills, chief of the Department of Live Stock of the World's Fair, has completed his selection of the show yard staff. The appointments are as follows: General superintendent, J. B. Dinsmore, of Nebraska; superintendent of horses, O. P. Updegraff, of Kansas; superintendent of cattle, C. R. Thomas, Missouri; superintendent of sheep, John L. Thompson, Indiana; superintendent of swine, George S. Prine, of Iowa; superintendent of poultry, T. E. Orr, Pennsylvania; superintendent of pigeons, H. Tiemann, of Maryland; superintendent of dogs, A. P. Vrodenburgh, of New York; marshal, H. H. Hinds, of Michigan; assistant marshal, A. P. Madden, of Iowa; secretary, Fred H. Rankin, of Illinois.

The men composing the above staff are all widely known in live stock circles throughout the United States, and some of them have been connected with every stock show given in the country in recent years. The Live Stock Forum and judges will be under the immediate protection of the show yard staff and every safeguard against interference with the judge in his examinations will be provided.



WEST ENTRANCE, PALACE OF EDUCATION.

Arrangements have been made by the National Horse Breeders' associations for public sales of horses during the period of the horse show on the Fair grounds. The highest class of horses has been assured for the sale, and there will be no lack of spirited competition from buyers from all the horse-breeding districts of the world.

FAIR MANUFACTURING COINS

Gold Pieces Comparing with California Quarters and Halves Are Made at the Exposition.

The smallest amount of gold that has ever been issued in the form of coins were the quarters and half-dollars issued by private gold producers of California for a few years following the gold finds of '49. These were in a measure a necessity, for the reason that small currency was then decidedly scarce on the Pacific coast. These diminutive gold coins have proved in recent years a decided curiosity to many and have advanced in value to about 500 per cent.

The interest found for these small gold pieces has prompted Farran Zerbe, chief of the World's Fair souvenir coin department, to privately issue gold pieces comparable with the California gold quarters and halves, as companions for the Louisiana souvenir gold dollar. They are coined from gold mined in the Louisiana teritory and in design are typical of the territory and its centennial celebration. The obverse bears a fleur-de-lis with "L. P. E." in the extended points; surrounding are 14 stars representing the 14 Louisiana states and the date 1904. The reverse is inscribed with the fractions ½ or ¼ surrounded by Louisiana gold.

In connection with the Louisiana souvenir gold dollar these diminutive gold pieces are sold at face value, the set of three pieces commanding $3.75, and are obtainable direct from the exposition's coin department. Three dollars, the price originally established for the Louisiana souvenir gold dollar, is and will positively be maintained.

Now if John Johnson was only up against such a cold-blooded proposition as Loren W. Collins—!

AND yet many good men will vote for the incompetent Ray Jones, a self-confessed timber thief, in preference to such a thoroughly competent and manly man as Frederick G. Winston.

GOVERNOR JOHNSON must be relating a page of personal history in saying that "the only way to get to the top of the ladder is to keep on climbing. No man ever got to the top by going to sleep on the first rung."

THE Fairmont Sentinel argues that if the Fairmont young men expended half the energy, time and application trying to get along in the world that they do endeavoring to put a pool ball in the corner pocket there would be fewer failures in life.

PINK ballot boxes and seperate ballots of the same color will be used at the election this fall for the first time under a law passed by the last legislature. The color has been designated for voting on the constitutional amendments for the purpose of attracting attention and getting as full a vote as possible.

THE Democracy of tne state gave the people an object lesson in harmony and good will. There were no distinctions drawn, no factions to appease, no party wounds to heal. Every delegate to the state convention seemed anxious only for a good icket and harmonious action.

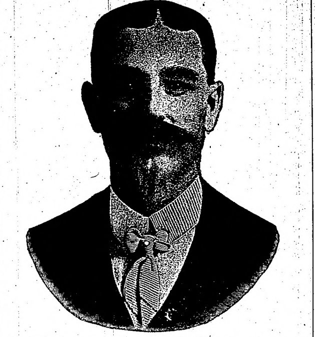
THE Democratic state convention gave the newspaper men more than their share of political honors. Those actively engaged in newspaper work who are on the ticket are John A. Johnson, John E. King, H. E. Hoard, Swan J. Turnblad and A. C. Weiss. Robert C. Dunn, the head of the Republican ticket, is also a country editor.

SCHOOLMASTER MCCLEARY seems to have his hands full down in the Second district. His attempt to read Bert Miller out of the party because Miller espouses tariff revision has aroused the farmers of southern Minnesota to the fact that a tool of eastern corporate interests is out of sympathy with his agricultural constituency.

IT will be a surprise to many people to learn that the latest directory of the city of Chicago shows of a growth of only 10,000 during the past year. Heretofore it has been growing up like a mushroom, piling up hundreds of thousands every year. What has happened to the giant western metropolis?

No Democrat can fail to be proud of Hon. John A. Johnson, their nominee for governor. His personal and political record is clean and no flaws can be found that can reflect upon his ability or integrity. He is a Minnesotan born, an able editor, a convincing orator, and friend and foe alike must acknowledge that he is a lovable and admirable man.

WHY should Wall Street be opposed to Roosevelt? Has he harmed a hair of the trusts? Has he even suggested relief from oppressive tariffs? Has he not, as the Fairmont Sentinel fittingly suggests, "filled his cabinet with the 'splendid slaves' taken from the offices of great corporation?" Can any of our Republican contemporaries give a reason why Wall Street should not be on the side of the Republican party in the present campaign?



At the primaries on September 20, 1904, the Republicans voters of Red Lake county will be required to make a choice and nominate one of four candidate for the very important office of Register of Deeds. Those seeking preferment at their hands are; Helmer E. Albue of Numedal, K. J. Weeks, of Thief River Falls, Charles Ecklund of Bray and Samuel Gibeau, of Lambert, the present incumbent. The necessity of a wise choice in an office of such far reaching possibilities is felt by all unprejudiced voters.

In making his choice, each one should reason that he is asking the voters Red Lake county, to endorse at the polls on November 8th next a man whom, in his estimation, he considers the best fitted and trustworthy, to give in his keeping the records of title of his own landed interests and that of his fellow voters and citizens.

Samuel Gibeau, the present incumbent of the office and candidates for re-election, has proven himself to be a trustworthy, competent and obliging offiicial; always at his post of duty, conversant with the law governing the duties of his office, and especially careful in allowing no defectively drawn instrument to go on record, thereby caring for the titles of the homes of the people and saving possible expensive litigation. His knowledge of the laws of conveyance and his reliability and experience as an abstracter has enabled him to place this important office on a high plane of excellence. His proven ability, his faithful, hard-working disposition, his obiging and courteous service as an official are all qualities which stand unquestioned. The many who have been doing business in his office are all hearty in their praise of his efficient service and stand ready to acknowledge and endorse his administration of the office.

Knowing these facts, and having in mind the past improvement of the records at his hands, ann their future betterment by reason of his experience, each Republican voter should make it his imperative duty to go without fail to the primaries on September 20, 1904, and cast his vote for Samuel Gibeau for Register of Deeds; resting assured that if nominated, his past record and service is your guarantee of a wise choice.

To the Voters of Red Lake County:

As the election day draws nearer the various candidates and politicians are getting busy and earnest in their efforts to land an office for themselves or their friends, and each one putting forth arguments in favor of their candidates. This is as it should be and intends to give the voter a better knowlege as to the competency of the candidate who wants his voter. This is particularly true as to the county officers. The candidates and their friends are now busy enlightening the voters and will keep it up until the election is over.

The most imporant of the county offices is that of register of deeds. Any one who can think for himself, real estate dealer, banker or owner of any real estate in the county, knows the great importance of having the records of deeds, mortgages or any other documents touching the title of any tract of real estate, kept in an absolute correct and thorough manner, whether it applies to the banker or dealer, with his thousands invested. or to the owner of a $25 lot, this is especially true and each one should use his vote and influence to end that a register of deeds be elected who will not only do this work in the proper manner but one who knows when a document offered for record is in proper shape to be recorded and thus avoid the many inconveniences which so often arise through incompetent officers placing on record documents, which being improper, cloud the title of the property and prevent in many instances the giving of a clear abstract of title.

Samuel Gibeau has proven himself to be in every way competent and reliable in performing the duties of the office and is as accommodating as his position, as as a public servant, will allow, Because he has held the office for a long time is the best reason why he should be re-elected, as his experience qualifies him to give the best service—and the public knows that is the kind he gives. The public servant and the private employe are not so far removed and where is the business man who will discharge an employe who is thoroughly competent and employ a new man who knows little or nothing of the work to be done? None would do so except he were forced to reduce the wages paid to a point where the competent man would no longer do the work. This is something that cannot be done with the register of deeds for a new man, however incompetent, will have to be paid according to the rates fixed by the statute, the same as Mr. Gibeau is at present.

In the election of a register of deeds, politics cuts no ffgure with me, and although I am a good Republican, I would just as soon vote for a man from the ranks of any other party if he were competent and I will say that I consider Mr. Gibeau one of the most competent register of deeds I have ever transacted business with in this or any other. I have not paid much attention to who the other candidates are, but so far as I know I prefer to support Mr. Gibeau for re-election and would ask and regard it as a personal favor for every man to get out and work and vote for him.

In writing this article I have no intention of offending any candidate or insinuating against his competency to fill the office. I am not a candidate for any office in Red Lake county, nor do I intend to be, and for that reason I come out as plainly as I do, I know the importance of the office and I know that the man who does his duty best is the cheapest. I know that all I have said herein about Mr. Gibeau is the truth and for these reason I support him for re-election as register of deeds.

JULIUS PLETH.

To the Patrons and Friends of Our Schools.

Summer vacation has drawn to its close. A new school year lies before us. All future is a question, and the future of our schools is a question. What shall the outcome be? That depeuds; Providence permitting, ability faithfully and earnestly answering to duties call assures success. With the opening of a new school year comes new duties for some and the resuming of old duties for others. Your superintendent has his duties, your teachers have their duties, the members of our school board have their duties. patrons and friends have their duties and the pupils have their duties. To secure the best results in our schools we must all of us do our duty at all times. That the people of Red Lake Falls have done their duty in the past is evidenced by the fine showing our schools have already made. But there are greater victories to achieve, and if we succeed we must be even more zealous in the performance of our duties.

Revolutions are generally disastrous, growth is healthful and beneficial. So far as conditions will warrant we shall make no change in the system already established. So far as we see the need we shall make such changes as growth requires. In this and in the prosecutiion of all our work we bespeak the hearty co-operation of all who are in any way interested in the welfare of our schools. In a community of interests the interest of the individual must yield at times to the larger interest of the community. This is often true in school work. The Board of Education and the superintendent look at the work as a whole, while the parent, teachers and pupil look at it from the standpoint of the individual. Viewing the same thing from these two standpoints we often arrive at mistaken conclusions. These are easily righted when we come to view them from the same point. Therefore we solicit conference and co-operation that we may work in harmony.

That we may begin our work with the least possible friction and waste of time, it is thought best to have all the pupils report at the school house on Monday morning at 9 o'clock for enrollment. All will please report at the building and room where they attended at the close of the last school year. Transfers and promotions will be made from there. We will then enroll the pupils, give out lessons and books and dismiss till Tuesday. Those who have never been enrolled and are in doubt as to where they should go may report at the Lafayette school.

If you want to start right and to the best advantage you will be on hand early Monday morning. We will not keep you long, but will dismiss you in time for the parade.

Most of the Ailments Peculiar to the Female Sex are Due to Catarrh of Pelvic Organs.

MRS. M. BRICKNER.

"A short time ago I found my condition very serious, I had headaches, pains in the back, and frequent dizzy spells which grew worse every month. I tried two remedies before Peruna, and was discouraged when I took the first dose, but my courage soon returned. In less than two months my health was restored."—Mrs. M. Brickner.

The reason of so many failures to cure cases similar to the above is the fact that diseases peculiar to the female sex are not commonly recognized as being caused by catarrh.

FEMALE TROUBLE NOT RECOGNIZED AS CATARRH.

Catarrh of one organ is exactly the same as catarrh of any other organ. What will cure catarrh of the head will also cure catarrh of the pelvic organs. Peruna cures these cases simply because it cures the catarrh.

If you have catarrh write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Says Indians Are Cheated.

Owing to numerous complaints received at the Indian bureau that some of the traders on the reservations in Minnesota, Wisconsin, North and South Dakota were overcharging Indians, Secretary Hitchcock is considering a proportion to revoke all traders' licenses and in their stead have general stores, to be conducted by Indian agents. Orders were sent out Tuesday to agents at the reservations to investigate fully and to report upon the advisability of carrying out the proposed order.

POP PARTY OFFICIALLY DEAD

Attorney General Donahower Rules that It Has Lost Standing as Political Organization.

Lawyers, like doctors, sometimes disagree. This time it is on the question as to whether or not the Peoples' party has a right to primaay bellot in Red Lake county. Last week Register of Deeds Gibeau demanded the right to file as a Peoples' party candidate for re-election. Auditor Ford refused to accept the fee or certificate, holding that inasmuch as the party did not cast ten per cent. of the vote at the last general election it had lost the right to a primary ballot.

In order to determine the rights of all concerned and to settle the question, Auditor Ford asked an opinion from both County Attorney Grady and Attorney Donahower. The opinions submitted are directly opposed, the former contending that the Populists have not lost their standing and have a right to a primary ballot, while the attorney general takes the opposite view. Mr. Grady's opinion is a follows:

"In reply to your question of yesterday as to whether or not a person who is otherwise properly qualified can file his affidavit (the fee have been paid) as a Peoples' party candidate, and having his name properly placed upon the primary election ballot in this county tor any county office. After having given this question close attention and reading section 2 of chapter 349 of the laws of 1899, in the light of the decission of our own supreme court in the case of Davidson vs. Hanson, 92 N. W., 93, and taking into consideration the futher fact that the Peoples' party cast more then ten per cent. of the votes of this county at the last generl election, I am of the opinion that any Peoples' party candidate is entitled to hae his name placed upon the primary election ballot by filing his proper affidavit and the payment of the fee. Of course this applies to candidates for county offices of this county."

Attorney General Donahower takes an entirely different view of the situation and declares that the Populists have no standing as a political party, and that they can get into the primary election only by petition. His opinion is as follows:

"Replying to your letter of August 24 will say that the Peoples' party failed to poll ten per cent. of the total vote cast at the last preseding election for its leading candidate, who in this case was their candidate tor governor, for which reason they have lost their standing as a political party under the primary law, and the only way in which the Peoples' party of your county can have a primary ticket is by petitioning the county auditor for the right to have such a primary election ticket, and such petition shall contain the names of at least ten per cent. of the qualified electors of the county. Having complied with the law in this respect they can file under the designation of Peoples' party in the same manner as candidates of other political parties. This is the only manner in which they can get on the primary ballot. Of course they have the right to get upon the general ballot by petition."

Auditor Ford has accepted the opinion of Attorney General Donahower, and as a result no Populist primary ballot will be printed. The attorney general's opinion is the generally accepted view throughout the state, and County Attorney Grady enjoys the unique distinction of being the only attorney in the state who has volunteered an opinion that the Populist party isn't dead bayond the hope of resurrection.

Blackduck American: Several months ago J. A. Bray sent a group photograph of his seven children—a prettier lot which one seldom finds—to President Roosevelt who by the by has six youngsters himself. The act was acknowledged by the President through his secretary by a prettily worded note. Last week Mr. Bray was happily surprised to receive by express a 12x16 photograph of President and Mrs. Roosevelt and their six children. The prize needless to say is highly valued by Mr. and Mrs. Bray.

A Pretty Party.

The Daisy sewing circle entertained last Thursday evening at the residence of Mr. E. L. Healy, in honor of Mrs. Emard, and also in commemoration of the first anniversary of their society.

They have been patiently instructed and assisted by Mrs. Emard at her home, one afternoon, each week during the past year.

The porch was enclosed with curtains, and beautifully decorated on the inside with evergreens, while the outside bore the name of the society in large silver letters, and the word "Welcome" above the door, greeted each member.

Tables were set on the porch, and they were artistically decorated with daisies; each member found her place by means of a card bearing her name, attached to a bunch of daisies lying beside her plate.

Two members escorted Mrs. Emard to the post of honor at the head of the table where she found instead of the daisies, a note of kindest thanks and appreciation for her efforts in their behalf, and also a box containing a lovely silver handled, gold tined, cold meat fork, engraved with her initial and "Daisy Circle."

After partaking of dainty refreshments, they wended their way homeward, each and all having spent a most enjoyable evening.

JAPS THREATEN DRASTIC MEASURES

NOTIFY POWERS THAT THEY WILL SEIZE RUSSIAN SHIPS UNLESS DISARMED.

STRICT NEUTRALITY MUST BE OBSERVED AT SHANGHAI

Delay in Disarmament of the Russian Warships Askold and Grozovoi Is Proving Exasperating to Japanese —Will Not Wait Much Longer.

Washington, Aug. 30.—Japan has addressed a note to the powers informing them that unless Russia forthwith disarms her warships in Shanghai Japan will be "forced to take whatever steps she deems necessary to protect her interests," which declaration is accepted to mean that a Japanese fleet will sail up the river from Woosung and take possession of the Askold and Grozovoi regardless of the American and British interests which may have buildings in range of the Japanese shells.

Mr. Takahira, the Japanese minister, called at the state department Saturday and left with Mr. Adee, acting secretary of state, the communication of the Tokio government.

Simply Giving Fair Warning.

"While Japan hopes," said Mr. Takahira, "that the reported intention of Russia to disarm the Askold and Grozovoi at Shanghai will be executed promptly, my government has felt that it was advisable to inform the powers what must necessarily be its attitude in the event that the disarmament of the Russian ships is delayed. The conditions at Shanghai are peculiar because of the international interests there, and my government is desirous of giving these interests every consideration."

"Will it be necessary to send a Japanese squadron into Shanghai and take away the Russian ships as was done with the Ryeshitelni at Chefoo?" the minister was asked.

"My government has not indicated in its note to the powers," the minister replied, "just what steps will be necessary if the Russian ships are not immediately disarmed. But it should be remembered that the Ryeshitelni was not completely disarmed when seized by the Japanese, and, under the circumstances, her presence in Chefoo was exceedingly disadvantageous to Japan for military reasons."

Still Hopes for Neutrality.

When the Japanese minister called at the state department Saturday he spent some time in conference with Acting Secretary Adee, but, further than to receive the communication, Mr. Adee was careful not to disclose the attitude of this government, although the Japanese minister was assured that the continuation of Chinese neutrality was earnestly hoped for by the United States. The minister told Mr. Adee that Japan had been informed by China that the Russian ships would be disarmed, but, as far as the legation here knew, no official date for this action had been named.

It is understood that a similar note to that presented by Mr. Takahira was also delivered at the various foreign offices by Japan's diplomatic representatives.

The statement is definitely made here that Japan is sincerely desirous that China's neutrality shall be maintained.

Will End Ships' Activity.

The Japanese government, however, feels that if China fails to insist upon the immediate disarmament of the Russian ships at Shanghai her neutrality will have been violated and in a manner so dangerous to Japan's own military interests that Japan will be forced to take such measures as will effectively remove from the stage of activity the Russian ships which have sought refuge in Shanghai.

In state department circles the opinion is expressed that the Russian ships will soon be disarmed, and both at the state and navy departments advices have been received that the incident is regarded in Shanghai as practically closed. It was suggested that the effect of Japan's note probably would be to strengthen the determination of the Chinese officials to maintain the neutrality of the Peking government not only at Shanghai but at other points where an attempt may be made to violate it.

PICNIC SWEPT BY STORM

Three Persons Are Killed and Severa Others Injured in New York Tornado.

Jamestown, N. Y., Aug. 26.—Three persons lost their lives and several others were injured in a tornado that swept through Chautauqua county Thursday. Parkhurst's grove, where the Stocktown picnic was being held, was directly in the path of the storm. Five thousand people were in the grounds when a terrific wind storm swept through the place.

The dead: Mrs. Austin E. Pierce, of Fredonia; Miss Ina Scott, of Shumla; Orin, Dalrymple, 60 years old.

The most seriously injured: Mrs. Orin Dalrymple, of Shumla, will probably die. Arthur Bills, Portland.

The storm came up suddenly. Trees in the grove were struck by lightning, many of them were blown down and the rain fell in torrents. The people who took refuge under the trees at the first sign of the storm were caught by the falling branches and injured. Many horses were killed in the same manner. Some of the animals stampeded, trampling upon the injured people, lying upon the ground. Some of the buildings in the vicinity were blown down and others were unroofed. Hundreds of forest and fruit trees were torn up and corn and oat fields were laid waste, entailing a loss of thousands of dollars.

DEFY THE UNIONS.

Chicago Packers Issue Statement Demanding Unconditional Surrender of Strikers.

Chicago, Aug. 29.—Unconditional surrender, without conference or parley, was the ultimatum served on the stockyards strikers Saturday night in a joint note issued by the packers. By the language of the note all hope of another peace meeting was upset, and the strikers were given the alternative of continuing their idleness or returning to work as individuals in such numbers as the packers might feel justified in employing. Even when the note was issued President Donnelly and members of the executive board of the Butcher Workmen's union were meeting for the purpose of considering a peace proposal which they hoped to be able to present to the packers. Embodied in the tentative proposal were a number of concessions, the nature of which was not revealed. The note of the packers came as a surprise to the union leaders, who had been confident that their terms of surrender at least would be given consideration.

MRS. MAYBRICK ARRIVES.

Famous American Ex-Prisoner Lands at New York City Under an Assumed Name.

New York, Aug. 24.—On board the Red Star line steamer Vaderland, which arrived Tuesday from Antwerp, was Mrs. Florence Chanler Maybrick, recently released from prison in England. Mrs. Maybrick was entered on the passenger list as Mrs. Rose Ingraham, a name which she took from her great-grandparents. This precaution was not designed to evade official inquiry, but merely to avoid annoying observation on the part of fellow passengers. While she made no secret of her presence on board and appeared frequently about the decks and saloon, very few were aware of her identity. She was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Samuel V. Hayden. Mr. Hayden is her attorney.

Mrs. Florence Maybrick left her hotel Wednesday for Ellenville, in the Catskill mountains, where she will remain at the home of Dr. Emmett Densmore for some time.

Kills Wife, Child and Self.

New York, Aug. 24.—George Boyce, his wife Ida and their six-months-old baby were found dead Tuesday night in apartments in a tenement house in West Sixty-seventh street. The police found that all three had been shot to death. A revolver lay on the floor near the body of the man. From this the police believe that the man killed his wife and child and then himself.

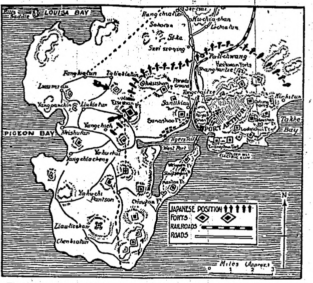
LOCATION OF ETSESHAN AND ANTESHAN FORTS, REPORTED CAPTURED BY JAPANESE.



Etseshan fort, reported captured by the Japanese, is one of the principal defensive works northwest of Port Arthur. It surmounts a hill 465 feet in height, and is about two miles from what is called the new city, located on the northern shore of West Port. This new city is principally occupied by Russians. Another fort that the Japanese were reported to have captured on Monday is called Anteshan, and stands about a mile north of Etseshan. The latter is considered to be the key of Port Arthur. An inner fort called Sungshoo is situated directly east of Etseshan, but military critics believe that the holders of Etseshan can dominate the fortress. In the war of 1894 Etseshan was captured by the brigade of Gen. Nishi, who is now fighting at Port Arthur.

D. B. HILL TO QUIT ACTIVE POLITICS

DECLARES HE WILL RETIRE FROM ARENA WITH THE CLOSE OF THE YEAR.

Former New York Senator Says Result of Coming Campaign Will Not Alter His Decision Although He Will Work for Parker.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 29.—David B. Hill, in conversation with friends here Sunday, announced that he intends to retire from politics January 1, next, and that no matter what the result of the coming campaign may be, state or national, he will relinquish the leadership of the democratic party in New York.

He added that in the event of democratic success this fall he would not accept any position under the national or state democratic administration or again become a candidate for election to any office whatever.

Former Senator Hill made these statements on the eve of his birthday anniversary, which was Monday. He was born August 29, 1843.

Makes Partial Explanation.

In partial explanation he said that he had intended to take such action a year ago, but was persuaded by some close personal friends to defer doing so until after the presidential election this year. Having been engaged in active politics since his youth and having served as city attorney, alderman and mayor of Elmira, member of the legislature, lieutenant governor, governor for seven years and United States senator for six years, he feels that he has been sufficiently honored by his party, and that he has rendered political service during a period of years sufficient to entitle him to be relieved of further active political effort. He desires to devote more time to his personal affairs and professional duties than he has in the past.

Mr. Hill will continue his work in the present campaign, and to his friends said that he would always maintain his interest in democratic success, but only as a private citizen.

Three Persons Drowned.

New York, Aug. 27.—Three persons were drowned in the capsizing of their boat near Edinburg, in the Adirondacks. They were: Adele Sturdevant, of Brooklyn, daughter of a well-known real estate operator; Harris S. Sturdevant, a well-known resident of Rome, N. Y.; James A. Sturdevant, of Brooklyn. The men were Miss Sturdevant's uncles.

Struck by Train.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 29.—Harold Kinkaid, of Oshkosh, Wis., and Guy Cotton, of the state of Washington, were struck by an east-bound Great Northern passenger train near Cedar Lake, Saturday. Cotton was instantly killed and Kinkaid was fatally wounded. He is now in the city hospital here.

Teachers Win Fight.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—The long legal contest waged by the school teachers of Chicago, headed by Miss Catherine Goggin, for the $249,554 held by the board of education from the corporation taxes of 1900 was ended Monday by a decision of Judge Dunne in favor of the school teachers.

Sells Still Alive.

Columbus, O., Aug. 29.—Peter Sells, the veteran showman, who was stricken with partial paralysis, was about the same Saturday. He was sleeping at nine o'clock and slept through the night. He is barely able to recognize the family.

Battleship Launched.

Newport News, Va., Aug. 29.—The battleship Louisiana, sister ship to the Connecticut, being built at the Brooklyn navy yard, was successfully launched at the Newport News shipbuilding yards Saturday.

RESERVOIR DYNAMITED.

Attempt to Blow Up Big Water Basin at St. Mary's, O., Proves Unsuccessful.

St. Mary's, O., Aug. 24.—Before daybreak Tuesday the gates at the head of St. Mary's reservoir were blown up by dynamite. The report of the explosion was heard for miles. The buildings here were shaken and some windows were broken. Intense excitement prevailed, but every precaution was taken to prevent a flood. There are many who consider the reservoir a menace to surrounding farms.

The attempt was made at one o'clock and if it had blown out the entire bulkhead and opened the flood gates hundreds of lives would have been lost as the waters of Lake Mercer would have run out. This bulkhead is the one through which the Miami and Erie canal is fed. Although a large amount of dynamite was used the bank was not broken so as to give away and when the citizens were aroused the place was watched. Bloodhounds are with those in search of the dynamiters, but they have no clew on which to go. This reservoir is the largest artificial body of water in the world and this city is lower than the water, so that intense excitement prevailed here.

SKIN DISEASES THE OUTCROPPING OF BAD BLOOD

And while not always painful are aggravating beyond expression. With few exceptions they are worse in spring and summer when the system begins to thaw out and the skin is reacting and making extra efforts to throw off the poisons that have accumulated during the winter. Then boils and pimples, rashes and eruptions of every conceivable kind make their appearance, and Eczema and Tetter—the twin terrors of skin diseases—Nettle-rash, Poison Oak and Ivy, and such other skin troubles as usually remain quiet during cold weather, break out afresh to torment and distract by their fearful burning, itching and stinging. A course of S. S. S. now will purify and enrich the blood, reinforce and tone up the general system and stimulate the sluggish circulation, thus warding off the diseases common to spring and summer. The skin, with good blood to nourish it, remains smooth and soft and free of all disfiguring eruptions.

I suffered with Eczema of the hands and face for over a year, it was not only annoying and painful but very unsightly, and I disliked to go out in the streets.

I tried at least a dozen soaps and salvse and became very much discouraged until I read in the paper of the cures performed through the use of S. S. S. I had little faith at first but determined to give it a month's fair trial at least. I am pleased to state that I soon noticed a slight improvement, sufficient to decide me to keep it up. After the use of six bottles my skin was as smooth and soft as a baby's. This was a year ago and I have never had any trouble since.

Suffering

Will Not Help Your Disease, but Will Weaken Your Nerves.

JEFFRIES RETAINS THE CHAMPIONSHIP

KNOCKS OUT "JACK" MONROE IN TWO ROUNDS IN BATTLE AT SAN FRANCISCO.

Showing of "Butte Miner" a Disappointment—Latter Protests Against Decision—Big Crowd Witnesses the Contest.

San Francisco, Aug. 27.—Like the veriest amateur in the prize ring, Jack Munroe, of Butte, Mont., went down and out before Champion James J. Jeffries Friday night in the second round. The man from the mining district made such an extremely sorry showing that the great throng in Mechanics' pavilion roundly hooted him as he protested to Referee Graney against the decision that had been given in favor of Jeffries.

The two giants had not been in the ring two minutes when it was foreseen that the aspirations of Munroe would be quickly disposed of. The miner was scared and awkward and Jeffries in the first round had him twice on the canvas taking the count.

Jeffries directed his bombardment against the stomach of his opponent, and each shot was followed by a blow on the jaw that sent Munroe to his knees. Jeffries went back to his corner after the opening round with a sneer and a laugh on his swarthy face, while Munroe's seconds busied themselves with smelling salts and restoratives. When the two came together for the second round the laugh on the champion's visage changed to a look of determination that boded ill to the miner.

Forty-five seconds after the gong sounded Munroe was lying on the floor, a bloody, bruised mass of humanity, with Jeffries standing over him, ready, if necessaray, to put the quietus on the championship ambitions of his adversary. The miner was too dazed to rise to his feet and the timekeepers counted him out.

A great throng witnessed the contest. Estimates of the number in attendance range from 7,000 to 9,000, and it is believed that the gate receipts will approximate $35,000.

The date of its publication has not been determined definitely, but it very likely will be on Monday, September 12.

PENSION ROLL SHORTER.

List Shows Decrease for First Time in Its History—New Age Qualification Rule Satisfactory.

Washington, Aug. 25.—The annual report of the pension commissioner for the year ending June 30, 1904, shows that 47,374 persons were added to the rolls and 49,157 dropped, a net decrease for the first time in the history of the department.

The appropriation for the year was $146,419,296 and the expenditures only $144,712,787, leaving a balance of $1,706,508.

Of the 47,374 persons added to the pension rolls 326 were by special act of congress, and of the 49,157 pensioners who were dropped, death claimed 43,820, of whom 31,728 were soldiers, 30,071 being volunteers of the civil war.

The total number of pensioners on the rolls as covered by the report is 720,315 soldiers, 273,841 widows and dependents, and 606 army nurses.

The report refers to the order issued by the commissioner March 15 last, in which age is made an evidence of disability, and says that in three and a half months of its operation only eight per cent., or 28,806 out of 370,000 pensioners, have asked for increase under its terms. The report says the order introduces no new principle, and "is in the direct line of economy, as it certainly is in the line of precedent."

Less than six per cent of the appropriation of $1,500,000 was used to pay claimants under the order, the balance being turned back into the treasury.

Four Children Drowned.

Cleburne, Tex., Aug. 26.—Four children were drowned Thursday evening by the capsizing of a boat in the Brazos river near Acton, Hood county. The dead: John Franklin, aged nine; Kitty Franklin, aged ten; Joe Franklin, aged eight; B. F. Goodman, aged 12. There were six boys and girls all told in the boat at the time of the disaster. In going down stream one of the boat's oars struck a snag and the vessel immediately turned over. Two boys, names unknown, swam ashore. The bodies of the victims were recovered.

Want Sale Controlled.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 29.—The Canadian Medical association passed a resolution asking the government to control the sale of patent medicines, as most of them contain alcohol, and their pernicious use is becoming a menace to the country. The government was also asked to appoint a federal health board for the ensuing year. Dr. J. Stewart, of Halifax, was elected president and Dr. Elliott, of Toronto, general secretary.

Two Young Men Drowned.

Clinton, Ia., Aug. 25.—Peter Holling, aged 28, and John Otto, aged 35, fell off a skiff Thursday night and were drowned in the Mississippi river.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Saved by the Storm.

Blown into Lake Minnetonka, then lifted out of the water by the wind, hurled through the air and set down with a heavy thump on land thirty-five feet back from the shore line, was the remarkable experience of H. Bigurgen, the engineer of A. C. Loring's launch, in the tornado.

When Bigurgen saw the approach of the storm he rushed down to the dock to make everything safe.

Clinging on for dear life Bigurgen felt the launch lurch violently and then turtle. In the water and almost beneath the boat the engineer had a hard time of it. He kicked himself free and tried to swim ashore, but the waves sent him under time and again, until he was so fatigued that he sank. He went down twice and was thinking it was all over for him when out of the water he was lifted.

A minute later he sat way back on the shore numb and sore. He looked about him bewildered and began rubbing some sore spots, meanwhile wondering whether it were realy true that he was ashore, and, if so, how he got there.

Meets a Panther.

Face to face with death before an enraged panther, which he had wounded, John Drew, a resident of Itasca township near Crookston, miraculously escaped being torn to pieces.

With his wife, Drew set out to pick berries a short distance from their home. Black bears are numerous in section, and Drew took his rifle with him in the hope of killing one. The two picked berries for some time, when Drew noticed a moving object in the bushes near where they were standing. He at once grabbed his rifle and approached within thirty feet of the the animal and fired. Simutaneously with the explosion he heard a loud roar from the direction of the bushes the panther sprang toward him.

The beast passed just over his head, landing in the bushes behind him. He expected another attack, but heard the animal going in the opposite direction through the bushes.

Aid for Schools.

The number of graded schools in Minnesota entitled to the state aid has increased about 25 per cent, and the number of high schools about 12 per cent during the last year.

The state high school board at its meeting at the state capitol approved the applications of 145 graded schools and of 102 high schools for state aid. The board last year granted state aid to 121 graded schools and 151 high schools.

The law relating to state aid for schools provides for a maximum annual aid of $550 for graded schools and of $1500 to high schools, and the last legislature increased the appropriation in hope that each school might receive the maximum aid.

Dragged by a Cow.

With his leg tied to the tail of a cow which he had been milking, D. Gallagher, a farmer living on Winona Ridge, a few miles south of Winona, was dragged through a barbed wire fence and suffered injuries from which he may not recover. The flies had been bothersome and the switching of the cow's tail had tried Mr. Gallagher's patience. In order to put a stop to the trouble he tied the tail to his leg. When he resumed milking, the cow became frightened and dashed through the wire fence. Mr. Gallagher was dragged over the wires and was frightfully cut about the head and face. He was picked up in an unconscious condition.

A Queer Case.

The deputy sheriffs at the St. Louis county jail have in prospect the novel experience of ejecting a prisoner whose term has expired, simply because he will not go of his own accord. His name is John Mattson, and he has just completed a 60-day sentence for smashing windows at Ely. When told he was free, Mattson nodded but did not go, and when again reminded that he was no longer a prisoner he still pretended to not understand. It is said that Mattson has $1,000 in the bank, and the sheriff says he will charge him for his board if he does not get out pretty soon.

Murdered for $500.

The dead body of a camp forman named Carl Pavelka, who had been working for a lumber company operating near Duluth, was found a short distance west of Woodland, a suburb of Duluth. The man had been murdered, and the crime was committed a week or ten days ago.

It is learned the murdered man had $500 when he left Duluth for the camp. His money belt had been ripped open and emptied.

News in Brief.

Minnesota farmers are taking a hand in the protection of game and fish.

James McIlraith has completed work on twelve new bridges in Polk county.

The state labor bureau will make an exhaustive inquiry into labor conditions.

Jacok Moffman, St. Paul balloonist, drops into a lake at Fergus Falls and drowns.

The home rule charter was defeated at a special election at Winona by 359 votes.

A hanging wire on University avenue, St. Paul, swept off the upper works of Dr. Judd Goodrich's automobile, including the steering apparatus, and Dr. Goodrich was left on the runaway machine, apparently with no way of guiding or stopping the machine.

The body of an undentified man about forty years of age was found in the pesthouse, forty rods from the St. Gabriel's hospital, Little Falls. Indications show that he died of natural causes two or three months ago.

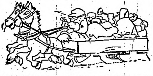
THE BOBSLED.

The old fashioned sleigh, with the box full of hay,
For runners a pair of rough, unpainted bobs:
A steady old team, with just enough steam
To jog down the highway and jolt over knobs,
And huddled together in crisp winter weather
A party of young folks warm, happy and bright—
Oh, that was a pleasure forever to treasure,
To talk about still on a cold winter night!



With blankets and wraps of buffalo perhaps
And plenty of comforts to keep out the frost
You sped down the road a live, joyous load,
Your laughter and shouts in the distant hills lost,
And then when the moon made midnight as noon
The horses turned homeward, the wind might be raw,
But who would complain when each country swain
Was nestled down close to a girl in the straw?

The bright modern sleigh is chipper and gay;
Its outline is graceful, its regular curve
Is pleasant to spy, and as it sweeps by
Behind a swift roadster you pause and observe.
A flash! It is gone, and then you jog on,
And as in the distance its form fades away,
Wherever you are your mind wanders far
To the old fashioned sled with the box full of hay.

Knocks the Romance.

To take a trip aboard a ship
Across the broad Atlantic
And sail and sail through calm and gale
Is said to be romantic,
But when in pain with might and main
Seasickness you are fighting
And long for land on which to stand
The romance goes a-kiting.

Thinking of the Present.

"Johnny, what becomes of little boys who tell lies when they grow up?"

"I don't know, but when they are small they escape half of the lickings."

Its One Advantage.

Oh, love within a cottage
Is certainly all right,
But love within a humble flat
By some is rated to beat that;
There isn't room to fight.

One Advantage.

Perils of the Lumbermen.

A crew of seven men were loosening timbers from the rocks above a great cataract on the River Des Quinze. The nearer they worked to the head of the rapids the more imminent grew their peril. At last the cautious steersman, a half breed named Polson, refused to venture further the lives of his crew. The foolhardy foreman ordered him out, stepped aboard and took Polson's steering paddle. Out from the bank they shot swiftly and down the steep incline. All went well until they wished to turn their boat beside the rocks that blocked the timber when to their consternation the speed of the boat slackened. Managing to point her bow up stream, they rowed with all their strength. For some seconds she never moved. Surely the demon of the rapids had caught them. With pounding heart and panting breath they tugged with all their might and main, but to no purpose. Inch by inch, with increasing rage, he drew them until at last with a deafening roar he hurled them, boat and all, like a javelin, into the very depths of the gigantic caldron of boiling foam.—Arthur Heming in Scribner's.

Fateful Order to Halt.

In less than half an hour my troops would have swept up and over those hills, the possession of which was of such momentous consequence. It is not surprising, with a full realization of the consequences of a halt, that I should have refused at first to obey the order. Not until the third or fourth order of the most peremptory character reached me did I obey. I think I should have risked the consequences of disobedience even then but for the fact that the order to halt was accompanied with the explanation that General Lee, who was several miles away, did not wish to give battle at Gettysburg. It is stated on good authority that General Lee said some time before his death that if Jackson had been there he would have won in this battle a great and possibly decisive victory. I cannot vouch for the truth of this statement, as I did not hear it; but no soldier in a great crisis ever wished more ardently for a deliverer's hand than I wished for one hour of Jackson when I was ordered to halt.—General John B. Gordon in Scribner's.

THE HOME IN FRANCE.

It Is Mainly an Adjunct to Life on the Outside.

The father and mother in Paris eat at home when they do not eat out, but absolutely no informal social intercourse invades the apartment, which is more than anything else a sort of factory in which is produced whatever the family needs for life outside. A vast amount of sewing is done here. French girls of even wealthy parents, after they finish school, attend courses of dressmaking and millinery and to a great extent the industry which turns out the French woman as a model of good dressing, to be followed by the world, is carried on by the women of the family in what would be the home if the French knew the meaning of the word.

A reception day is rigorously kept, and much entertaining at dinner and dejeuner may be done, but always of a formal character. A person having the penetrating qualities of a book agent might venture to try "dropping in" on a French woman on a day when she is not regularly receiving, but in the natural course of ordinary social experience in Paris this would never happen, says Flora McDonald Thompson in Harper's Bazar.

Such order of living readily permits great economy. One has not to waste time, good clothes or house room in daily preparation for the unexpected guest. Six days of the week a French woman may run her sewing machine in the middle of her salon if she likes, secure from the interruption of chance callers. It is said that the chief function of the petit salon of a Paris apartment is to provide storage room for ball gowns which on reception days are taken down from the chandelier and locked up in a bedroom till the guests have departed.

RUN BY MOUSE POWER.

A Thrifty Scotchman's Scheme For Operating His Thread Mills.

Thrift is generally acknowledged to be one of the leading characteristics of the native of Fifeshire, and it never was more forcibly exemplified than in the person of David Hutton, a native of Dunfermline, who actually proved that even mice, those acknowledged pests of mankind, could be made not only to earn their own living, but also to yield a respectable income to their owners.

About the year 1820 this gentleman actually erected a small mill at Dunfermline for the manufacture of thread—a mill worked entirely by mice. It was while visiting Perth prison in 1812 that Mr. Hutton first conceived this remarkable idea of utilizing mouse power. In an old pamphlet of the time, "The Curiosity Coffee Room," he gave an account of the way in which the idea dawned on him. "In the summer of the year 1812," he wrote, "I had occasion to be in Perth, and when inspecting the toys and trinkets that were manufactured by the French prisoners in the depot there my attention was involuntarily attracted by a little toy house, with a wheel in the gable of it that was running rapidly round, impelled by the insignificant gravity of a common house mouse. For 1 shilling I purchased house, mouse and wheel. Inclosing it in a handkerchief, on my journey homeward I was compelled to contemplate its favorite amusement. But how to apply half ounce power, which is the weight of a mouse, to a useful purpose was the difficulty. At length the manufacturing of sewing thread seemed the most practicable."

Mr. Hutton had one mouse that ran the amazing distance of eighteen miles a day, but he proved that an ordinary mouse could run ten and a half miles on an average. A halfpenny's worth of oatmeal was sufficient for its support for thirty-five days, during which it ran 736 half miles. He had actually two mice constantly employed in the making of sewing thread for more than a year. The mouse thread mill was so constructed that the common house mouse was enabled to make atonement to society for past offenses by twisting, twining and reeling from 100 to 120 threads a day, Sundays not excepted. To perform this task the little pedestrian had to run ten and a half miles, and this journey it performed with ease every day. A halfpenny's worth of oatmeal served one of these thread mill culprits for the long period of five weeks. In that time it made 3,350 threads of twenty-five inches, and as a penny was paid to women for every hank made in the ordinary way the mouse at that rate earned ninepence every six weeks, just one farthing a day, or 7s. 6d. a year.

Taking sixpence off for board and allowing 1 shilling for machinery, there was a clear yearly profit from each mouse of 6 shillings. Mr. Hutton firmly intended to apply for the loan of the empty cathedral in Dunfermline, which would have held, he calculated, 10,000 mouse mills, sufficient room being left for keepers and some hundreds of spectators. Death, however, overtook the inventor before this marvelous project could be carried out.—Edinburgh Scotsman.

Sleep Producing Vegetables.

People who are of a sleepless tendency should remember that diet is a most important matter in regard to sleeplessness. A heavy meal will often destroy sleep, and in other cases a too long interval between a meal and bedtime causes great restlessness. A glass of milk sipped slowly while a cracker is eaten is often of benefit. Milk, however, does not agree with everybody. Some people recommend as sleep producing a dish of boiled Spanish onions with butter sauce or onion soup for dinner. Fresh lettuce is also said to be very good for sleeplessness.—Exchange.

Minneapolis, Aug. 30.—Harmony characterized the opening proceedings of the democratic state convention in the International auditorium. The Hearst and anti-Hearst forces locked arms and looked pleasant. Captain W. H. Harries of Caledonia, was elected temporary chairman without opposition, and in a stirring speech he called the attention of the delegates to the opportunity presented in this state. The opening remarks of Chairman Buck also emphasized the need of a strong state ticket, which would command the votes of republicans as well as democrats.

Recess was taken until 2:30 p. m.

At 3:55 this afternoon the democratic state convention succeeded in nominating a candidate for governor.

W. S. Hammond of St. James, in a short, eloquent address, presented the name of John A. Johnson of St. Peter as a candidate for the party, the speaker characterizing him as a man whose party loyalty had never been questioned, who had been faithful in office, whose character and reputation are white and clean.

The nomination was received with great enthusiasm. Delegates rose in their seats, cheering and raising their hats in their enthusiasm. Seconding speeches were made by Frank Brady of Hennepin county, T. J. McDermot, St. Paul, and Martin Hughes of Hibbing.

John A. Johnson is the first candidate for the office of governor of Minnesota who was born in the state.

A committee, consisting of L. A. Rosing, Cannon Falls, Ald. L. Rand of Minneapolis, and C. D. O'Brien of St. Paul, was appointed to wait upon Mr. Johnson and bring him before the convention, after the nomination had been made by acclamation.

John E. King of Red Lake Falls was placed in nomination for secretary of state by T. D. O'Brien of St. Paul, and on motion of a delegate from Mower county the nomination of Mr. King was made unanimous. Lars M. Pond of Minneapolis nominated Thomas J. McDermott of St. Paul for attorney general, and a seconding speech was made by T. D. O'Brien of St. Paul. Mr. McDermott was nominated by acclamation. John W. McCaffery of La Crescent, J. D. Sullivan of St. Cloud and J. M. Hawthorne of St. Paul escorted the nominee to the platform.

Frank A. Day, of Fairmont, nominated Frank Zins, of St. Cloud, for state treasurer, but on the statement of J. D. Sullivan, of St. Cloud, that Mr. Zins' health did not permit him to accept the nomination, his name was withdrawn, and Byron J. Mosier, of Stillwater, was put in nomination.

The following were chosen as presidential electors:

First District—John Frann, Le Roy, Mower county.

Second District—D. D. Murphy, Blue Earth, Faribault county.

Third District—Geo. W. Bachelder, Faribault.

Fourth District—Henry F. Wessel, St. Paul.

Fifth District—T. W. Parsons, Minneapolis.

Sixth District—Jas. D. McKenna, Wadena.

Seventh District—Ray G. Farrington, Ortonville.

Eighth District—A. C. Weis, Duluth.

Ninth District—John E. Olstrom, Warren.

Electors at Large—Swan J. Turnblad, Minneapolis, and Timothy O'Connor, Renville.

R. R. O'Dell of Minneapolis, stirred up a little excitement by placing James J. Hill in nomination for elector at large as opposed to Mr. O'Connor. He dwelt for a time on the good that Mr. Hill had done for Minnesota and the northwest and said that he would occupy the same position on the democratic ticket that Thomas Lowry does on the republican.

Political Pot-Pourri.

Quite a few surprising new alignments have been made in the political situation during the past week, and several new candidates for county office brought out.

O. T. Tandberg, who has been frequently mentioned as a possible independent candidate for county treasurer, has withdrawn from the contest, and will move to Thief River Falls at the end of his term of office and enter the employ of the First National Bank. K. M. Hansen of Thief River has filed for the Democratic nomination and will have no opposition at the primary election. Ovide Moreau of Terrebonne will be the Republican nominee, and an interesting fight for the place is assured.

Paul I. D. Ostby of Emardville has filed for county ouditor on the Republican ticket. He will have no opposition at the primary, but at the general election he will get his money's worth. It is generally conceded that Jim Ford will have at least a thousand votes more than is necessary to elect, and the quest for office on the part of Mr. Ostby is unpromising and well-nigh useless.

Nick Tarrant, the genial judge of probate, will also have a Republican opponent, Nels K. Anderson of Sanders having filed for this position. Mr. Anderson is also sacrificing himself on the altar of an ambition impossible of gratification. However the Republicans are anxious to have a full county ticket, and Messrs. Ostby and Anderson have been induced to file with the understanding that there is no hope of winning.

The greatest political surprise is the announcement that Samuel Gibeau has filed as a Republican candidate for register of deeds. This is a great disappointment to hundreds of Democrats over the county, who have all along counted Mr. Gibeau as one of them. Many Democrats were willing and anxious to support him as an independent, or even as a Populist, but his decision to become a Republican is a slap in the face which the local Democrats will neither countenance nor condone. The Democrats have voted for Mr. Gibeau at the three proceeding elections, and if given an opportunity many of them would have been glad to do so again. Personally we are sorry that Mr. Gibeau has come to the conclusion to align himself with a party to whose principles and doctrines he has been opposed ever since the days of the farmers' alliance movement.

THE COUNTY PRESS.

Thief River Review: Miss Eva Corno, who has been visiting in this city, returned to her home at Red Lake Falls Saturday.

Thief River News: Little Erma Schreiter, who has been visiting at Mrs. Kretzchmar's home, returned to Red Lake Falls last Saturday.

Thief River Review: Frances and Josephine Bourque went to Red Lake Falls Friday for a visit with their sister, Mrs. Herman Bischoff.

Thief River Press: Miss Grace Newbery went to Red Lake Falls yesterday for a week's stay as the guest of Miss Allard. Miss Newbery is making a great canvass for the Minneapolis Tribune world's fair trip, and last Monday ranked second in the state.

Thief River News: The fact that L. C. Simons served in the house of representatives at the last session in a creditable way causes a general feeling to exist that he is entitled to a second term, and he will receive the united support of Red Lake county Republicans. It is to be regretted that he has opposition this year.

Thief River Review: Thos. Germo, candidate for the Republican nomination of county attorney, was in the city the first of the week and stepped into this office for a little chat. Mr. Germo will undoubtedly receive the Republican nomination without any opposition, and he desrves it, too. Two years ago he came within five votes of being elected.

Thief River Review: H. E. Albue, of the town of Numedal, filed Tuesday as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Register of Deeds of Red Lake county. Mr. Albue, who is a life-long republican, has been a resident of the county for many years and is personally acquainted with a large majority of the residents thereof.

Thief River News: Mayor Hanson returned to this city Monday from Minneapolis. He was in Minneapolis Saturday evening when the tornado struck that city, being near the Guarntee Loan building, which was wrecked by the storm. He reports that things were lively for a time and has no desire to see another tornado.

Thief River Press: Wiley Tindolph has been invited by friends at Crookston to chaperon a party of young people, ladies and gentlemen, via steamer, to and from the Red Lake, and is now arranging for transportation. He has selected early September as the time for leaving Thief River Falls, and has engaged six dozen prairie chickens to be delivered on board steamer on the day of departure.

Thief River Press: Mrs. Joe. Grover, of Missoula, Mont., Mrs. Chas. Boughton and son, Charles, came up from Red Lake Falls last Thursday, and in company with Mr. and Mrs. Philip Zeh and son, Philip, proceeded to the Red Lake, where they are now visiting at the J. Jerome home. Mrs. Grover, who is a sister of Emil and Phil Zeh, taught the first school in Red Lake county on the site of the present city of Red Lake Falls, the school house being a little log stucture of the most primitive type.

Thief River Press: S. M. Siverson, manager of the Red Lake Falls milling company, was up to Holt, the first station on the Great Northern extension, yesterday, taking with him the masons and stone required to put up the new elevator at that point. The site has been selected and work is now being done on the building. The track layers are expected to reach the new town within the next ten days, the grade through the swamp in Sec. 16 being nearly completed, the work train will resume operations today.

St. Hilaire Spectator: Anton Peterson, who lives on section seven in Wyandotte, had the misfortune to lose his barn and horses by fire Monday night. The fire caught from an unknown source about 9:30, and four children who were sleeping in the hay loft had a very narrow escape for their lives, being compelled to jump out of the second story window. Four horses were burned besides a large number of chickens, hay tools, feed and harnesses. Mr. Peterson estimates his loss at $600. He had $300 insurance in the Bray Mutual.

Thief River News: During the past few months the Soo contrators have had a considerable amount of amusement over the discomfiture of the Great Northern. The cause of the hilarity was the fact that the Great Norther had been shipping from one to five car loads of men a week to Thief River Falls for railroad work. On the arrival of the men at that place about half of them would start to work for the Soo and the balance would start to work for the Great Northern or for farmers. It seems that the Soo contractors could not secure transportation for men from Duluth or twin cities therefore sent "spotters" to talk to the men that the Great Northern shipped into the county and got a share of them. The result has been very satisfactory for the Soo man but has caused all matter of trouble to the Great Northern.

DEATH OF MRS. PETER KAMM.

Wife of a Prominent Lake Pleasant Farmer Passes Away.

Mrs. Peter Kamm, wife of a prominent farmer living five miles south of town in Lake Pleasant township, died Monday morning of childbirth. The funeral was held Wednesday forenoon from the Presbyterian church in this city.

Mrs. Mary Anna Kamm was born on January 18, 1866, in Woodford county, Illinois. She was married to Peter Kamm on February 4, 1890. The union was blessed with seven children, of whom two have passed to the home beyond.

She was an earnest Christian woman, and a member of the Evangelical church of Washington, Ill. She leaves to mourn her loss a husband and five children, the youngest of which is but two weeks old. Her mother, one brother and a sister also survive her. The family will have the sympathy of a host of friends in their dire affliction.

Young Plants

Every farmer knows that some plants grow better than others. Soil may be the same and seed may seem the same but some plants are weak and others strong.

And that's the way with children. They are like young plants. Same food, same home, same care but some grow big and strong while others stay small and weak.

Scott's Emulsion offers an easy way out of the difficulty. Child weakness often means starvation, not because of lack of food, but because the food does not feed.

Scott's Emulsion really feeds and gives the child growing strength.

Whatever the cause of weakness and failure to grow—Scott's Emulsion seems to find it and set the matter right.

DAIRY DEPARTMENT.

Edited by Geo. L. Austin, Manager of the Red Lake Falls Creamery.

A good dairy cow deserves good feed.

Milk must be clean in order to produce butter of a good flavor.

Operate the hand separator at an average rate and separate milk before it cools.

A cow should never be chased by a dog if you expect to get the best results from her.

Regular hours for feeding and milking go a long way toward making a dairy successful.

A thorough coating of white-wash should prove of advantage in the milk cellar or butter house.

You ought to know every cow that is profitable, and every one that is not. Prepare to feed the unprofitable ones.

Use less coloring in butter, and when cows have been on the grass for some time leave out artifical coloring entirely.

If a cow is fed liberally and fattens instead of increasing in milk she if getting too much to eat or should be sold to the butcher.

In all your plans for an increase of your herd, remember that good stock is just as easy to raise as scrubs, and they look better and sell better.

Look out for the souring of the cream during these warm days. It will only take a few minutes more of care and it will be worth your time and trouble.

Frost does not hurt fodder corn if it is cut inside of two or three days thereafter and shocked, but if you let it go any longer it will sour and will not be fit for feed.

Corn silage is very palatable. All kinds of stock eat it greedily and prefer it to almost anything else. They eat it all up and do not leave even the thick butts of the stalks.

Don't think if your fodder corn is small that it is not only good, for what there is, is a lot of good feed—and some of the very best—for there is a good deal of sugar and starch in it.

You should milk the cow about the same time every morning and evening, and you will get more milk, as irregular milking will spoil any cow. The milking should always be done as quickly as possible.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a ringing sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the muccus surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Preserving Fence Posts.

The Iowa Homestead, in speaking of the means to be taken to preserve fence posts says: "Proper curing is the first step in the successful preserving of timber. Painting or covering of any kind is not effective unless the sap is well dried out. Decay is largely brought about through the fungi, and moisture is very necessary for the growth of these lower organisms. If paint is applied while the wood is still green the coating prevents the cells from drying out, and decay is promoted rather than hindered. An effective material for preventing decay is coal tar. This is largely empolyed by telephone companies and other large corporations for this purpose. The tar is best applied hot, as it then penetrates deeper; the addition of a small amount of turpentine is of assistance in this regard. Professor Green, of the Forestry Department of the Minnesota Agricultural College, recommends the following formula: Three parts coal tar and one part unsalted grease. This prevents the tar from drying too quickly and secures a deeper penetration into the tissue. One barrel of tar will on an average cover 250 posts. Soaking the ends of the posts in kerosene is recommended as a preservative by some. Charring, if carefully done, is also useful. A layer of charcoal is valuable for this purpose, but the work must be done carefully, however, otherwise the ends are apt to crack severely, and the charring does more harm than good."

Fearful Odd Against Him.

Bedridden, alone and destitute. Such, in brief was the condition of an old soldier by the name of J. J. Havens, Versailles, O. For years he was troubled with Kidney disease and neither doctors nor medicines gave him relief. At length he tried Electric Bitters. It put him on his feet in short order and now he testifies. J. A. BUTTON OWNER OF THE BUTTON BUSINESS COLLEGE IS A BUSINESS EXPERT.

KNOWS THE DETAILS OF BUSINESS LIFE FROM A. TO Z. IN A THOROUGH MANNER.

Several Years Ago Congressman Steenerson's Private Secretary. He is Now the Owner of One of the Most Successful Educational Institutions in the West—Results Count.

J. A. Button, of this city, owner, director and guiding influence of the Button Business College and shorthand inestitute and responsible in a large measure for the great success which the venture has attained, is purely and simply a business specialist, an expert so to speak in all of the branches of business life. A stenographer of remarkable speed and an accountant whose services have been called in many complicated cases to adjust matters in connection with complicated bookkeeping. Mr. Button has forged his way to the front from small beginnings. Several years ago he was Congressman Steenerson's privatesecretary. He became imbued with the idea of starting a class in shorthand to fill in his spare hours in the evening. He received a dozen replies from an advertisement inserted in a Crookston paper and organized his class. A back room in one of the down town blocks was utilzed by one class and their instructor, and learning in the various branches proceeded at such a favorable rate that soon all of the dozen were scattered about the city in good positions as stenographers and bookkeepers. Mr. Button made from the class $80 per month and found the venture so profitable and the placing of graduated pupils so easy that he began the organization of his present large and well equipped college. His success with his early classes was so great and the testimonial from the pupils who had received instructions from him were so pronounced that in a very short time "Buttons" college was the mecca of the instruction seeking population of the northwest. Young men and women from all portions of the valley flocked into the city to prepare themselves for business life under Mr. Button's able and efficient direction. They worked hard, mastered their work. and are today, everyone of them, except the laggards, holding down good positions of trust throughout the states of North and South Dakota, and Minnesota. And furthermore, wherever a gradutate of the Button college secured a position, more applications for entrance were heard from. The employers of the graduates praised the work of their bookkeepers and stenographers and the gradutes in turn praised the school which had done so much for them and left them in a position to command the respect and attention of the business world as business men and women. News flies and young men and women yet yearning for instruction in the grandest of all vocations, "actual business," wrote to the Button college. They received cordial replies to their letters and hundreds entered the institution, Today they too are out in the world, expert accountants and bookkeepers, stenographers of the first grade.

Mr. Button is purely and simply a specialist. In order to do a thing well in this age, according to a well known writer, a man or women must devote all of his or her energy and time to one thing. That is precisely what J. A. Button, the owner of the Button business College, has done. He has been employed in business offices and mingled with business interests since knee high and has mastered exery detail of the business world. Further than that he has acquired a knack of teaching which is rarely met with in the world. He expects pupils to do their share, but is tireless in his endeavors to lend assistance to those who receive instruction from him. During his past few years of business life in this city he has devoted all of his energies and all of his time to "business" and his system of teaching. He has perfected crude and bookworn methods according to his own idea of teaching and the result is a school in which "laggards" and "drones" are rarely met with. His graduates are in demand and procure positions at very good wages through out the entire northwest. Mr. Button has at the present time a large number of applications for bookkeepers and stenographers particularly from banking institutions throughout the northwest and every pupil who pursues his or her work at the school this fall and winter in a faithful manner, will be rewarded with a position of trust. Mr. Button posts a forfeit at the Scandia American bank in this city which insures his pupils a position, providing of course that they pursue their college studies in a faithful manner. He is well known throughout the northwest and is in a position, owing to his intimacy with professional and business men generally, to place all his pupils in profitable positions.

He guarantees positions. If his system of instruction was not the best possible he could not afford to issue any form of guarantee. No other college of business and shorthand in the west issues a similar guarantee and it is only made possible by the thorough manner in which the Button college takes up the various branches and the intimacy which Mr. Button has with the prominent business houses and banks of the northwest.—Crookston Journal.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: It is always safe to tell a woman how much you love her, even if she knows you don't.

Most people would rather be wrong and argue about it than right and have nobody dispute it.

It's a funny thing, but the average mother always plans to marry her daughter to a penniless preacher or a millionaire.

Men take politics as seriously as women do cooking lessons.

Rather than not be married at all a girl would rather be her own grandmother.

It would make a woman terribly ashamed to go to bed in as low-necked gowns as she goes to dinner in.

When a woman has big feet and isn't ashamed of them it is a sign she thinks they are in proportion.

A girl has an awful lot of sentiment to keep a man's photograph in a bureau drawer with her combings and powder puff.

THE FULL PLATFORM

DECLARATION OF PRINCIPLES ADOPTED AT MINNEAPOLIS CONVENTION.

The following is the full platform adopted by the Democratic state convention at its meeting in Minneapolis:

We abide in the spirit of the Constitution and the Declaration of Independence; the great historic principles of the Democratic party—equal rights for all and special privileges to none.

We pledge our allegiance to the candidates and platform adopted by the Democratic national convention; we rejoice in the promise therein given to restore constitutional government and to return to the ways of peace.

We approve the bold and clear declaration in the national platform for the revision of the tariff; we urge tariff conventions with Canada, and we especially demand that the tariff on coal and lumber be at once abolished.

We cordially concur in the motion to equip with adequate powers the interstate commerce commission that it may establish just and reasonable rates, both to relieve citizens from extortion and to protect them from discrimination, by which chiefly the trusts overcome competition and by favor of the tariff fatten on the community.

That justice may be speedy, decisions of this tribunal should have force immediately, pending appeal.

Private monopoly must be extinguished for the independence of the individual and for the safety of the republic. Efficient control will either compass its extinction or prepare the way for the only remaining alternative—public ownership.

We demand that the state railroad commission, which is clothed with ample authority to put into effect just rates, shall exercise in their full vigor the powers conferred on them by law.

The law forbidding merger of competing lines of railway should be enforced against every offender.

WANT RATES READJUSTED TO STOP DISCRIMINATION.

We demand a readjustment of distribution rates that will do away with discrimination against Minnesota shippers in favor of shippers from outside states.

Contributions by public service corporations of money to political campaign funds can only be made for the purpose of receiving or retaining privileges or immunities detrimental to the public weal. And such practice, now scandalously general, is inimical to fair legislation, fair interpretation and fair administration of the law.

The Democratic party therefore pledges itself to the enactment of laws prohibiting such abuses.

We are in favor of the adoption of the constitutional amendment permitting the passage of a law increasing the gross earnings tax from 3 to 4 per cent.

We favor the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people.

We believe in the right of labor to organize and condemn as un-American any denial of such rights.

Believing that the judiciary should be removed from the turmoil and trading of partisan politics we demand of the legislature the enactment of such laws as shall insure the selection of judges without regard to party.

We demand of our public servants equal enforcement of the laws; and we hold the candidates of our opponents to be judged on their records, by which they have been found wanting.

We declare that it is only too plainly apparent that the railroad and lumber interests of Minnesota completely captured the late Republican state convention and dictated its nominees.

We favor the enactment of such laws as will provide a just and equitable system under which the common roads of the state shall be improved for the benefit of all the people of the state.

We lay upon ourselves the duty of high fidelity to the claims of citizenship and summon to join us in defending these principles all men who love loyalty to the law and to the community.

CAUSED LIVELY COMMOTION.

Superior (Wis) Man Deranged in a New York Hotel.

New York, Aug. 31.—A young man who registered as Arthur F. Millard of South Superior, Wis., created much excitement in a Broadway hotel before he was overpowered by the police.

After barricading himself in his room on the fourth floor Millard aroused the hotel by his cries and by throwing furniture about the room and out of the window onto the dining-room and office skylight below. The police had to chop in his door with an axe and one of the officers was stabbed before the man was arrested. The commotion lasted half an hour.

Millard is about twenty-five years old. He was well dressed and seemed well supplied with money.

SPUDS WILL BE CHEAP.

Potatoes are Plentiful and the Price is Very Low.

The indications throughout the country are for a big crop of potatoes and of very good quality, and there does not appear to be any mise of much better than common prices. C. E. Healy & Co., of Minneapolis are quoted as saying: "The crop of potatoes in Minnesota is going to be one of the largest we have yet had, providing, of course, conditions continue favorable. The early crop is now being marketed, receipts at Minneapolis proper from seven to twelve cars daily; the regular potato territory will not open much before September 1st. The acreage is much larger than last year, and unless something unforseen occurs, we will experience another year such as we had in 1895, with prices from ten to fifteen cents per bushel."

If there is any slump in the market it will not come until late. The potato market is always a hard one to determine, and it is governed by many conditions. The Minnesota potato is always head and shoulders in quality above those of any other section and will sell at a few cents advance over any other potatoes. But in a market flooded with potatoes, quality doesn't cut such a great figure.

The Grand Jury System.

St. James Journal: At the coming general election an amendment to the state constitution will be submitted to the people, which provides for abolishing the grand jury system. The grand jury system doubtless has its faults. but it is very doubtful if any other system likely to be adopted would prove more satisfactory. One thing is certain—grand jurys have been terrors to boodlers in this and other states during the past two or three years. We have no doubt that there are in the state prisons of Minnesota and Missouri many who have a very poor opinion of the grand jury system.

CLASH OF TRAINS DUE TO NEGLECT

CREW FAILS TO OBEY ORDERS AND DISASTER FOLLOWS ON GRAND TRUNK ROAD.

Collision on a Curve Near Richmond, Quebec—Nine Persons Are Killed and Twenty-Three Others Are Injured.

Montreal, Que., Sept. 1.—Nine persons were killed and 23 others injured in a head-on collision on the Grand Trunk railway near Richmond, Que., Wednesday. Trains involved were a special excursion from Montreal bound for Sherbrooke and passenger train No. 5, running between Island Pond, Vt., and Montreal. The collision, it is claimed, was due to neglect to obey orders on the part of the train crew of the excursion train, which left Richmond without awaiting the arrival of the passenger train.

The Dead.

Following is the official list of those killed: J. B. Blanchett, M. P., St. Hyacinthe; Fred Bowring, South Durham; T. H. Hackett, Montreal; unknown man from Beloeil, P. O.; W. T. Mountain, of Montreal; boy named Dubford, from Athabaska; Ephraim Gaudette, St. Theodore de Acton; Charles A. Samford, St. Hyacinth, and A. Theodore Richard, Lisgar, Que.

The excursion train was running as the first section of the regular Grand Trunk Portland express, which usually crosses the Island Pond train at Richmond, and was running on its time. This makes it all the more inexplicable why Conductor Atkinson, in charge of the excursion train, did not wait to make the usual crossing. Atkinson disappeared shortly after the wreck occurred.

Met on a Curve.

The excursion train, made up of ten coaches and a baggage car, carried about 1,000 persons bound for the exhibition at Sherbrooke. The Island Pond train was composed of five coaches and a baggage car and had only a small number of passengers. The excursion train had barely cleared the Richmond yard when, rounding a curve, it met the Island Pond train running at a high rate of speed. The engineers reversed and, with their firemen, jumped and escaped with minor injuries. The shock of the collision was plainly heard in Richmond, more than a mile away.

Both engines were locked firmly together. The baggage car of the excursion train was picked up and dropped on top of the car following it, a smoker, and it was in these two cars that the greater number of fatalities occurred.

SIX PERISH BY FIRE.

Terrible Result of Explosion of an Oil Tank at Yellow Creek, W. Va.

Yellow Creek, W. Va., Sept. 3.—Six persons were burned to death and three terribly injured by a fire and oil explosion here. The dead: Henry S. Fling, Mrs. Henry S. Fling, Miss Eunice Fling, Dorsey Fling, George Fish, a rig builder; Clint Moore, a barber. The house of Fling was fired by a street lamp and the intense heat set fire to the rig of an oil well near the house. The flames destroyed the derrick and communicated to the tank which was full of oil. Before the occupants of the house realized their danger a terrific explosion occurred. The blazing oil was thrown all over the house and their escape was cut off. The bodies were recovered after the fire was subdued.

Sunday School Statistics.

St. Louis, Sept. 2.—The report compiled and just issued by W. J. Semelroth, of St. Louis, chief secretary for the world's fourth Sunday school convention, held at Jerusalem in April of this year, shows a total of 260,995 Protestant Sabbath schools, 2,414,757 teachers and 23,442,998 scholars in Europe, Asia, Africa, North and South America and the islands of the seas. The United States leads with 139,817 Sunday schools, 1,419,807 teachers and 11,493,591 enrolled scholars. Greece, the lowest on the list, has only four schools, seven teachers and 180 scholars.

A Probable Lynching.

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 1.—A special to the Commercial-Appeal from Vance, Miss., says that a sheriff's posse is searching for Hammond Dickie, a white man, who, it is alleged, criminally assaulted a nine-year-old negro girl there Wednesday. There are open threats of lynching Dickie if he is apprehended.

Fire Was Accidental.

Constantinople, Sept. 2.—An investigation proves that the fire which destroyed the American school for boys at Erzeroum, Asiatic Turkey, August 29, was accidental. The school belonged to the American board of commissioners for foreign missions.

The Public Debt.

Washington, Sept. 2.—The monthly statement of the public debt shows that at the close of business August 31, 1904, the total debt, less cash in the treasury, amounted to $987,393,382, an increase for the month of $6,611,969.

Vesuvius Again Active.

Naples, Sept. 3.—Mount Vesuvius is again in activity. Flames, ashes and stones are rising from it to a considerable height and a wide stream of lava is issuing from the crater.

To Succeed Judge Parker.

New York, Sept. 2.—Judge Edgar M. Cullen, of Brooklyn, has been appointed chief judge of the court of appeals by Gov. Odell, succeeding Judge Alton B. Parker, resigned.

GOVERNOR JOHNSON alleges in his St. Peter Herald that he "did not contract the itch for office, but got in the track of a contagious disease, largely epidemic at this time of the year."

THE St. Peter Herald announces that for the next two months, during the campaign, Mr. John A. Johnson will retire from the editorial management of that paper. Nothing will appear from his pen except over his own signature.

THE Democrats of Polk county have placed practically a full ticket in the field. Among the candidates known to Red Lake county people are A. J. Sauve, for register of deeds; I. I. Kaasa, for county superintendent; T. H. McManus, for treasurer; and Remi Fortier, for commissioner.

HALVOR STEENERSON was elected on a Democratic platform two years ago, but he has changed his tactics since then. Halvor's recantation reminds us of a Democratic congressman from the South who was so independent that he frequently voted contrary to his party creed. He sn't in congress now.

THE state banks of Minnesota continue to make a good showing. According to Bank Examiner S. T. Johnson's report for period ending July 15, 1904, there were 326 banks as compared with 266 for the same period last year, an increase of 60. The resources for 1904 were $56,428,584.79 against $54,304,878.89 for 1903, an increase of $2,123,705.90. That is very satisfactory.

The election of Frank A. Day as chairman of the Democratic state central committee and active manager of the campaign is a master stroke. Frank Day knows more people than any other politician in the state, and he is an honorable and upright citizen who believes that the same kind of honesty and integrity governing the business world should apply to politics. The Democratic campaign will be spirited and dignified under Mr. Day's guidance.

THE Democrats of the Sixth district seems to be confident of electing a congressman this year. They have put forward Hon. Cleve W. VanDyke, of Alexandria, a brainy, popular and honorable man—a man who would add dignity and luster to the lower house. Mr. VanDyke stands for a lower tariff, reciprocity with Canada, free lumber and better government generally. If the voters do not prefer VanDyke to Buckman they certainly are not alive to their own interests.

THE reception given to Hon. John A. Johnson by the citizens of his home town of St. Peter last Thursday night shows that the Democratic candidate for governor is held in highest esteem by his friends and neighbors. The affair was non-partizan and Republicans vied with Democrats in saying good words for John. Those who know Johnson, and this applies to a large proportion of Red Lake county voters, can readily understand why he should be loved by those who know him best. His is a magnetic personality, and his daily life exemplifies the highest ideals of American manhood and citizenship.

Claims Too Much Glory.

The Thief River Review takes to itself more credit for saving the county's money than is warranted by the facts. This undue elation arises because of the fact that the Review's bid for printing the election ballots was only a few dollars higher than the bid of THE COURIER. In order to keep the record straight it is not out of place to add that THE COURIER's bid was prepared several days before this paper had the least intimation that the Review intended to submit a bid on the work.

The fact that the ballots this year will cost considerably less than half the price paid two years ago is a matter of coegratulation to the taxpayers and to the county officials who have in charge the letting of printing contracts, but the Review is rather presumptuous in claiming all the credit for the saving. Two years ago no bids were called for, and THE COURIER was given to understand that no figures from this office would be considered.

THE COURIER has never offered a bid to the board of county commissioners or to any one which was knowingly in excess of a fair and legitimate charge. The bid for county ballots this year would have been no more nor less even though the Thief River Review had not been in existence.

Sheriff Daniel Linnihan

Daniel Linnihan, the present efficient sheriff of Red Lake county, is a candidate for re-election, and his chances are decidedly flattering. He has made a capable and obliging officer, is an old resident of the county, and the fact that he has served only part of one term will enlist hundreds of voters in his cause from other parties.

Mr. Linnihan was born in 1862 in Juneau county, Wisconsin. He came with his parents to Minnesota in 1866, locating on a farm near New Richland, Waseca county. Mr. Linnihan came to Red Lake county in 1882, and has resided here continuously since that time. He has been a member of the city council in Red Lake Falls, and has always been prominent in public affairs. On the death of Sheriff Sampson in 1903 Mr. Linnihan was elected by the board of county commissioners to fill the vacancy, and has filled the position so well that there is little question of his re-election. He has filed for the Democratic nomination at the primary election and has no opposition for the nomination.

Mr. Linnihan has demonstrated his worth as an official, and is deserving of the vote and support of the voters of the county.

Political Pot-Pourri.

It is stated that John Deforge, street commissioner of Red Lake Falls, will be an independent candidate for county commissioner, and will circulate his petition in a few days.

Judge Tarrant and Auditor Ford will have reason to be disappointed if their majorities do not run as high as a thousand. They are running so close that it is hard to tell which will have the longer lead.

Had it been known earlier in the campaign that Treasurer Tandberg would not again make the race it is safe to say that there would have been quite a field of candidates in both the Republican and Democratic parties.

H. T. McAnulty is circulating a petition with a view to becoming an independent candidate for county superintendent. Although an independent candidate obviously is handicapped, Mr. McAnulty has many friends throughout the county and will make a strong run for the position.

The farmers are going to be very busy on September 20—primary election day—and the chances are there will be an exceptionally light vote in the country. The candidate who carries Red Lake Falls, St. Hilaire and Thief River by a good majority is practically assured of the nomination.

The primary election occurs on September 20—a week from next Tuesday. Owing to the fact that there is no contest for any of the offices the Democratic primary promises to excite but little interest. The same is true of the Republican side of the house, unless the various candidates for register of deeds arouse enough interest to get out a good vote.

K. M. Hausen's candidacy for county treasurer is attracting a lot of attention and his chances for election appear to be very good. A prominent citizen of Thief River predicts that in that city there will not be fifty votes cast against Kar[illegible], and all of the north towns will go strongly for him. In Red Lake Falls Mr. Hausen is well and favorably known and will get a large vote.

The Democratic [illegible] will be harmonious, as there is no contest for any of the nominations. This is also true of the Republican primary, with the exception of register of deeds, for which position there is a field of four candidates: viz: K. J. Weeks, Samuel Gibeau, Chas. Ecklund and H. E. Albue. This place will be warmly contested, and it is too early for predictions as to the outcome.

"The Mapleton Enterprise has the following kindly mention of Thomas Germo's candidacy for county attorney:

"Thos. Germo, formerly of Medo, this county, is after the nomination for county attorney of Red Lake county and will undoubtebly secure it. Mr. Germo was the nominee of the party two years ago and came within five votes of being elected. Mr. Germo is number one man and if his friends in Blue earth county could vote there would be no doubt of the result."

The editor of the COURIER would be ungrateful indeed if he failed to extend thanks to the county press for the cordial mentions respecting his nomination by the Democratic state convention for secretary of state. Our experience in the role of a canddate is not extensive, but the many expressions of good will by Republicans as well as Democrats is deeply appreciated; and we trust that nothing will be said or done on our part during the campaign to cause any of our good friends to rescind the kind words spoken in our behalf.

O. T. Tandberg, who has decided to retire from politics at the close of his term as county treasurer, has held the office for six years, and will leave with the friendship of every man who knows him. Mr. Tandberg has made a model official, and had he decided to make the race again would undoubtedly have been re-elected by a large majority. At the previous elections his majorities have run from 800 to 1200, and in each election he has been opposed by the strongest men the Republican party could put forward. Mr. Tandberg will become cashier of the First National Bank at Thief River at the expiration of his term, and he has every qualification to fill that important post with ability and satisfaction. Red Lake Falls people one and all will be sorry to hear of the removal of this estimable [illegible]

There is no Democratic candidate for the legislature in this district, but there will be a primary fight in the Republican party between Hon. L. C. Simons, the present member, and Dr. L. L. Mayland of Bagley, with the chances favoring Mr. Simons very largely. Red Lake county people naturally will prefer Mr. Simons, since he has made an acceptable record as a legislator and his experience will add to his value at the coming session. The only paper in the district in opposition to him is the Bemidji Pioneer, and reports from Beltrami county go to show that the Republican voters over there by no means endorse the attitude of that paper, as practically all of the prominent workers of the party as well as the rank and file of the voters are satisfied with Mr. Simons and will vote to give him a second term. Along this line the Bemidji Sentinel says: "Senator Swedback takes great pleasure in telling his friends of the splendid character of his fellow member in the legislative body, in the lower house, the Hon. L. C. Simon, and of the hard work he undertook and carried through in the interest of the state and of his constituency. Senator Swedback thinks very highly of Mr. Simons as a legislator and a man."

Westward the orb of glory takes its way,
Wisconsin is the state, you hear everybody say,
It's made itself famous by one great stride;
Rocky Mountain Tea has made its name world wide. A. L. Reichert.

Which is Sarcasm.

In Congressman McCleary's latest speech he repeats his test of lumber prices, showing that a barn costing $526.90 at Winnipeg could be duplicated for $441.03 at Windom, Minn. This gives the Sioux City Tribune some trouble. If lumber is higher in Canada says the Iowa editor, than why protest against a removal of the fariff?

The question is ridiculously easy. If we take down the bars and let the high-priced lumber from Canada across our border, it would demoralize our market. Low priced lumber of the United States must be protected from such ruinous competition. The farmer, too, must be protected against the high prices of Manitoba.

Nothing is simpler than the tariff question, when it is approached intelligently.—Minneapolis Journal.

Forty Years of Error.

It took forty years before elastic cushions under mining stamps for crushing stone gave place to solid masses of iron, and during all of this time at least one-half of the applied energy was wasted. CURES STOMACH TROUBLES

THE body gets its life from food properly digested. Healthy digestion means pure blood for the body, but stomach troubles arise from carelessness in eating and stomach disorders upset the entire system. Thedford's Black-Draught cures dyspepsia. It frees the stomach and bowels of congested matter and gives the stomach new life. The stomach is quickly invigorated and the natural stimulation results in a good appetite, with the power to thoroughly digest food.

You can build up your stomach with this mild and natural remedy. Try Thedford's Black-Draught today. You can buy a package from your dealer for 25c. If he does not keep it, send the money to The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., and a package will be mailed you.

C. D. TAYLOR.

C. D. Taylor, Clerk of the City Board of Health of Jacksonville, Fla., has occupied that position for the last ten years. In a recent letter to the Peruna Drug Mfg. Co., he expresses his approval of their famous catarrh remedy Peruna in the following words:

"The health of the poor of a large city is always a question of vital interest not only to the city officials but to every citizen. It has been a source of much satisfaction to me to find that so large a number of working people in moderate circumstances have accepted Peruna as their family medicine. It has cured a large number of cases especially of catarrh of the head, lungs and stomach and building up the general health it cannot fail but prove a help and blessing to any community where it is generally adopted and used. I have found it an honest reliable remedy and am pleased to endorse it."—C. D. Taylor, Clerk, Board of Health.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

The Floto people expect to be here again next year, and they can be assured of a liberal patronage.

W. S. Day, of the Bovey-Shute Lumber company, has been in town several days of this week. His company has erected offices and will soon be ready for business at the new towns of Brooks and Scotland. At the former town Antoine Dion of Poplar River will be the agent, while at Scotland A. Alrich of McIntosh will have charge of the company's yards.

The busy season is at hand again, and the stores are open in the evening and both clerks and employers must forego for a time the pleasant evenings they have been privileged to enjoy during the summer season. It is hoped that "after the rush" the early closing custom may be renewed, for it is certainly better so for all concerned whenever it is practicable.

R. H. Bourdon has again been engaged by the Soo engineering corps and expects to commence work next Monday. Just what the Soo has "up its sleeve" is hard to determine, but many knowing ones argue that a line from Red Lake county into North Dakota is projected and that work will commence early in the spring. There seems to be no question but that the Soo is after a share of the northwestern trade and intends to tap much new territory in the near future.

C. L. Hansen of Crookston, the popular agent for the Watkins remedies, has been in Red Lake county during the past few days. Mr. Hanson does a little land business on the side, and this week closed one of the largest deals made in Red Lake county this year. He sold all of section 36, Sanders township, to S. C. Johnson, of LeMars, Iowa, the consideration being $15,500. Mr. Johnson is a practical farmer and intends moving up here this fall and taking possession of the farm. Mr. Hansen made a trip to Denmark, his old home, this summer, and says he had a most delightful vacation.

The new fall arrivals of clothing and furnishings at the Surprise store are practically all here, and this popular men's outfitting establishment is better than ever equipped to serve its patrons with the most stylish and durable goods. Messrs. Berthon & Armstrong recently celebrated the second anniversary of the establishment of their store, and at the present time carry nearly three times as large a stock of goods. They have demonstrated that a live, up-to-date clothing establishment is a good thing for them and for Red Lake Falls. A special invitation is extend to everybody to call and look over their fall and winter goods. They will take the same pleasure in showing you over the store whether you wish to buy or not.

Ceylon Has Rare Exhibit

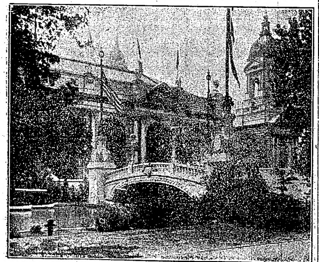
"The Eden of Eastern Wave" Well Represented at the St. Louis Exposition.

One of the most picturesque pavilions in the World's Fair grounds is that erected by the government of Ceylon. Externally, it is a reproduction of the famous Buddhist "Temple of the Tooth," at Kandy, in the center of the island, where a traditional relic of the great oriental teacher has been enshrined for many hundreds of years and to this day draws devotees from all parts of Asia. Internally, the building is adapted for a display of Ceylon's commercial products, artistic manufactures, and ethnological and archaeological curios.

The broad and cool verandas are a favorite place of resort, for here fragrant tea is served by deft-fingered and softly-moving Cingalese waiters, garbed in their picturesque native costume—white robe, crimson sash, and tortoise-shell comb to confine the long flowing tresses. But the sightseer, rested and refreshed, should not depart without a visit to the upper story of the building, where he will find himself transported to the orient, surrounded by objects of rare beauty and fascinating interest, wandering for a spell in the beauteous isle that has been so aply named "the Eden of the Eastern Wave."

FAMILY OF MOROS AT HOME.

But, after all, the Ceylon with which most of us are concerned is the white man's Ceylon—the country where tea is produced by the hundred million pounds and forms the basis of a thriving and world-wide commerce. And yet even in the history of the tea trade there is romance—the romance that lies in the display of human grit, in the wresting of fortune from direct ruin and disaster. A generation ago Ceylon was a land of coffee and of prosperous coffee planters. But a fungus blight swept over the gardens, and in an incredibly short time almost wiped out the industry. Cinchona, or quinine, was tried as a substitute, and for a time proved profitable, but soon over-supply made this product "a drug in the market" in the metaphorical as well as in the literal meaning of the phrase. Then the tea plant was introduced from Assam and Darjiling in northeastern India, and so soon as it gave evidence of thriving the cultivation was promptly extended, not merely over the old coffee estates, but at far higher elevations where the more delicate coffee shrub could not grow. Although many planters went down in the period of financial stress, the survivors found themselves in the end with bettered prospects. So rapid has been the advance of Ceylon tea that now the little island, just two-thirds the size of Ireland, produces over 150,000,000 pounds annually, and China has found herself virtually ousted from many of her old markets.



EAST ENTRANCE, PALACE OF MACHINERY.

But Ceylon, with far-seeing and enterprising men engaged in her staple industry, is ever on the outlook for new customers.

Tea, however, is by no means the only commercial product of Ceylon. Cocoa, spices in great variety (notably cinnamon, cloves and cardamoms), vegetable oils, drugs, tanning barks, tobacco, cocoanut fiber and cocoanut products, the highest priced rubber on the world's markets, gems, pearls from the Strait of Mannar, tortoise-shell, sponges, plumbago for the manufacture of crucibles and lead pencils, also for lubricating purposes and for certain processes in electroplating, are all valuable exports, and are fully illustrated by samples both in the Ceylon pavilion at St. Louis and also in her special court within the Palace of Agriculture.

In the latter section there is much of interest to be seen by every observant visitor. For example, the lesson to be learned from the thorough utilization of the cocoanut palm is one that may be taken to heart by all who, in their own particular industries, have not yet found uses for each and every by-product. In American packing houses it is a proverbial saying that everything is saved except the squeal of the sacrificial porker.

But the cocoa-nut palm in Ceylon is made to yield quite as full a profit. The leaves of the palm are used for roofing, the ribs of the leaves for brooms, the coarse outer fiber of the nut for matting and cordage, the finer inner fiber for the stuffing of mattresses. The flesh of the nut supplies a natural food, and, desiccated and shredded, a flavoring for confectionery; its milk is a delicious fresh beverage, its extracted oil forms a valuable material for soap and candle making, the residuum from the oil press goes to the fattening of cattle, while the refined oil makes an excellent substitute for lard for cooking purposes, and the refined lard a delicious butter for table use. The toddy, or milk drawn from the tree stem, is distilled into arrack, a potent spirit, or turned into vinegar; its sugar, obtained by evaporation, forms a sweetmeat; the bud or "cabbage" at the apex of the stem makes an excellent vegetable, and is often pickled; the best of the shells are carved for ornament, or converted into cooking utensils, while the others are burned as fuel, smokeless and giving a good charcoal; even the blossom in its long sheath is utilized as a torch; the trunk affords rafters, beams, troughs, canoes and cradles; the sawn timber supplies tables, chairs, and virtually all the furniture of a comfortable home; while the rotos again help to keep the family fire alight. In the east or in the west, no more perfect illustration is afforded of a commercial "clean up." That the profits of cocoa-nut farming are great, let the following table of exports from last year's returns bear its eloquent testimony:

Cocoanut oil, 665,357 cwt.
Copra (dried cocoanut), 721,575 cwt.
Poonac (feed for cattle), 299,972 cwt.
Coir (the fiber), 244,965 cwt.
Desiccated cocoanut, 485,269 lbs.
Arrack, 72,619 gallons.
Nuts (au naturel), 12,129,349.

And all this was in addition to the supplies utilized on the island itself.

WHAT RUST IS.

Prof. Huston Says it is Caused by Lack of Rotation.

Prof. H. A. Huston who is connected with the German Kali works of Leopoldshall-Stassford, Onhalt, Germany, who is now traveling in this country investigating potash experiments was interviewed by the Minneapolis Times the other day on rust. Prof. Huston said:

"Rust is an infection which attacks wheat and prevents the sap from reaching the head of the stalk, and thus prevents the grain from forming and maturing. The extent of the damage which rust can do all depends on the strength and sturdiness of the wheat. If the grain is growing in good soil, rich with the phosphates necessary to its maintenance, it will be stronger than the rust and will therefore not be noticably affected by it.

"If, on the other hand, the wheat is planted in soil that is exhausted from raising many continuous crops of wheat, the plant is weak and is easy prey to the rust plague.

"These conditions being admitted, the best way to rid the country of the rust evil seems to be to raise wheat that will withstand the rust, and the only logical way to do this is by a perfect rotation of crops. To my mind and from the studies which I have made, it seems to me that the ideal rotation for the wheat country of this state and of the two Dakotas is wheat and red clover.

"After the wheat is harvested the clover should be planted and allowed to grow during the following summer. In the fall it can be cut and plowed under. The crop is a good one and will pay handsome interest on the land, while the value of the soil for wheat on the next year will be greatly enhanced. Clover has the faculty of gathering nitrogen about its roots and nitrogen is absolutely necessary for good wheat crops.

"All of this talk about rust being a new thing is wrong. Rust has always been present in the wheat fields, but the crops have been so sturdy before and the weather conditions have been such that the infection has never gained any widespread strength. The salvation of the Minnesota and Dakota wheat fields lies in some perfect rotation of crops."

Professor Huston talked interestingly of the potash mines with which he is connected. The mines are twenty-six in number and are the only ones of their kind in the world. Previous to 1860, when they were first worked, all of the potash in the world was procured from hard wood ashes and was used largely in making chemical compounds and soft soap.

Prussian mines now produce an annual output of 5,000,000 tons of potash, worth $50 per ton, and the supply is practically inexhaustible. Professor Huston says that the United States is now using about one-fourth of the total output of the mines and is every year using more.

Rheumatism
"THE PAIN KING."

Those who have ever felt its keen, cutting pains, or witnessed the intense suffering of others, know that Rheumatism is torture, and that it is rightly called "The King of Pain."

All do not suffer alike. Some are suddenly seized with the most excruciating pains, and it seems every muscle and joint in the body was being torn asunder. Others feel only occasional slight pains for weeks or months, when a sudden change in the weather or exposure to damp, chilly winds or night air brings on a fierce attack, lasting for days perhaps, and leaving the patient with a weakened constitution or crippled and deformed for all time.

An acid, polluted condition of the blood is the cause of every form and variety of Rheumatism, Muscular, Articular, Acute, Chronic, Inflammatory and Sciatic, and the blood must be purged and purified before there is an end to your aches and pains. External applications, the use of liniments and plasters, do much toward temporary relief, but such treatment does not reach the real cause or cleanse the diseased blood; but S. S. S., the greatest of all blood purifiers and tonics, does cure Rheumatism by antidoting and neutralizing the poisonous acids and building up the weak and sluggish blood. It is safe and reliable in all forms of Rheumatism. It makes the old acid blood rich, and the pain-tortured muscles and joints are relieved, the shattered nerves are made strong, and the entire system is invigorated and toned up by the use of this great vegetable remedy.

KUROPATKIN IS IN FULL RETREAT

HIS ENTIRE ARMY REACHES POINT NEAR MUKDEN.

STAKELBERG'S BAD BLUNDER

Disobeys Orders and Force of 25,000 Men Separated from Main Army —Extricates Himself—Japs Occupy Liaoyang.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 5.—Gen. Stakelberg's first Siberian army corps, which was reported Saturday by Gen. Kuropatkin as having been cut off to the westward of Liaoyang, has been safely extricated.

Gen. Kuropatkin telegraphed at seven o'clock Saturday evening that the greater portion of his army, including Stakelberg's force, was then south of Yentai, about ten miles northeast of Liaoyang, and that the other portion of it was crossing the Taitse river and taking up a position on the right bank.

Gen. Kuropatkin's report says that his only serious losses are confined to Maj. Gen. Orloff's detachment, which was guarding the left flank at Yentai. This detachment consisted of mixed European detachments and was suddenly attacked by the Japanese infantry and artillery concealed in the tall Chinese corn and grass. The Russians seem to have lost their heads and to have retreated precipitately. The Japanese inflicted great slaughter, one of Gen. Orloff's regiments losing 1,500 men.

Stakelberg May Lose His Command.

No details are given of the escape of Gen. Stakelberg's corps from the clutches of the enemy, but it is believed that it owes its safety to the neglect or the inability of the Japanese to follow up their advantage. Gen. Stakelberg was allowed to cross the river and came up with the main army in time to enable the shattered remnants of Maj. Gen. Orloff's detachment to retreat. This exploit is likely to condone Gen. Stakelberg's disobedience of orders, which placed him in a predicament. But unless the emperor forgives him he will have to appear before a court martial and probably will lose his command.

Kuropatkin Nearing Mukden.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 5.—It is reported here that Gen. Kuropatkin has arrived at Tiehling. Tiehling is 12 miles north of Yentai, on the railroad, and 18 miles south of Mukden. Yentai is ten miles northeast of Liaoyang.

Disappointed with Kuropatkin.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 5.—There is a bitter disappointment, probably the keenest of the whole land campaign, over the situation at the front. Up to Liaoyang the retreating from and the abandonment of positions had been expected, and that much the public and the officials thought they knew of Gen. Kuropatkin's plan of campaign. Had Liaoyang been abandoned without a fight the public would have looked forward patiently to a decisive stand at Mukden, but after a desperate battle with victory for the instant apparently in sight, to find Liaoyang abandoned, its immense stores captured or destroyed, and the retreat continued under the most adverse conditions, severely tries public confidence in the commander-in-chief. At this hour even the authorities know little more than what has already been given to the public. There is still much doubt as to whether Kuropatkin is continuing his retreat, or whether, indeed, he has been able to do so.

What effect the present result will have on Gen. Kuropatkin's reputation at home it is impossible to say. It may be remembered, however, that before starting for the far east, Gen. Kuropatkin said that he fully expected his reputation to sink lower than his friends even dreamed, but that thereafter there would come a turn, and it would rebound. He was unwilling to predict where the turn would occur.

Burned the Storehouses.

Tokio, Sept. 5.—Field Marshal Oyama reports that the Russians burned their storehouses near Liaoyang Saturday. Gen. Kuroki, leaving a force at Satzuago to protect his right flank, has swung sharply westward to reach the railway and envelop Liaoyang.

Japs Take Liaoyang.

Tokio, Sept. 5.—Field Marshal Oyama, telegraphing at nine o'clock Sunday morning, says: "After the fighting of last night and this morning Liaoyang fell into our hands. Our casualties are believed to be very heavy. No report has been received concerning conditions on the right bank of the Taitse river."

The dispatch received from Field Marshal Oyama announcing the fall of Liaoyang had the effect of cheering all of the subjects of the mikado. Throughout the rejoicings here following the earlier successes of the Japanese arms at Liaoyang, the more thoughtful people feared the results of the exposure to which the right wing of Gen. Kuroki's army was subjected, and it was held possible that the strength of the Liaoyang fortifications would permit the withdrawal of the bulk of the Russian forces there. Even now there is doubt concerning the number of Rusisans who have escaped, but there is no doubt about the character of the victory at Liaoyang. Tokio was brilliantly illuminated Sunday night, and joyful crowds paraded the streets cheering the exploits of Field Marshal Oyama and Gens. Oku and Nodzu.

The meager reports received indicate that the soldiers of both armies went to the limit of human endurance and suffered terribly. It was impossible constantly to supply them with food and water, and the men have fought for days past starving and parched with thirst. Although full details are lacking, the duration of the fighting, the numbers engaged and the losses so far reported indicate that Liaoyang will prove to be one of the greatest battles of history.

Wants More Troops.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 5.—Emperor Nicholas has received a telegram from Gen. Kuropatkin asking for the immediate dispatch to the far east of the Sixth army corps.

Tells of the Retreat.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 5.—Gen. Kuropatkin's report of the retreat from Liaoyang is as follows:

"On the night of September 1 Gen. Kuroki attacked Sykwantun, 11 miles east of Liaoyang, and captured a majority of the Russian positions, the occupation of which was completed on the night of September 2, the Russians retiring five miles distant to a rear guard position between the villages of Shansuntun and Shitshanza.

"The First Siberian army corps was almost surrounded. This corps previously saved Gen. Orloff's detachment by attacking the Japanese flank when Gen. Orloff was threatened with annihilation. Gen. Orloff was seriously wounded.

"On the night of September 2 the First Siberian army corps, which had sustained heavy losses during the last five days, and which was in danger of having its flank turned, owing to the enemy's superior forces, retired several kilometers to the westward. In these circumstances I ordered Liaoyang evacuated and the troops to retire northward."

The surrounding of the First Siberian corps, it seems, was due to a blunder of Gen. Stakelberg, who, in the words of Gen. Kuropatkin, insisted on placing his own interpretation on orders, instead of fulfilling them. Gen. Stakelberg erred in failing to cross the Taitse river when Gen. Kuropatkin desired that the whole army should retreat to its northern bank.

Enormous Losses.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 5.—In giving an idea of the extent of the losses of the war the official Viestnik announces that the Russians had lost 7,000 men up to Wednesday, while it is estimated that the Japanese losses are twice or thrice that number. Since then the lowest estimate is 3,000 daily. Probably altogether 40,000 to 50,000 have been killed.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 5.—The Russian losses before Liaoyang on September 2, as officially computed, were 3,200.

FRISCO ILLUMINATED.

California City Ablaze in Honor of Conclave of the Knights Templar.

San Francisco, Sept. 5.—A number of special trains bearing knights templars entered this city Sunday. There was almost a continued procession up Market street of marching commanderies, being escorted to their respective headquarters. At night a sacred concert was given at Mechanics Pavilion in memory of President McKinley, with a chorus of 500 voices. The interior of the building was a redwood forest, surrounding the main audience space, which was canopied with white cloth and arched with large electrical crosses and other emblems of the order.

The knights who arrived after dark received the impression that the city was aflame. The warships in the harbor were strung with lights and the white beams of their searchlights crossed the sky. The ferry building, with its tower, picked out in green incandescents and resplendant with a great red electrical maltese cross, crowned the entrance to an electric highway which extended up Market street for a distance of two miles and which was formed of colonnades, columns and arches of glowing bulbs. All along the line Masonic emblems and American flags hung from every building. The Masonic Temple was ablaze with lights and templar insignia, and emblems hung illuminated on its walls.

The court of honor, the intersection of Market, Geary and Kearney streets, loomed overhead with its 8,000 incandescents. From stout cables, stretching from tall buildings on each side of Market street, was suspended a glittering bell-shaped mass with a rim 40 feet in diameter, with strings tapering to the top lights, while in the center of the web, blazing like jewels, was seen the sign of the order. A huge passion cross, and the motto "In Hoc Signo Vinces" all thickly incrusted with lights, lay in the center of the web. At its outer edge, suspended from the huge ring at intervals, were other emblems of the order, all richly illuminated. The nearby buildings were outlined with lights and hung with mottoes and insignia. Between Fifth and Sixth streets was a grand colonnade between Corinthian columns, twined with strings of frosted lights. In the center of the colonnade was a three-column triumphal arch from which was suspended the cross of the most eminent grand master, embossed with lights. The western vista of the electric highway was crowned by the dome of the city hall.

The structure is owned by John W. Kiser and occupied as a storeroom and warehouse by Sears, Roebuck & Co. Seven employes were in the freight elevator when, for some unexplained reason, according to statements of Sears, Roebuck & Co. officials, the steel cable snapped and the victims were hurled to the basement. Philip Caldwell, operator of the cage, was instantly killed. Men and women who were passengers were on their way to work. The dead are: Philip Caldwell, 24 years old, 1047 North Central Park avenue, elevator operator; killed instantly. Mrs. Katherine Hayes, widow, 40 years old, 372 Washington boulevard; died at the Frances E. Willard hospital a short time after being taken there.

Five Persons Killed in Smashup in Manitoba—Lord Minto on the Train, But Uninjured.

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 3.—Five people were killed on the west-bound Imperial Limited at Sintaluta Thursday night. The only identified dead is Mrs. Dissett, of Edmonton. The injured are Mrs. J. Brett and Miss Golden, who were on their way to Manila; Miss Murray, on the way to Shanghai; Ira Ross, bound to Victoria, and the porter, L. P. Hart. The switch was left open by a train crew which had just left the town, and the Transcontinental express dashed in upon a freight train. Owing to the fact that the dead were in their night clothes and the porter unconscious, it has been impossible to learn the names of the other victims.

The governor general, Lord Minto, and party were on the train, but escaped uninjured.

WISCONSIN DEMOCRATS.

State Convention Nominates George W. Peck for Governor by Acclamation—The Platform.

Oshkosh, Wis., Sept. 2.—Former Gov. George W. Peck, of Milwaukee, was chosen as the standard bearer of the democrats of Wisconsin, having received the nomination for governor by acclamation in the state convention amid great enthusiasm. Other candidates for state offices named are as follows: Lieutenant governor, Dr. H. A. Lathrop, Marshfield; secretary of state, James P. Nolan, Manitowoc; treasurer, Andrew Jensen, Edgerton; attorney general, William F. Wolf, La Crosse; railroad commissioner, Edward L. Hanton, Superior; insurance commissioner, Henry Fetzer, Sturgeon Bay.

The platform upon which the nominees will stand cordially approved the principles declared by the last democratic convention at St. Louis and the nomination of Hon. Alton Parker for president and Hon. Henry G. Davis for vice president. The platform favors the creation of a commissioner to regulate all public service corporations, favors a law compelling railway companies operating railroads in Wisconsin to sell mileage books at a flat rate of two cents per mile. The primary election law passed by the last legislature is strongly opposed and the present state administration is roundly scored.

H. Welch, Winchester; A. D. Schaefer, Peoria; O. A. Canfield, Chicago.

The platform demands the initiative and referendum; an eight-hour law for all factories, workshops and mines; the abolition of child labor, and the suppression of sweatshops; opposes convict labor, denounces "government by injunction," and favors free distribution of uniform text-books to schools by the state.

Perils of the Lumbermen.

A crew of seven men were loosening timbers from the rocks above a great cataract on the River Des Quinze. The nearer they worked to the head of the rapids the more imminent grew their peril. At last the cautious steersman, a half breed named Polson, refused to venture further the lives of his crew. The foolhardy foreman ordered him out, stepped aboard and took Polson's steering paddle. Out from the bank they shot swiftly and down the steep incline. All went well until they wished to turn their boat beside the rocks that blocked the timber when to their consternation the speed of the boat slackened. Managing to point her bow up stream, they rowed with all their strength. For some seconds she never moved. Surely the demon of the rapids had caught them. With pounding heart and panting breath they tugged with all their might and main, but to no purpose. Inch by inch, with increasing rage, he drew them until at last with a deafening roar he hurled them, boat and all, like a javelin, into the very depths of the gigantic caldron of boiling foam.—Arthur Heming in Scribner's.

Fateful Order to Halt.

In less than half an hour my troops would have swept up and over those hills, the possession of which was of such momentous consequence. It is not surprising, with a full realization of the consequences of a halt, that I should have refused at first to obey the order. Not until the third or fourth order of the most peremptory character reached me did I obey. I think I should have risked the consequences of disobedience even then but for the fact that the order to halt was accompanied with the explanation that General Lee, who was several miles away, did not wish to give battle at Gettysburg. It is stated on good authority that General Lee said some time before his death that if Jackson had been there he would have won in this battle a great and possibly decisive victory. I cannot vouch for the truth of this statement, as I did not hear it; but no soldier in a great crisis ever wished more ardently for a deliverer's hand than I wished for one hour of Jackson when I was ordered to halt.—General John B. Gordon in Scribner's.

AUTUMN'S WEDDING BELLS

William A. McIntyre and Miss Lydia E. Fletcher Married at Presbyterian Church.

One of the most delightful as well as one of the most important soci l events of the year was the marriage on Wednesday, September 7, of Attorney William Adelbert McIntyre to Miss Lydia Eudora Fletcher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar E. Fletcher. The ceremony was performed at 2 o'clock p. m. in the auditorium of the Presbyterian church, the pastor, Rev. Herbert W. Knox, officiating. Nearly two hundred invited guests witnessed the beautiful and impressive marriage ordinance, and the church was handsomely decorated with flowers and autumn leaves.

The ceremony commenced promptly at the time scheduled with Leland Healy at the vocalion. As the strains of the wedding march wafted through the church the groom, attended by the groomsmen, Messrs. F. F. Fletcher and Samuel E. Hunt, came up the aisle, followed by the bridesmaid, Miss Grace Iddings, and the maid of honor, Miss Lulu Fletcher, escorted by the ushers, Messrs. Ralph E. Wyer and Abner Fletcher. The bride was escorted by her father, and to the soft and solemn strains of the vocalion the troth was plighted, the beautiful ring ceremony being used.

Immediately after the ceremony the wedding party and a few of the relatives and close friends of the contracting parties repaired at the home of the bride's parents, where an elaborate breakfast was served. At six o'clock Mr. and Mrs. McIntyre took the Northern Pacific for Minneapolis, where they will visit friends for a few days, going from there to various points in the southern part of the state. They expect to be gone about two weeks, and upon their return will go to housekeeping in the Benoit residence on South Main street. They will be at home to their friends after October 15.

Both the bride and groom are so well and favorably known to the people of Red Lake Falls that it is superfluous to commend them. Mr. McIntyre has been a practicing attorney in Red Lake Falls for a little more than four years, and by close application and exceptional ability has won an excellent practice and a high standing in legal circles. Miss Fletcher has been a teacher in the schools at Red Lake Falls and other places for the past ten years, and is regarded as one of the most competent primary instructors in this part of the state. Both are social favorites, and represent the highest type of manhood and womanhood. The Courier hopes that the warmth and brightness of the sunshine which smiled upon their wedding day is an omen of the happiness in store for them throughout all their days—and may their days be many!

INDIAN'S ESTATE IN PROBATE

Interesting and Unusual Petition Filed in Judge Tarrant's Court This Week.

One of the most interesting documents ever filed in the probate office is the petition of Patrick Meehan for final decree to determine the descent of real estate in the matter of the estate of Mon-si-moh, or Moose Dung, deceased, filed in Judge Tarrant's court Monday. Mr. Meehan claims an interest in eight or ten pieces of land in Red Lake county, and that he derives his title through warranty deeds from the aforesaid Moose Dung, the younger, who during his life was chief of the Red Lake band of Chippewa Indians.

Mon-si-moh, or Moose Dung, the younger, is the eldest son and successor as chief of his father, whose name was the same, and who died intestate and residing on the lands described in the petition in 1872, and was the owner in fee simple of the said lands. The premises described are not and never were a part of any Indian reservation.

The petition also recites that at the time of his decease the said Mon-si-moh, or Moose Dung, the elder, left surviving him the following-named children and grandchildren: Mon-si-moh, or Chief Moose Dung the younger; Bay-sha-ban-noke, Oshin-nah-wash-eek, Nee-son-ben-nees, Osh-ke-nee-ge-kway, Ben-way-ben-ness. All of said children and grand-children, except Osh-ke-nee-ge-kway, are still alive and residing on the Red Lake Indian reservation.

According to the laws, usages and customs of said Chippewa Indians said Moose Dung, the younger, being the eldest son and successor as chief of his father, inherited, as sole heir, all the land of his father, to the exclusion of all other descendants. More than five years has passed since the death of the elder Moose Dung and no will has been probated and no administration granted upon his estate, and therefore the petitioner prays that an order may be issued for a hearing on this petition, to be served and published as provided by law, and that upon said hearing the facts may be determined by the probate court, and a decree made and entered assigning and distributing all of said real property.

The order for hearing is published in today's Courier, and this is probably the first time in the history of northern Minnesota where the estate of a full-blood Indian has been admitted to probate.

NO BLANK SPACES.

Attorney General Rules on Primary Election Tickets.

According to an opinion rendered yesterday by P. A. Ewert, assistant attorney general, county auditors in preparing primary election ballots will not be permitted to leave blank spaces on the ballot that voters may write in the names of men who could thus be placed on the official ballot for the November general election with a party designation after their names.

The question was raised yesterday by County Auditor Hugh R. Scott, of Hennepin county, who called at the attorney general's office for enlightenment. Ed. A. Stevens, a Democratic leader of Minneapolis, had made a formal request that the county auditor so arrange the official primary election ballot in Hennepin county that blank spaces might be left under the names of Republican candidates for the legislature in districts where no Democrat had filed for the nomination. The purpose of the request was to permit Democrats to express a choice of candidates for their party nominations in the districts where Democratic filings had not been made, by writing in the names of men who might be favored for the nomination.

The assistant attorney general ruled that it would be contrary to the spirit of the primary election law to permit a nomination to be made independent of the primary system. Mr. Ewert said that to permit this practice might easily result in giving both the Democratic and Republican nominations to the same person, thus making him the candidate of two political parties. The primary election law clearly provides that no candidate shall be nominated by more than one political party.

To Sell More Lands.

The sale of the lands of the ceded portion of the Red Lake Indian reservation will be resumed in Crookston on Oct. 3 next. The original sale was held at Thief River Falls in June, but the attendance was disappointing. Not more than one-third of the land was sold, and the postponed sale will be held in Crookston. At that time more than 1,000 tracts of land will be offered for sale in the best portions of the ceded district of the reserve. The sale will be governed much the same as that at Thief River Falls except that possibly the sale will be continuous. At Thief River Falls only certain tracts were offered for sale each day as advertised.

The lands to be opened for sale comprise the tract between the Red Lake and Clearwater rivers, besides all the lands north of the High landing. The former is low and rich and offers the best of lands for pasture and grass raising purposes, as well as agriculture with little drainage. Most of the lands to be offered will be as good as the average valley selections.

The tract which will be offered for sale comprise more than 170,000 acres. The land must be bought and then homesteaded, except that the homesteader may secure land even if he already has used his homestead rights. However, at the end of fourteen months commutation privileges are given, and by paying the other four-fifths, one-fifth is paid down, the homesteader may secure title to his land.

ERSKINE HAS BIG FIRE LOSS

Eight Store Buildings and a Lot of Smaller Structures Burned Monday Morning.

Monday morning a disastrous fire occurred at Erskine which destroyed eight business blocks and seriously damaged other buildings, and entailed a loss of $30,000, only partially covered by insurance. The fire originated in the Nelson & Hoyum saloon about two o'clock. It spread rapidly and threatened the entire village and it was not stopped until it reached the fire wall of the Bank of Erskine building. The saloon in which the fire started had a loft filled with hay in which hangers on and hoboes were allowed to sleep. It was in this bull pen that the fire started and it spread rapidly owing to the lack of adequate fire fighting apparatus. The old engine with which the city was provided was rendered useless by the thrusting of the nozzle of the intake hose into the mud and allowing it to fill with sand and mud. The men who undertook to operate the engine were excited and thus put it out of business before it had been used. The flames were not brought under control until nearly eight o'clock.

The loss entailed is as follows, with the insurance:

F. L. Benson, general store, loss $10,000, insurance $4,500

Even Johnson, restaurant, loss, $2,000; no insurance.

Steenerson & Restegen, hardware; loss $10,000; insurance, $3,000.

John Tuff, building; loss $500; no insurance.

Occupied by Nelson & Hoyum, saloon; loss $900; insurance, $500.

N. C. Lilemoe, jeweler; loss $1000; no insurance on building and contents.

Chas. Dillon, barber, building, loss, $500; insurance, $200; stock saved.

A. O. Talford, building; loss $1,500; insurance, $800.

Occupied by Johnson & Moen, saloon; loss $300; no insurance.

Hans Bjelland, confectionery; loss on building, $400; no insurance; contents saved.

Eight barns; loss $2,000, no insurance.

O. F. Berge, general store; stock damaged by removal, loss, $400; insurance $400.

Household goods lost, $2,000; insurance, $1,000.

Total loss, $31,500; insurance, $10,400.

A Menace to Red Lake County

Are We to Have Representation in the Legislature?

Red Lake county people, irrespective of party considerations, are interested in having a representative in the state legislature, as matters relative to drainage, good roads, etc., vitally affecting our county, will be brought before the next session, and it behooves us to "have a friend at court." There is no Democratic candidate for the legislature, and if Hon. L. C. Simons should be defeated in the Republican primariess next Tuesday Red Lake county would not be represented in either house.

The Bemidji Pioneer, the only newspaper of consequence in the district supporting L. L. Mayland, Mr. Simons' opponent in the primaries, makes a plea of sectionalism, urging the voters of Clearwater and Beltrami counties to defeat Mr. Simons because of the fact that he is a Red Lake county man. This is a matter of importance to the voters of Red Lake county. The senator from this district lives at Bemidji, and now the Pioneer would have the representative also from the eastern end of the district.

THE COURIER does not doubt that a majority of the Republican voters of Beltrami and Clearwater counties will have the good taste and good judgment to vote for Mr. Simons, but whether or not they do so it is incumbent upon the Red Lake county Republicans to prove their loyalty to their home candidate. Mr. Simons, we believe, is broad and liberal enough in his views to represent the district without discrimination to any section, and is a safer and a better man for Red Lake county than one who is avowedly the representative of only a portion of the district.

This is a vital matter to the taxpayers of Red Lake county. There are important interests at stake. The Republican voters should not forget their duty next Tuesday.

NEW FOOTBALL RULES.

Several Important Changes Made in Rules Governing Game.

Several very important changes in the football rules have been made this year, as follows:

1. Instead of seven men in the line of scrimmage between the twenty-five yard lines there must be six men in the line in every part of the field.
2. When there are only six men in the line of scrimmage the additional man in the back field must be stationed outside of either extremity of the line.
3. Goals from field, no matter how made, shall count four instead of five points.
4. The quarter back or the first man receiving the ball from the center may run with it in any part of the field instead of only between the twenty-five yard lines providing he go five yards outside of center.
5. The umpire and referee shall have distinctive signals.
6. When the umpire signals for a penalty the play may continue until the ball is dead, when the referee shall inflict the penalty. The side offended against may take either the penalty or the ground gained by the play.
7. When one side kicks out of bounds twice in succession on a touchback or a safety the ball shall go to the opposite side on the thirty-five instead of the twenty-five yard line.

County Auditor James E. Ford

If you are a Democrat, go to the primaries next Tuesday and cast your vote for James E. Ford for county auditor. Mr. Ford has no opposition for the nomination, but his record as a county official deserves to be recognized by a handsome primary vote. Mr. Ford's name stands for good government, economy and efficiency. His present term of office has been marked by able service, and his life, public and private, is an open book.

Karl M. Hansen

Democratic candidate for County Treasurer, respectfully solicits your support at the primaries and at the general election.

NEW ENGLAND SUPPER.

At the Presbyterian Church Next Wednesday Evening, September 21.

The ladies of the Presbyterian church will serve a New England supper in the church parlors next Wednesday evening, September 21. Supper will be served from six o'clock throughout the evening. All are invited.

The menu will consist of baked beans, brown bread, white bread, butter, creamed potatoes, roast pork, apple sauce, roast veal, cranberry sauce, cold slaw, jelly, doughnuts, pumpkin pie, coffee and tea.

What is Life?

In the last analysis nobody knows, but we do know that it is under strict law. Abuse that law even slightly, pain results. Irregular living means derangement of the organs, resulting in Constipation, Headache or Liver trouble. Dr. King's New Life Pills quickly re-adjnsts this. It's gentle, yet thorough. Only 25c at all druggists.

THE Bemidji Pioneer is ardently in favor of repealing the primary election law, and the inference is that Dr. L. L. Mayland, the Pioneer's candidate for legislative honors, stands on the same platform. The country districts will hardly favor a candidate for that office who would take away this substantial safeguard against the evils of the old convention system.

RUSSIAN HOPES ARE ABANDONED

FOLLOWING REVERSES INABILITY TO TURN THE TIDE AT PRESENT IS CONFESSED.

No Talk of Peace, However, and Success Is Hoped for Next Year—Campaign in Northern Manchuria Ended—Both Armies Resting.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 12.—The war office is reluctnantly disposed to admit that, with the defeat of the Russians at Liaoyang, all hope practically departed of turning the tide of the war this year. Patiently and doggedly, in spite of successive reverses by land and sea, Gen. Kuropatkin's friends had pinned their faith in his assurances that when he accepted battle victory would crown Russian arms, but, failing in his attempt to turn the scale, they face another indefinite period of waiting. Kuropatkin must retire, await reinforcements and prepare for a new campaign next year. But, disappointed as they are and discouraging as the situation is, no word is heard in favor of making peace.

The northern campaign seems to be at an end, so far as the Russian army is concerned. There seems to be little left for Kuropatkin, except to push north to his winter base at Harbin and prepare for a spring campaign. The Russians are beginning to admit this, but the Japanese have not said whether they intend to allow this quiet conclusion of the terrible action at Liaoyang or will again attack the retreating forces. According to the best information from the front both armies are now tired and resting after the exhausting days of fighting and marching. The general opinion is that the Japanese will again push on as soon as the rains cease and the roads are dry.

Retreat Successful.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 9.—Gen. Kuropatkin's official report, sent from Mukden during the evening Wednesday, announcing that the whole of his army had arrived at Mukden and was taking up positions around the city and adding that the army had not lost a gun during the retreat, relieved the public anxiety and put an end to the many alarmist reports which had been current here.

Attempt Abandoned.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 10.—It seems to be definitely established that Field Marshal Oyama's tired troops practically abandoned on Wednesday the attempt to head of Gen. Kuropatkin, and the latter's army has arrived safely at Mukden, after frightful experiences in floundering through mud and mire over the Mandarin road. It is evident that the last determined effort of the Japanese to bring Kuropatkin to bay was made on Tuesday, but the Russian commander-in-chief faced about and two corps with artillery beat off the Japanese while the remainder of the troops continued the march to Mukden. After that the Japanese could only hang on to the flanks and try to shell the retreating columns from the hills. The outposts are still in contact, but they are not even exchanging shots.

A Fearsome Sight.

Shanhaikwan, Sept. 7, via Tientsin, Sept. 9.—Witnesses of the battle of Liaoyang declare the struggle was a stupendous and fearsome sight. Fully 600 guns were engaged in the artillery duel, and shells to the number of 60 a minute were fired unceasingly for 12 hours. Thousands of men fell in the struggle and numberless instances of individual and collective heroism are declared to have occurred on the battlefield, which is described as a veritable inferno.

Prepare to Attack Port Arthur.

London, Sept. 12.—With Liaoyang captured and Kuropatkin's army in full retreat to the north the Japanese are preparing for the grand assault on Port Arthur. From the extent of their preparations they apparently are bent on the immediate downfall of the Russian Gibraltar. With a force estimated at 80,000 men the Japanese are constructing trenches on the sides of the hills topped by the Rihlungstan and Kikwanshan forts, and are almost under the noses of the garrison. The fighting about the citadel has not ceased for the time being, however. A Japanese officer passing through Tsingtau, China, reports that 15,000 of his comrades have fallen during the last few days and that the bombardment is going on day by day.

Baltic Fleet Sails.

Cronstadt, Sept. 12.—The Baltic fleet sailed Sunday for the far east. The vessels of the fleet number eight battleships, four cruisers and several torpedo boats and torpedo boat destroyers.

Jap Losses at Liaoyang.

Washington, Sept. 12.—A dispatch from Tokio which reached the Japanese legation places the total casualties on the Japanese side at the battle of Liaoyang at 17,539 officers and men killed and wounded.

Say Russians Lost Over 25,000.

Tokio, Sept. 12.—Telegraphic reports received here from the headquarters of the Manchurian army declare the Japanese to be in full possession of the Yantai coal mines, and estimate the Russian losses up to the fall of Liaoyang at over 25,000 men.

Eight Lives Lost.

Philadelphia, Sept. 12.—The Delaware steamer Columbia, on its way from this city to Bristol, Pa., Sunday night, crashed into a steam launch about ten miles north of here, grinding it to pieces and causing the drowning of eight of the dozen occupants of the small boat. All of the party were Philadelphians.

STRIKERS END THE LONG STRUGGLE

BUTCHERS AT THE CHICAGO STOCKYARDS ARE ORDERED TO RETURN TO WORK.

Accept Terms Offered by the Packers—Cost of the Strike to Employers and Workmen Estimated at $13,375,000.

Chicago, Sept. 9.—The executive board of the union butcher workmen Thursday evening abandoned the strike against the meat packing plants and ordered the members back to work.

The terms under which the men return to work are the same as offered by J. Ogden Armour last Saturday and which the men rejected by referendum vote They are in substance that the old employes shall be reinstated as fast as possible, being given preference when vacancies occur; that the wages of skilled butcher workmen will remain the same as before the strike, and that there will be no discrimination against any man because of his connection with a labor organization

Begun July 12, the struggle continued for eight weeks and three days. A week after the strike was first called they made peace with their employers under a favorable contract, which gave them practically all they had demanded. The second walkout occurred the morning work was to be resumed under that contract. It was charged by the packers that the union broke the agreement by this act, and since then the organizations steadily lost ground. In Chicago a few members deserted, and in other packing centers thousands abandoned the fight. Desperate means were resorted to to stem the tide, but the packers continued to operate their plants with better and better success. At the last the only thing left for the union was complete surrender.

The total loss by the strike in wages to butcher workmen is $2,575,000, and to allied tradesmen, $800,000 more; estimated loss to packers, $7,000,000; to stockmen, railroads, etc., $3,000; total estimated loss, $13,375,000.

Attendance at World's Fair.

St. Louis, Sept. 12.—The attendance at the world's fair during the past week broke all records since the opening. There were 874,954 admissions, being almost 100,000 more than on any previous week. Labor day had an attendance of 209,602, the largest single day's attendance at the exposition. Altogether a total of 9,994,510 admissions have been recorded since the opening of the exposition.

Had No Opposition.

Rock Springs, Wyo., Sept. 9.—Former Gov. John E. Osborne, of Rawlins, was nominated for governor by acclamation by the democratic state convention.

Nominated for Governor.

Dover, Del., Sept. 7.—Caleb S. Pennewill, of Dover, was nominated by the democrats for governor on the fifth ballot.

THE VERMONT ELECTION.

Republican Plurality Is About 31,500—The New Legislature.

White River Junction, Vt., Sept. 8.—With only two small towns missing, the republican plurality of 31,500 in Wednesday's election is believed to be within a few votes of the correct figures. Four years ago it was 31,312. The total vote for governor without the two towns is: Bell (rep.), 47,991; Porter (dem.), 16,492—a republican plurality of 31,449. The missing towns had a republican plurality last year of 68.

The next legislature will be more completely controlled by the republicans than for many years. The returns from 221 towns show that the senate will be soldily republican, where last year there were five democrats. Returns for the house show 186 republicans, 30 democrats, 3 independents and 2 citizens members. Last year the democrats had 50 members in the house. A feature of the incoming legislature is the large number of prominent men, many of whom have filled more prominent state offices and who apparently desire to return to public life.

The legislature elected Tuesday will return Redfield Proctor to the United States senate.

AGED ACTRESS DIES.

Mrs. Sara Stevens Passes Away in St. Paul — Was Widow of John C. Heenan.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 9.—Mrs. Sara Stevens, a member of the "Way Down East" company, playing at a local theater here, died suddenly at the city hospital Thursday of uraemia. Mrs. Stevens was about 70 years of age, and her stage career, which was a notable one, dated from October 27, 1856. She was a member of the Laura Keene company that presented "Our American Cousin," the comedy Lincoln was witnessing when assassinated at Ford's theater in Washington. Besides Miss Keene, the cast included Joseph Jefferson and the elder Sothern. Mrs. Stevens was the widow of John C. Heenan, the noted English pugilist. After her marriage she retired for 14 years. On the death of her husband, she returned to the American stage.

Killed by Escaping Gas.

Philadelphia, Sept. 12.—James McIntyre and Patrick Henry, young men who recently came here from England, were Saturday found unconscious in bed at their boarding house, suffering from the effects of illuminating gas. McIntyre died on the way to a hospital and Henry is not expected to recover. It is believed the gas was accidentally turned on.

Bank President Indicted.

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 8.—Day Dunning, president of the defunct Citizens' bank at Mount Ayr, Ia., was indicted Wednesday for fraudulent banking on five different counts. The failure of his bank last spring was sensational, involved about $200,000 loss and seriously crippled Mount Ayr business interests.

Declines Nomination.

Washington, Sept. 8.—George H. Shibley, of this city, who was nominated by the continental party at Chicago as candidate for vice president, has sent a letter to the notification committee of the party declining the nomination.

Nominated for Congress.

Sheboygan, Wis., Sept. 8.—Roy L. Morse, of Fond du Lac, has been nominated for congress by the Sixth district republican convention.

RED LAKE FALLS MINN

The office of judge of probate is the most important in the county, as almost all of the real estate passes through the probate court, and unless the judge understands the probate law and possesses a level head when it comes to the business nethods, the title to property is sure to become defective, and in a few years the heirs and legattees of real property will be burdened with needless litigation. The voters should see that a competent man is put in the office. N. W. Tarrant's record as judge of the municipal court at Thief River and as judge of probate, in both of which offices the books and records are open to the inspection of the public, is a guarantee that he will continue to discharge the duties of the office of judge of probate in an intelligent and business-like manner. In the future. as in the past, Judge Tarrant promises to devote his whole time and attention to the faithful performance of the duties of the office.

NOTES IN MINOR CHORD.

Mrs. N. W. Tarrant returned Friday from a visit with friends at Thief River.

W. F. Witte is up from Waseca this week to look after the crops on his farms in this vicinity.

Nick Weller, a Waseca business man, is visiting this week at the home of his son, George, J., west of town.

E. O. Mathis, who has been visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. Henry Gonigam, left Monday for his home at Walnut, Ill.

Wiley Tindolph was down from Thief River Saturday to attend the Republican committee meeting and look after business matters.

August Borchers and family of East Grand Forks were in the city over Sunday for a visit at the home of Mr. Borchers' brother, Fred.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. McIntyre are expected home next Thursday from their bridal trip to Minneapolis. They will go to housekeeping at once.

E. L. Quist, the Thief River man who is chasing the office of county superintendent, was in the city several days of last week looking up the festive voter.

There are songs in "The Telephone Girl" this season which will be whistled and hummed all over town after the play is produced here. At the opera house tonight.

S. M. Sivertson returned Friday from a business trip to Fisher. He left again Monday for Nielsville, where the Red Lake Falls Milling company is putting in a new elevator.

The first killing frost of the season came lest Saturday night. A little of the late flax was c ught, but this was expected, as September 10 is considered the latest date for frost.

Mrs. J. A. Grover, who is here from Missoula, Montana, for a visit at the home of her sister, Mrs. C. E. Boughton, went to Thief River Falls Monday to visit her brothers at that place.

Dr. L. L. Mayland of Bagley, who is a candidate for the Republican nomination for the legislature in opposition to Hon. L. C. Simons, was interviewing the voters of Red Lake Falls last Friday.

George Hebert arrived from Fargo Saturday and was met here by his brother, John B. of Poplar River. Mr. Hebert is a drayman at Fargo and came up for a short visit at the homes of his brothers in Poplar River township.

J. D. Taylor and Joseph McCaffrey finally got away Monday afternoon for Warroad, where they will enter the land, law and loan business. Both of the young men are well equipped, and we shall expect to hear of their success.

Funny and enjoyable as "The Telephone Girl" was during past seasons, it is alleged to be far more funny this season. Messrs. Morton and Kerker haye virtually made a new play of it. See it at the opera house tonight.

J. P. Gonigam and family, of Ottawa, Ill., who have been visiting at the home of Mrs. Henry Gonigam for a couple of weeks past, have gone to Kindred, N. D., for a visit before returning to their home. Mr. Gonigam left Saturday and the rest of the family on Monday.

P. A. Kaufer, the former publisher of the Red Lake Falls Gazette, arrived in the city Saturday evening for a visit with relatives and friends and to look after business matters. Mr. Kaufer is running a stationery store and advertising specialty house at Tacoma, and says he is prospering.

M. J. Donovan and bride, of Tomah, Wis., were guests of Mr. Donovan's cousin, Sheriff Linnihan, from Wednesday until Monday. Mr. Donovan is a railroad man, and is taking a short vacation for the purpose of visiting friends in various parts of the west. They went to Montana from here.

John Deutschman, a well-known northside business man and popular citizen, was married Monday morning at St. Mary's to Miss Mattie Adler, daughter of Richard Adler of this city. They will go to housekeeping at once. Mr. and Mrs. Deutschman wiil have the good wishes of a large circle of friends.

The consensus of opinion expressed by recognized judges of things theatrical is unanimous in the declaration that the costumes and scenic embellishments of "The Telephone Girl", the frothy musical delight are fully up to that mark of superiority for which the New York Casino renowned. Tonight at the opera house.

Robert Raney and family of Grand Forks were visitors over Sunday at the home of John E. King. Mr. Raney has for the past year and a half been auditor for the lumber department of the Imperial Elevator company, and is meeting with a large measure of success in the work. The many friends of the Raney family were glad to see them and hope their visits to Red Lake Falls will be more frequent.

Of all the musical comedies that have been touring the country during the last decade there has probably not been another that has been greeted as warmly everywhere as "The Telephone Girl," which comes to the opera house tonight (Thursday). Its comedians are always good, its girls pretty and its music is of that light, airy, lilting order that fascinates and charms. The books and score are by Hugh Morton and Gustave Kerker, who are responsible for more light musical successes than any other two men who have collaborated in this country.

O. J. Schei, proprietor of the big department store at Thief River Falls, was in the city Monday for the purpose of engaging the Red Lake Falls orchestra to furnish music at the grand opening of his new store in the Evenson block Friday of this week. Mr. Schei has one of the largest mercantile establishment in northwestern Minnesota, and is enthusiastic over the prospects for his city and county. He was accompanied to Red Lake Falls by J. W. Johnson, formerly connected with the circulation department of the St. Paul Dispatch, but now employed in Mr. Schei's store.

R. H. Bourdon and son Charles, Fred Cyr and M. Boyce left Sunday for Thief River Falls, where they will accompany the Soo surveyors for several months. Of course nothing is given out as to the intentions of the Soo, but the general opinion seems to be that a line is be surveyed westerly through Red Lake county to Grand Forks, running from there northwesterly to a connection with the main line in North Dakota. If half the railroad rumors develop something tangible there will be "something doing" in the northern part of the state next year.

Quite a number of farmers have threshed during the past week, and it is now possible to form an estimate of the probable yield. Billy Armstrong's yield was sixteen bushels of wheat to the acre, and all of it graded No. 2 and sold for $1.02. Sutter Bros. report a yield of eleven bushels of No. 2 wheat. The yield on the Champoux farm is eleven bushels with a grade of No. 3. Competent judges say the average yield of wheat in Red Lake county will be better than eleven bushels, and as the price is likely to be over rather than under a dollar our farmers are not so badly off after all.

NEXT week the woods will be full of "also rans."

IT begins to look as though Dr. Ames had a better chance of going to congress than to jail.

THE Fargo Forum claims that 10,000,000 bushels of macaroni wheat has been raised in North Dakota this year.

HARMONY among the Republican county candidates is so thick you can cut it with a knife, and most of them are trying it.

OUR Republican contemporaries are again compelled to make themselves believe that the tariff on paper is a good thing.

THE czar has been talking of going to the front, but from the reports coming in of late he must be in doubt just where the front is.

THE Irish World truthfully says, "Yes, war is hell; and they who are responsible for the bringing on of war, and whose motive is greed or self glory, are devils."

A WISCONSIN exchange observes that it is utterly useless to try to stop the girls from wasting kisses on each other. They always seem to think they know where they can get lots more.

FRANK EDDY makes a trite epigramic reply to the shibboleth, "Let well enough alone," by saying, "Make well enough better." The inference is that this can be done by lowering the tariff.

THE possibility that by some unkind freak of fate Ray Jones might become governor of Minnesota makes the good citizen doubt if the voters of the state are always possessed of their right minds on election day.

THE Thief River Review argues that every Republican should vote the ticket straight. Are we to understand that the Review has the brazen effrontery to advise a decent man of any party to vote for Holy Ray Jones?

ONE of the amendments to the state constitution to be voted upon this fall contemplates the doing-away with the grand jury system. It is not likely that the decent people of Minnesota want to dispense with the grand jury.

IF Moses E. Clapp thinks he has a walkaway for re-election as United States senator he should guess again. Hundreds of prominent Republicans have theirs knives out for Moses, and in due course of time a number of other lightning rods will be up.

THE Fairmont Sentinel says: "If harmony and a splendid ticket count for anything the Democratic party of Minnesota should this year cause such a rattling of the dry bones of trespass and graft as has never before been heard in the North Star state."

"As goes Maine so goes the nation," is an old slogan. Maine went Republican Monday by a reduced majority. Of course our Republican friends will say that there is nothing to be deduced from these state elections bearing on the result in November.

ALTHOUGH there is no contest in the Democratic primaries it is desirable to have out as large a Democratic vote as possible. It is the hope of the county committee that the various precinct committeemen will take it upon themselves to talk up the primaries and urge upon Democrats the necessity of voting next Tuesday.

JOHN LIND has refused to accept the nomination for judge of the supreme court, and the vacancy on the ticket has been filled by the state central committee by naming Hon. O. M. Hall of Red Wing. Mr. Lind says that he meant what he said in Duluth when he stated that his political career would end on the 4th of March next.

THE Superior Telegram says: "The Minnesota Democrats nominated Hon. John A. Johnson for governor, and now the Republicans are afraid all the Johnsons in the state will vote for him. In some neighborhoods the people are all Johnsons and if they take a notion to make a family affair of it the political result might be startling.

H. P. HALL, the veteran editor, has written a book covering his observations in politics for half of a century. The book is dedicated to the young men of the state, whom he advises: "To the young men who, at some period of their lives, feel inclined to abandon regular legitimate business for the purpose of getting a foothold in political life, and incidentally some office, these pages are warningly inscribed with the single suggestion, Don't."

THE tariff reform Republicans who hoped for recommendations for a lower tariff on the necessities of life in President Roosevelt's letter of acceptance are disappointed. The president justifies the present exorbitant rates on the specious plea of expediency, and like other well-known Republican reformers concludes that during a campaign tariff reduction should not be mentioned above a whisper. Teddy makes a splendid play for campaign contributions from the trusts.

THE executive committees and literary bureaus of the opposing forces are organized and have got down to business at St. Paul, and for the coming two months the campaign will be on in earnest. Nationally, there will not be "much doing" in Minnesota, as the Democrats are not figuring on the vote of this state to elect Parker, and the Republicans evidently figure that there is no use spending money when there is every probability of carring the state anyway.

ON HOLDING OF WHEAT.

The American Society of Equity, with headquarters in Indianapolis, Ind., addresses the following appeal to farmers in the spring wheat belt. This is the society that urged the farmers to hold their crop last year for one dollar. It has issued its 1904 bulletin and has set the price of this crop of wheat at $1.20. The appeal follows:

A great obligation rests with you. We will make it plain and urge you to discharge it to your own interest and that of your brother farmers.

The 1904 crop of winter wheat was very short. Estimated by the society at 365,000,000 bushels, but discounted 50,000,000 on account of damage by rust, rain and other causes, making it 315,000,000 bushels on a flour making basis. This is about 100,000,000 bushels short of the crops grown for several years, while consumption is increasing rapidly and the country is scraped clean of wheat and flour. Late developments confirm our estimate and everybody has settled down to the conviction that unless the spring wheat crop is abnormally large, extremely high prices must prevail.

All eyes are turned on your states. The conditions there are variable, and no correct estimate can or will be made of the crop for some time yet. Millers, elevator interests, railroads and half the speculators want the impression to prevail that little damage has resulted because of the lateness of the crop and rust. In the last issue of the Northwestern Miller, four pages were devoted to minimizing the crop damages and to showing that the balance of the area will yield so abundantly as to make an average crop. This is only natural, because they want millers to get hold of the farmers' wheat at as low a price as possible. If any loss has occured they want to keep knowledge of it from the farmers until they have parted with their crops.

The same is true in the winter wheat sections, the bulk of the wheat was sold before farmers knew how short the crop was and how much it was damaged. Buyers flooded the regions where the wheat was good and sucked the country dry in a very short time. Is this not so? The farmers now realize that they missed their opportunity, but it is too late to repair the loss.

It is not too late for the spring wheat growers to get an equitable price for their crops. All eyes are turned in your direction. This society's bulletin dated July 25 recommended a price of $1.20 per bushel for the 1904 crop and gave reasons to prove the equity of this price. At that time it estimated the spring wheat crop at a full average. Therefore if you raise a full crop it is worth $1.20 on basis of Chicago market. If your crop is seriously shortened and damaged it will bring more. We don't need to go into the damage of your crop to sustain our position. The shortage of the winter wheat crop abundantly justifies the price. If we allow for an average spring wheat crop then the total won't bring the farmers as much at $1.20 as last year's crop would have brought at $1. No person will deny now that last year's crop was worth $1, because the demand sought it at that price and more. None was left over at the $1 rate.

Please understand this society is not on the bull side nor the bear side of the market. It is a farmers' society only. Its chief object is to secure for farmers a profitable price on every crop they grow. It takes a world wide view of such crops as wheat and then advises farmers what the crop is worth. We have said the 1904 crop is worth $1.20 as a minimum price at Chicago. If much damage occurs to the spring wheat crop it will sell for more. On the basis of $1.20 farmers should stand and they will get the price as sure as the world continues to eat bread. At the same time this price is equitable to the consumer because there is no other common food that goes on the table as cheap as bread from $1.20 wheat.

Controlled marketing is everything. If you cannot hold all your wheat, hold what you can. If you cannot hold any, sell it. Those who hold will make the market better for those who cannot hold. If all hold the price will go to $1.20—your price—in a few days. If few hold it will take longer, and if none hold, you will simply have dumped your fine grain like so much dirt and the people who get control of it will get the profits that belong to you. Talk $1.20 wheat. Hold for it and you will get it.

Worked Papa.

That there are girls in Adrian who are as smart as the men on Wall street, says the Guardian. A trusting father told his girls some weeks ago that he would pay them one cent apiece for all the dandelion plants they would dig from his lawn. When he came home in the evening the girls counted out 487 plants and he had to pay them $4.87. The next morning as he started down town he was hailed by a small boy who wanted to know if "them girls" wanted any more dandelions at half a cent a piece? "I've got a bully place where I can get mor'n a million," he said confidentially.

Thankful Women Who Have Been Cured by Dr. Hartman's Free Treatment.

Miss Ruth Emerson, 72 Sycamore St., Buffalo, N. Y., writes:

"I suffered for two years with irregular and painful menstruation, and Peruna cured me within six weeks. I cannot tell you how grateful I feel. Any agency which brings health and strength to the afflicted is always a welcome friend, and to-day the market is so filled with useless and injurious medicines that it is a pleasure to know of so reliable a remedy as you place before the public."

Miss Ruth Emerson.

MRS. J. E. FINN, 82 East High St., Buffalo, N., Y., writes:

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:

Gentlemen: "A few years ago I had to give up social life entirely, as my health was completely broken down. The doctor advised a complete change and rest for a year. As this was out of the question for a time, I began to look around for other means of restoring my health.

"I had often heard of Peruna as an excellent tonic, so I bought a bottle to see what it would do for me, and it certainly took hold of my system and rejuvenated me, and in less than two months I was in perfect health, and now when I feel worn out or tired a dose or two of Peruna is all that I need."—Mrs. J. E. Finn.

Pelvic catarrh is a phrase coined by Dr. Hartman, covering all that large class of diseases that used to be known as female weakness. The lower portion of the abdomen is called by anatomists the pelvis. The organs contained in this portion of the body are known as the pelvic organs. There are several of them, very delicate and very subject to catarrh. Few women escape entirely catarrh of these organs. While each case presents some minor difference as to detail, they are all in reality alike. Peruna does not relieve these cases by temporarily mitigating some symptom, but by a removal of the cause. Many a woman can testify that local treatment does not permanently cure. A large multitude of women are constantly going from doctor to doctor to receive local treatment, with little or no result.

In Peruna these women find a prompt and permanent cure.

Imitations of Pe-ru-na.

Peruna has come to be recognized as the greatest remedy for catarrh in the world. At first competitors tried to deny this and insisted that their remedies were just as good. This was found to be impossible, however, and now imitations are springing up everywhere.

To successfully palm off an imitation of Peruna even for a short time is sure to be a money-making scheme, but no one who has ever taken Peruna can be fooled on these imitations. No conscientious druggist would sell one of them. Every purchaser should look carefully at each package of Peruna he buys, to be sure that he is getting only genuine Peruna.

Wine of Cardui Cured Her.

213 South Prior Street,
ATLANTA, GA., March 21, 1903.

I suffered for four months with extreme nervousness and lassitude. I had a sinking feeling in my stomach which no medicine seemed to relieve, and losing my appetite I became weak and lost my vitality. In three weeks I lost fourteen pounds of flesh and felt that I must find speedy relief to regain my health. Having heard Wine of Cardui praised by several of my friends, I sent for a bottle and was certainly very pleased with the results. Within three days my appetite returned and my stomach troubled me no more. I could digest my food without difficulty and the nervousness gradually diminished. Nature performed her functions without difficulty and I am once more a happy and well woman.

Two young women were talking together in the postoffice the other day. "How many children have you?" asked one. "Twenty-two," was the reply. "How many have you?" Thirty-one." she replied. This attracted the attention of a motherly appearing woman, who stood near them. "Did I understand you to say that one of you had twenty-two children and you thirty-one?" she said. "Why, you don't look to be more than 25 years old apiece." "We're school teachers," replied of them.

Mrs. J. P. Harren entertained fourteen of her lady friends at a dinner party last evening. The affair was an elaborate one and won much praise from the recipients of Mrs. Harren's hospitality. The trustees of the Presbyterian church have hit upon a plan whereby they hope to raise sufficient money during the next six months to pay off the entire indebtedness of the church, about $1,500, and besides install a heating plant. The friends of the church will be asked to give installment notes for whatever sum they feel they can afford, one-half to be due December 1, and the remainder July 1. It is proposed to used these notes as collateral and secures the necessary funds from the banks to make the payments as indicated. Already over $500 has been pledged, and it is expected that the remainder will be secured in a comparatively short time.

Harry Ives, the corpulent editor of the St. Hilaire Spectator, has again experienced some of the disadvantages of being fat. While at Stillwater with the northwestern editors last week Harry concluded to take a ride on the Mississippi in company with a number of his lady friends. The launch which Harry engaged is the [illegible] in the city, but unfortunately the doors swing only one way. Harry got on all right, but in attempting to land he couldn't get out, and the obliging engineer was compelled to back the launch out, turn it around and let Ives off the stern end. This story may not be very funny, but it is true, and the fact that in the meantime Harry's fair companions got away from him makes him regret the unfortunate oversight of the architect of the launch.

THE PRESIDENT WILLING TO RUN

HIS LETTER ACCEPTING REPUBLICAN NOMINATION CONTAINS 12,000 WORDS.

Gives His Views on Public Questions and Says Issues on Which Opponents Expect to Wage Campaign Are Difficult to Find.

Oyster Bay, Sept. 12.—President Roosevelt has written his letter accepting the republican nomination for the presidency. The document is addressed to Hon. Joseph G. Cannon, chairman of the notification committee, and contains 12,000 words. In it the president discusses fully the issues of the campaign from a republican standpoint, and says it is hard to find from the democratic platform or the utterance of party leaders just the issues upon which that party proposes to wage battle. On this point the president says:

"The party now in control of the government is troubled by no such difficulties. We do not have to guess at our own convictions, and then correct the guess if it seems unpopular. The principles which we profess are those in which we believe with heart and soul and strength. Men may differ from us; but they cannot accuse us of shiftiness or insincerity."

The president outlines and defends the action of the administration in connection with the Panama revolution and the signing of the canal treaty. He charges misrepresentation on the part of the democrats in the statements of the conduct of the foreign policy of the administration and the operations of the navy. He reviews the history of the republican party's efforts to establish a stable national currency.

He points to the record of the administration in its dealings with both capital and labor, and carefully outlines each step that has been taken for the enforcement of the anti-trust laws, and explains the need of such laws on the national statute books in opposition to the democratic claim "that the common law, as developed, affords a complete legal remedy against monopolies." He charges the democrats with insincerity and evasiveness in their statements regarding a tariff policy. He reviews the administration of the government finances and refutes the charge that the government is administered extravagantly with facts and figures.

On the subject of reciprocity the president says: "We are on record as favoring arrangements for reciprocal trade relations with other countries, these arrangements to be on an equitable basis of benefit to both the contracting parties. The republican party stands pledged to every wise and consistent method of increasing the foreign commerce of the country."

Masked Men Dynamite Express Safe on Canadian Pacific Road—Secure Large Sum.

The robbers escaped to the bush and are supposed to have crossed the boundary. They secured about $6,000 from the express safe.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a ringing sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the muccus surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

CRUSHES OUT THE LIFE

The most loathsome and repulsive of all living things is the serpent, and the vilest and most degrading of all human diseases is Contagious Blood Poison. The serpent sinks its fangs into the flesh and almost instantly the poison passes through the entire body. Contagious Blood Poison, beginning with a little ulcer, soon contaminates every drop of blood and spreads throughout the whole system. Painful swellings appear in the groins, a red rash and copper colored splotches break out on the body, the mouth and throat become ulcerated, and the hair and eye brows fall out; but these symptoms are mild compared to the wretchedness and suffering that come in the latter stages of the disease when it attacks the bones and more vital parts of the body. It is then that Contagious Blood Poison is seen in all its hideousness. The deep eating abscesses and sickening ulcers and tumors show the whole system is corrupted and poisoned, and unless relief comes soon this serpent disease tightens its coils and crushes out the life. The only antidote for the awful virus is S. S. S. It is nature's remedy, composed entirely of vegetable ingredients. S. S. S., destroys every vestige of the poison, purifies the blood and removes all danger of transmitting the awful taint to others. Nothing else will do this. Strong mineral remedies, like mercury and potash, dry up the sores and drive in the disease, but do not cure permanently.

My Breath.

Shortness of Breath Is One of the Commonest Signs of Heart Disease.

Notwithstanding what many physicians say, heart disease can be cured.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure has permanently restored to health many thousands who had found no relief in the medicines (allopathic or homoeopathic) of regular practicing physicians. It has proved itself unique in the history of medicine, by being so uniformly successful in curing those diseases.

Nearly always, one of the first signs of trouble is shortness of breath. Whether it comes as a result of walking or running up stairs, or of other exercises, if the heart is unable to meet this extra demand upon its pumping powers—there is something wrong with it.

The very best thing you can do, is to take Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure. It will go to the foundation of the trouble, and make a permanent cure by strengthening and renewing the nerves.

"I know that Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure is a great remedy. For a number of years I suffered from shortness of breath, smothering spells, and pains in my left side. For months at a time I would be unable to lie on my left side, and if I lay flat on my back would nearly smother. A friend advised using Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, which I did with good results. I began to improve at once, and after taking several bottles of the Heart Cure the pains in my side and other symptoms vanished. I am now entirely well. All those dreadful smothering spells are a thing of the past."—F. P. DRAKE, Middletown, O.

A Republican Voter Writes....

"A good term deserves another" is possibly a wise political maxim. But, just the same, I do not believe that it should be made the excuse for office holders hanging on to the good things in county politics for a life time.

The present incumbent of the office of Register of Deeds in this county has been a good officer. Nobody will attempt to deny that. That is what he is paid for. And the office pays better than any other in the county.

He has been a good officer, as I said, and he has also been well paid. He is now a comparatively rich man, The office averages about four thousand a year. Six years of it means twenty-four thousand dollars. Don't you think it is nearly time to step down and out and give the other boys a show at the pie counter?

For there are plenty of others in the country who have the brains, the experience in land titles, the education and the ability to fill the office just as well as the present incumbent.

Such a one is Knute J. Weeks, who has a lifelong history of Republican affiliations and who now seeks the nomination of that party for Register of Deeds. Mr. Weeks is a man of broad education, a man of integrity as evinced by the respect and esteem of his fellow citizens, of undoubted ability, for which witness his invaluable services as President of the most successful County Fair Association in the valley, and in addition has large experience in matters pertaining to land titles and abstracts. An ideal man for the position. Clearly Mr. Gibeau has no advantage personally over Mr. Weeks as a candidate. And when it comes to matters political the advantage lies all in Mr. Weeks' favor.

The present officer has served three terms as a Populist. That party having died a natural death he followed the Democratic convention to St. Hilaire. Just why he did this can best be imagined but at all events that convention endorsed another man for Register of Deeds and then—and only then—Mr. Gibeau filed as a Republican candidate for office.

Now, that may be all right, but there are a whole lot of the boys who believe that it is pretty nervy for so newly baked a Republican to expect the party to nominate him for the best office in the county. It looks a little like the tight rope performer who balances a little on one side and a little on the other but whose whole attention is bent on keeping on top of the rope, whatever happens.

Now, tight rope walking is an interesting and amusing spectacle but I noticed that after a time it is usual to get off the rope and give the other performer a chance. And I think it is about Sam's turn to get off the rope.

Now, Mr. Gibeau is a good fellow and a good officer and he wants to hold on to his job. K. J. Weeks is also a good fellow and will make a good officer and he wants the job. Mr. Gibeau has held it six years and is well fixed financially. I think it is his move. What do you think?—REPUBLICAN VOTER.

Reply to "A Republican Voter"

Mr. Editor:—Under the caption, "A Republican Voter Writes," an article appeared in last week's issue of the "Review" and other papers of Thief River Falls, signed "A Republican Voter," inspired against myself no doubt, in the interest of the candidacy of K. J. Weeks for Register of Deeds; as no mention is made of either Mr. Albue or Mr. Ecklund, who are also candidates for the nomination of the same office. This "Republican Voter" is very prejudiced, and seeks to prejudice others by his peculiar reasoning.

The first objection he has to my candidacy is that I have had the office for six years; that the office averages $4,000 a year, and that I "should give the other boys a show at the pie counter." If every voter, Mr. Editor, should reason along these lines, how long will the high standard of your county offices be upheld? It is a conceded fact that experience in all lines of business; be it a county office or any other, benefits that business in direct proportion to the experience given it; other things being equal. It follows, therefore, that as nothing but praise is brought out against my management of the office, by the writer of that article, his objection to my length of tenure in office fails of itself.

The fees and emoluments that I have received in the office seems also to be a thorn in the side of our excellent writer, and in connection with this, I will explain facts which do not seem to have impressed themselves on his mind. The office of Register of Deeds in this County is a fee office, that is, everything is paid for at rates fixed by Statute, and this constitutes the only pay received by the Register of Deeds for his services and out of this he must pay all his office help and sundry stationery and blanks, so that when business in real estate is at a low ebb as at present, the receipts of the office are correspondingly low, and I will say that at no time of the County's history has the office averaged $4,000 a year nor anywhere near that figure, as evidenced by the sworn yearly reports on file in the auditors office, or by examination of the fee book in the Register of Deeds office. Another factor in the fee system of the office is that of compiling abstracts; which is not compulsory on the part of the public to send to that office, so that if the Register of Deeds is not a competent and reliable abstracter the fees from this source will dwindle down very materially.

Now Mr. Editor, we have reached the core of the anguish caused by my candidacy to the writer of that article who hides under the signatnre of "Republican Voter"—his objection to my filing as a Republican candidate. In this connection I will state for the benefit of himself and others who may not be familiar with the circumstances; that for some time prior to August 31, last, our county attorney had ruled that his interpretation of the primary law was to the effect that Populists could file as candidates for the party nomination at the primaries. Having this foundation, myself and others went to St. Hilaire the day of the Democratic convention, not for the purpose of affiliating with that party, as insinuated, but to effect an agreement so as to put a Peoples party ticket in the field (by the way, "Republican Voter" is wrong in stating that any one was endorsed for Register of Deeds by the Democratic convention, as no one was endorsed for that office (but some of the Democrats did not take kindly to this and bluntly told one of our party that he must join the Democratic party or stand the consequences to himself as a candidate. I was not approached by them nor did I go into their convention. During the last week in August I made a demand on the county auditor to file on the Peoples' party ticket; stating the position of the county attorney on the subject. This forced the auditor to get the attorney general's opinion, who ruled that the Peoples' Party had no legal standing, and that in order to go through the primaries, it was necessary to file for the nomination of one or the other of the two parties. Under the circumstances, I filed for the Republican nomination for Register of Deeds,

In coming out as a candidate, I did so solely at the urgent solicitation of a number of the heaviest patrons of the office. I have worked hard to make the office what it is, and to deserve the confidence of its patrons, with what success I am willing to let the voters decide. In the discharge of my duties I have never let politics discriminate, and am asking the voters to support me on those grounds only. If through political bias or through diatribes of my opponents or friends, I am defeated for the nomination, I shall neverless support the Republican nominee for Register of Deeds and will expect that, if I am nominated, they will, in all fairness, render me the same courtesy; and support me at the polls in November next.

Frank Jeffers, Democratic candidate for the office of Register of Deeds, needs no introduction to Red Lake county voters. He is already well known as an able, energetic, efficient public officer, and an "all-round good fellow."

Possessed of a liberal education, he taught school several years and so won the repect and confidence of the people that upon the organization of the county, he was chosen to superintend its schools, a post in which he served so well, that his re-elections since were practically unanimous. The present excellent condition of the county schools, and the high standing attained by them, a fact attested by their teachers, show that Mr. Jeffers has ever served the public faithfully and well.

An excellent penman, well versed in all the requirements of the office, and trained by several years of public service, he will be a first-class register of deeds, and you will make no mistake in giving him your vote.

When our people were engaged with old Polk county in a fight for the life of Red Lake, Jeffers put his shoulder to the wheel, and fought in the front ranks, and the fact that there is a Red Lake county today, and an office to hold, is due as much to his efforts as to those of any other man in the county. Whenever a proposition of any kind has come before the people, Jeffers has always been "right," and never hesitated to say and do what he thought was right. A good friend, a good officer, and a good fellow, he deserves your vote and support on every count.

Political Pot-Pourri.

The primary election takes place next Tuesday. As far as the Democrats are concerned there is no apprehension as to the outcome, for there is not a single contest for place on the ticket. The Democratic county ticket will be as follows: Auditor, James E. Ford; treasurer, Karl M. Hansen; register of deeds, Frank Jeffers; judge of probate, N. W. Tarrant; sheriff, Daniel Linnihan; commissioner second district, Sam Luxenburg. There will be no Democratic candidate for county attorney or superintendent of schools.

H. E. Albue, one of the candidates for register of deeds who had filed for the Republican nomination, withdrew before the ballots were printed, leaving the Republican field with but three candidates, Messrs. K. J. Weeks, Samuel Gibeau and C. C. Ecklund. Mr. Ecklund is not expected to develop much strength outside of his immediate vicinity, so the real fight is narrowed down to Messrs. Weeks and Gibeau. The fight will be close and hotly contested, with the outcome hard to predict.

John L. Finke was down from Norden township the fore part of the week, and is canvassing the situation relative to coming out as an independent candidate for county treasurer. Under the present primary system the independent candidate is "up against it" and the chances for election are so meager as to hardly warrant the effort and expense of conducting a campaign. Nearly every voter figures that a candidate for office ought to have political convictions, and most people would prefer to vote for a candidate of the opposite party rather than for one whose politics is an unknown and uncertain quantity.

The contest for county superintendent in the Republican primaries will be interesting. Mrs. J. J. Doe and her friends are working hard and seem to be certain of success. It is figured that the woman vote will largely favor Mrs. Doe and overcome any majority the other candidate may have in the male vote. J. B. O'Brien, the St. Hilaire candidate, was supposed to be very strong, but his campaign has apparently gone by default, and indications are that he will be third in the race. The Thief River candidate, Mr. E. L. Quist, is working hard every day, and expects to be nominated. Next Tuesday will decide how well his claims are grounded.

The state campaign will receive considerable attention in Red Lake county. Chairman Watson, of the Republican committee, announces that he has secured the promise of several good speakers for Red Lake Falls, Thief River and St. Hilaire, and the country districts will be taken care of local orators. Dr. Tupper, chairman of the Democratic committee, says that Hon. John A. Johnson, candidate for governor, will probably speak at both Thief River and Red Lake Falls, and Hon. John Lind has promised to come to Red Lake county during the campaign. The spell-binders will not get up this way until the fore part of October, and whatever the campaign may lack in length will be made up in enthusiasm.

County Attorney Grady announces in last week's local Republican organ that he will be an independent candidate for county attorney, and will file the necessary petition to have his name placed on the general election ballot. Mr. Grady expresses himself as being confident as to the outcome, but it must be admitted that the independent candidate is in hard lines. True, the Democrats have no candidate, but from that very fact many of them will be as much disposed to vote for a Republican as an independent. Then, again, Mr. Germo, the Republican candidate, made an excellent campaign two years ago, and was defeated by the narrow margin of five in a campaign in which the combined strength of the Democratic and Populist organizations was arrayed against him.

The Republican county committee had a session in Red Lake Falls Saturday afternoon, and the meeting was attended by most of the candidates defore the primaries. It was not a love-feast, for a good many of our brethren carried knives as long as a wagon tongue. Mr. Ostby, the self-appointed candidate for county auditor, who doesn't expect more then 400 votes out of a possible 2500, was especially sore. He scored the newspapers vigorously, and intimated that the three or four Republican journals supporting the Democratic candidate ought to be read out of the party. No action was taken, however, and the papers will not be hauled up for les majeste nor their publication stopped before election. Mr. Quist, the Thief River candidate for county superintendent, seems also to have invoked trouble by inveighing against candidates who had not been generally recognized as Republicans before they had filed for office. The grand finale was reached when Editor McDonald, the Thief River editor and secretary of the county committee, in a labored and impassioned speech, declared that every Republican should vote only for Republicans, and characterized it as a burning shame and a disgrace that Red Lake county voters should tolerate a single Democrat in office. Mr. McDonald, who is very young in years as well as in his residence in Red Lake county, is out for a record, and according to his story the ides of November will see the last vestige of Democracy swept away, and if a man doesn't want to be a Republican he will have the other alternative of getting off the earth. And Mr. McDonald is so unsophisticated that he believes he was transplanted from Iowa to the fertile soil of Red Lake county for the sole purpose of carrying the standard of Republicanism to every housetop and demolishing the breastworks of the enemy with a single blow. These callow enthusiasts have risen before—and subsided again, for the very good reason that the average voter is not an embittered partisan with an ax to grind, nor a chump that is led around by the nose by a youthful carpet-bagger secretary of a county committee. The meeting was a wonderful success. Every candidate pledged himself to get out and hustle for the ticket, and as a logical result each went away with the intention of making any trade that would advance his own candidacy. This always has been the way of politics, and when you find a man who is so loyal to his party that he will sacrifice himself for the general good it may well be expected that the millenium is not far off.

DAIRY DEPARTMENT.

Edited by Geo. L. Austin, Manager of the Red Lake Falls Creamery.

If you run a hand separator and yon—as it sometimes happens—for one reason or other do not get your milk skimmed in the night, but leave it till morning, be sure to warm it up before running it through your machine as you otherwise very soon will pay the price of the separator once more in lost butter-fat.

A good cow is young. She should no be more than four or five years old when you buy her. The next four years will be her best. You want her during that time. Again, the good cow will have a good big bag and fair-sized teats. You can't get milk without some place for storing it. Then, follow the milk vein up and see if it be large, entering the body through a good-sized aperture. These are signs of the good cow.

The argument has been frequently offered that milk while cooling will not assimilate odors from the surrounding atmosphere. Were this true warm milk could be safely left in the cow stable while cooling, but facts will not bear out this theory. 'Tis true that while milk is cooling it is throwing off heat and animal odors, but is equally persistent in absorbing flavors from the stable atmosphere. Get the milk out of the barn as soon as possible. Clean utensils, careful milking and quick-cooling should be the maxim of every dairyman who has any pride in producing milk fit for the stomach of man.

Do you thinks it pays to let a cough run until it "wears off"? We don't. We know that in nine cases out of ten that cough will wear you off first, and that a bottle of Cole's Cough Cure will pay for itself many times in the doctor bills it will save you. Try it. 25 and 50c. Guaranteed by all druggists.

In locating a dairy barn, care should be taken to have a gentle slope from the barn in at least one direction, affording good natural drainage for both barn and yard. If the barn is already built and poorly located, draining and grading will do much to remedy the evil. In most cases it would take but a small amount of labor and plow and scraper, when the ground is in suitable condition to handle, to give the surface of the yard a slope from the barn sufficient to carry off the surface water. Even if dirt has to be hauled in from outside the yard to accomplish this it will not be expensive. The drainage alone under a yard is not sufficient, as the tramping of the cattle soon puddles the surface, preventing the water from passing down to the tile.

Have you returned from your vacation tired out with too much play? Or was it impossible for you to take that much needed rest? Try Cole's Bludbilder and see how strong it will make you feel. It makes new blood, strenghens the nerves and helps you back to health. It's just what its name implies. Try it. $1.00 by all druggists.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Miss Norby's room was so crowded that it was necessary to exchange with Miss Nieland.

The pupils of the fourth and fifth grades have decided to keep the banners at the Lafayette school another month.

The total enrollment at the close of the first week was 382, 173 boys and 209 girls. Quite a few have been added this week.

A large number of pupils occupied seats so high they could not touch the floor with their feet. This has been remedied by changing some of the seats and putting planks under the others.

The junior class met and elected the following officers this week: President, Walter Johnson; secretary, Ella Krueger; treasurer, Joseph Toupin. The Freshmen are also busy with their organization.

The pupils of the eighth grade will organize a literary society. The programs will be arranged by the pupils with very little assistance from the teachers. They expect to give their first program next week Friday.

The attendance at the Washington school was so large that the following pupils have been transferred to the Lafayette school in order to make room on the north side: Fifth grade—Hazel Bourdon, Julia Rasmussen, Florence Olson and Clarence Olson. Fourth grade—George Zeh, Ralph Bourdon, John Hennemuth and Ernest Gerlach. Third grade—Charles Boughton, Francis Febro, Alice Rasmussen, Adolph Olson and Wilfred Guerin.

HARD-FOUGHT CONTESTS BRING OUT LARGE REPUBLICAN VOTE

K. J. Weeks for Register and Mrs. J. J. for Superintendent Nominated at Primary Election Tuesday.

No Contests on the Democratic Tickets and Only a Few Jacksonians Go to the Polling Places.

Weeks Wins by Small Plurality.

The primary election returns are all in with the exception of Wyandotte, and show a plurality for K. J. Weeks in the race for the Republican nomination for register of deeds of 13. Wyandotte township will not change this materially. It is more than probable that Mr. Weeks has carried this town by a few votes. The fight for this place was hotly contested.

Simons Renominated for Representative.

In the Sixty-first legislative district, comprising Red Lake, Clearwater and Beltrami counties, Hon L. C. Simons, the present member of the house, is re-nominated, having between 200 and 300 majority over Dr. L. L. Mayland of Bagley, It appears at this writing that Mr. Simons has carried both Red Lake and Beltrami counties, losing Clearwater, the home of his opponent, by a very small majority.

The primary election did not arouse a great deal of enthusiasm. The only contests were on county superintendent, register of deeds and commissioner in the Thief River districts, all in the Republican party.

Mrs. J. J. Doe, the Red Lake Falls candidate won the nomination for superintendent by the handsome plurality of over 400. At this writing six precincts have not reported, so that exact figures cannot be given.

The vote on register of deeds is very close, and at the present time it is not known whether Samuel Gibeau or K. J. Weeks will be the Republican candidate. In the townships reported the vote is about even. Mr. Gibeau expects to get a good vote in Poplar River and Garnes, with enough scattering votes in other missing precincts to give him the nomination. Mr. Gibeau tells THE COURIER that he expects to have four or five votes to spare, but Mr. Weeks' friends refuse to concede that their candidate is defeated. The result of the canvassing board will not be known until tomorrow.

The Democrats had no contest, and a very light vote was polled in that party, aggregating but little more than a hundred votes in the county. The Democratic candidates will be as follows: Auditor, James E. Ford; treasurer, Karl M. Hansen; register, Frank Jeffers; judge of probate, N. W. Tarrant; sheriff, Daniel Linnihan; commissioner in second district, Sam Luxenburg.

The fight for the Republican nomination for commissioner in the Thief River district resulted in the nomination of Daniel Shaw over W. W. Prichard by a majority of more than a hundred.

The Republican nominees for county offices are: Auditor, Paul I. D. Ostby; treasurer, Ovide Moreau; register, in doubt; sheriff, Ernest Buse; county attorney, Thomas Germo; judge of probate, N. K. Anderson; surveyor, J. K. Wood; superintendent, Mrs. J. J. Doe; commissioner second district, W. C. L. Demann; commissioner fourth district, Daniel Shaw.

Returns from the state at large are practically all in, and results on congressmen are settled. In the Second district, where Congressman McCleary was opposed by Herbert J. Miller, editor of the Luverne Herald, McCleary is nominated by a majority of about 3,000. In the fifth district Loren Fletcher, who was defeated two years ago by John Lind, was nominated by about 1,000 plurality over a field of four other candidates. In the sixth district Congressman Buckman is re-nominated over A. F. Foster.

SIX ARE SLAIN IN RACE RIOT

THREE WHITE MEN AND THREE NEGROES KILLED IN BATTLE NEAR CAIRO, ILL.

FIFTY JEWS MASSACRED ON RUSSIAN FRONTIER

Mob Seeks Hebrew Quarter of Sasnovitch, Germany—Horrible Atrocities of Kishineff Are Repeated—At Least 100 Wounded.

Cairo, Ill., Sept. 20.—Six men have been slain in a race riot near O'Brien's Landing, about four miles from here. Many other persons were wounded in the fierce battle between a party of white men and several negroes. The full report of the riot has not yet reached here, and it is probable from the meager reports that the dead may number more than six.

Fierce Race War.

A negro employed at O'Brien's Landing reached here at 2:30 a. m. and told of a fierce battle between whites and negroes. The man was unable to tell a coherent story, but under close questioning he said that six or more men had been slain. Shortly after another negro, his head filled with shot and his nose carried away by a rifle bullet, reached town, drenched in his blood. He declares that six men had been killed and others wounded when he fled from the scene of battle after being severely wounded. Making his way through the dense underbrush, he succeeded in eluding the men who were in pursuit of him. The man reached here in a disabled condition, his wounds torn and scratched by the underbrush. It is believed that he cannot recover.

Crap Game Starts Trouble.

The riot, according to the negro's story, originated over a crap game. The negroes occupied a small house about a quarter of a mile from O'Brien's Landing, where the game was played without molestation from the authorities. A white man had gone there to play. He was pitted against three negroes. During the course of the game he lost considerable money. Believing that he was being cheated, the white man became infuriated. His anger was increased by the realization that he was powerless against the negroes.

He dashed from the house. About an hour later he reappeared with a party of friends, each of whom was armed with a Winchester. The white men advanced across the front yard of the house, and, without a word, began firing. The negroes, who had secured arms, returned the fire, and the battle raged furiously about the house. The negro fled at this point, leaving the fight still raging. The outcome of the battle is not known.

MANY JEWS MASSACRED.

Rioters in Germany Repeat Bloody Scenes of Kishineff.

Berlin, Sept. 20.—Rioters at Sasnovitch, a city in Germany, near the Russian border, have perpetrated a massacre on the Jews which rivals in its horrors the atrocities at Kishineff. Fifty Jews were killed by the maddened mob and at least 100 were injured. The bodies of the slain were dismembered and profaned, portions being thrown to the dogs. The police, it is said, as at Kishineff, connived with the infuriated horde. The riot occurred a week ago. News of the outbreak evidently has been successfully suppressed by the German officials.

Sasnovitch, where the riot is reported to have occurred, is a small city in the province of Prisen, in Germany, near the Russian border. The population of the place is made up of Jews, Germans and Russians. The riots began at sunrise on Sunday one week ago and continued until the rioters were exhausted. Bodies of victims were dismembered. The rioters used axes and knives to chop off arms and legs, the severed members being tossed to the dogs in the streets. In one instance, it is reported, the arms of a sexton of a synagogue were twisted from his body by his assailants, and the wounded who were carried to hospitals were maltreated after reaching the institution.

Victims Are Dismembered.

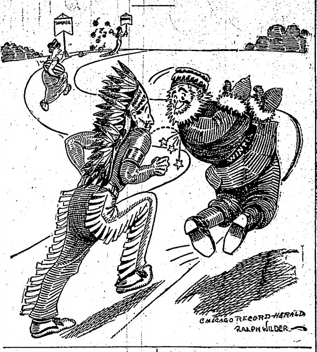
The bloodthirsty mob fell upon the Jewish quarter after sunrise, and whenever it encountered a Jew pursued him and stabbed him in the back or shot him down as he was making his escape. The bodies of those who were riddled with shot were left to lie in the street until the second mob, carrying knives, would come along. With their sharp blades they severed hands, legs and feet. Fragments of these bodies were hurled to dogs, which followed the mob. Victims of the slaughter were chopped and dismembered so that identification of the corpses by friends was almost impossible. The massacre lasted all day and ended only when the mob was exhausted. In the darkness of the night the Jews gathered up fragments of bodies and buried them, while the surviving wounded were taken to hospitals.

Assertions are made that the chief of police of Sasnovitch, knowing the massacre was planned, detailed his men to another section of the city on a pretext that their services were needed there, thus permitting the slaughter to continue without interference.

Attempt to Hide Crime.

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 20.—The body of Willie Boyd, a young white man of Shorters, was found under a bed in the burning house of a negress. The body was mutilated by knife and gunshot wounds.

A QUESTION OF PRECEDENCE.



PRINCE HERBERT BISMARCK DEAD

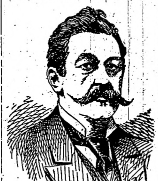
NOTED SON OF FAMOUS GERMAN CHANCELLOR DIES AFTER LINGERING ILLNESS.

TITLE GOES TO HIS SEVEN-YEAR-OLD SON

Latter Will Also Receive Large Fortune—Will Be Buried Under Father's Mausoleum—Brief Sketch of His Career.

Friedrichsruhe, Sept. 20.—Prince Herbert Bismarck, soldier, diplomat, lawyer and legislator, eldest son of the late Prince Otto Bismarck, the great chancellor of the German empire, died here Sunday morning at 10:15 o'clock, after a lingering illness. For several weeks there had been no hope of his recovery, as it was known that his ailment was cancer of the liver.

The body of Prince Herbert Bismarck will be buried in the vault beneath his father's mausoleum, not beside the remains of the great chancellor in the chapel.



PRINCE HERBERT BISMARCK.

The title of Prince Bismarck and the large fortune of the deceased will go to his seven-year-old son Otto. The late Emperor Frederick gave to Chancellor Bismarck extensive forests at Friedrichsruhe, which have since increased in value, and the chancellor gave to Prince Herbert $2,400,000 in securities and cash. The estate is now estimated to be worth $4,000,000, exclusive of the lands.

His Career.

Prince Bismarck was born in 1849, and was the oldest son of the late Prince Otto Bismarck, the great chancellor of the German empire. He studied law in the Berlin and Bonn universities, served in the Prussian army as a lieutenant of reserves during the Franco-German war of 1870-71, and was severely wounded at the battle of Mars-la-Tour. In 1873 Herbert became an official of the department of foreign affairs and was assistant to his father, then chancellor. He was attached to the German legations at Berne and at Vienna from 1874 to 1877. Later on the deceased became councillor of the German embassy in London, and subsequently occupied the same position at St. Petersburg. In 1884 he was appointed minister extraordinary at The Hague, and in 1885 he became under secretary of state in the department of foreign affairs. This post Herbert held until the dismissal of his father from the chancellorship, when he left the service of the empire. From 1884 to 1887 the deceased was a member of the German reichstag, and also from 1893 until the time of his death. He was married in 1892 to Countess Margaret Hoyes, of the Hungarian nobility, and after the death of his father he inherited the title of prince.

Will Be Reopened.

Chicago, Sept. 20.—The Iroquois theater, which burned December 30 last, when nearly 600 lives were lost, has been granted a license to reopen. It will be called the Hyde & Behman Music hall, and will be devoted exclusively to vaudeville. The reopening of this theater causes indignation in many quarters.

IS SLAIN IN COLD BLOOD

MAYOR OF THOMPSON, ILL., IS KILLED BY DESPERADOES.

Victim Meets Death While Attempting Arrest of Robbers—Lynching Narrowly Averted.

Savanna, Ill., Sept. 20.—President Wayland F. Bennett, of the village board of trustees of Thompson, ten miles south of this city, was shot and killed Saturday by a stranger, whom he was attempting to place in jail. The murderer, who gives the name of William Myers, of Chicago, was captured by the village marshal after a running fight of several blocks, in which Myers was slightly wounded. Myers and a companion, giving John Johnson as his name, were arrested on suspicion of being implicated in a burglary at Sedgewick, near Thompson. Bennett had started for the jail with his charge when Myers turned on him, pulled a revolver and fired five shots into his body, killing him instantly. The village became wild with excitement, and strong talk of lynching Myers was feared, but it subsided when the sheriff took charge of the man. Myers was held without bail, and with his companion, who had no hand in the shooting, is now in the county jail at Mount Carroll.

END LIVES TOGETHER.

Man and Young Woman Commit Suicide at York, Pa.—Complain of Cruel World.

York, Pa., Sept. 20.—Michael Schall, head of the Keystone Foundry Machine company, of this city, and Miss Nettie Gatmatt, also of York, were found dead in the young woman's apartments here Monday. Three gas jets in the room were turned on and the apartment was full of gas. They had spent Sunday at Penmar, returning about nine o'clock at night. Both wrote notes, in which they complained of the cruel world, sat down without removing their clothing and turned on the gas. Schall was a single man and had been drinking to excess lately. Both had been suffering from nervous affections and to this is attributed the tragedy. Both were well connected socially.

American Note Answered.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 20.—The Russian answer to the American notes in regard to contraband of war, as specifically raised in the cases of the British steamer Calchas and the Portland and Asiatic line steamer Arabia (both captured by the Vladivostok squadron, the former while bound from Puget sound ports to Japan), has been delivered. It follows generally the lines of the reply to Great Britain.

Quarrel Results in Killing.

Marshall, Mich., Sept. 20.—Henry Devonshire, a farmer living near Duck Lake, 16 miles northeast of here, was shot and killed Sunday night by J. C. Mitchell, of Springport. Mitchell gave himself up to the officers. The men quarreled over reports that Devonshire was alleged to have circulated about Mitchell's wife, and Mitchell says that after hot words Devonshire attempted to stab him and that he then shot him.

Dowie's Latest Title.

Chicago, Sept. 20.—Wearing a rich robe and miter modeled after those of an ancient Jewish high priest, John Alexander Dowie yesterday proclaimed himself "John Alexander," first apostle of the Christian Catholic church. The announcement was not a surprise. It had been expected for days, had been canvassed thoroughly by the church, and published to the world.

Shutdown Is Ended.

Central Falls, R. I., Sept. 20.—A two months' shutdown of the United States Cotton company's mills here, on account of a strike, ended Monday. All departments resumed operations, though some had not the full quota of help.

Servian King to Be Crowned.

Not Candid or Fair.

It would hardly be too severe criticism to say that there is not a subject touched upon by Mr. Roosevelt in this long, artfully wrought deliverance which is treated candidly and fairly. In advocacy and in opposition he is equally unjust. He may have learned from Elihu Root the special pleader's art of hiding the real issue behind a false one, and so confusing the intelligence of those whom he addresses. The egotistic quality of assuming that he is always right, and whoever disagrees with him is therefore wrong, he did not need to learn from anybody; it is congenitial; he is built that way.—Boston Herald.

CAPITOL READY FIRST OF YEAR.

Building Will Be in Condition for the Legislature.

The state board of capitol commissioners recently sold to the state investment board $700,000 worth of capitol certificates of indebtedness at par. The certificates bear 3½ per cent interest, $300,000 worth bearing date of Sept. 1 and $400,000 worth bearing date of Nov. 1, with interest payable semi-annually. The certificates are payable on or before maturity and $50,000 of them are to mature July 1, 1928, and the others will mature thereafter at the rate of $100,000 per annum. Chairman Seabury said that this amount is sufficient to pay all contracts completed this year, which includes practically all of the contracts for the completion of the building.

After the bid of the state investment board for the certificates had been accepted the members of the board went to the capitol to inspect the building and to see what progress is being made by the contractors. They found all of the work progressing nicely, and expect that the building will be practically completed this year. Architect Cass Gilbert was unable to be present at the meeting because of the death of his daughter in New York a few days ago. He will return to St. Paul as soon as possible, and it is expected that plans and specifications for the roadways, walks and curbing on the grounds will be completed soon as the contract for the work is let this fall.

The interior decorations are fast nearing completion. The furniture and carpets are arriving and will be stored in the building until the rooms are ready. The members of the board feel confident that the new capitol will be ready for occupancy the first of the year.

Mr. Seabury said that he had instructed the superintendent at the capitol to hire a man to cut down the weeds on the grounds. "I have taken the liberty of ordering this work done without the authorization of the board," said Mr. Seabury, "because of the many objections that have been made to the untidy appearance of the grounds, due to the thick growth of weeds which has sprung up on the sandy ground around the building. The commission had believed that the presence of the weeds was preferable to having the seed washed down the slope onto Wabasha street. There have been so many complaints about the weeds that I have assumed the responsibility of ordering them cut to please the esthetic people of St. Paul."

MANY NEW GRADES.

Ten Grades to Handle This Year's Wheat Crop.

Ten additional grades have been established to meet the peculiar conditions existing in this year's wheat crop. The three regular grades are No. 1 Northern, testing 57 lbs. to the bushel; No. 2 Northern, testing 56 lbs. to the bushel, and No. 3 Northern testing 55 lbs. The new grades are:

Wheat testing over 51 lbs. and not more than 53 lbs. in the dirt, if dry and of a bright amber color, may be bought at No. 4 card price.

Wheat testing 49 lbs. and not more than 51 lbs. in the dirt, if dry and of bright amber color, must not be bought at better than Rejected card price.

Wheat testing 48 lbs. in the dirt is to be bought at 3c less than Rejected card price.

Wheat testing 47 lbs. in the dirt is to be bought at 6c less than Rejected card price.

Wheat testing 46 lbs. in the dirt is to be bought at 10c less than Rejected card price.

Wheat testing 45 lbs. at 14c less.
Wheat testing 44 lbs. at 18c less.
Wheat testing 43 lbs. at 22c less.
Wheat testing 42 lbs. at 26c less.
Wheat testing 41 lbs. at 30c less.
Wheat testing 40 lbs. at 35c less.

Wheat included in above classes must be dry and good amber color.

No Wheat included in the above classes should be docked less than 2 lbs. per bushel, and when it contains foul seeds should be docked accordingly.

The term "macaroni" has been abolished by state boards of grain appeals in referring to varieties of wheat and in it place the name "Durum" has been chosen. In eastern markets grades of macaroni have been known as Durum for some time, and that is now the official name in Minneapolis.

Macaroni wheat now occupies a prominent place in the grain business of the country. It was originally produced in comparatively small quantities and was used for the making of macaroni. It has gradually come into use by the millers, however, and is more of a factor every year in the manufacture of flour.

The farmers look on it with favor for it yields more bushels per acre than the other kinds of spring wheat and will stand more rust and drouth without serious damage than any other variety.

The boards of appeals have established an extra grade for Durum. Last year they were Nos. 1 and 2 and rejected for macaroni wheat. A No. 3 Durum has been established.

The new grade was made in view of cases where macaroni may be mixed with other varieties of spring wheat.

A slight change has been made in the rule for grading No. 2 Northern spring. Owing to the great damage that has been done by the rust the boards thought it advisable to establish a No. 4 grade of spring wheat. This grade comes in between No. 3 and Rejected. Much wheat of the present crop will be graded No. 4 that would otherwise have been called Rejected. Wheat to grade No. 4, however, must weigh not less than forty-nine pounds to be the measured bushels.

A test weight has also been placed on barley and rye. This is something that has never been done in the past. The grade No. 5 barley has been abolished and a grade of Nos. 1 and 2 feed barley has been established in lieu thereof.

Some Pertinent Questions.

Albert Lea Standard: Is it possible that any upright and reputable Republican paper of the state will fail to make indignant protest against and oppose the election of Ray Jones, the convicted timber thief, for lieutenant governor? What do self-respecting Republican papers say? They cannot afford to be silent in such a case. And, too, there is Texas oil stock Lewis on their ticket for judge of the supreme court! Did he not assist in defrauding hundreds of people and cause the utter ruin of many confiding citizens who bought stock in his fake oil company? Is it not a duty to oppose the election of such men?

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Whoever heard of a teetotaler going fishing?

A girl saves her graduating essay to show her children, and a boy his batting average.

When a girl is jealous it is a sign she will come pretty near to fooling you into thinking she is not.

When a woman is hanging pictures on a stepladder and stops to think if anybody should come in and catch her, she comes right down and changes her stockings.

It makes a boy pretty tired to have his mother take so much pains with the way he must dress to make a creditable appearance at Sunday school when he is really going fishing.

LOCAL politics are getting lively, and from now until election day the candidates will not be asleep.

REALLY, now, does the Thief River Review thinks that a Republican can justify his vote for Ray Jones?

A FAIRMONT man, according to the Sentinel, calls his wife an angel because she is always harping on something or other.

JOHN JOHNSON is making a whirlwind of a campaign. At Minneapolis and in the southern part of the state the Republicans are organizing Roosevelt and Johnson clubs.

EB. HUNTINGTON sagely advises the young ladies that it is always safe to go boatriding with a bashful man, because he never stirs after getting seated. But Eb. probably knows that safety isn't a primary consideration with the average young lady.

JOEL HEATWOLE'S Northfield News says. referring to the tariff on lumber: "We believe that lumber should come in free with iron, steel, glass and other necessities that are controlled by the trusts. When an industry get big enough to walk alone and wear long trousers it ought to be able to take care of itself."

IT takes three and one-third as long to write the Roman numerals from 1 to 100 as the Arabic, and the chance of error is twenty-one times as great; it takes three times as long to read the Roman numerals from 1 to 100 as the Arabic, and the chance of error is eight times as great.

IT is expected that in the four states of Utah, Idaho, Wyoming, and Colorado there will be one hundred thousand women vote, and that their ballots will decide the national election for those states, says the Mapleton Enterprise. It seems that where full suffrage is given to women they take an active interest in politics.

THE Morris Times says: Frank A. Day, the popular editor of the Democratic paper at Fairmont, has been made the chairman of the Democratic state committee. With a newspaper man as its candidate for governor and another newspaper man as the campaign manager, the Democrats are putting men trained in politics and in close touch with the people to the front this year.

THE regularity with which the Hon. Joel Heatwole's Northfield News is "knocking" Senator Clapp indicates quite plainly that the Hon. Joel will be a candidate for United States senator when the next legislature convenes. And why not? The Hon. Joel is probably as well qualified, and as this seems to be the country newspaper man's year he ought to have as good a call on the job as anyone.

THE Northfield News says the state is annually defrauded of hundreds of thousands of dollars by tax dodgers. Farmers and country merchants cannot very well evade taxation. It is different with men whose wealth is in stocks and bonds or with public service corporations which through state or corporation franchises are able to collect large revenues from the people. Some effective method should be devised of compelling these latter to pay their fair share towards the revenues of the state.

DOWN at New Ulum a man was tried and fined by telephone. Justice Henningsen was called upon to hold court over telephone lines to Sleepy Eye. The case was one in which John McMasters was arrested for assault upon E. W. LaGow, and the former was too busy to take the time to go to New Ulm, so he asked the sheriff to arrange it so he could plead by telephone. This was done and heshouted "guilty" into the receiver at the Sleepy Eye end and the New Ulm justice replied, "$10 and costs."

JAPAN is illustrating, what our civil war demonstrated, the greater endurance of little men. The "pony" section, as the platoon at the left of a company, where the undersized men were put, proved everywhere, on the march, in camp, in field work. far more capable of standing fatigue than did the first platoon made up of men of the larger stature. After a hard day's march the "ponies" would come into camp or bivouac without a straggler, chirp and frisky, while the "giants" were straggling along or played out, riding in the baggage wagons in the rear.

A WISCONSIN paper published as a "problem," the following: "A banker on his way home found a ten dollar bill, took down the number of it; put it in his pocket, and went on his way rejoicing. When he reached home the butcher was there with a meat bill of ten dollars. The banker paid the butcher the ten he had found. The butcher paid the same ten to the printer and the printer to to the grocer and the grocer to the banker. He noticed that it was the same bill which he had found, and at the same time noticed that it was a counterfeit. Who was the loser?"

"TO RUN a newspaper", says an Oklahoma editor, "all a fellow has to do is to be able to write poems, discuss the tariff and money questions, umpire a baseball game, report a wedding, saw wood, describe a fire so that the readers will shed their wraps, make a dollar do the work of ten, shine at a dance, measure calico, abuse the liquor habit, test whiskey, subscribe to charity, go without meals, attack free silver, defend bimetalism, sneer at snobbery, wear diamonds, invent advertisements, overlook scandal, appraise babies, delight pumpkins raisers, minister to the afflicted, heal the disgruntled, fight to a finish, set type, mould opinions, sweep the office, speak to prayer meetings, stand in with everybody and everything."

"Is there a man in the audience," fiercely exclaimed a female lecturer, "that has done anything to lighten the burdens on his wife's shoulders? Is there a man here," she continued, folding her arms in superb scorn, "that has ever got up in the morning, leaves his tired, worn out wife to enjoy her slumber, gone quickly down stairs, made a fire, cooked the breakfast, sewed the missing buttons on the children's clothes, darned the family stockings, scoured pots, filled the lamps, swept the kitchen and done all the rest, if necessary day after day, uncomplainingly? If there is such a man in the audience let him rise." And in the rear of the hall a mild looking man in spectacles in obedience to the summons, timidly arose. He was the husband of the eloquent speaker. It was the first time he had a chance to assert himself.—Exchange.

A WORD PERSONAL.

The candidacy of the editor of THE COURIER for the office of secretary of state, for which position he was nominated by the recent Democratic state convention, has been kindly received by the newspapers of the state, and hundreds of them have made generous and kindly mention. These endorsements have been given not alone by Democratic newspapers but by Republican as well. It would not be possible nor in good taste to reprint all of them, but nevertheless the writer appreciates the boquets of his newspaper brethren and esteems it a higher honor to enjoy the good will of the country newspaper editors of Minnesota than any political position could give. The following extract is made from the Lakefield Standard, one of the staunchest and most uncompromising Republican country weekies in the state, and is a fair sample of the comments made by the Minnesota newspapers:

"If it were possible that any candidate nominated by the state Democratic convention could be elected, our desire wouldbe that that candidate might be John E. King, editor of the Red Lake Courier. Bro. King is the salt of the earth. He is a man of commanding ability as a writer and wields a fluent pen; is staunch in support of his friends and fearless and just in opposing his opponents; he is a strong partisan, but manly and judicious in his partisanship; his word is his bond, and those who know him the best trust him the most implicitly; and as secretary of state he could not fail to be a success because he has every necessary qualification and is endowed with unqusetioned ability. But Bro. King is on the wrong side of the political fence and has no hope of success."

WORTHY OF SUPPORT.

The Albert Lea Standard, edited by the veteran H. G. Day, is putting in telling blows for the Democratic ticket, national and state. Regarding the Democratic state ticket Editor Day says:

"Having faith in the uprightness, inteligence, sincere desire for good government and independence of convictions of the majority of the voters of the state, we are confident that John A. Johnson will be elected governor. Honesty, ability, friendship are working for him. Elected, he will fulfill the promises he made the other day, when he said. "If I shall win I have only this promise to make; I shall give to the state my best service, and an administration of affairs which will be dictated by an honest conscience." And those who know him know that he is the kind of a man to stand by what he says. The men on the ticket with him, too, are of the highest character, of clean records and of the kind that are needed and necessary to insure honest, just and efficient administration of state affairs. Every man on the ticket should be elected, and if the people know their best interests and are capable of voting independently—free of party predjudice—the entire ticket will win—the people will win—it will be their victory."

SUPPORTS JOHNSON.

The Northwestern Agriculturlist of Minneapolis, one of the leading agricultural journals in the west, has come out in favor of the election of John A. Johnson for governor. The policy of the paper is regularly Republican, and this is the first time it has supported a Democrat for the office of governor. Its editor, P. V. Collins, is a strong Republican. In a leading editorial this week the Agriculuralist says:

"The Northwestern Agriculturlist congratulates the state of Minnesota, regardless of party politics, upon the nomination of John A. Johnson of St. Peter by the Democrats for the office of governor of the state. While we do not agree with the platform or doctrines on national questions of the party nominating Mr. Johnson, we believe the circumstances and conditions in Minnesota make it incumbent to separate the state governorship this year from national politics and to vote for a man above all suspicion of being the tool of the railroad merger and other interests which stole the control of the state Republican convention. We have known Mr. Johnson personally for the last sixteen or seventeen years and have watched his rise in public life. For some years he was our competitor in the publishing of county papers at St. Peter, and as such it was our supposed duty to discover all of his weak spots and act as general critic of his political views and acts, and we are free to say that while his tariff vargaries are not at all to our liking, his personal character and general ability are above reproach, and they eminently fit him for the responsible office to which he has been nominated.

"We believe Minnesota stands today before a crisis in development. Either the railroad monopolists and the lumber thieves must be overcome by the people, or they will seize the state and control the people's interest. This is not a time then to stand on national party lines, when it comes to voting for the state governorship, especially when the Republican state convention was delivered over to the minority so flagrantly and shamelessly that its nominee in no sense represents the choice of the party. We shall not be at all surprised to see Minnesota give President Roosevelt a majority of 75,000 and yet elect John A. Johnson governor, for throughout the state the stanchest, ablest and cleanest Republican papers are declaring in favor of Johnson, thus reflecting non-partisan sentiment."

First impressions are lasting they say—anyway, we know that a person who has once used Cole's Carbolisave will never willingly be without it. It is a positive cure for wounds and burns and it is the best remedy known for piles. Keep a boxes handy. 25 and 50c by all druggist.

A Couple on the Editor.

"Can I see the editor?" inquired a stranger, as he stepped into the editor's office of a Carbon county newspaper, says the Riverside (Wyo.) Record, and turned to the to the ink-daubed devil, who was roosted on a high stool.

"He's sick."

"What's the matter with him?"

"Dunno," said the boy. "One of his subscribers gave him a bag of flour and a bushel of potatoes the other day and reckon he's foundered."

The editor of a paper down in Iowa recently received a fine chicken which, supposing it to be a token of appreciation from a discriminating reader, took it home and enjoyed it for dinner. The following day he received this letter: Dear Editor—Yesterday I sent you a chicken in order to settle a dispute that has arisen here. Can you tell us what the chicken died of?—Ex.

Dad in Politics.

This is a country boy's account of his father's entrance in politics: Dad has took up the stump, I dunno who ran him up—but he's on it just the same. Dad is after an office. One newspaper says he stole a hoss and another says he run off with a widder. When ma heard all these things, she sed she thought she knew him before but she's glad she's found him out at last, and just wait until she ketches him again.—Exchange.

Superintendent Public Works
Of Lexington, Ky., Says:
"Pe-ru-na Is an Excellent Medicine."

J. H. HIPPLEGATE.

J. H. Hipplegate, Supt. of Public Works, 61 West 6th St., Lexington, Ky., writes:

"I find that Peruna is an excellent medicine especially for catarrhal affections and all diseases leading to consumption, bronchial troubles or stomach troubles. It also acts as a preventative and keeps the system in a healthy condition so that it easily throws off disease. It is an excellent tonic and a great appetizer and as a large number of those who have been using it speak very highly of its curative powers, I am satisfied that my opinion of it is correct, and that it is deserving of high praise."—J. H. Hipplegate.

Peruna is the remedy for catarrh. Almost everybody knows that by hearsay and thousands know it by experience.

Catarrh in its various forms is rapidly becoming a national curse. An undoubted remedy has been discovered by Dr. Hartman. This remedy has been thoroughly tested during the past forty years. Peruna cures catarrh in all phases and stages. There is no remedy that can be substituted.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Business about town has been quiet during the past week owing to the fact that the farmers have not had time to come to town. The crop is better than at first anticipated, and with the high prices that are now prevailing there will be considerable money in circulation this fall.

The postoffice at Plummer has been discontinued, and H. H. Finrow, who has been in charge of that office, has been appointed postmaster of the new town of Scotland. Mr. Finrow expects to move his store to Scotland at once. Mr. Finrow is a popular man and the appointment will meet with general approval.

The contract for carrying the mail on the star route between Red Lake Falls and Plummer has been awarded to Ole Hemley, of Lost township, the annual compensation being $312. It is likely this route will be of short duration as the postoffice at Plummer will undoubtedly be discontinued as soon as the new office at Scotland is established.

O. G. Harlis is up from Goodhue county this week to pack his household goods preparatory to moving to Red Wing. Mrs. Stanlisis Fortier, wife of a prominent farmer in Gentilly township, died Saturday evening of tuberculosis after a short illness. The funeral was held Tuesday from the Gentilly church, Rev. Father Theilion officiating. Mrs. Fortier was one of the most popular young women in that vicinity, and has been married but three years. She leaves a husband and two children to mourn her demise.

The Red Lake Falls orchestra went to Thief River Falls Friday afternoon to give a concert on the occasion of the formal opening of O. J. Schei's big department store. The Thief River people speak in high praise of the ability of our musicians, and it is the general opinion everywhere that Red Lake Falls has the best band and orchestra of any country town in Minnesota.

Joseph Normandin and Miss Alma Clement, well known and popular young people of this community, were married at the Terrebonne church last Sunday afternoon. Mr. Normandin is in the livery business in Red Lake Falls, and the bride is the daughter of a prominent farmer in Terrebonne township. They will make their home in this city, and their many friends will wish them a long life of happiness.

During the few days preceding the primary election the candidates having opposition for the nomination were very busy looking up the voters and advancing their interests. At this writing (Tuesday morning) it is clear and sunshiny, indicating that the farmers will be more interested in the crops than in getting out to vote. However, the polls were open until 9 o'clock in the evening, and every voter who desired to do so had ample opportunity to cast his ballot.

The farmers have had excellent weather for threshing and stacking during the past week and they have been improving the time. There has been more stacking done than heretofore, which would indicate that many farmers anticipate a better price for grain after the early rush to the market. This is a bullish trend to the market, and owing to the short crop of wheat all over the world it would seem that all the cereals should command a good price.

John Deforge has filed his petition as an independent candidate for county commissioner for the second (Red Lake Falls) district. Mr. Deforge says he is going to make a lively chase for the job, but we fail to see how he expects to land it, since both the Republicans and Democrats have candidates for the place, and the demand for an independent has not been so vociferous as to set the political firmament ablaze.

Dr. Bockman, the noted athlete and champion hurdler of the world, will locate at Thief River Falls to engage in the practice of medicine. The Doctor has done some wonderful work with the hurdles, both high and low, and last year won the championship medal. This year he was training for the Olympic games at the world's fair, when a few days before the contests he burst a blood vessel in his leg while at practice and could not participate.

The commissioner of the general land office Monday announced that beginning October 3 at Crookston, Minn., a public sale will be conducted of 100,000 acres of surplus lands of the Red Lake Indian reservation. Originally there were 256,000 acres of such lands, the remainder having been disposed of at the sale held last June. Tracts will be sold to the highest bidder in quarter section lots, the minimum price being $4.00 per acre, with requirements that the land must be homesteaded after purchase.

There will be three independent candidates for county office in Red Lake county this year, viz: F. A. Grady for county attorney, John L. Finke for county treasurer and H. T. McAnulty for county superintendent. We understand their petitions have been circulated and that the required number of signers have been secured. It is understood that each of these gentlemen will make an active canvass for the offices to which they aspire, and there promises to be something doing all along the line between now and the election.

The Red Lake county farmer will realize at tax-paying time that the state board of equalization has been in session. Thus far the board is about half through with the personal property schedules, and practically every item in the Red Lake county schedule has been raised, many of them 100 per cent. Household furniture comes in for a raise of 66⅔ per cent. At Thief River Falls, where the assessment has been made abnormally high for local purposes, the raises by the state board will make the total personal property assessment twice as high as last year. Of course the rate of taxation will be less, but somehow it has been our experience that the rate is never decreased in proportion to the raise in assessment.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

His Son Was Alive.

The body taken from the river in St. Paul is not that of Chris G. Urness. Urness is alive and hearty. He is working in a Minneapolis boarding house.

The body was identified by John Urness of of Mondovi, Wis., as that of his son Chris who came to the Twin Cities during the fair week for the purpose of seeing the fair. The absence of certain birth-marks was accounted for by the partial decomposition caused by the water.

While the father thought the body taken from the river was that of his son he did not stop his search for him thinking there was a possibility of some mistake. What was his joy later to discover that his boy was still with the living, and working in Minneapolis well and hearty, while for two days the aged father was weeping over the supposed body of his son.

Held Up Gambling House.

As Patrolman James Nolan rushed up to the door of the Asnmore gambling rooms in Minneapolis, where he had been called by a shooting affray, a masked man, who had just held up the place, ran out and without waiting an instant, raised his revolver and shot the policeman two times.

Turning from his prostrate victim he saw Frank McCormick running toward him and fired again, but missed. Then as McCormick placed a revolver against the highwayman's head but he broke away and escaped, while the other snapped a broken revolver.

The shooting occurred at the entrance to the gambling room over McCormick's saloon.

The place, which is the finest equipped in the city, was filled with men at the faro tables, roulette wheels and poker games.

The highwayman secured only $13. Policeman Nolan was not seriously hurt.

Lumber Shipments.

Shipments of lumber out of Lake Superior ports last month were 150,308,000 feet, and for the season to date they have been 493,324,000. This is in comparison with 152,443,000 and 576,118,000 for the corresponding periods of last year. The decrease is due entirely to the later opening of navigation, for since business commenced in 1904 it has been it has been greater than for the same period in 1903. Shipments are going along rapidly from all ports and will make up a good deal of the losses of the early part of the year, but the total cannot be expected to reach as high. About four-ninths of shipments off the lake are from Duluth and Two Harbors. Ashland comes next.

Cases are Ended.

If the motion offered by the county attorney when the case against A. A. Ames was called is granted by the judges of the district court, the former mayor of Minneapolis will never be brought to trial upon a corruption charge. The motion, was in brief, to nolle all the indictments now standing against the ex-mayor, ten in number.

One of the indictments is for offering a bribe to a public officer, another for conspiracy, another for extortion and seven for receiving a bribe. Mr. Boardman in moving that the indictments be dismissed, gave full reasons.

The court however refused to entertain the motion and decided that the trial should proceed.

Precarious accident.

Arthur Smith of Lockhart met with a precarious accident and it was at first thought the accident would prove fatal. Together with some neighbors he was preparing to go hunting and just before starting they drove up to a shock of oats and were going to throw on some bundles for feed. Smith threw out the pitchfork and then jumped out of the wagon. In some way the tines were upturned and in jumping out of the wagon Smth landed on the fork, the tines entering his body full length, taking two men to extract the fork.

The chances are favorable for his recovery but the accident is a very serious one and it will be some time before Mr. Smith will be able to be around again.

Peculiar Death.

Frank Chrisovski, employed at the Diamond sawmill, Minneapolis, died at the city hospital from the effects of a a most peculiar accident. He was working at a machine and a sliver of a board he was sawing flew off and entered his head. It went in so far that it was necessary to saw a piece off before it could be removed.

The injured man was taken from the mill to the city hospital and died there ten minutes after their arriving.

THE MAINE ELECTION.

The Republicans Carry the State by a Good Majority. Democrats Gain on Legislature.

Portland, Me., Sept. 13.—1 a. m.—Returns up to this hour indicate that the Republicans have carried the state by at least 30,000, and it may reach 33,000.

Republican leaders are jubilant, as they have claimed that everything over 28,000 would be a republican victory and as indicating, with the Vermont election the election of the national Republican ticket in November.

At eleven o'clock tonight Gov. John F. Hill sent telegrams to Pres. Roosevelt and Chairman Cortelyou of the Republican national committee, claiming the state by 30,000, the four congressmen by majorities ranging from 5,000 to 10,000, every member of the state senate and five-sixths of the house.

Portland, Me., Sept. 12.—The Republicans carried the state in the biennial election today, returns up to twelve o'clock tonight indicating a plurality of about 30,000 for William Cobb, the Republican candidate for governor, compared with 33,384 for Hill, the party candidate four years ago.

The complete returns will not be received for several days, but 300 out of 522 cities and towns give Cobb 59,000, Davis 38,000. The same places in 1900 gave Hill (Rep.) 51,000, Lord (Dem.) 39,000.

In the First and Second congressional districts the returns indicate the election of Amos L. Allen and Charles E. Littlefield by about the same plurality as four years ago. In the Third district E. C. Burleigh ran ahead of his vote of four years ago.

At a late hour last night very few reports had been received from the Fourth district, where the re-election of Llewellyn Powers is conceded.

Early returns show that the Democrats have probably made slight gains in both branches of the legislature, but that the body will remain strongly Republican and will probably re-elect United States Senator Eugene Hale.

The vote was the heaviest cast since 1888.

Heavy Loss by Fire.

Idaho Falls, Idaho, Sept. 13.—The most disastrous fire in the history of southeastern Idaho, which started Sunday night about 9:30 in the Butte restaurant, threatened to wipe out the entire business portion of the town. At 1:20 a. m. Monday six entire blocks had burned down and a seventh was on fire, and it was estimated the loss would amount to $350,000. The wind was blowing a terrific gale and the fire was fast spreading. About 40 buildings had been destroyed and many others were on fire.

CATARRH A COMMON COMPLAINT.

Catarrh begins with a stubborn cold in the head, inflammation or soreness of the membrane or lining of the nose, discharge of mucus matter, headaches, neuralgia and difficult breathing, and even in this early stage is almost intolerable. But when the filthy secretions begin to drop back into the throat and stomach, and the blood becomes polluted and the system contaminated by the catarrhal poison, then the sufferer begins to realize what a disgusting and sickening disease Catarrh is. It affects the kidneys and stomach as well as other parts of the body. It is a constitutional disease and as inhaling mixtures, salves, ointments, etc., are never more than palliative or helpful, even in the beginning of Catarrh, what can you expect from such treatment when it becomes chronic and the whole system affected? Only such a remedy as S. S. S. can reach this obstinate, deep-seated disease and purge the blood of the catarrhal poison. S. S. S. purifies and builds up the diseased blood, and the inflamed membranes are healed and the excessive secretion of mucus ceases when new, rich blood is coming to the diseased parts, and a permanent cure is the result.

I had a continual headache, my cheeks had grown purple, my nose was always stopped up, my breath had a sickening and disgusting odor, and I coughed incessantly. I heard of S. S. S. and commenced to use it and after taking several bottles I was cured and have never since had the slightest symptom of the disease. Miss MARY L. STORM,

HEAVY FIGHTING BETWEEN ARMIES

RUSSIANS CONDUCTING RECONNAISSANCES AND MANY CASUALTIES REPORTED.

SEVERAL TOWNS NEAR JAP LINE OCCUPIED

Increase in Mikado's Force at Yentai and Pentsiaputze Disclosed—Czar to Form Second Manchurian Army—Reported Battle Denied.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 20.—A dispatch was received from Gen. Kuropatkin Sunday announcing that Gens. Rennenkampff and Samsonoff are conducting important reconnaisances which have resulted in rather heavy fighting with many casualties.

It appears that Gen. Rennenkampff had recovered from his wound and had resumed command of his troops. The reconnaisances disclosed a further increase in the Japanese forces at Yentai and Pentsiaputze. The Russians have occupied several villages nearer the Japanese lines.

Gen. Kuropatkin Sunday reviewed the Thirty-seventh idvision of the First army corps.

Says Japs Were Repulsed.

London, Sept. 20.—A dispatch to a news agency from St. Petersburg Monday says the reconnaisances were towards the Japanese front and right flank, resulting in the Japanese being driven back. The Russian losses, according to this version, are said to be slight, and it is not clear whether the "many" casualties, referred to by Gen. Kuropatkin, were inflicted or received.

Will Form Second Army.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 20.—Acting upon the advice of his military advisers, Emperor Nicholas has decided to form a second Manchurian army. It will be formed of the corps which are being sent to the far east and Lieut. Gen. Linevitch probably will be given the command of the second army. Gen. Kuropatkin will become chief of both armies, but probably without the title of commander in chief. It is this impending reorganization which seems to have led to the countless rumors and reports afloat here of Kuropatkin's supercession of Viceroy Alexieff as commander in chief of the army, the latter's resignation, etc., but investigations indicate that the above is the real situation. Alexieff, it is said, will continue to be viceroy and that as such he could not be subordinated in title to the commanding general, which would happen if Kuropatkin was given the title of commander in chief. Kuropatkin will virtually be in complete, untrammeled command.

As has been heretofore stated on high authority the stories of Alexieff's interference with Kuropatkin are entirely without foundation. On the contrary, Alexieff has always shown the utmost appreciation of the peculiar delicacy of his position as Kuropatkin's superior, studiously avoiding even the semblance of interference with the operations of the Manchurian army.

Ouktonsky Not Court-Martialed.

The press is authorized again to deny absolutely the story that Rear Admiral Prince Ouktomsky has been court-martialed. It is positively stated that he has never been under arrest at Port Arthur and that there has never been a question of his trial by court-martial. He has simply been superseded by Rear Admiral Wiren in the temporary command of the Port Arthur squadron, which Ouktomsky took over when the late Rear Admiral Withoft fell. This does not necessarily mean that the admiralty is satisfied with Rear Admiral Ouktomsky. On the contrary, his shortcomings are recognized, leading to the decision to place Rear Admiral Wiren in command.

The latest dispatches received in the war office here leave the situation at the front practically unchanged. There is no truth in the report cabled to the Express, of London, from Tokio that a battle is progressing at Mukden. There is nothing yet to show that Field Marshal Oyama has begun to move in force. The reported fighting between the Japanese and Maj. Gen. Mistchenko's Cossacks probably refers to the sharp skirmish southeast of Mukden.

Jap Positions Screened.

Berlin, Sept. 20.—A dispatch to the Lokal Anzeiger from Mukden says: The Japanese dispositions are completely screened behind a line of outposts and it is almost impossible to obtain information from behind this veil. The Russians cannot tell which of the four routes the Japanese advance will follow. Three Japanese companies are patrolling the Hun river in junks. It is reported that Liaoyang is occupied by only one company and the heights northward of it by 2,000 men, the air in the vicinity of Liaoyang being poisoned by exhalations from thousands of unburied bodies. Field Marshal Oyama's headquarters is a short distance north of Liaoyang. The expenditure of ammunition at Liaoyang was enormous, the Russian artillery August 31 firing over 100,000 shots.

Belligerents Are Merciless.

Chefoo, Sept. 20.—According to Prince Radzivil, of the Russian army, who reached here from Port Arthur bearing dispatches from Lieut. Gen. Stoessel, commander-in-chief of the forces of the Russian stronghold, to Gen. Kuropatkin, the temper of the belligerents at Port Arthur has reached an absolutely merciless stage. Prince Radzivil served with the British in the Boer war and he says that until he became aware of the state of affairs at Port Arthur he had no idea that war could be so horrible. It was set forth in these dispatches some weeks ago that serious suspicions were entertained by both belligerents that the other was misusing the Red Cross flag. These suspicions have been increased by the commission of various acts by the soldiers of both armies, until now even flags of truce or surrender are not respected by either side.

Expect No Quarter.

Prince Radzivil declares that the men of both armies are absolutely venomous in their antagonism. Lieut. Gen. Stoessel has addressed his garrison saying that the present mood of the Japanese indicates clearly the necessity of resisting them to the last drop of Russian blood, because if the Japanese soldiers entered the fortress it undoubtedly would be impossible for their officers to control them and prevent a massacre. For this reason Lieut. Gen. Stoessel is making no objection to civilians leaving Port Arthur. When the 300 women who are in Port Arthur engaged in hospital work were advised to leave, they replied that they would rather face the possibility of massacre than desert their posts.

Dead Unburied.

In consequence of the fact that flags of truce are ignored, numbers of Japanese dead who have been lying on the slopes of the hills of the northeast defenses for weeks past are still unburied, and the stench in Port Arthur from decomposing bodies, when the wind is in the right direction, is almost unendurable. The Russian soldiers, who are in some cases posted only 50 paces from heaps of decaying dead, have constantly to wear over their noses handkerchiefs soaked in camphor, as otherwise they would be unable to remain at their posts.

A Ghastly Field of Horror.

In the course of the assaults which took place in the four last days of August two companies of Japanese soldiers, according to Prince Radzivil, found themselves at the mercy of the Russians and hoisted a white flag. To this, however, the Russians paid no attention and continued to volley rapidly into the helpless ranks of the enemy. In the meantime Japanese troops in the rear of the companies that had raised the white flag, saw what their comrades had done, and expressed their disapproval of the surrender by firing into their rear. As a result of this fire from friend and foe, 600 men were annihilated. The dead fell among the decomposing bodies of previous assaults. For days after the wounded men in this area raised fluttering handkerchiefs in their hands in pleas for help, but the Russians were afraid to venture out to give succor. Within a week the army had made its last unregarded prayer for help, and the shambles was a quiet but ghastly field of horror.

GATHERING OF SCIENTISTS.

International Congress of Arts and Science Opened at St. Louis—Guests Are Entertained.

St. Louis, Sept. 20.—Many of the foremost scientists of the world are among the men of letters who are here this week to attend the international congress of arts and science, the opening session of which was held in Festival hall at the world's fair grounds Monday. The meeting was called to order by Howard J. Rogers, director of congresses for the exposition. President Francis welcomed the distinguished visitors and reply was made by James Bryce, honorary vice president for Great Britain, on behalf of the congress.

Monday's session was of a general order, and was comparatively brief, after which the delegates were entertained as guests of the exposition.

The congress will continue throughout the week. The real work will begin Tuesday, commencing with addresses on main decisions of science and its applications, the general theme being the unificaton of each of the fields treated. On Wednesday, with the opening of the sectional meetings, the international work will begin. About 160 sectional meetings will be held during the four concluding days of the congress, at each of which two papers will be read, the theme of one being suggested by the relations of the special branch treated to other branches; the other by its present problems.

Injunction Against Strikers.

Warren, O., Sept. 20.—Judge E. E. Roberts Monday morning granted an injunction to the Carnegie Steel company against Harmony Lodge, Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers and citizens of Girard, as petitioned for against all defendants except two. The injunction was asked for to prevent strikers and sympathizers from interfering with the operation of the Girard plant of the above named company.

Street Car Accident.

St. Joseph, Mo., Sept. 20.—Seven persons were injured, one of them fatally, in a street car accident here Monday. Mrs. J. E. Pierpont, of Skidmore, Mo., jumped and sustained a fracture of the skull. She was removed to a hospital and will die. The accident was caused by an inbound car running into a disabled outbound car, from which all the passengers had alighted, on a steep grade.

Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a ringing sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the muccus surfaces.

Boiler Explosion.

Five men were killed by the explosion of a threshing machine boiler sixteen miles southwest of Wells.

Peter Daley, the owner was sitting on the drive wheel just putting on the drive belt when the explosion occurred, blowing him through the tops of some high trees and severing one leg, which was found about five hundred feet from where the explosion occurred. He is survived by a wife and two small children.

Abe Foster, sixteen years old, son of John Foster, was blown into the wheat stack, which was ignited by the explosion, and he was burned to a crisp.

Chris Sunde was blown completely to pieces. He is survived by a wife and four children. James Seymore of Bricelyn and Willard Gallion of address unknown were also killed outright. Several large grain stacks were destroyed. The heavy castings of the engine were found about five hundred feet from the place where the engine stood.

Sucked to Death.

Two playmates with whom he had been romping about in the grain elevator of the Sheffield Mill company in Faribault saw James Anderson, sixteen years old sucked down to his death in a discharging wheat bin.

Anderson, who was a son of George L. Anderson, a laborer, was playing about the structure with the two sons of T. B. Murtaugh, the elevator manager. Anderson jumped into a 35-foot wheat bin and began leaping up and down.

Several hundred feet below they were loading cars with grain, and suddenly the bin in which the young Anderson stood was opened. The struggleing lad was gradually drawn down until he disappeared.

The victim had sunk fifteen feet, and it took a crew of six men on hour to reach him.

Editor Suicides.

Grant Riggle, editor of the Madelia Tribune, committed suicide at the Golden West hotel, Minneapolis, by swallowing 100 quarter-grain morphine tablets, which he secured on a prescription. He retired to his room early in the evening, and in the morning when he did not appear a bell boy made an investigation and found him fully dressed, and dead in bed.

The coroner held no inquest, having pronounced it a case of suicide.

Mr. Riggle was affected with an incurable disease which had settled in lower extremities, and the fear that it would be necessary to amputate his limbs is supposed to have caused him to end his life. He leaves a wife and two children.

The Prize Farmer.

The fair judges declared D. C. Hazleton of Cutler to be prize farmer in Minnesota among the many who made exhibits in the agricultural building. Out of a possible 1,200 points Mr. Hazleton's exhibit scored the hig figure of [illegible]55.

Orville C. Thompson of Farmington was a close second, his exhibit scoring 1,135 points. His exhibit of vegetables was better, but in arrangement, and in several classes of products he fell down slightly below the leading exhibit.

C. H. Murphy of Caledonia was third with a score of 1090. In threshed grain Mr. Murphy's exhibit was perfect.

Will Show Profit.

Despite the unfavorable weather the state fair will make a clean profit of [illegible]0,000 to $25,000," declared President Cosgrove. "We shall not touch the emergency fund of $30,000 this year as the surplus from the fair will be ample for the permanent improvements we contemplate making this year. The success of the fair, in the face of all circumstances, is a surprize and delight to the managers."

More Money for Butter.

A strong effort will be made next year to have the prize money offered for exhibits of creamery butter at the state fair increased from $800 to $1200. The idea increasing the prize money is to make the Minnesota butter contest interstate in its character. This year there were many entries from Iowa and Wisconsin, and some from the Dakotas.

News in Brief.

The Northern Pacific received four tourist cars of a new type. They are larger than those now in use and the interior furnishings are much finer than usually found in such cars.

Only five cases of smallpox were reported last week to the state board of health. Three of them were in Minneapolis, one at Motley and one in Burns township, Brown county.

Lulu Anderson, the 2-year-old daughter of G. W. Anderson, Minneapolis, died of strangulation as the result of swallowing a small screw with which she had been playing.

Thomas H. Loyhed of the firm of T. H. Loyhed & Son, at Faribault, is the oldest hardware merchant in Minnesota. He came to this state from Tompkins county, New York, in 1853.

Not a democrat in Washington county filed for legislative, commissioner or other county office nor for city treasurer.

Max Voelk, aged 78, was found dead in his room at Monticello. Death was caused by heart failure.

The new No. 4 wheat grade established by the state grain inspection department was put into force at the Minneapolis chamber of commerce. The new grade is between No. 3 and rejected, and was made because of the damage to this year's crop. The qualifications call for a weight test of from 49 to 53 pounds.

Harsh Criticism.

"When I was a boy in Washington," said John Philip Sousa, "there was an old Scottish musician with whom I played now and then. One afternoon I ran through for this old gentleman a new waltz of my own composition.

"'Well, sir,' I said, when I had finished, 'what do you think of that?'

"'It carries me back to the home land, laddie,' said the old man. 'It carries me back ti a day when I played at an entertainment in a Scottish lunatic asylum. My instrument was the fiddle, and after I had ended my fiddle solo the head of the institution said to an aged lunatic on the front row:

Science at 15,000 Feet.

The fact that the British armed expedition into Thibet has suffered from imperfectly cooked food and the congelation of the oil on magazine rifle locks leads a writer in the London Times to remark that the application of a little scientific knowledge would have saved much trouble in this case. The military authorities should have known that at 15,000 feet altitude oil ceases to be a lubricant, and that the boiling point of water descends about two degrees Fahrenheit for every 1,000 feet of ascent above sea level. Cooking-pots with air-tight lids, furnished with safety-valves blowing off at a pressure of 15 pounds to the square inch, would have prevented the difficulty found in boiling food. Pure glycerine instead of machine oil would have saved the trouble with the rifles and Maxim guns.

The Stadium of Athens.

The restoration of the famous Stadion, or Stadium, of Athens, begun in 1895, with funds given by a Greek merchant, has progressed until they are now placing the last of the 52,000 marble seats which the great amphitheater contains. The seats, railings, etc., are all of the creamy-white Pentelikon marble. It is the intention of the committee having the restoration in charge to build a marble "propylaea," or entrance, resembling the ancient one. Some urge the finishing of the outer walls of the Stadium by surmounting them with a marble colonnade. When the propylaea will be commenced is not known.—Consular Report.

The United States—The Orient.

Japan contains 162,655 square miles, hence it is a little larger than California, and more than three times as large as New York. If the southwestern part of Japan were placed on the Mexican border, near San Antonio, Tex., the country of the mikado would stretch northeastward till Yezo would almost touch the Strait of Mackinac, and the Kurile islands would project into Hudson bay, the latitudes corresponding very nearly. Formosa would then lie off the southern part of Lower California.—Success.

In Praise for Knitting.

Knitting is declared by specialists in the treatment of rheumatism to be a most helpful exercise for hands liable to become stiff from the complaint, and it is being prescribed by physicians because of its efficacy. For persons liable to cramp, paralysis, or any other affection of the fingers of that character, knitting is regarded as a most beneficial exercise. Besides the simple work is said to be an excellent diversion for the nerves, and is recommended to women suffering from insomnia and depression.

Durham's Rise.

In 1865 Durham was a village of a dozen houses. When the soldiers plundered the place, they got a quantity of smoking tobacco. They liked it so well that they hardly got home before they began to write to Durham to get more. There were in the town men of enough enterprise to see the opportunity which this situation offered them. It was not long before Durham salesmen were selling Durham tobacco in every part of the world.—World's Work.

It Is to Laugh.

He did not look in the least like a wag, but then one cannot depend always upon appearances.

Boarding an over-filled Fifth avenue 'bus he edged up quietly through the crowd of standing women to pay his fare at the front. As he turned around he stooped with difficulty to reach something on the floor.

"Did any of you drop a five-dollar gold piece?" he asked, an expression of concern on his countenance.

Three men and two women hastily searched their purses and exclaimed: "Yes!"

"Well," said the finder of the coin, dropping it into the nearest outstretched palm, "here's a nickel toward the $25. You can divide it up between you."—N. Y. Times.

Sea Lions Smart Feeders.

Those who are constantly associated with animals at a zoo see many comical and interesting sights, and keepers of such places have many stories to relate. The sea lions are very much "smarter" than their appearance suggests, and while they are always interesting, their method of feeding is one of the most amusing things in the gardens. The keeper brings to the edge of the pond a pail of fish, which average perhaps a foot in length, and flings each one as far out as he can, when the sea lions, with amazing rapidity, swim to get them. I think that I have never yet seen a fish strike the water, as a lion catches it before it has time, and swallows it head first.—St. Nicholas.

Patchouli Plant.

Patchouli, known for its penetrating odor, is derived from the leaves of the tropical herb pogostemon patchouli. The plant in its wild state is found in East India, but is now also cultivated. The supply of leaves for the perfume industry comes mainly from Java and different sections of the Malacca peninsula; also from Cukol islands, near Singapore. The Chinese frequently adulterate the patchouli leaves with leaves which possess no odor at all, or a different one altogether. The cultivation of the herb is very profitable. The leaves from Java are recognized by their greater length and are called "dilem" in Europan commerce.—Consular Reports.

Needed All the Water.

In a little bayou so near the beach that the low tide rose and fell on the overgrown banks, a "flat-bottom," paddled by an old darky, was shelved on a mud bank. The mud was too deep for him to get out and push, and his maneuvers with the paddle were proving less and less effectual. In his exasperation he saw a woman stooping down at the landing some yards above to fill her pail from the stream. "Get out o' dat!" he called out, angrily. STATE TO AID THE SCHOOL.

Auditor Is Preparing to Distribute $292,632.

The total amount of state aid to the high and graded schools this year is $292,635, according to the report of the state high school board. The auditor is now preparing to distribute this amount to the schools.

There are 162 high schools, and all except 11 of them will receive $1,325 each, the total amount of the payments to the high schools being $212,882. The eleven that will not receive the full amount are those that in the past year have expended less than that amount for high school purposes, such schools receiving only the amount expended. By a recent act of the legislature the state aid to high schools was increased to $1,500, but this amount is decreased somewhat by the addition of new schools, and the highest amount that could be paid this year was $1,325.

In determining the amount due to each school the board is governed by the following rules:

All accepted schools employing not less than two instructors, exclusive of the superintendent, who give their entire time to high school work, shall be presumed to be entitled to the full amount.

In case of the smaller schools, the high school inspector is directed to submit a special report of the yearly expenditure of each school and the amounts apportioned to these schools are based on those reports.

In the smaller towns which have no high school the state extends aid to the graded schools, and this year there are 145 of such schools which receive $550 each, making a total of $76,650.

Supt. J. W. Olson is at work on the schedule of semi-graded and rural schools, of which there are 1,105 receiving state aid. There have been 270 semi-grade applications received, and there is an appropriation of $67,000 to be divided among these schools. If all the applications are approved each school will receive a little less than $249.

An appropriation of $100,000 is available for division among the rural schools and 835 applications have been received. The appropriation is based on an estimate of $125 for each school, but if all the applications received are approved each school will receive a little less than $120.

The final report of the amount to be received by all of the rural and semi-grade schools will probably be ready by the end of the week,

GROWTH OF COUNTY SCHOOLS

Annual Report of Superintendent Jeffers Shows a Most Satisfactory Advance.

County Superintendent Jeffers has just completed his annual report to the state superintendent of public instruction, and some of the figures shown are of interest to the people of the county.

The report shows a most satisfactory growth of the schools during the past year. The total enrollment of children of school age is 4,028, of whom 3,328 are entitled to state apportionment, having attended the required number of days. Last year the enrollment was 3,994, with 3,267 entitled to apportionment.

The number of pupils between the ages of eight and sixteen attending sixty days or more is 1,973.

There are two independent districts in the county (Red Lake Falls and Thief River Falls) and 31 teachers are employed. There are four male teachers, receiving an average wage of $81.59, and 27 females, receiving an average wage of $50. Eighty-one teachers are employed in the common districts, of which 20 are males, receiving an average wage of $42.90, and 61 females at an average wage of $35.65. Of these teachers 33 are high school graduates and 17 normal graduates. Twenty of them have taught the same school for three years or more and 26 for two years or more.

The total value of the school property of the county is $146,000, and the total indebtedness is $56,000, of which all but $7,000 is charged to the independent districts.

The amount of cash on hand at the beginning of the year was $14,031.96, and there was received from state apportionment $13,291.11; from special taxes $33,380.11; from one mill tax $1,565,53; from special state aid $3,550.00. Of this amount $37,302.00 was expended for teachers' wages and $12,700.39 for all other purposes, leaving a cash balance at the close of the year of $14,477.61.

The average number days attendance of the independent districts is 125; of the common districts 85 days. During the year two new rural school houses were constructed at an average cost of $550.

Sixteen Prisoners in Beltrami County Jail Await Trail.

There are sixteen prisoners in the Beltrami county jail, four of them accused of murder or attempted murder, to be tried at the term of court commencing tomorrow. Fout murders or attempted murders have occurred in Beltrami county since April 1 this year. The murder of N. O. Dahl and his daughter has attracted widespread attention. The authorities assert that they have sufficient evidence to hold Paul Fournier to the grand jury. Early in April F. A. Artz killed John Weilander at Battle River in a quarrel over a homestead. Artz pleads self-defense. B. O. Roen will be tried for the murder of Ole Bakken near Solway June 27. Roen, while intoxicated, shot Bakken when the two men were returning from Solway. At turtle River early in June Frank Wagner and Frank Brady engaged in a fight in which Brady was stabbed several times. He has now fully recovered, but Wagner is held on the charge of attempted murder.

GREAT NORTHERN TO EXTEND

No Doubt That the Red Lake Falls Branch is to be Made a Through Line.

There seems to be no question but that the Great Northern intends making a main line of the Red Lake Falls branch. Just how much work will be done this fall is not known, but the road at least will build a southern outlet from Red Lake Falls. This may be accomplished by making a connection with the Northern Pacific at this place. Agents of the Great Northern have already secured options on the major portion of the town lots in the south part of town necessary to form this junction with the Northern Pacific, and abstracts to the property are already in course of preparation.

What the road intends to do south of Tilden is a matter of conjecture, but it is the opinion of well-informed railroad men that next spring the Pelican Rapids line will be built north to Tilden, making the Red Lake Falls line a cut-off for a large share of the northern Minnesota business. The traffic at Crookston is already congested, and the road needs another line for the Twin city business in this section of the country.

The connection with the Northern Pacific at this place will be made this fall, and the construction crew is expected here in a few days. This is good news for Red Lake Falls. By the construction of the new line Red Lake Falls will have two direct outlets to St. Paul and Minneapolis, giving the city shipping facilities unexcelled by no other town in northern Minnesota.

It is the general supposition that with the completion of the work at this place through trains will be run on this line from the northern extension via Pelican Rapids to St. Paul, and that the line from Crookston to St. Hilaire will be supplied by a mixed train. As the situation stands at present the Great Northern is the friend in need to Red Lake Falls, and it seems to be the disposition of our people to give that road every proper encouragement.

Probate Changes Suggested.

At the fourth annual session of the Minnesota association of probate judges recently held at St. Paul, important changes were recommended to the committee appointed by the legislature to consider code revision. These changes were principally along the line of unformity in the probate court practice, unformity in blank forms, uniform fees in all probate court business, and a revision of laws governing the commitment of the insane. There are at present no two probate courts in the state where the rules of practice are alike, and in many cases there is a wide and confusing difference. In the insane laws under discussion, there has long been a feeling among the judges that there should be some public institution to which there might be sent such persons of mature years that are not positively insane, but are slightly affected with dementia and feeble in mind.

ALTON B. PARKER ACCEPTS HONOR

FORMAL LETTER ANNOUNCING WILLINGNESS TO BE DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE.

Gives His Views on Public Questions—Says Paramount Issues Are Tariff, Imperialism, Honesty and Economy in Administration.

New York, Sept. 26.—Judge Parker's formal letter of acceptance to the democratic notification committee is a document of some 8,000 words, and is addressed to Hon. Champ Clark and other members of the committee. In the opening paragraph Judge Parker says he wishes his remarks made at the time of his notification to be considered a part of his formal response. Continuing, he says:

"Grave public questions are pressing for decision. The democratic party appeals to the people with confidence that its position on these questions will be accepted and indorsed at the polls. While the issues involved are numerous, some stand forth preeminent in the public mind. Among these are: Tariff reform, imperialism, economical administration and honesty in the public service.

On the subject of imperialism the letter says: "If we would retain our liberties and constitutional rights unimpaired, we cannot permit or tolerate, at any time or for any purpose, the arrogation of unconstitutional power by the executive branch of our government."

Turning to the subject of the tariff, and the democratic demand for reform in that line, he says:

"In the words of our platform, we demand 'a revision and a gradual reduction of the tariff by the friends of the masses, and for the common weal, and not by the friends of its abuses, its extortions and discriminations.'"

As remedies for trusts Judge Parker favors such legislation within constitutional limitations as will best promote and safeguard the interests of all the people.

Judge Parker denies the right of the executive to usurp the power of congress to legislate on the subject of pensions. "Such usurpation was attempted by pension order No. 78, and effect has been given to it by a congress that dared not resent the usurpation. It is said that 'this order was made in the performance of a duty imposed upon the president by act of congress,' but the provision making the imposition is not pointed out." He accepts the challenge contained in President Roosevelt's letter and says that if elected he will revoke that order. But he goes further and says that that being done, he will contribute his effort toward the enactment of a law to be passed by both houses of congress and approved by the executive that will give an age pension without reference to disability to the surviving heroes of the civil war.

The duty of proceeding with due diligence in the work of constructing the Panama canal is imperative, Judge Parker declares, but he says the methods by which the executive acquired the canal route and rights are a source of regret to many.

On the question of the Philippines, Mr. Parker reiterates the argument that entangling alliances must be avoided. The urging of the immediate curtailment of expenditures and a return to economical administration, and promise of a sweeping investigation of all departments of the government are other distinctive features of the letter.

In concluding his letter Judge Parker says:

"The issues are joined and the people must render the verdict.

"Shall economy of administration be demanded, or shall extravagence be encouraged.

"Shall our government stand for equal opportunity, or for special privilege?

"Shall the wrongdoer be brought to bay by the people, or must justice wait upon political oligarchy?

"Shall it remain a government of law, or become one of individual caprice?

"Shall we cling to the rule of the people, or shall we embrace beneficent despotism?

"If it be the wish of the people that I undertake the duties of the presidency, I pledge myself, with God's help, to devote all my powers and energy to the duties of this exalted office. Very truly yours,

"ALTON B. PARKER."

Vesuvius at Work.

Naples, Sept. 24.—Vesuvius, is becoming more active. The crust around the crater has broken away and produces magnificent flurries of red-hot ashes and sparks of fire, which rise occasionally in immense columns to a height of 700 feet. The eruption Friday was the most spectacular witnessed in the last ten years. A great stream of lava was discharged, threatening wide destruction.

Body Washed Ashore.

London, Sept. 23.—The body of Charles B. Spahr, of New York, formerly editor of Current Literature, was washed ashore Wednesday near Broadstairs, Kent, England. The remains were fully identified by the American consul. Mr. Spahr disappeared from an ocean liner near the coast recently and the finding of the body partly clears up the mystery.

SCHOOL GIRLS MEET AWFUL FATE

PLUNGED INTO VAULT OF FILTH BY COLLAPSE OF FLOOR IN AN OUTHOUSE.

Of Thirty Little Ones Who Took the Terrible Fall, Nine Are Taken Out Dead—Frightful Disaster Near Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, Sept. 24.—School closed Friday at Pleasant Ridge, seven miles north of Cincinnati, with the first quarter of the session, when nine, possibly ten, schoolgirls were suffocated in a vault during the forenoon recess and a score of others narrowly escaped the same horrible death.

Floor Collapses.

On opposite sides of the spacious ground in the rear of the school building are two outhouses. When recess was given about 30 of the smaller girls were in the outhouse assigned to them when suddenly the floor gave way, precipitating them into a vault of filth. This vault is 12 feet deep and walled up with stone like a well.

The girls fell eight feet from the flooring before striking the filth, and the struggles of those who were on top kept at least nine underneath until they were dead. The frame shed over these vaults were about 20 feet square, without windows and with only one narrow doorway, so that only one little girl escaped from the door. She ran into the school building and told the teachers what had happened. Principal T. L. Simmerman and the seven other teachers rushed to the rescue. The ladies gave the alarm about the vicinity, while Principal Simmerman secured a ladder, on which the drenching girls climbed out, most of them fainting as soon as they reached the surface. The teachers were soon reinforced by the entire population of the town, the police and fire departments rendering most effective service. Those able to climb out on the ladders themselves were rescued by Principal Simmerman, who finally fainted. Then others went into the vault and kept bringing out dead bodies until the vault was cleared. The firemen drained the vault, so as to be sure that the rescue was complete.

The Victims.

The dead are:

Loretta Finke, aged 12, daughter of Henry Finke, of the Schroth Packing company, Cincinnati.

Emma Steinkamp, aged 13, daughter of John Steinkamp.

Amelia Hesse, aged nine, daughter of Herman D. Hesse, dairyman.

Martha Buhr, aged eight, father dead, mother, Ella Buhr.

Edna Thee, aged ten, daughter of John Thee, blacksmith.

Lillian Witham, aged 13, daughter of W. A. Witham, farmer.

Hazel Glover, aged eight, parents dead; lives with grandmother, Mrs. Wolf.

Fausta Card, aged 11, and Charmian Card, aged nine, both daughters of William Card, of the firm of McCullough & Sons, Cincinnati.

Wife's Fatal Error.

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 23.—A special to the Register and Leader from Mount Ayr says: Mistaking him for a chicken thief, Mrs. Peter Lewis, of Blockley, Ia., fatally shot her husband early Thursday morning at their farm house. He died a few hours later. The Lewis farm had been repeatedly raided by chicken thieves and when Lewis returned unexpectedly from watching a sick neighbor Mrs. Lewis thought him a thief, opened a window and fired on him.

Will Oppose Speaker Cannon.

Paris, Ill., Sept. 23.—The democrats of the Eighteenth congressional district nominated Colson V. McClenathan, of Danville, to oppose Speaker J. G. Cannon in the coming election.

Nominated for Congress.

Connorsville, Ind., Sept. 26.—Democrats of the Sixth congressional district Saturday nominated U. Stokes Jackson, of Greenfield, for congress by acclamation.

FAIRBANKS ACCEPTS.

Synopsis of Republican Vice Presidential Candidate's Letter Accepting the Honor.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 22.—Senator Fairbanks' letter of acceptance has been given to the public through Hon. Elihu Root, chairman of the notification committee. In it the republican vice presidential nominee sticks closely to a treatment of the various planks of the republican platform, and outlines the policies of the party in the future by what it has done in the past seven years. In commenting upon the work of the state department during that time, he refers to the conclusion of 30 different treaties, among which he mentions the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, superseding the Clayton-Bulwer convention; the Panama canal treaty; the trade convention with China and Cuba, and the Alaskan boundary treaty. These treaties, he believes, point to the efficiency of republican diplomacy.

Senator Fairbanks finds but one issue which the democrats have raised. That is the tariff. He does not believe the voters of the country, either the employing classes or the employes, wish to cut the tariff schedules to such an extent as to bring foreign labor into competition with American labor. He says the republican party, as the inaugurators of the protective system under which America has expanded industrially and commercially, is the only party to be entrusted with the regulation of this important subject.

Other planks which he deals with at considerable length are those relating to the maintenance of the gold standard; the regulation of trusts and the enforcement of the Sherman anti-trust law, and the interstate commerce laws, charging the democratic party with having done nothing towards safeguarding legitimate interests in these directions. He refutes the charge of extravagance in government expenditures; applauds the president's course in dealing with the insurrection in Panama and in the government of the Philippines.

The complete letter is a document of some 4,000 words.

TO ISSUE HAGUE CALL.

President Roosevelt Will Invite Powers to Second Peace Conference.

Washington, Sept. 26.—President Roosevelt at an early date will ask the nations of the world to join in a second congress at The Hague for the promotion of international arbitration. The president made this announcement Saturday afternoon in a speech to the delegates of the Interparliamentary Union, who had just presented to him the resolutions adopted by the recent council in St. Louis.

In the addresses that preceded the formal presentation of the resolutions, great stress was laid on the fact that the action of the United States in referring the Venezuela controversy to The Hague tribunal, together with the Pius fund precedent, alone saved the life of the international organization. For this reason it was deemed most fitting that President Roosevelt should take the initiative in reviving The Hague conference.

"I feel, as I am sure you do," said President Roosevelt, in his address accepting the task, "that our efforts should take the shape of pushing forward toward completing the work already begun at The Hague and that whatever is now done should appear not as something divergent therefrom, but as a continuation thereof."

The president's acceptance of the terms of the resolution and the announcement of his purpose to promote the peace of the world by inviting all nations to participate in a second peace conference, whose work should be supplemental to that of The Hague conference, was received by those present with enthusiastic applause.

Efficient and Honorable.

Glencoe Enterprise: John A. Johnson, of St. Peter, the Democratic nominee for governor, is a man of high ability, and is certain to give the state an efficient and honorable administration if elected. He is the first candidate for governor who was born in this state, and is a man the voters of Minnesota, regardless of party can support, feeling assured that the best interests of the state will be safe in his hands. Mr. Johnson has not sought the nomination—the office has sought him. The remainder of the ticket is equally praise-worthy, and are strong and formidable candidates.

Fearful Odd Against Him.

Bedridden, alone and destitute. Such, in brief was the condition of an old soldier by the name of J. J. Havens, Versailles, O. Each To His Calling.

Bourke Cochran was asked by a St. Louis reporter to give the public some advice on the art of public speaking.

"A youth," Mr. Cochran answered smiling, "once went with your question to an old Englishman who had made a good success as a lecturer.

"'How may I become, sir,' said the youth, 'a successful public speaker like yourself?'

"The old lecturer laughed.

"'Tha wants to be a public speaker, do tha, lad?' he said. 'An' tha thinks Awm the chap to put tha up to a wrinkle aboot it? Tha's reight, lad. Ah am.

THE PROPER THING.

In the Stationery Line be Sure You Get the Correct Styles.

The new styles in stationery for 1905 are now on the market, and to be "correct" one should adhere to fashion's decree in this matter, for it is the little things of life that count, and a pink envelope used where a grey one is proper, may create an entirely wrong impression as to the character and intelligence of the sender.

The papers for this season are of such a wide variety that almost any individual may be properly suited.

The letter sizes run much larger than of yore, thereby showing the growing public demand for "common sense."

White, of course, is always correct for writing material, but for women this season fashion has decreed grey as the smart tint, closely followed by numerous shades of the ever popular blue.

There are so many attractive styles in note and invitation papetrie that one is at a loss which to choose. As the season advances and the holidays approach it behooves one to be prepared for all emergencies, from cards of acceptance and letter paper to the finely monogramed stationery to be ordered as gifts for friends.

THE COURIER stationery store has been fortunate in securing a most cosmopolitan line of stationery, obtained from three of the best known firms in this country, and it will pay you to make it a point to view this stock from time to time as the season advances, for you will be sure to find many beautiful things at prices within the reach of all.

Cough Annoys Others.

Quick relief and a speedy cure can now be obtained from any lung, throat or bronchial trouble by using Gloria Lung Balsam, as it is made of soothing and healing balms and is best for children. Sold by W. A. Schreiter.

Hon. John A. Johnson at Red Lake Falls, July 4, 1904:

An ideal state of civilization comes only from a quickened intelligence and the education of the masses. No people ever became great through ignorance and superstition. No party can become permanent so long as the few can dominate the many by cant, hypocrisy and misrepresentation. The greatest power ever given to any people is an equal right with the ballot. No power is so often rendered useless by using it without intelligence. Some men shun political heresy through the fear of ridicule. No man is so weak as the voter without the courage of his convictions. The independent voter, the man who votes as his conscience dictates, is the ideal citizen. The hope of the nation is in all the people aroused from the sleep of party bigotry, armed with the breast-plate of conviction and carrying the sword of Conscience and Truth.

BYRON J. MOSIER.

The Democratic Candidate For State Treasurer.

Stillwater Messenger: When a political party places in nomination men of known integrity for important positions, it is good judgment on the part of the people to take cognizance of its action.

The Democratic party of this state, at its recent state convention, nominated Byron J. Mosier of this city for the office of state treasurer. Mr. Mosier has been a resident of Stillwater for the past thirty-three years. His every action has been as an open book to the people of this city. He is known and trusted as a man of unimpeachable honor, a man of good moral character, and one in every way worthy of any promotion the people of this state can bestow upon him, irrespective of party predilections. He was not an aspirant for the office, but accepted the honor as a matter of duty that he feels he owes to his party.

Mr. Mosier has led an active and busy life from boyhood. Love of country is responsible for his enlistment when he was a young boy, in defense of the Union, during the long and bloody war of the rebellion. Naturally he has a warm place in his heart for all old soldier, has done much in their behalf and should be remembered by them when they cast their vote for state treasurer next November.

He has established an extensive business in the wholesale and retail cigar and tobacco trade and has a multitude of patrons in Minnesota and Wisconsin.

That his neighbors and friends believe him worthy of confidence is evidenced by the following summary of places of trust imposed upon him:

Served the city of Stillwater as member of the city council.

Appointed surveyor general of logs and lumber for the 1st district under Gov. Lind.

Member of Democratic state central committee for eight years.

Treasurer of the Democratic state central committee for four years.

Treasurer of the Stillwater Encampment, No. 23, I. O. O. F., for 13 years.

Treasurer Stillwater lodge, No. 179, B. P. O. E., for 13 years and then elected to the office of exalted ruler.

At the present time he holds the office of junior vice commander of Crook Post, No. 69, G. A. R.

Was aid on the department staff under Department Commander Adam Marty, Captain Harries and Captain Mahan.

What is Life?

In the last analysis nobody knows, but we do know that it is under strict law. Abuse that law even slightly, pain results. Irregular living means derangement of the organs, resulting in Constipation, Headache or Liver trouble. Dr. King's New Life Pills quickly re-adjusts this. It's gentle, yet thorough. Only 25c at all druggists.

More News Than Comment.

Big Fork Compass: A few years ago a stenographer was grinding out her life in a large railway office in St. Paul. She was one of that army of modern serfs whose individuality must be exchanged for a week's wages. She was regarded as but a part of the typewriting machine which she beat at the orders of a slave-driver, placed in authority.

One day the native independence of the bond-woman asserted itself. Weary of the unreasonable rebukes of the "boss" she exclaimed:

"You cannot talk that way to me—save your whip for others." She left, not in sudden rage, but calmly counting the cost. She knew congenial employment was hard to find; she realized her lack of money and influential friends. She reasoned that there must be some place in the world where she could hold her self-respect as well as the job, and decided to lose no time in finding it—even though starvation blocked the way.

She was right. There is always place for talent, freedom for imprisoned spirits, openings for assertive genius. But it requires true grit and determination to seek them.

Today she is recognized as the most gifted woman writer in the state and is traveling fast toward national fame.

She has won this recognition bravely. And taught us the natural reward of character, courage and industry. This lesson is even more inspiring than her spirit-gifted pen.

First impressions are lasting they say—anyway, we know that a person who has once used Cole's Carbolisave will never willingly be without it. It is a positive cure for wounds and burns and it is the best remedy known for piles. Keep a boxes handy. 25 and 50c by all druggist.

A party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Lewis Monday evening in honor of Miss Edna Hamel of Grafton, N. D., a cousin of Mrs. Lewis. Cinch was the order of the evening, and the honors were won by Miss Melvina Allard and Harry B. Healy. A dainty luncheon was served and the party was a most pronounced success in every respect.

Louis Pickett, who is confined in the county jail awaiting action of the grand jury on the charge of criminally assaulting a little girl at St. Hilaire, was examined for insanity by Judge Tarrant last Thursday. The physicians agreed that the insanity dodge was a fake, and Mr. Pickett will remain in charge of Sheriff Linnihan until the grand jury convenes the latter part of next month.

Our people were treated to a concert by the band Sunday afternoon. The music was all on the sacred order and in keeping with the Sabbath. All of the numbers were exquisitely rendered, and one of them, "The Holy City," a clarinet obligato by Prof. Onstad, was an especial favorite with the audience. This will be the last outdoor concert of the season, but with the coming of cooler weather our people will look forward to the evening concerts at the opera house.

The Paul Reick farm just south of town has been sold to W. F. Witte, of Waseca, Minn., who has been interested in Red Lake county lands for some years past. The farm will be occupied by Geo. J. Weiler and family, who have been living on another of Mr. Witte's farms west of town for the past year. Tha Witte farm west of town has been sold to Robert Baddke, also of Waseca, who moved his family and household goods up last week.

A certain young man of this city about to propose marriage to a certain young lady, went to her pastor to consult him as to the wisdom of of his choice. "I fear," said the clergyman, who had more than a passing knowledge of the young lady's imperious temper and dominant disposition, "that it would not be harmonious. I doubt if you would be happy." "Why," was the question, "isn't she a christian?" "Oh, yes indeed," was the answer; "but the Lord puts up with people that you and I can't."

Thief River Press: Grain in the immediate vicinity of Thief River is yielding much better than was expected a few weeks ago. One hundred and sixty acres of wheat at the big C. J. Knox farm north of the city threshed last week yielded eighteen bushels per acre. How the grain will grade is not known but if it passes muster even fairly well at the present prices it will bring the owner nearly $20 per acre. Some of the other pieces of wheat in this neighborhood have yielded nearly or quite as well as this, but of course, in the majority of instances the yield is considerably lower.

Winter Muskmelons.

A new variety of muskmelons has recently been imported from Turkestan, which is as large as our watermelons and has a delicious pulp several inches in thickness. This melon can only be grown in the arid regions of the West. It matures in September, when it is picked, but it is not ready to eat until December or January. We are finding new foods daily, but none so wholesome and invigorating as golden grain belt beer, the old stand-by of the West. Uniformly good, pure and delicious. Order a case of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex. Thompson, Crookston.

"In Summertime Down By The Sea."

This is the title of a new and magnificent Song and Chorus written by Alfred J. Doyle, with a remarkably pretty Waltz Chorus.

This song will surely be admired by everybody.

CHORUS

In Summertime, down by the sea,
The only real place boys for me,
Take a ride on a trolley, get there before dark,
Take your sweetheart to dreamland or to Luna (Park.
In Summertime down by the sea,
The place where we all like to be;
Where the breeze softly blows,
And where every one goes,
In Summertime, Down by the Sea.

IT often happens that candidates get a larger vote at the primary than at the general election.

WHEN a woman is so careless as to spend $10 for a pair of hose she ought to be careful enough to pick out the muddy crossings.

THE Thief River Press looks at it rather cold-bloodedly: "Hail to the candidate defeated! He at least put some money into circulation."

A MAN is foolish to offer a woman a penny for her thoughts. If he will only stand around a while he will be sure to get them for nothing.

A LATE book of etiquette says that biscuits should not be opened with the fingers. A newly-married acquaintance tells us that some of them need to be opened with a stick of dynamite.

A WELL-KNOWN patent medicine has secured the endorsement of fifty-eight congressmen, and the Fairmont Sentinel says it is needless to say that analysis shows it to contain 28 per cent alcohol.

THE Thief River Review editor declares that somebody has been divulging the secrets of the Republican county central committee. It appears that the editor of that paper does not care to take the voters into his confidence.

JUDGE PARKER's formal acceptance of the Democratic nomination for the presidency was formally given to the press Monday morning. It is generally conceded to be an able document and stimulates the Democratic hope greatly.

THE many newspaper friends of Henry R. Cobb, the talented editor of the Park Rapids Enterprise, will extend congratulations upon his nomination for clerk of courts by the Republicans of Hubbard county. Mr. Cobb is a good newspaper man and ought to make a good clerk.

THE Populist state committee met at Minneapolis last week and nominated candidates for presidential electors, but decided not to put a state ticket in the field. According to reports practically all of the Populists attending the meeting expressed themselves as favoring the election of John A. Johnson.

SENATOR NELSON declared in a speech at Madison the other day that the Democrats did not question the integrity of any candidate on the Republican state ticket save the nominee for governor. Has the learned senator heard of any man, Republican or Democrat, brazen enough to defend the record of Ray Jones, the self-confessed timber thief?

To the editor of the Thief River Review: You have stated that every Republican should vote only for Republicans. Can you advance any reason, other than that of blind and degraded partisanship, why any Republican voter should vote for Ray W. Jones, the Republican candidate for lieutenant governor? An early reply will be greatly appreciated.

THE Adrian Democrat vouches for this tale of a woman's woe: A magnolia girl had some powdered charcoal for tooth-cleaning purposes near her powdering puff. When an admirer rang she was sitting in the dark. She snatched up the puff, gave it a dab into the charcoal, passed it hastily over her face, went down the stairs into the light, chatted gracefully with the young man for an hour and came back to light up and look into the glass. Her feelings may better be imagined than described.

THE Duluth Herald notes that our government expends $5,000,000 a year for the department of agriculture, while the war department gets $121,000,000, and yet we are the most peaceful nation on the earth, or think ourselves so. Nearly 70 per cent of all our exports are from the farm. In 1903, $4,000,000,000 was the value of our farm products; four times the wealth of all our mineral products; why, our corn crop alone is equal in value to our entire mineral production. In 1880 there were but 52,674 farms. We now have over 100,000, though the acreage has decreased somewhat, for it now averages 114 acres to the farm, while 160 was the average in 1880,

TOO MANY "SLURS."

A subscriber called at this office one day last week and stopped his paper. The reason he assigned was that the paper "slurred the Republican party too much." That being the case, of course there was nothing to do but to stop the paper instanter, although the gentleman had papers coming to him for several weeks yet. He is one of those good, honest sort of fellows whose political and religious views are a part of himself and anything that comes in conflict with these views is regarded a personal affront. On the other hand, anything that might "slur" the other side of the case would be looked upon with entire complacency by men of this class. THE COURIER realizes the fact that there is more or less of "give and take" in the general scheme of life, and of course the gentleman's paper has been stopped. At the same time we might find with a very little trouble a whole lot of people who think that THE COURIER does not "slur the Republican party" enough by a hundred fold, and their claims are probably as good as anyone else's. As a matter of fact we give it as our personal and positive belief that THE COURIER is as free from actual "slurs" as any paper in the state. In some cases the paper's views do not coincide with other people's ideas any more than theirs do with ours, but that does not constitute a "slur" by any manner of means.

JAMES T. McCLEARY.

Do the voters always register their wishes at the primary election? This query is singularly pat in noting the result in the Second congressional district, where the Hon. James T. McCleary was re-nominated for a sixth consecutive term in congress in face of the fact that he strongly opposes any revision of the tariff, unless the revision be "upward." His opponent, the Hon. Herbert J. Miller, is an avowed tariff revisionist, believing with the martyred McKinley and scores of the better type of Republican politicians, that the farmer and laborer are entitled to some relief from the oppression of high tariff duties.

McCleary is not a popular idol. Outside of his postmasters, rural route carriers and other appointees there are few indeed of his constituents who believe him either great or sincere. In the campaign just closed he has resorted to political schemes and tactics that would put to blush the vilest ward-heeler on the Bowery. Yet he was renominated by a substantial majority over one of the ablest and cleanest men in the district. What is the secret of this man's power? And when will the voters of the Second district rise up in their might and overthrow this veritable Old Man of the Sea, the acknowledged champion of the eastern manufacturers?

THE PRIMARY LAW.

The primary election law has had its second trial, and the results are not entirely satisfactory. The intent of the law is all right, but until the voters become familiarized with its workings and there is a higher regard for the sanctity of the ballot no beneficial result of the change from the convention system can be hoped for.

In the past two primary elections minority parties have conspired to force weak candidates upon the majority party, and the general character of candidates has not been perceptibly higher than under the old plan. Another manifest weakness of the law arises from the fact that many good citizens who would accept a nomination at the hands of a convention do not care to risk the assumption of being a self-seeker for office. If the demand of a convention was practically unanimous these men would go into politics, having back of their candidacy the urgent appeal of their fellow partisans. There is no question but that the primary law prevents many able but modest and unassuming men from running for office.

Theoretically, the primary law is a pronounced success, but the practical results are not all that its framers claimed or anticipated for it.

MARY McFADDEN observes that one way to get along is to believe the best you can of people and consider the rest none of your business.

Hon. John A. Johnson at Red Lake Falls, July 4, 1904:

What we need in this country is men of character. Character is the greatest thing in the world. It is as old as the world itself. Character is that something ingrown into the man—that something which makes him kind to his neighbors, generous to his family, honest in public life. It is not that which makes him honest when in sight of other men, but honest when he is alone. Character is what a man is, not what he seems. Character is what you actually are, not what your neighbors think you are. Character, as Moody once said, is what a man is when he is in the dark, what he actually thought and did when alone. Alexander the Great, before he died, ordered that his hands be left uncovered by his funeral shroud in order that the people might know that he took nothing from this world or from his people. Some of our public servants of today fail to make such a provision. We want character in our neighbor. We must have character in ourselves.

A PASTOR'S WIFE CURED OF PELVIC CATARRH

She Suffered for Years and Felt Her Case Was Hopeless—Cured by Pe-ru-na.

Mrs. Anna B. Fleharty.

MRS. ANNA B. FLEHARTY, recent Superintendent of the W. C. T. U. headquarters, at Galesburg, Ill., was for ten years one of the leading women there. Her husband, when living, was first President of the Nebraska Wesleyan University, at Lincoln, Neb.

In a letter written from 401 Sixty-seventh street, W., Chicago, Ill., Mrs. Fleharty says the following in regard to Peruna:

"Having lived a very active life as wife and working partner of a busy minister, my health failed me a few years ago. I lost my husband about the same time, and gradually I seemed to lose health and spirit. My daughter is a confirmed invalid, and we both felt great need of an invigorator.

"One of my neighbors advised me to try Peruna. A bottle was immediately secured and a great change took place in my daughter's as well as in my own health. Our appetites improved very greatly, the digestion seemed much helped, and restful sleep soon improved us, so that we seemed like new women.

"I would not be without Peruna for ten times its cost."--Mrs. Anna B. Fleharty.

What used to be called female diseases by the medical profession is now called pelvic catarrh. It has been found by experience that catarrhal diseases of the pelvic organs are the cause of most cases of female diseases.

Dr. Hartman was among the first of America's great physicians to make this discovery. For forty years he has been treating diseases peculiar to women, and long ago he reached the conclusion that a woman entirely free from catarrhal affection of these organs would not be subject to female disease. He therefore began using Peruna for these cases and found it so admirably adapted to their permanent cure that Peruna has now become the most famous remedy for female diseases ever known. Everywhere the women are using it and praising it. Peruna is not a palliative simply; it cures by removing the cause of female disease.

Dr. Hartman has probably cured more women of female ailments than any other living physician. He makes these cures simply by using and recommending Peruna.

Mrs. Esther M. Milner, DeGraff, Ohio, writes:

"I was a terrible sufferer from female weakness and had the headache continuously. I was not able to do my housework for myself and husband. I wrote you and described my condition as near as possible. You recommended Peruna. I took four bottles and was completely cured. I think Peruna a wonderful medicine."—Mrs. Esther M. Milner.

Congressman Thad. M. Mahon, of Chambersburg, Pa., writes:

"I take pleasure in commending your Peruna as a substantial tonic and a good catarrh remedy."---T. M. Mahon.

If you do not receive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

The result of the August teacher's examinations have been tabulated by the department of public instruction and they show that only 48 per cent of the applicants were able to secure certificates of any kind. There were 6,487 applicants in all, and 3,149 certificates issued, 3,338 failing to pass. There were 843 applicants for the first grade and 204 conditional firsts. There were 3,639 applicants for second grade, 2,445 for limited and 110 for renewal certificates. The superintendents issued 1,355 completes, 648 conditional seconds and 520 limited. Singularly enough just 48 per cent of the applicants passed in the August examinations last year.

The dates have not been arranged as yet, but it is expected that due notice of the time will be given next week.

HON. JOHN A. JOHNSON OPENS THE CAMPAIGN

Before a Vast Audience the Democratic Candidate for Governor Outlines the State Issues.

A Strong Forceful Argument.

One of the largest and most enthusiastic audiences that ever assembled in the state greeted the Hon. John A. Johnson at the auditorium in Minneapolis the night of September 24. Mr. Johnson was at his best and in a manner strong and forceful outlined his position and the policy of the democratic party on the current state issues. Congressman Lind and other party leaders were in attendance. Many republicans were present. Mr. Johnson spoke as follows:

John A. Johnson's Speech.

When Mr. Johnson, who was the last speaker, was introduced, there was a great demonstration and many cheers were given for the democratic gubernatorial nominee. Mr. Johnson's speech in full is given below:

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen: The democratic party of this state has honored me with its nomination for governor and has commissioned me to lead the party host in the impending conflict. In accepting the honor of that nomination I did so knowing full well the cares and responsibilities which must of necessity go with it. As the representative of the party it becomes my duty to give the reason why, in our judgment, we should succeed.

In a discussion of the cause I shall not descend to a personal consideration of my opponent—this is not a personal quarrel between individuals—and if to reach the executive office I must crawl through the sewers of personal abuse I shall not be chosen to the high office of governor of this great state. The public has many rights in this election; it has the right, first of all, to know that the man chosen to this high office, as well as every other office, shall be the servant of all the people and not the servant of any particular class or any set of individuals. It has the right to know that he will be true in his support of the constitution of the nation and state, and that he will obey and enforce obedience to the law, and that striving for right, absolute justice and the best interests of the state, the poorest citizen will know that he stands for the whole state and nothing but the state.

The issues in a campaign may change from season to season; there is no change in the right of the human race to enjoy liberty and the pursuit of happiness and no man who does not believe in that right should ever be chosen to a position of public trust. Human beings are prone to err, men may make mistakes, but the impulse for right will bring man to do his duty; the impulse to do wrong inevitably leads to failure and ruin.

Then what are the issues in this campaign? The dominant party has declared its platform; we have ours. Someone in jest has said that they were so much alike that it was difficult to tell one from the other. If that be true then the question for determination is the character, ability and quality of the nominees. If that be the standard I say of our ticket: There they are, from governor to railway commissioner; we ask for comparison and ask for your honest judgment, free from political bias and prejudice. Judged by that standard, we have no fear of an impartial verdict.

DEFINES CAMPAIGN ISSUES.

But there are certain issues which are paramount, as they concern the people most. In a speech at Duluth a few days ago my opponent opened his campaign, and, silent upon some questions, laid special stress on the primary election law, the gross earnings tax, swamp land drainage, good roads, tax legislation, assessment of iron mines, the board of control and other subjects. A few of these questions I shall treat in detail; the remainder in a general way.

As to the primary law and its extension to include state officers, let me say this: The primary law is still a crude law and as it exists now permits so many abuses that it needs to be corrected before being extended. And yet, when we remember the methods employed by the convention which nominated him, it is not surprising that there comes a suggestion of a need of change. The primary election law is here to stay, as is every other law which gives to the people the fullest rights to directly control their own affairs, and whatever opinion one may have had as to its original creation, no one now would dare to attempt to abridge that law. As one who helped to make it and at the time of its enactment urged that the state officers be included, I now doubt the wisdom of such a change, believing that we should first make good what we now have. All judicial offices should by all means be removed from the primary system and nominations be by non-partizan conventions. Swamp land drainage is a business proposition and it admits of no argument. Someone has said that he who makes two blades of grass grow where but one grew before is a benefactor. It is good business policy for the state of Minnesota to convert this class of land into farms for the Minnesota settler.

The question of good roads has passed the theoretical stage and has advanced so far that it is no longer an issue. The question of good roads is a settled question and only the details remain. Speaking of tax legislation, Mr. Dunn says: "The operation of our present tax laws are very unsatisfactory, a large portion of intangible property escapes taxation altogether."

Upon this he and I are agreed, although he might have added that no system of taxation is just which compels the cotter's home to bear the greater burden of taxation, that corporate wealth may enjoy special privileges. I believe in a constitutional amendment which would permit an income tax on credits, and that class of property which now escapes taxation entirely.

I commend his utterance in which he praises the veterans of the war. To the grizzled patriot who offered his all that this country might no perish we have only reverence and love. The nation cannot be too generous to him and society owes him a debt that it can never repay. The old soldier is our first citizen and is entitled to that consideration at the hands of the nation which will make his declining years both peaceful and happy. Mr. Dunn and I will take no issue there. It will be remembered that the convention which nominated him did not appear to share this sentiment, however.

GROSS EARNINGS TAX.

My opponent in his Duluth speech, lays special stress on his approval of the constitutional amendment increasing the gross earnings tax of railways from 3 to 4 per cent. The platform of his party is strangely silent upon this question, and, speaking of this omission, he says: "By an oversight no reference was made in the platform to the 4 per cent gross earnings tax." It is remarkable that a convention so deliberate in its proceedings and which followed a carefully constructed plan of organization should have overlooked what the candidate for governor declares to be the chief point of interest in the present campaign. If that is the issue, I trust that I may be pardoned for stating that, as a member of the state senate in 1889 and 1901, I was loyal in my vote and support of the plan to increase the gross earnings tax to 4 per cent. The record is there and I trust that our opponents will make the most of it. I stood for it then, I stand for it now; because I believe it right and because the burden of taxes is unequally distributed, the greater burden being borne by those least able to bear it. However, the question, while introduced in this campaign, is vital only so far as it applies to the individual duty of the voter, upon whom rests the responsibility of passing or defeating this constitutional amendment; and it is an issue in this contest so far as it will become the duty of the governor and the legal departments of the state to enforce the collection of the tax, should the amendment prevail at the polls. This brings us to another view of the question, which must be somewhat embarrassing to our opponents. The main issue of the campaign was omitted from the platform by a convention which stands accused of having been dominated and controlled by corporate interests. It nominated a candidate for governor who favored the merger of competing railway lines; it defeated for justice of the supreme court the attorney general who prosecuted the merger; it nominated for attorney general the one man in the state of Minnesota who contributed most to the defeat of the Jacobson 4 per cent gross earnings tax bill in the senate of 1889, and who, as chairman of the judiciary committee of that senate, submitted and championed a report which declared that the present law was a territorial contract, that the legislature had no right to change that contract, that the bill was unconsitutional, that the tax could not be collected by law if the amendment was adopted. Mr. Young was the leader of the senate opposition to the bill. He voted against it and the measure was defeated that session by a single vote, the final vote standing 30 for and 31 against the proposition to increase the gross earnings tax from 3 to 4 per cent. What a situation!

REPUBLICANS IN STRANGE MIXUP.

The candidate for governor declares the 4 per cent gross earnings tax the chief issue of this campaign, his nominating covention remains silent on a public question involving $600,000 a year in railway taxes. The candidate for attorney general was the one man who defeated a measure on the ground, as he argued, that it was unconstitutional; up to date we have had no contradiction from him indicating a change of mind about the legal complexion of the problem. The question of increasing the tax rests with the people, and if ratified by them, the only question becomes one of collection of the taxes. I submit this question: Will you entrust the collection of that $600,000 to a man who is on record with an opinion that it cannot be collected and that the proposition to collect it is unconstitutional? It seems to me that, taking advantage of party prejudice, someone is trying to deceive the public. I sincerely hope that the people will ratify the measure, because I believe no injustice will be done anyone, and if the people shall ratify that action and if they shall elect myself and my colleagues on the ticket, we promise to enforce the collection of the tax, believing it to be a just tax.

If I am elected governor of this state, as I naturally hope to be, I shall abide by and enforce the laws as they are on the statute books. If the laws are wrong they should be corrected, but no public officer has a right to assume that his position or authority is greater than the law of the land. The constitution is more than a convenience; it is a sacred instrument; the law is more than a mere vehicle for the comfort and convenience of any particular class. It is the declared will of the people, by which we must abide. If public officers will ignore the law, little can be expected of the people as individuals. By his own party officials the republican candidate for governor is accused of deliberately ignoring the law in the settlement of claims of the state and of using discretionary power not given him by law.

By the use of this discretionary power it is alleged that state claims against trespassers were settled at a small percentage of the amount due the state. In answer, he says he did the best he could under the circumstances. Who is to be the judge as to what was best? Clearly it was the duty of his department to insist that the legal machinery of the state be set in motion to collect every dollar due the state of Minnesota.

CONDEMNS METHODS.

If he had the right to settle claims for less than one hundred cents on the dollar, and if he was the sole appraiser of the amount he could collect, what is to prevent future officers from settling future cases at their own discretion and thus divert the school fund of the state into improper channels through all the years to come?

The school fund of the state is an institution sacred to the people and to divert any part of it to other than proper channels is against public policy, unfair to the people and contrary to the law of the state.

The state has the right to exact absolute honesty in all of its public officials and discretionary power not conferred by law but assumed by the officers of the law can be so abused as to border upon dishonest service and invite just criticism. My opponent in this campaign in reply to the preferred charges of a public officer commissioned to investigate his record as a public official, says that he did nothing he was ashamed of and adds that he would do the same thing again.

That is not a satisfactory answer, yet it may be taken as an index of the course he might pursue should he be elected governor of this state. The duties of the chief executive are to administer the laws of the state without fear and without favor to any individual or set of individuals. Good government is the result of obedience to the law and it is the duty of the officers to enforce the law as it is and not to govern by a standard of what the individual thinks the law should be. The exercise of a discretionary power and thus setting at naught the laws of the land can only result in government that is contrary to the best interests of the state. It is alleged that by the exercise of this discretionary power gain has come to private individuals and corporations and great loss to the educational institutions of the state. The state has safeguarded its interests by laws for the proper regulation and control of the public business and no man has a right to set aside that law and safeguard.

I do not make the charge of personal interests or dishonesty on the part of my opponent, but the charge of usurpation of authority which did not belong to him is graver than the other. And the same course followed in the conduct of the greater office to which he aspires would endanger the law, the well being and the honor of the state. The pine lands of this state were the property of the people and to protect this property proper laws were enacted. One provision of these laws absolutely prohibited the state auditor from making any settlement for trespass at any amount less than double the value of the timber taken. The law gave no discretion beyond that limitation.

For a violation and total disregard of the law it is insufficient to state that his record was better than that of his predecessors. The executive arm of the government is not greater than the legislative. They are equal and when one arm of the government ignores the other and sets aside its will, the purpose of government is not subserved and the will of the people is destroyed.

THE BOARD OF CONTROL.

The management of our state institutions is properly an issue in this campaign. Two policies have been pursued at different times. For years they were managed by separate boards of management, but more recently by a board of control. Mr. Dunn was one of the early advocates of the present system and as state auditor urged the adoption of the present plan by the legislature. As a member of the state senate I resisted the innovation as far as it lay within my power. Hoping to defeat the measure I favored an amendment including the educational institutions, as to their financial management, this amendment being offered by myself.

I have no apology for that action now. It was not an action prompted in any way by any unfriendliness to the state university, the normal schools or any other educational institution, but was prompted by a thought of the best interests of the state and those institutions operated by the state and with the belief that the board of control would become partizan and be used to further political ends of those in power.

I believe that the past has to some extent borne out that view of the question. There must always be a difference of opinion as to the best method, but the state is practically agreed that it is the duty of society to care for its unfortunates, and undertaking that duty, it becomes the further duty to perform it to the best advantage of those coming within the scope of paternal care.

The board of control has doubtless made some saving in some of the departments of its work, but often this has been done at the expense of the comfort of the unfortunate wards of the state. However, it is manifestly unfair to unduly criticize the system without being in possession of the facts.

Contracts are made in secret and the business of the public is withheld from the public itself. Freedom should prevail and suspicion might be removed by having public business transacted in the light of day. As our nominee for governor stated in the last campaign, the important question is not in the saving per capita, but whether the state receives adequate return for every dollar of the money expended in the care of the state wards. The system is comparatively new and is entitled to a fair trial; it should be removed as far as possible from the machinery and spirit of partizan politics, and while altruism should obtain in the management of the penal and charitable institutions of the state, there should always be kept in sight the one cardinal doctrine of honesty in public affairs and honesty in the expenditures of the money which is taken from a heavily-taxed people.

WOULD NOT HANDICAP UNIVERSITY.

As to the state university and the normal schools, I want to say that it was never intended that the board of control should have more than financial jurisdiction over them. The educational institutions should not be restricted in any way in the good work they are doing, and the educational policy and methods should lie wholly within the authority of those in charge, and to that end I believe there should be no change in the law as it now exists. I do not and would not favor any change to a board of control for the university.

Our great university, which stands among the great educational institutions of the world, is the pride of all our people; he would be untrue to the state and its youth who would do aught to hinder or hamper it in even the slightest degree in the fruition of its purpose and the endeavor of those carrying on the great work. The state is great in its people and its wealth, generosity should be and is extended towards education, but the generosity so extended should not encourage prodigality.

Every dollar devoted to education should be honestly applied to education and not be diverted to the political advantage of anyone. No one has a higher regard for our educators than myself and far be it from me, a citizen or a public official, to say or to do aught to lower the standard. Our citizenship is due to education and, if elected governor of this state I shall do all within my power to promote and encourage it. Without fear of the motive being misunderstood I say: God speed to the splendid president of our university and every other teacher in the state, from that magnificent institution to the humblest of our public schools.

The people who generously give of their earnings are not less interested than those in authority, and that every means be employed to the upbuilding of our system for learning, let it be understood now and forever that those in authority will do nothing to lessen the desire of the people to continue the generosity and loyalty.

I hold that every man that holds a public trust must be held to the strictest account for good and efficient service and that he must abide by the law of the people in whose service he may be. There must be conscience in the public service or the state will decline.

Whatever may have been done in the past I take this position now, that there should be no change in our board of control system so far as it applies to education.

Let educators manage educational institutions; let only men known for their strength of character, their ability and worth, be appointed on the board of regents and other boards and let our schools be divorced entirely from partizan politics. A separate board of control for the educational institutions would, it seems to me, work no good for society; it would reach to the high school, the college of the common people, and might endanger the well-being of our educational system. In other words, let us let well enough alone.

THE RIGHTS OF LABOR.

The platform on which I stand declares for the rights of American labor to organize and condemns as un-American any denial of that right. Labor in every sphere is the real foundation of the nation; the right of organization belongs to labor naturally and the state and nation which recognizes the corporate right of capital should protect labor in its right; no one of sound mind would argue in favor of the abuse of that right, nor in the abuse of any other right.

I go further than that and say that in a nation which boasts of its prosperity, labor has a right to be well paid for a day's work. Labor has the right to enjoy the privilege of wearing good clothes, having plenty of food and a comfortable home which does not bear more than a just proportion of the taxes of the state.

LABOR DOES NOT GET ITS SHARE.

From this platform some years ago that great friend of labor, Henry George, declared "that labor asked no favors; all labor asked was a fair chance," and by a fair chance is meant reasonable hours of toil at just compensation. Labor has the right to ask for justice and justice means that he shall have a fair proportion of the earnings of the sweat of his own brow and the products of his own brawn. The right of organization to secure his own rights must not and cannot be denied him.

It must not be denied him in Minnesota, Pennsylvania or Colorado; and the denial of that right means the absence of human liberty. In the great and indisputable doctrine of equal rights to all and special privileges to none labor must not dwell in poverty while capital rolls in the luxury which [illegible]

SCROFULA A DISEASE WE INHERIT.

Scrofula manifests itself in many ways. Swelling of the glands of the neck and throat, Catarrh, weak eyes, white swelling, offensive sores and abscesses, skin eruptions, loss of strength and weakness in muscles and joints.

It is a miserable disease and traceable in almost every instance to some family blood taint. Scrofula is bred in the bone, is transmitted from parent to child, the seeds are planted in infancy and unless the blood is purged and purified and every atom of the taint removed Scrofula is sure to develop at some period in your life.

Scrofula appeared on the head of my little grandchild when only 18 months old, and spread rapidly over her body. The disease next attacked the eyes and we feared she would lose her sight. Eminent physicians were consulted, but could do nothing to relieve the little innocent. It was then that we decided to try S. S. S. That medicine at once made a speedy and complete cure. She is now a young lady, and has never had a sign of the disease to return.

MRS. RUTH BERKLY,
150 South 5th Street. Salina, Kan.

No remedy equals S. S. S. as a cure for Scrofula. It cleanses and builds up the blood, makes it rich and pure, and under the tonic effects of this great Blood Remedy, the general health improves, the digestive organs are strengthened, and there is a gradual but sure return to health. The deposit of tubercular matter in the joints and glands is carried off as soon as the blood is restored to a normal condition, and the sores, eruptions, and other symptoms of Scrofula disappear.

S. S. S. is guaranteed purely vegetable and harmless; an ideal blood purifier and tonic that removes all blood taint and builds up weak constitutions. Our physicians will advise without charge, all who write us about their case. Book mailed free.

Wakeful?

Sleeplessness Is a Sign of Nerve Trouble and Should Be Looked To.

There are three different manifestations of sleeplessness.

First, hardly to sleep a wink all night, second, to lie awake a long time before falling asleep; third, to fall asleep soon, waking up after several hours and then find it hard to sleep again.

They mean that somewhere in the nerve fibres, somewhere in the brain cells, somewhere in the blood vessels that carry blood to the brain, something is radically wrong, and must be righted, or the end may be worse than death.

To right it, take Dr. Miles' Nervine.

Some other symptoms of nerve trouble are: Dizziness, Headache, Backache, Worry, Fretfulness, Irritability, Melancholy, Lack of Ambition.

They indicate diseases which may lead to Epilepsy, Fits, St. Vitus' Dance, Nervous Prostration, Paralysis, Insanity.

Nothing will give such quick and lasting relief as Dr. Miles' Nervine.

"My husband had been sick for weeks, could not sit up to have his bed made. With all the medical help we could get he continued to grow worse. He could neither sleep or eat. Our baby girl was sent away, and all callers barred, because he could not stand a bit of talking. I read of a case of nervous prostration cured by Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. We began giving it to him, and in a few days he was able to be dressed. From that time he steadily improved. Nervine saved his life."—MRS. A. G. HASKIN, Freeville, N. Y.

nation? Surely not bars of gold and bonds and stocks—a great nation can only exist when those who work succeed and this nation with seventy millions of prosperous and happy toilers will be greater than though labor groveled in poverty and ignorance.

NON-PARTIZAN JUDICIARY.

The democracy in its late convention took advanced ground looking to the ultimate divorce of the judiciary from politics. I am not of those who believe that judicial tribunals are infallible. But I am of those who think that the judiciary of our own state is being dragged through the mire of partizan politics to the disgrace and disgust of the people. The spectacle of a judicial nomination being held up to barter and trade has recently been emphasized in our state and in a manner that calls for the most severe denunciation and condemnation.

The courts of our state should be above reproach and men should be chosen for the bench because of their learning in the law, of their known integrity, and the purity of their lives. To this end the party which I represent tonight has not only declared for a non-partizan judiciary, but has shown its good faith by suiting the action to the word. The action will appeal to the reason of intelligent men and must be followed eventually by the dominant party for the reason that a people believing in high ideals will in power must be rebuked to bring about that end.

If judicial nominations can be made goods for the bargain counter, it will follow that the judge will be open to barter and sale himself. The supreme court of the land is the highest protection of the people and when we can no longer point to our judges as men beyond the slightest question of reproach, the rights of the people are no longer safe.

CANADIAN RECIPROCITY.

In the speech accepting the nomination offered me I expressed a hope that the time would speedily come when our country would remove the barrier to free trade relations between Canadian Americans and United States Americans. This question opens up a discussion of our present tariff system for which I have not the time now, but will limit myself to a brief reference to the question of Canadian reciprocity.

For years we of the northwest have labored under a tariff system which at best benefits us but indirectly. No one has dared to argue that there has come any direct benefit to the northwestern producer, even under this system and amongst those who have favored it there has grown up a desire for a nearer commercial relation with those near by.

The democratic platform urges tariff conventions with Canada and especially demands the removal of the tariff on coal and timber. For years tariff has been maintained on lumber which, while small, has made combination possible and the price of lumber high to the oppression of the builder. I believe with President McKinley, who in the last address he made to the American people, said "that reciprocity treaties are in harmony with the times," that "by sensible trade arrangements which will not interrupt our home markets, we shall extend the outlet of our increasing surplus of produce."

The man who builds a modern home must not be placed at the mercy of combine lumbermen. No man should be permitted to represent a Minnesota district in the congress of the United States who is not pledged to reciprocal trade relations with Canada or who should be returned there if he was untrue to that pledge. Northern Minnesota is an empire whose development begins when the Canadian border line is no longer a barrier to a free exchange of products.

Remove that obstacle and the twin cites and Duluth are the commercial keys to that vast country reaching far off to the Bering sea. A natural growth made possible by one system and utterly impossible under our present tariff policy. Under one system we may work out a manifest destiny which will float our flag at Hudson's bay.

Two years ago the one important issue in that campaign was that of the so-called merger of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern railways. The people of the state spoke in no uncertain sound in the election which followed, and indorsed the present executive and his official action with a majority unparalleled in the history of the state.

THE MERGER STILL AN ISSUE.

The party which gave him such a phenomenal majority two years ago has as its candidate to succeed him, one who, in every interview and utterance by him, has taken his stand in opposition to the policy of the present state administration and in accord with those who sought to effect and did effect a combination of these two vast railway systems. The platform on which he stands was adopted before the convention was organized and those instrumental in his nomination evade the issue with the declaration that the party really did not adopt a platform at all. But whether the question is treated lightly or seriously, like Banquo's ghost, it will not down.

The merger was contrary to law, it was against public policy, it was a crime against the statutes and was not right then and is just as wrong now as then. It was a combination which annihilated competition. It created a power which places hundreds of thousands within its control and gives to one man or set of men the power to establish any rate of transportation throughout the great southern part of this state.

It was a direct blow at the producer, who has a right to a fair profit for his labor and on his investment. It is no argument to say that there will be no abuse of that authority. The authority is illegal. The merger was against the law. There can be no question now as to the motive in putting the law in operation to dissolve the merger. The executive simply did his duty. It is common knowledge that Minnesota shippers and producers are suffering unjust discrimination. Every shipper in the twin cities knows this to be true, every farmer from here to the Canadian border knows this to be true. The railway commission is inactive. Complaints are lodged and placed in pigeonholes to gather the dust and must of time, and the people bear the burden.

If the farmer and the railway and the business men are to enjoy a community of interests and to feel a partnership it is about time that there was a more even distribution of the profits. It has been said of at least one of our great railway men that he has been a great factor in the upbuilding of the northwest. True, most true. I would not detract from his greatness or the extent of his accomplishments, but while he has done much for the commercial development of our great state this great state has done much for him. His personal prosperity has been coequal with the development of the state and would never have been possible but for the farmer who has toiled faithfully and tilled regularly.

It would have been impossible but for the laborer in the shops who toiled faithfully and lived economically. The producer would have survived without him, he could not have prospered without them. The fact that one man or a dozen men have contributed much for the development of the state gives them no right that does not belong to them under the supreme law of the land. It does not give them the right to take the profits of the store, the shop and the farm because by combination they may have the power.

LAW MUST BE OBEYED.

The merger is an issue in this campaign as much as in the last and must remain an issue until absolute justice is had by all the people. There must be sanity in conducting public affairs. We are not for anarchy; we raise no red flag here or in the time to come. I would not destroy corporate interests, I would not take away a single right that a railway has by law, but I would give the humblest citizen every constitutional right and protection in that right, and to this end the law must be obeyed by small and great and should be upheld without favor by those to whom the duty of upholding it is committed.

The railway and other corporations of the country have a right to enjoy a fair rate of interest on their investment, and the farmer has a right to a fair rate of profit on his investment. Farms are not bonded at fictitious values, stores are not disposing of watered stock, and the public has a right from all public-service corporations to demand good service at legitimate earnings, and any attempt to take more than that is not in keeping with good government. Any consolidation formed for the purpose of exacting more than that is unjustifiable and when contrary to law should be prohibited by the law. It matters not who attempts violation.

It is not more worthy in a resident than in a non-resident. Let me again emphasize my position by saying that any consolidation or union for private gain at public expense is unholy. It is un-American. The trust should have no place in the land of the free and the home of the brave.

DEMOCRATIC SUCCESS NOT DANGEROUS.

It cannot be charged that humiliation will come to the state with democratic success. That charge was previously made and the contradiction came in the wise administration of as good a governor as this state has ever had. For two years of our almost half a century of statehood the democratic party had control of the executive department of the state, or rather a portion of that arm of the government. As its governor, John Lind gave this state an impartial administration of its laws which resulted in great credit to the state and everlasting honor to him. It was a course marked by such wisdom, economy and fairness that it has never been surpassed by any other administration within our history. Every promise made by Mr. Lind was fulfilled. Every pledge was redeemed. In asking again that the administration of affairs be placed in our hands we point to the record of Mr. Lind and ask for a renewal of confidence.

We ask for a fair comparison of the two tickets presented to the voters of the state. We ask a careful consideration of the platform and we ask you to compare the conditions which brought both state tickets into existence, and we ask you for an honest opinion as to whether or not we merit your confidence. Conditions change with the periods. It is not a question of what the republican party was forty years ago, nor what the democratic party was forty years ago; the question is of today and of tomorrow. There was once a prevailing opinion that disaster and embarrassment would follow democratic success. The wise and safe administration of one democrat is an everlasting contradiction of that theory. Concluding, I wish, in thanking you for your patience, to promise that if elected, that I shall give to the state the best service that I have. I shall try to administer its affairs that equal justic may be done to all our people. The state of Minnesota means much to me. Within it all my life has been spent. Ever kind to me, I shall try to be ever true to it, and if chosen to preside over its affairs for the next two years, I trust that God in His infinite wisdom will give me guidance that the best interests of the state be served.

The first of her native sons to be nominated for this high office, I submit the cause to Minnesota and whatever her judgment, I shall in submission bow to her will, giving my unqualified allegiance to the state and those in authority.

As the disease is not considered contagious, it is not controlled by the health laws, and cases are not reported to the board. OYAMA RECEIVING REINFORCEMENTS

JAPANESE GENERAL DELIBERATELY PREPARING FOR ADVANCE ON MUKDEN.

HE WILL RESORT TO FLANKING TACTICS

Several Skirmishes Already Reported — Water Supply of Port Arthur Cut Off — Manchurian Army Is Reorganized.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 27.—The cause of the extreme deliberation in the Japanese advance on Mukden was explained by a dispatch from Gen. Kuropatkin Monday forenoon, which indicates that Field Marshal Oyama has not yet concentrated his forces. Fresh troops are constantly arriving at Bentsiaputze, while others, which recently reached Liaoyang, are marching up the Taitse river to Sianchan. These reinforcements presumably come from Japan. As soon as the Fourth Japanese army at Sianchan is sufficiently strong, it is now evident, the Japanese intend to resort to their favorite flanking tactics, move a formidable array against Kuropatkin's left and compel the evacuation of Sintsintin. They are evidently reconnoitering the ground over which the Sianchan army will march up and cross the river. Meanwhile Gen. Kuroki is trying to seize and cross the Hun river far east of Mukden. Thence he will move down the river and cooperate with the Fourth from Sianchan, while Gens. Oku and Nodzu engage Kuropatkin's attention south of Mukden. The attacks on Da pass and Sanlungku September 20 were the first symptoms of this vast flanking movement.

Kuropatkin now reports that Japanese scouts have been encountered near the Hun river, half way to Mukden, trying to seize Kaoutou pass, ten miles northeast of Bentsiaputze, in order to clear the way to Fushun, and that Oku's and Nodzu's outposts have been engaged in skirmishing with Cossacks near Inpu, between Bentsiaputze and the railroad.

Advance Is Begun.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 27.—A dispatch has been received from Gen. Kuropatkin, announcing that the Japanese are preparing an extensive turning movement east of Mukden. A large force is advancing from Liaoyang, by way of Taiche, to Sianchan. Skirmishes have occurred in the valley of the Hun river, and at Inpu, between Bentsiaputze and the railroad. There were many casualties at Inpu.

Jap Advance Guard Repulsed.

Gen. Sakharoff, in a dispatch dated Sunday, telegraphs that the Japanese advance guard during the last few days attempted to occupy Kaoutou pass, commanding the road to Fushun, but was repulsed by a detachment of the Russian advance guard. On the south front all is quiet, though shots are exchanged daily and skirmishes occur between the advance posts.

Manchurian Army Reorganized.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 27.—The division and reorganization of the Manchurian army, regarding which there have been rumors ever since the battle of Liaoyang, was officially announced Sunday in an imperial rescript appointing Maj. Gen. Grippenberg, commander of the Third army corps in the province of Vilna, as commander of the second army now being mobilized for immediate dispatch to the far east, leaving Gen. Kuropatkin in command of the first army. The emperor is personally convinced that the political as well as the military prestige of the empire is at stake and that every other consideration must give way before the exigencies of war. The resources of the empire in men and money must be drained, if necessary, in order to turn the scale and vindicate the power of Russia. The reorganization amounts to formal notice to the world, as the emperor frankly explains in his rescript, that he intends to vastly increase the number of troops at the theater of war in order to force the struggle to a successful issue in the shortest possible time.

The reorganization of Russia's forces in the far east by the appointment of Gen. Grippenberg to command the Second army has been received with much satisfaction by the press.

Will Fight Out the Issue.

It is intended to silence definitely all talk of foreign intervention by the announcement that Russia means to fight out the issue with Japan on the field of battle. Probably 300,000 additional men will be placed in the field. Five corps, the Third, Fourth, Fifth, Eighth and Sixteenth are already destined for the front, and the talk is that five more corps will be sent forward. Eventually the creation of this second army involves the selection of a commander-in-chief. Not only is there no intimation in the rescript that Gen. Kuropatkin will have command of both armies, but he is distinctly placed upon the same footing as Gen. Grippenberg. In the best informed circles there is little idea that Viceroy Alexieff, the present nominal commander-in-chief, will exercise the actual functions of commander of the 600,000 or 700,000 men that Russia has resolved to put in the field. It is the best opinion that Grand Duke Nicholas Michaelovitch, inspector general of cavalry, will attain the high command.

Port Arthur in Peril.

Chefoo, Sept. 27.—As a result of the battle before Port Arthur which began on September 19 the Japanese succeeded in capturing several important positions,

MET ON A SHARP CURVE.

Disobedience of Orders Causes Frightful Wreck in Tennessee—Sixty-six Persons Killed.

Knoxville, Tenn., Sept. 26.—Sixty-six persons were killed and 125 injured (many of whom will die) in a head on collision on the Southern railway 19 miles east of this city at 10:18 Saturday morning. The engineer of the west-bound train, so investigation shows, was directly responsible for the disaster. He deliberately disobeyed orders. Why, will never be known, for he was crushed to death beneath his engine and his fireman suffered a like fate. Hodges, a little station, was to be the meeting point of the two trains. The west-bound received orders to take the sidetrack at the depot and await the east-bound train. The engineer received his orders and placed the slip of yellow paper in a little frame hanging in the cab where it would be constantly before him. There are but two possible explanations of his failure to follow orders; he may have gone to sleep or the still more remote chance of him being suddenly stricken blind.

The crash came on a sharp curve, between high banks. When the first impact came the passengers on the east-bound train were hurled from their seats and thrown toward the front end of the cars. Then, in an instant, before they could regain their feet, the cars commenced to telescope and close up as a hatrack is compressed. As the jaws of wood and iron came together they killed and maimed the helpless, huddled masses of humanity. Dozens of bodies were simply crushed out of all semblance to human form, limbs were torn off, and bones broken by the hundred. In one car was found a woman pinioned by a piece of split timber which had gone completely through her body. A little child, quivering in death's agony, lay beneath the woman. The child died ten minutes later. Within a few feet of the little one lay a woman's head, while the decapitated body was several feet away.

In one car but two persons escaped alive. Congressman Henry R. Gibson from the Second congressional district of Tennessee and one other man, whose name is not known, were the fortunates. The congressman was en route to Russellville, Tenn., to deliver a political address and was reading his address when the collision occurred. When he realized what had happened he found his legs pinioned fast, but managed to extricate himself.

A large number of people were going from Knoxville to Newmarket to attend the funeral of W. R. King, a prominent citizen of that place, who died Friday. James King, one of the dead, was a brother of W. R. King, and five members of the King family in all were killed, while several relatives, though not of the same name, were injured.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

A Wolf in Town.

A huge timber wolf menaced the lives of scores of people in the train shed of the Union station, Minneapolis, and was finally killed with a coupling pin after a hand-to-hand struggle.

The animal ran swiftly in the wake of a passenger train and was not noticed until it had entered the shed. There was a crowd clustered around the coaches, when suddenly the wolf appeared it its midst.

A panic was created in an instant. Women screamed, children yelled and the men were too astounded to act. Everyone rushed towards the gates, while the wolf, its wicked mouth wide open and its long tongue hanging out, scampered up and down the enclosure, in and out among the scurrying passengers.

Then from the end of the shed a small colored man, William Hines, 218 Nicolett avenue, threw a rock which grazed the animal's head. A few seconds later Hines saw two coupling pins lying close to the track just outside of the canopy and, picking one up, he hurled it at the animal.

The missile caught the animal in the side and with a yelp of pain and rage it charged its assailent.

Hines hurriedly seized the other pin and as the wolf jumped at him, hit it a glancing blow on the head. The animal managed to seize Hines by the left hand, but was soon beaten to death with the weapon of iron, not, however, until the gloves which the negro had worn were tore to shreds and his hands and face badly lacerated.

The man had a dog with him but he refused to attack the wolf.

Eighth—J. Adam Bede (Rep.) Duluth; Martin Hughes (Dem.), Hibbing.

Ninth—Halvor Steenerson (Rep.), Crookston; Dem., no nomination.

Butter Score.

Minnesota again has the highest average score on butter at the world's fair. J. C. Joclyn of Winsted takes the sweepstakes on print butter with a score of 98; Mrs. J. C. McRosta of Owatonna sweepstakes on dairy, with a score of 97.

Iowa gets a quarter of one point ahead of Minnesota on creamery with a score of 98¼; O. P. Jenson of Union Creamery, Minn., takes the second; score of 98; James Rasmussen of Lerdahl, Minn., third score, 97¾.

Minnesota wins the sweepstakes on unsalted butter by a score of 97. Mrs. Sondegard of Hutchinson, Minn., was at a great disadvantage owing to the fact that she complied with the rule that required all butter to be in St. Louis by Sept. 10. Iowa delivered its product two days after the required time. Wisconsin and Illinois delivered their showing at the exposition grounds on Sept. 15, five days after the time required by the exposition rules. This completes the third of the four tests. Minnesota has for the third time won the highest average and her ultimate full victory is practically assured.

Wolf Bounties.

The state auditor sent out vouchers to the various counties in payment of bounties for killing wolves during the last few months. The total amount of the payments is $3,869, the largest amount being for Crow Wing county, which receives $781 for 105 wolves, and Kittson county comes next with $607 for 126 wolves, and Carlton next with $556 for seventy-five wolves. The amount of the bounty paid is $7.50 for full grown wolves and $1 for cubs. This bounty is paid by the county treasurers, who report to the state auditor and the amount paid is then refunded by the state.

Increased Assessment.

Household and office furniture represents one-twelfth of the aggregate personal valuation for the state in the composite opinion of the county assessors and county boards of equalization, as shown in the schedules presented to the state board of equalization. The gross amount at which household and office furniture was returned in these schedules was $12,366,000, and to that the state board added 44 per cent, or $5,345,000, which is an increase of $4,448,706 over the aggregate assessment of last year for this class of property as it was left by the state board. The figures of last year were $13,252,294.

Brief Notes.

Wanting to die because he cannot get rich quick enough to please himself, and having made several attempts to end his existence with a butcher knife, Tom Jensen, a farmer who lives near Fosston, was committed to the Fergus Falls asylum.

The two-year-old daughter of William Uran, who lives near the tracks of the Soo railway on Buffalo river, was run over and instantly killed by a gravel train.

The plans for the St. Paul jubilee are progressing.

OFFERS BIBLE FOR TOBACCO

Aged Southerner's Extremity Melts the Heart of a Chicago Grocer.

A Chicago groceryman tells of a seedy-looking individual, with the appearance of better days in his memory, who came into the grocery, and, in the accent of the old south, asked for credit for a package of smoking tobacco. This was refused. The old man, who wore an ancient silk hat and a long frock coat, turned away with a sigh, but returned shortly with a pained look and a copy of the Bible.

"My name is Rust, suh—"

"You look it," the grocer interjected.

"I am a brother, suh, of Gen. Rust, of Miss'ippi, suh, and not in the habit of making propositions of this kind, suh. But if you will take this book, suh, in pledge, and trust me for the smoking material, suh, I pledge you the honah of a Rust, suh, that I will redeem it in a very few days."

And yet the grocer refused to part with the "noxious weed."

Again the old man turned away, and with a sigh remarked:

"Well, suh, if you won't take my word nor the word of God eyether, I presume that it is best to close these negotiations. Good day, suh; good day."

"That was too much for even as hard-hearted a man as I am," said the grocer. "I called the old gentleman back and made him happy with a package of tobacco, and I didn't keep his Bible, either."

MANY OLD MEN IN HARNESS.

Age of Democratic Vice Presidential Candidate No Barrier to Good Service.

Objection that ex-Senator Henry G. Davis, the democratic candidate for vice president, is too old to serve on the ticket cannot be made. It is true that he will be 81 years on November 16, but there are many men active in public, commercial and professional life as old, or nearly as old, as he.

Here is a list of some of the prominent old men who are still active and hale, like Mr. Davis:

Ex-Speaker Galusha Grow, of Pennsylvania, 80; ex-Vice President Levi P. Morton, 79; Senator John T. Morgan, of Alabama, 79; Senator George F. Hoar, of Massachusetts, 78; ex-Secretary Boutwell, 85; Senator David Wark, of Canada, 100; Senator Edmund W. Pettus, Alabama, 80; Senator William P. Frye, of Maine, 73.

All of these men are still active in political and business life. Other men still at the front are: Edward Everett Hale, of Massachusetts, 81; King Christian of Denmark, 86; E. N. Taller, of New York, more than 80; John B. Ireland, of New York, more than 90; Russell Sage, 87; Former Gov. Alonzo Garcelon, of Maine, 94; Thomas Wentworth Higginson, of Boston, 80.

LAYS THREE EGGS IN ONE.

New Jersey Buff Cochin Hen's First and Only Effort Breaks All Records.

Frank H. Walsh, of Mountainville, N. J., has an egg measuring nine inches in its shortest circumference and eleven and a half in its longest circumference, and which weighs seven and three-quarters ounces.

The egg was laid by a buff cochin of ordinary size, but it was the first egg ever laid by the hen, and it will be the last one also, as she died shortly afterward.

To preserve the egg, Mr. Walsh had it blown, and it was then found that it contained a second hard shell egg. The shell of the interior egg was pierced and that one also blown, when a third very small soft shell egg was found in that.

In endeavoring to blow the soft shell egg on the extreme interior it was broken, but the two large shells still remain intact.

More Dangerous Than War.

Seven thousand Thibetans fought for a whole day against about 200 English troops and killed one man. Going through Thibet seems to be less dangerous, says the Chicago Record-Herald, than penetrating the New Jersey mosquito district.

What I would do the first two weeks if I were cast alone on an uninhabited island in the ocean about the middle of October...

About two weeks ago the above sentence was placed on the blackboards of the public schools, and the pupils were asked to write short essays about it, with the understanding that the four best were to be published in the local papers. Two of them are printed below, the other two appearing in this week's issue of the Gazette.

One day we started off to go acroos the ocean and we bump on a rock the people all got drowned expect me. The waves carried me to shore.

I did not know that to do but I started to hunt around for food, I hunted about an hour and at last I found some berries, I eat them and then climb a tree and tried to sleep. At last I went to sleep and rested.

Then I woke up I was very hungry eat some more berries I had eaten enough. The night came and I climb my tree and sleap till the next morniug.

The sun was shining and I thought I would find some plums and I did find some. It was a big tree and eat all day.

When I had had enough I went back to my tree. I did the same as before. The next day I traveled all day and found many paches of all kind of berrie's and fruit. I thought it would make me sick but it did not. I saw a nice little rabbit at night.

There was a black thing coming on the ocean and I thought was a ship. I call and call but it seame to not hear me. So I thought I would let it go.

I diden go to sleep at all that night. I would look at the trees. The wind was blowing.

In the morning I found and old gun on the shore I open it and in it was a bullet. I knew it woulden't last me long.

I shot a big bird. I pulled off the feathers and fixed it to eat. I found a nice bird's and in it was eggs. I new what kind they were morning dove's eggs.

I found two stones and stricked them together and made fire and I keapt it aburning for many days.

I would pick up wood. At last I saw some more ships comeing. I had a white hat and tide it atter a tree where I thought people in the ship could see it plainly. I thought I would some people in the woods but I did not.

I found many ground cherrys on the island. On the tree that climb every night to sleep did not have any leaves. So i pick bright yellow and red leaves. I throught there would be wild animals but they were not.

The next day I went all around the island and every thing to eat. I soon got triederd of eating berries. But I did not have any thing else.

The was very dark at night but I was not skiret. I seem many little frogs.

That ocean was about three miles long and one mile wide. It was kinded of cold but I woulden't mined it..

At last a ship came and took me back acrose the ocean.

Eighth Grade.

As I was on my way from Australia to Europe are vessel was wrected near the shores of an island and by the help of some boards that had broke from the vessel I managed to get to shore all right. I was the only one that reach the shores of that island safe.

I reached the island about four a'clock in the after noon as I could just about tell by the sun. And it could not have been far from the equator. When I came to land I was wet, lonely, homesick, lonesome and almost every thing imaginable.

I was hungry when I reached the island and did not dare venture far from the shores of the ocean. I went about a ten rods from the shore and came to a cocoanut tree and three cocoanuts were lying on the ground. I picked them up and ran back to the shore as soon as possible and opened the cocoanut with my knife that being the only tool I had with me. I opened them very carefuly so that I could have the shells for dishes as I did not have any others. I ate the cocoanuts as if I had not had any thing to eat for many days.

The next thing I thought about was how I was going to spend the night. I happened to look over to the other side of the little bay and saw a cave. I went over to it and found it just large enough to stand up in and about the size of an ordianary room and desided to stay there over night. I seemed to be more contented since I descovered this island.

The next thing I did was to take a rest. I then sat down on the bank of the island and looked out over the ocean to see if I could see land but I only saw the water and waves.

My hunger was not yet satisfied so I went over to the other side of the bay again to see if I could find any oysters or clams. I found three clams and ten oysters. I took them to the other side to where the cave was and cleaned them and they were all ready to cook. Then I gather some dry drift wood enough to make a fire. I was going to see if I could be fortunate and find some flint, Sure enough I found some I began to rub it together and pretty soon I saw a spark then I lighted my fire and next I took a cocoanut shell and took some of that long tough grass and tighted it in the holes that I had bored with my knife and then my kettle and fire was ready. I put some water in the kettle and gather some salt the wave had washed against the rocks and had dried in the sun and put that in and lastly the clams and oysters and when it had cooked I had a delicious supper.

It started to get dark and I desided to go to sleep then I built a fire in the entrance of the cave so as to keep away the wild animals slept during the night sound. When I work up in the morning my fire was just dying out and I put some more drift wood on the fire and it began to burn.

When I went over to the other side of the bay again and found some more oysters and I cleaned them and inside of one I fouod a pearl and I thought they must be pearl oysters. Oh! How I wished I could get to Europe I knew I could many hundred dollars for it.

A couple days later I was wandering about the cave and came across a baby monkey and I took it home and it soon became tame and I learned it many tricks.

Next thing I did was to cut down a tree and make a hole in the ground with my knife and put the tree in and then I put my red petticoat on for a signal if any ships passing by might see my signal.

Many days yes weeks passed by this way no one seemed to see my signal but one day when down by the beech I saw some thing in the distance was it a whale no it must surely be a ship of some kind. It came nearer and nearer it was a ship. The wind blew my signal and they came I got on board the ship and said good bye to the island where I had been living all alone.

But I was glad I had the experience of living alone on an unhabited island.

I was glad I did not have to parish on that island,

A new variety of muskmelons has recently been imported from Turkestan, which is as large as our watermelons and has a delicious pulp several inches in thickness. This melon can only be grown in the arid regions of the West. It matures in September, when it is picked, but it is not ready to eat until December or January. We are finding new foods daily, but none so wholesome and invigorating as golden grain belt beer, the old stand-by of the West. Uniformly good, pure and delicious. OYAMA RECEIVING REINFORCEMENTS

JAPANESE GENERAL DELIBERATELY PREPARING FOR ADVANCE ON MUKDEN.

HE WILL RESORT TO FLANKING TACTICS

Several Skirmishes Already Reported—Water Supply of Port Arthur Cut Off—Manchurian Army Is Reorganized.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 27.—The cause of the extreme deliberation in the Japanese advance on Mukden was explained by a dispatch from Gen. Kuropatkin Monday forenoon, which indicates that Field Marshal Oyama has not yet concentrated his forces. Fresh troops are constantly arriving at Bentsiaputze, while others, which recently reached Liaoyang, are marching up the Taitse river to Sianchan. These reinforcements presumably come from Japan. As soon as the Fourth Japanese army at Sianchan is sufficiently strong, it is now evident, the Japanese intend to resort to their favorite flanking tactics, move a formidable array against Kuropatkin's left and compel the evacuation of Sintsintin. They are evidently reconnoitering the ground over which the Sianchan army will march up and cross the river. Meanwhile Gen. Kuroki is trying to seize and cross the Hun river far east of Mukden. Thence he will move down the river and cooperate with the Fourth from Sianchan, while Gens. Oku and Nodzu engage Kuropatkin's attention south of Mukden. The attacks on Da pass and Sanlungku September 20 were the first symptoms of this vast flanking movement.

Kuropatkin now reports that Japanese scouts have been encountered near the Hun river, half way to Mukden, trying to seize Kaoutou pass, ten miles northeast of Bentsiaputze, in order to clear the way to Fushun, and that Oku's and Nodzu's outposts have been engaged in skirmishing with Cossacks near Inpu, between Bentsiaputze and the railroad.

Advance Is Begun.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 27.—A dispatch has been received from Gen. Kuropatkin, announcing that the Japanese are preparing an extensive turning movement east of Mukden. A large force is advancing from Liaoyang, by way of Taiche, to Sianchan. Skirmishes have occurred in the valley of the Hun river, and at Inpu, between Bentsiaputze and the railroad. There were many casualties at Inpu.

Jap Advance Guard Repulsed.

Gen. Sakharoff, in a dispatch dated Sunday, telegraphs that the Japanese advance guard during the last few days attempted to occupy Kaoutou pass, commanding the road to Fushun, but was repulsed by a detachment of the Russian advance guard. On the south front all is quiet, though shots are exchanged daily and skirmishes occur between the advance posts.

Manchurian Army Reorganized.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 27.—The division and reorganization of the Manchurian army, regarding which there have been rumors ever since the battle of Liaoyang, was officially announced Sunday in an imperial rescript appointing Maj. Gen. Grippenberg, commander of the Third army corps in the province of Vilna, as commander of the second army now being mobilized for immediate dispatch to the far east, leaving Gen. Kuropatkin in command of the first army. The emperor is personally convinced that the political as well as the military prestige of the empire is at stake and that every other consideration must give way before the exigencies of war. The resources of the empire in men and money must be drained, if necessary, in order to turn the scale and vindicate the power of Russia. The reorganization amounts to formal notice to the world, as the emperor frankly explains in his rescript, that he intends to vastly increase the number of troops at the theater of war in order to force the struggle to a successful issue in the shortest possible time.

The reorganization of Russia's forces in the far east by the appointment of Gen. Grippenberg to command the Second army has been received with much satisfaction by the press.

Will Fight Out the Issue.

It is intended to silence definitely all talk of foreign intervention by the announcement that Russia means to fight out the issue with Japan on the field of battle. Probably 300,000 additional men will be placed in the field. Five corps, the Third, Fourth, Fifth, Eighth and Sixteenth are already destined for the front, and the talk is that five more corps will be sent forward. Eventually the creation of this second army involves the selection of a commander-in-chief. Not only is there no intimation in the rescript that Gen. Kuropatkin will have command of both armies, but he is distinctly placed upon the same footing as Gen. Grippenberg. In the best informed circles there is little idea that Viceroy Alexieff, the present nominal commander-in-chief, will exercise the actual functions of commander of the 600,000 or 700,000 men that Russia has resolved to put in the field. It is the best opinion that Grand Duke Nicholas Michaelovitch, inspector general of cavalry, will attain the high command.

Port Arthur in Peril.

Chefoo, Sept. 27.—As a result of the battle before Port Arthur which began on September 19 the Japanese succeeded in capturing several important positions,

MET ON A SHARP CURVE.

Disobedience of Orders Causes Frightful Wreck in Tennessee—Sixty-six Persons Killed.

Knoxville, Tenn., Sept. 26.—Sixty-six persons were killed and 125 injured (many of whom will die) in a head on collision on the Southern railway 19 miles east of this city at 10:18 Saturday morning. The engineer of the west-bound train, so investigation shows, was directly responsible for the disaster. He deliberately disobeyed orders. Why, will never be known, for he was crushed to death beneath his engine and his fireman suffered a like fate. Hodges, a little station, was to be the meeting point of the two trains. The west-bound received orders to take the sidetrack at the depot and await the east-bound train. The engineer received his orders and placed the slip of yellow paper in a little frame hanging in the cab where it would be constantly before him. There are but two possible explanations of his failure to follow orders; he may have gone to sleep or the still more remote chance of him being suddenly stricken blind.

The crash came on a sharp curve, between high banks. When the first impact came the passengers on the east-bound train were hurled from their seats and thrown toward the front end of the cars. Then, in an instant, before they could regain their feet, the cars commenced to telescope and close up as a hatrack is compressed. As the jaws of wood and iron came together they killed and maimed the helpless, huddled masses of humanity. Dozens of bodies were simply crushed out of all semblance to human form, limbs were torn off, and bones broken by the hundred. In one car was found a woman pinioned by a piece of split timber which had gone completely through her body. A little child, quivering in death's agony, lay beneath the woman. The child died ten minutes later. Within a few feet of the little one lay a woman's head, while the decapitated body was several feet away.

In one car but two persons escaped alive. Congressman Henry R. Gibson from the Second congressional district of Tennessee and one other man, whose name is not known, were the fortunates. The congressman was en route to Russellville, Tenn., to deliver a political address and was reading his address when the collision occurred. When he realized what had happened he found his legs pinioned fast, but managed to extricate himself.

A large number of people were going from Knoxville to Newmarket to attend the funeral of W. R. King, a prominent citizen of that place, who died Friday. James King, one of the dead, was a brother of W. R. King, and five members of the King family in all were killed, while several relatives, though not of the same name, were injured.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

A Wolf in Town.

A huge timber wolf menaced the lives of scores of people in the train shed of the Union station, Minneapolis, and was finally killed with a coupling pin after a hand-to-hand struggle.

The animal ran swiftly in the wake of a passenger train and was not noticed until it had entered the shed. There was a crowd clustered around the coaches, when suddenly the wolf appeared it its midst.

A panic was created in an instant. Women screamed, children yelled and the men were too astounded to act. Everyone rushed towards the gates, while the wolf, its wicked mouth wide open and its long tongue hanging out, scampered up and down the enclosure, in and out among the scurrying passengers.

Then from the end of the shed a small colored man, William Hines, 218 Nicolett avenue, threw a rock which grazed the animal's head. A few seconds later Hines saw two coupling pins lying close to the track just outside of the canopy and, picking one up, he hurled it at the animal.

The missile caught the animal in the side and with a yelp of pain and rage it charged its assailent.

Hines hurriedly seized the other pin and as the wolf jumped at him, hit it a glancing blow on the head. The animal managed to seize Hines by the left hand, but was soon beaten to death with the weapon of iron, not, however, until the gloves which the negro had worn were tore to shreds and his hands and face badly lacerated.

The man had a dog with him but he refused to attack the wolf.

Butter Score.

Minnesota again has the highest average score on butter at the world's fair. J. C. Joclyn of Winsted takes the sweepstakes on print butter with a score of 98; Mrs. J. C. McRosta of Owatonna sweepstakes on dairy, with a score of 97.

Iowa gets a quarter of one point ahead of Minnesota on creamery with a score of 98¼; O. P. Jenson of Union Creamery, Minn., takes the second score of 98; James Rasmussen of Lerdahl, Minn., third score, 97¾.

Minnesota wins the sweepstakes on unsalted butter by a score of 97. Mrs. Sondegard of Hutchinson, Minn., was at a great disadvantage owing to the fact that she complied with the rule that required all butter to be in St. Louis by Sept. 10. Iowa delivered its product two days after the required time. Wisconsin and Illinois delivered their showing at the exposition grounds on Sept. 15, five days after the time required by the exposition rules. This completes the third of the four tests. Minnesota has for the third time won the highest average and her ultimate full victory is practically assured.

Wolf Bounties.

The state auditor sent out vouchers to the various counties in payment of bounties for killing wolves during the last few months. The total amount of the payments is $3,869, the largest amount being for Crow Wing county, which receives $781 for 105 wolves, and Kittson county comes next with $607 for 126 wolves, and Carlton next with $556 for seventy-five wolves. The amount of the bounty paid is $7.50 for full grown wolves and $1 for cubs. This bounty is paid by the county treasurers, who report to the state auditor and the amount paid is then refunded by the state.

Increased Assessment.

Household and office furniture represents one-twelfth of the aggregate personal valuation for the state in the composite opinion of the county assessors and county boards of equalization, as shown in the schedules presented to the state board of equalization. The gross amount at which household and office furniture was returned in these schedules was $12,366,000, and to that the state board added 44 per cent, or $5,345,000, which is an increase of $4,448,706 over the aggregate assessment of last year for this class of property as it was left by the state board. The figures of last year were $13,252,294.

Brief Notes.

Wanting to die because he cannot get rich quick enough to please himself, and having made several attempts to end his existence with a butcher knife, Tom Jensen, a farmer who lives near Fosston, was committed to the Fergus Falls asylum.

The two-year-old daughter of William Uran, who lives near the tracks of the Soo railway on Buffalo river, was run over and instantly killed by a gravel train.

The plans for the St. Paul jubilee are progressing.

OFFERS BIBLE FOR TOBACCO

Aged Southerner's Extremity Melts the Heart of a Chicago Grocer.

A Chicago groceryman tells of a seedy-looking individual, with the appearance of better days in his memory, who came into the grocery, and, in the accent of the old south, asked for credit for a package of smoking tobacco. This was refused. The old man, who wore an ancient silk hat and a long frock coat, turned away with a sigh, but returned shortly with a pained look and a copy of the Bible.

"My name is Rust, suh—"

"You look it," the grocer interjected.

"I am a brother, suh, of Gen. Rust, of Miss'ippi, suh, and not in the habit of making propositions of this kind, suh. But if you will take this book, suh, in pledge, and trust me for the smoking material, suh, I pledge you the honah of a Rust, suh, that I will redeem it in a very few days."

And yet the grocer refused to part with the "noxious weed."

Again the old man turned away, and with a sigh remarked:

"Well, suh, if you won't take my word nor the word of God eyether, I presume that it is best to close these negotiations. Good day, suh; good day."

"That was too much for even as hard-hearted a man as I am," said the grocer. "I called the old gentleman back and made him happy with a package of tobacco, and I didn't keep his Bible, either."

MANY OLD MEN IN HARNESS.

Age of Democratic Vice Presidential Candidate No Barrier to Good Service.

Objection that ex-Senator Henry G. Davis, the democratic candidate for vice president, is too old to serve on the ticket cannot be made. It is true that he will be 81 years on November 16, but there are many men active in public, commercial and professional life as old, or nearly as old, as he.

Here is a list of some of the prominent old men who are still active and hale, like Mr. Davis:

Ex-Speaker Galusha Grow, of Pennsylvania, 80; ex-Vice President Levi P. Morton, 79; Senator John T. Morgan, of Alabama, 79; Senator George F. Hoar, of Massachusetts, 78; ex-Secretary Boutwell, 85; Senator David Wark, of Canada, 100; Senator Edmund W. Pettus, Alabama, 80; Senator William P. Frye, of Maine, 73.

All of these men are still active in political and business life. Other men still at the front are: Edward Everett Hale, of Massachusetts, 81; King Christian of Denmark, 86; E. N. Taller, of New York, more than 80; John B. Ireland, of New York, more than 90; Russell Sage, 87; Former Gov. Alonzo Garcelon, of Maine, 94; Thomas Wentworth Higginson, of Boston, 80.

LAYS THREE EGGS IN ONE.

New Jersey Buff Cochin Hen's First and Only Effort Breaks All Records.

Frank H. Walsh, of Mountainville, N. J., has an egg measuring nine inches in its shortest circumference and eleven and a half in its longest circumference, and which weighs seven and three-quarters ounces.

The egg was laid by a buff cochin of ordinary size, but it was the first egg ever laid by the hen, and it will be the last one also, as she died shortly afterward.

To preserve the egg, Mr. Walsh had it blown, and it was then found that it contained a second hard shell egg. The shell of the interior egg was pierced and that one also blown, when a third very small soft shell egg was found in that.

In endeavoring to blow the soft shell egg on the extreme interior it was broken, but the two large shells still remain intact.

More Dangerous Than War.

Seven thousand Thibetans fought for a whole day against about 200 English troops and killed one man. Going through Thibet seems to be less dangerous, says the Chicago Record-Herald, than penetrating the New Jersey mosquito district.

There was a black thing coming on the ocean and I thought was a ship. I call and call but it seame to not hear me. So I thought I would let it go.

I diden go to sleep at all that night. I would look at the trees. The wind was blowing.

In the morning I found and old gun on the shore I open it and in it was a bullet; I knew it wouldn't last me long.

I shot a big bird. I pulled off the feathers and fixed it to eat. I found a nice bird's and in it was eggs. I new what kind they were morning dove's eggs.

I found two stones and stricked them together and made fire and I keapt it aburning for many days.

I would pick up wood. At last I saw some more ships comeing. I had a white hat and tide it after a tree where I thought people in the ship could see it plainly. I thought I would some people in the woods but I did not.

I found many ground cherrys on the island. On the tree that climb every night to sleep did not have any leaves. So i pick bright yellow and red leaves. I throught there would be wild animals but they were not.

The next day I went all around the island and every thing to eat. I soon got triederd of eating berries. But I did not have any thing else.

The was very dark at night but I was not skiret. I seem many little frogs.

That ocean was about three miles long and one mile wide. It was kinded of cold but I wouldn't mined it.

At last a ship came and took me back acrose the ocean.

Eighth Grade.

As I was on my way from Australia to Europe are vessel was wrected near the shores of an island and by the help of some boards that had broke from the vessel I managed to get to shore all right. I was the only one that reach the shores of that island safe.

I reached the island about four a'clock in the after noon as I could just about tell by the sun. And it could not have been far from the equator. When I came to land I was wet, lonely, homesick, lonesome and almost every thing imaginable.

I was hungry when I reached the island and did not dare venture far from the shores of the ocean. I went about a ten rods from the shore and came to a cocoanut tree and three cocoanuts were lying on the ground. I picked them up and ran back to the shore as soon as possible and opened the cocoanut with my knife that being the only tool I had with me. I opened them very carefuly so that I could have the shells for dishes as I did not have any others. I ate the cocoanuts as if I had not had any thing to eat for many days.

The next thing I thought about was how I was going to spend the night. I happened to look over to the other side of the little bay and saw a cave. I went over to it and found it just large enough to stand up in and about the size of an ordianary room and desided to stay there over night. I seemed to be more contented since I descovered this island.

The next thing I did was to take a rest. I then sat down on the bank of the island and looked out over the ocean to see if I could see land but I only saw the water and waves.

My hunger was not yet satisfied so I went over to the other side of the bay again to see if I could find any oysters or clams. I found three clams and ten oysters. I took them to the other side to where the cave was and cleaned them and they were all ready to cook. Then I gather some dry drift wood enough to make a fire. I was going to see if I could be fortunate and find some flint, Sure enough I found some I began to rub it together and pretty soon I saw a spark then I lighted my fire and next I took a cocoanut shell and took some of that long tough grass and tighted it in the holes that I had bored with my knife and then my kettle and fire was ready. I put some water in the kettle and gather some salt the wave had washed against the rocks and had dried in the sun and put that in and lastly the clams and oysters and when it had cooked I had a delicious supper.

It started to get dark and I desided to go to sleep then I built a fire in the entrance of the cave so as to keep away the wild animals slept during the night sound. When I work up in the morning my fire was just dying out and I put some more drift wood on the fire and it began to burn.

When I went over to the other side of the bay again and found some more oysters and I cleaned them and inside of one I fouod a pearl and I thought they must be pearl oysters. Oh! How I wished I could get to Europe I knew I could many hundred dollars for it.

A couple days later I was wandering about the cave and came across a baby monkey and I took it home and it soon became tame and I leaned it many tricks.

Next thing I did was to cut down a tree and make a hole in the ground with my knife and put the tree in and then I put my red petticoat on for a signal if any ships passing by might see my signal.

Many days yes weeks passed by this way no one seemed to see my signal but one day when down by the beech I saw some thing in the distance was it a whale no it must surely be a ship of some kind. It came nearer and nearer it was a ship. The wind blew my signal and they came I got on board the ship and said good bye to the island where I had been living all alone.

But I was glad I had the experience of living alone on an unhabited island.

I was glad I did not have to parish on that island,

Winter Muskmelons.

A new variety of muskmelons has recently been imported from Turkestan, which is as large as our watermelons and has a delicious pulp several inches in thickness. This melon can only be grown in the arid regions of the West. It matures in September, when it is picked, but it is not ready to eat until December or January. We are finding new foods daily, but none so wholesome and invigorating as golden grain belt beer, the old stand-by of the West. Uniformly good, pure and delicious. RED LAKE SALE RESUMED

Fair Attendance Marks Beginning of Reservation Auction at Crookston.

The continuation of the sale of Red Lake Indian reservation lands which was adjourned after the sale at Thief River Falls last June was resumed at Crookston Monday morning. There was a good attendance. Colonel N. J. O'Brien, who officiated as auctioneer at Thief River Falls held the hammer.

The conditions of the sale were precisely the same. None of the land can be sold for less than $4 an acre.

No land will be offered at this time that was not offered for sale at Thief River. At that date all the descriptions were put up and the 150,000 acres to be sold now were simply not bid upon, or the cash was not put up as required and the filing made within twenty-four hours. The descriptions to be offered cover some of the choicest lands on the reservation, though they are not located as near Thief River Falls as the bulk of the land sold last June.

There is no set time for the duration of the sale, as it will continue as long as there are any bidders left.

For Sale.

My property on Champagne avenue. Good 6-room house, two lots, etc. Good improvements. Will sell reasonably. Apply to Mrs. Addie Mercier. tf

CONNECTING LINK A SURE GO

Chief Engineer's Crew in Red Lake Falls and Construction Work Soon to Commence.

During the past few weeks railroad rumors have been flying about town, and when all is said and done the only thing we are absolutely sure of is that a connection will be built at Red Lake Falls between the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, and that within a few weeks the passenger train on this branch will run from Crookston to Tilden on the Duluth line, and from that point to Red Lake Falls over the Northern Pacific track. This will overcome the necessity of "doubling" over the "T" line and give this city much better service to Crookston and the cities.

Tuesday morning Chief Engineer Hogelin and several assistants came to Red Lake Falls in their private car, and are overseeing the job of surveying for the connection at this place. A train load of scrapers, dump carts, etc., are on the side track at this place, and work will be commenced in a few days.

Of course none of the officials of the Great Northern will talk for publication, but the chief engineer did not deny that the connection at this place would be made before the ground freezes. The idea that the Pelican Rapids line is to be extended this fall is hardly practical, as the season is too far advanced, although it is quite likely that next spring the line from Pelican Rapids to Winnipeg Junction will be completed, giving Red Lake Falls a through line via Fergus Falls to the cities.

The construction work at Red Lake Falls will be about a mile of track and nearly as much sidetrack. It is presumed that the Northern Pacific will hereafter use the Great Northern depot, and that ultimately a joint agency will be established.

SCHOOLS GET MORE MONEY.

October Apportionment Announced By State Superintendent.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction J. W. Olson Tuesday announced the October apportionment of the state school fund, amounting to $802,102.40. This sum is derived from the interest on the general school fund of $17,000,000 and from the mill school tax.

The distribution is made semi-anually, in March and October. Last March the basis on which the apportionment was made was $1.45, and last October $2.30. This October the per capita apportionment is $2.20, and the number of pupils reported 364,592.

Red Lake county has 3,338 pupils entitled to apportionment, and the county school fund will be enriched to the amount of $7,343.60 as a result of the distribution.

MERRY RAILROAD WAR IS ON

Soo and Great Northern Both Surveying Lines Westward to Dakota.

The merriest railroad construction war that has been waged in this section of the country for many years is now on between the Great Northern and the Soo, and the outcome of the struggle between these traffic handling giants will be watched with absorbing interest by the people of the northwest.

It has been known for some time that the Soo has been making surveys from Thief River Falls northwest through Marshall county, the proposed line extending into North Dakota and crossing the St. Vincent line of the Great Northern somewhere between Warren and Argyle.

They have already surveyed lines through both places, and the ultimate object of this was to get the two leading cities of Marshall county bidding for the proposed line. Whichever city secures the line is certain to be the county seat of Marshall county for all time to come. If Warren, the present county seat, could get the plum, it would be almost certain of holding the county seat which Argyle has been trying to wrest from her for years. If Argyle got the line, a removal of the county seat would be certain in a short time without doubt, as the farmers from the extreme western portion of the county would then be able to get to the county seat without wearisome drives.

The Great Northern, however, has now shied its castor into the ring, and without doubt will begin work late this fall or early next spring on a line running from Greenbush, the end of the extension which will be completed this fall north of Thief River Falls, west to the Red River, striking the river in the vicinity of Big Woods, which is located nearly straight west from Argyle. The Great Northern would thus have about 35 miles the start of the Soo, as the latter road would have to make a start from Thief River Falls.

Got His Eyes Opened.

An old man was the father of a bright son whom he had raised according to the most upright standards. Finally the boy was nominated for office and at first the old man was proud of the fact, but in the course of a week or two he got hold of several opposition papers which intimated that his son was engaged in several shady deals, that there was strong evidence that his nomination had been obtained by fraud and that he was suspected of swindling a blind aunt out of $2.50. "It seems mighty curious," mused the old man, "that I've lived with that boy first and last for nigh onto 40 years and never found out what a tarnel mean man he is."

Bad State of Affairs.

Evidently things matrimonial out at Erskine are not as straight as they might be concerning at least one household as the following clipping from the Echo will indicate: "A certain woman of this village and a certain employee of the Soo road have been creating quite a scandal here during the past few days. We are of the impression that unless the naughty couple travel in a more virtuous path that the young lady will be minus a good hubby and the man minus a good situation.

DEMOCRAT TICKET POPULAR

Republican Newspapers Shower Deserved Compliments on Candidate of Opposition Party.

The Democratic county ticket appear to be so popular with the voters that there is only half-hearted opposition from any quarter, and several of the Democratic candidates are so certain of re-election that not a newspaper in the county opposes them. One of these is County Auditor Ford, who seems to be as warmly and enthusiastically supported by Republicans as by Democrats. Last week the Red Lake Falls Gazette, which two years ago vigorously opposed Mr. Ford, said of him:

"In the memorable campaign of 1902. the gentleman who picture appears above was chosen by the people of Red Lake county to handle the affairs of the Auditor's office for two years, and that the confidence of the people was not in the least misplaced is today the unanimous opinion of the voters. Without a single exception, there is not today a county in Minnesota whose Auditor is more conversant with the laws of his office, a better record-keeper or a more conscientions and courteous official than is the present auditor of Red Lake county, and the fact that he is asking a re-election is news that every voter should be pleased to hear. In his every official action, Mr. Ford has always been right, and his efforts in behalf of the tax-payers have resulted in placing Red Lake county on a solid basis, where she can hold her place in the front ranks of the counties of the state. Regardless of politics, the the voters have reason to remember James E. Ford on election day, and make his majority an evidence of their appreciation of his excellent service.".

Of N. W. Tarrant, the Democratic candidate for judge of probate, the Gazette say:

"The office of judge of probate is the most important in the county, as almost all of the real estate passes through the probate court, and unless the judge understands the probate law and possesses a level head when it comes to business method, the title to property is sure to become defective, and in a few years the heirs and legatees of real property will be burdened with needless litigation. The voters should see that a competent man is put in the office. N. W. Tarrant's record as judge of the municipal court at Thief River court at Thief River and as judge of probate, in both of which offices the books and records are open to the inspection of the public, is a guarantee that he will continue to discharge the duties of the judge of probate in an intelligent and business-like manner. In the future. as in the past, Judge Tarrant promises to devote his whole time and attention to the faithful performance of the duties of the office."

Study Club to be Organized.

All who are interested in the organization of an evening club for serious study are invited to meet in the K. of P. hall on Wednesday, October 12, at 8 p. m. This club is to be composed of both men and women. Two lines of study have been proposed. First, the "Bay View" reading course, which this year takes up in the history and institutions of Russia and Japan, and secondly, the reading of selected plays of Shakespeare and the general study of his writings, combined with a discussion of vital present-day questions, some books reviews and an occasional debate. Other plans are sought for from those interested.

Several of the leading business and professional men and their wives have signified their intention of joining. No special invitations will be sent out. The organization will be completed, and the course of study and the time and place of meeting will be settled at this first meeting. All interested in the work are invited.

FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONER

I will be an independent candidate for county commissioner, and respectfully solicit the support of the voters of this district. If elected I promise to give honest and faithful service, and will always bear in mind the best interests of the district and county. I have been a resident of Red Lake county for the past twenty-three years.

FUGITIVE RUSSIAN CRUISER IS SAID TO HAVE REACHED HANGCHOW BAY.

ADMIRALTY OFFICIALS DOUBT THE REPORT

Japanese Losses in Four Days' Fighting at Port Arthur Placed at 20,000—Another One of Czar's Steamers Reported Sunk.

Shanghai, Oct. 4.—A Russian warship, supposed to be the armored cruiser Bayan, of the Port Arthur squadron, is reported to have anchored off Gutzlaff island in Hangchau bay.

Report Discredited.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 4.—The admiralty expresses incredulity at the report that a Russian warship, believed to be the armored cruiser Bayan, has arrived at Hangchau bay, near Shanghai. The officials here are evidently not prepared to believe that the Bayan has succeeded in slipping through Admiral Togo's Port Arthur cordon alone.

Heavy Japanese Losses.

Chefoo, Oct. 4.—An official report from Gen. Stoessel, dated September 23, reached Chefoo Monday, confirming a previous report of the repulse of the Japanese attack on Port Arthur which began September 19 and ended September 22. The fighting was of an extremely severe character. Russians estimate that the total Japanese losses in the four days' fighting were 20,000 men.

The volunteers referred to by Gen. Stoessel in the proclamation which he issued after the desperate fighting which took place between September 19 and 22 were made up of regulars called upon to take a high hill which had been captured by the Japanese.

Attack Lasts Four Days.

From semi-official sources it is learned that the attack began on the 19th along the whole line and lasted four days, various positions changing hands many times. The high hill mentioned was a very important position to the Russians. The Japanese attacked repeatedly, day and night, finally occupying the position on the night of September 22 after suffering very severe losses. The attempt to retake this hill being extremely hazardous, Gen. Stoessel refused to issue the order, but called for volunteers. Everybody called upon responded, whereupon a requisite number of men were selected, Lieut. Poggorsky and Capt. Sychaff leading them. Soldiers and officers alike carried grenades (explosive shells weighing from two to six pounds which are thrown by hand), and with these they attacked the Japanese temporary fortifications and drove the latter from all of their positions. Several mines were exploded during the general battle, causing severe losses.

Japs Strengthen Advance Post.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 4.—A dispatch was received Monday from Gen. Sakharoff announcing that the Japanese have strengthened their advance posts at Fengtiapu, 16 miles southeast of Mukden. Elsewhere, he adds, there are no developments. There have been a few small outpost fights at Mukden, but otherwise the situation is unchanged.

Another Russian Ship Sunk.

Tokio, Oct. 4.—The navy department reports the destruction of another Russian steamer used in clearing mines at the entrance of Port Arthur harbor. The steamer struck a mine September 20 and sunk. The reported loss of a Japanese gunboat south of Liaotung peninsula by striking a mine has not been officially verified.

TRAGEDY IN MISSOURI.

Fever-Crazed Man Kills Four Then Disappears in Woods Clad Only in Nightshirt.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 4.—Four persons were shot to death by Charles Geitrell, a young Memphian, at O'Brien's Landing, Mo., according to a message received here Monday. Delirious from fever, Geitrell, who is a commissary clerk, rose from bed, seized a gun and shot into a group of people in a store.

The dead: James Weaver, white, Memphis; Will Anderson, colored; Fred Burt, colored; Susie Williams, colored.

After the shooting Geitrell, it is said, leaped from the store where the shooting took place, picked up two pistols as he ran and disappeared in the woods. He was clad only in a night shirt.

The sheriff of Charleston, Mo., was notified and a posse is in pursuit of Geitrell. The police of Cairo have been asked to assist in the capture.

Fast Mail Wrecked.

Chicago, Oct. 4.—Fast mail express No. 8, east-bound on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, was ditched a short distance east of Altona station at 1:37 o'clock Monday morning. The engineer, fireman, brakeman, flagman and several mail clerks were hurt, but none seriously. The wreck was caused by the train striking a car door which had fallen from a freight train on the west-bound track. The entire train left the track and plowed into a ditch. One of the mail cars alone was overturned.

A DOZEN LIVES LOST IN FLOODS

TERRIBLE RESULT OF HIGH WATER IN PARTS OF MEXICO AND COLORADO.

Two Little Towns in the Former Are Washed Entirely Away—Enormous Damage Is Reported from Trinidad, Col.

Las Vegas, N. M., Oct. 3.—Half the town of Watrous was destroyed by the flood and at least 12 persons were drowned. Among these were the three children of J. E. Stevens, Felix Villirael, his wife, two sisters and several children, and O. F. Porter. Many persons were rescued from trees and housetops. The greatest damage was around the junction of Mora and Sapelloire creeks. The rock crusher, the great iron bridge and much track at Watrous were washed away. The Gallinas river formed a new channel here. In the Gallinas canyon the dams of the Agua Pura company broke, bringing a terrific flood on the city.

Two Towns Washed Away.

Albuquerque, N. M., Oct. 3.—Reports from the floods in the Rio Grande valley above and below this city are coming in. The towns of Valence and Los Lentes were completely washed away and several hundred families are homeless. The river swung to the east, cut a new channel and poured a torrent through the two towns. No lives were lost.

Trinidad, Col., Oct. 1.—A terrific flood struck the city of Trinidad and the whole valley along the Las Animas river, devastating a wide section and causing a money loss which at present cannot be estimated, but which will reach fully $1,000,000. So far as known there was no loss of life, but there were many narrow escapes. Every bridge in the city of Trinidad is out, the Santa Fe station is demolished, all of the railroads are tied up and the telephone and telegraphic services completely suspended. More than 30 city blocks in the residence and business portions are from two to four feet under water.

PLAN ABANDONED.

Democratic National Committee Will Not Establish Headquarters in the West.

New York, Sept. 29.—An apparent settlement for the present of the question of the establishment of western democratic headquarters is announced at the national committee rooms. Members of the executive committee say no such headquarters will be established and Chairman Taggart said that letters and telegrams received made it appear that the establishment of such headquarters was unnecessary. Mr. Taggart expects to go west and also to visit such other points at seem necessary, but unless something at present unforeseen occurs there will be no regular western branch, and the campaign will be managed from this city.

Mystery in Girl's Death.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—Mystery envelops the death of Frances Parkhurst, the 16-year-old girl student at Ferry hall, Lake Forest, who was found dead in Lake Michigan Friday, after a searching party numbering more than 2,000 students, society men and soldiers from Fort Sheridan had sought her for many hours in the woods north of Evanston. It is unknown whether in a moment of despair she committed suicide, or whether she met her death accidentally.

Sent to Prison.

St. Louis, Oct. 1.—John H. Schnettler, former member of the house of delegates, who pleaded guilty three months ago to charges of bribery in connection with the suburban railway deal, was on Friday sentenced to two years' imprisonment in the penitentiary by Judge McDonald. Schnettler is the sixth member of the house of 1899-1901 to be sent to the penitentiary in connection with this deal.

TRADE REVIEW.

Prospects Brighter Than a Year Ago—Dun's Report Finds No Alarming Features.

New York, Oct. 1.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: "The last quarter of 1904 opens with much brighter prospects than prevailed a year ago. At that time securities had fallen an average of $34 a share from the top point a year previous, and there was a general disposition to curtail manufacturing and commercial operations because of the heavy losses. The nation was entering on a period of conservatism, augmented by numerous labor controversies. At the present time there are no alarming features, strikes are few and unimportant, while the indications of growing confidence are numerous. Business does not show the hesitation customary during the closing weeks of a presidential campaign, and the prospect of profitable agricultural results stimulates trade, especially among retailers at the west and south. Building operations are expanding, providing a better demand, for lumber and materials. Clothing and kindred lines are stimulated by colder weather and clearance sales are well attended. Manufacturing plants are decreasing the proportion of idle machinery, the chief complaint coming from cotton mills, which suffer from the disparity between prices of raw material and finished products.

"Failures this week numbered 223 in the United States against 226 last year, and 18 in Canada compared with ten a year ago."

Bradstreet's says: "The word 'improvement' summarizes briefly the course of trade and general industry this week. Although the movements, as for a time past, are along conservative lines, the undertone is rather more optimistic than at any previous time this season. Reasons for this are found in the continuance of propitious weather conditions, a tendency to enlarge final estimates of grain crop yields, more activity in pig iron and better collections, based upon enlarged crop movement. A striking absence of political agitation as affecting trade is noted and the feeling generally is that the year will close better than it began."

Your Heart

May Be Weak. One Person in Four Has a Weak Heart.

One of the surest signs of a weak heart is shortness of breath after exercise. Your heart is not able to pump the blood fast enough to your lungs.

Some of the other symptoms of Heart Trouble are: Pains in the Side, Back and Shoulder; Fainting or Weak Spells; Dry Cough; Swelling of Feet and Ankles; Cold Feet or Hands.

No one can afford to allow a weak heart to go without medicine, because weak heart means poor circulation, and poor circulation means weak lungs, stomach, liver, kidneys, etc.

If, therefore, you suspect heart trouble, begin taking Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure. The Heart Cure will do you good, as it is a splendid tonic for the blood and nerves, and will revitalize your entire system.

Finally, remember, Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure is sold under a guarantee that the first bottle will do you good. If it doesn't—your money back.

"I was afflicted with heart trouble for three years. I would be apparently all right, and without a moment's warning would fall as though shot. The attacks were frequent, and a terrible dread possessed me, as I never knew when or where, nor under what conditions I would be attacked, and whether I would survive them. I consulted and was treated by some of the most eminent physicians of the state. Not finding relief from this source, I began taking Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, and began to improve at once. I used ten bottles, which entirely cured me, as I have not had an attack for five years."—MRS. JOHN DRESBACK, Leipsic, O.

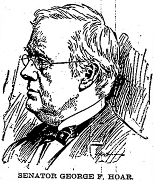
NATION SUFFERS A SEVERE LOSS

DEATH ENDS USEFUL CAREER OF UNITED STATES SENATOR GEORGE FRISBIE HOAR.

Venerable Statesman Passes Peacefully Away at His Home in Worcester, Mass.—Short Sketch of His Life.

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 30.—George Frisbie Hoar, senior United States senator from Massachusetts, died at his home in this city at 1:35 o'clock this morning. The end followed a period of unconsciousness that had continued since early Tuesday and came so gently that only the attending physicians were aware of the exact moment of dissolution. During the last hours there was not a movement of the body and only a scarcely perceptible pulse evidenced the final struggle. There were present at the bedside when death came the senator's son, Gen. Rockwood Hoar; his daughter, Mary Hoar, and Dr. Warren R. Gilman, who for weeks has been in almost constant attendance upon the senator.



SENATOR GEORGE F. HOAR.

From all parts of the commonwealth, of the country and from beyond the borders of the United States have come expressions of sympathy and with them unstinted encomiums to the worth, the service and the character of the dead statesman. The utterances have been confined to no party or school or creed, for all have seemed to recognize, as Lieut. Gov. Curtis Guild has said, that "he was foremost in our commonwealth as a promoter of that large brotherhood of American citizenship that knows no lines of color or caste or race or creed."

His Career.

George Frisbie Hoar was born in Concord, Mass., August 20, 1826. He was educated at Concord academy and at Harvard college, from which he was graduated in 1846. He studied law at Harvard Law school and was admitted to the bar at Worcester, where he was soon chosen as city solicitor and as president of the city library trustees. In 1851 he was elected to the Massachusetts legislature, and in 1856 to the state senate. In 1868 he was sent to congress and was reelected to the three following congresses, but declined renomination finally. He was chosen senator from Massachusetts in 1877, and has been in the senate continuously since. He was a potent force in shaping legislation and in the councils of his party.

He was an overseer of Harvard college from 1878 to 1880; he presided over the Massachusetts state republican conventions of 1871, 1877, 1882 and 1885. He was a delegate to the national republican conventions of 1876 at Cincinnati, and of 1880, 1884 and 1888 at Chicago. He was one of the managers of the Belknap impeachment trial in 1876 and a member of the electoral commission in the same year. At various times he had been regent of the Smithsonian institution, trustee of Leicester academy and of the Peabody Museum of Archeaology, president and vice president of the American Antiquarian Historical society and the Historic-Genealogical society. The degree of LL.D. was conferred on him by William and Mary, Amherst, Harvard and Yale.

A WESTERN TRAGEDY.

Bandit Kills One Man, Wounds Two and Then Commits Suicide.

Silverton, Col., Oct. 1.—A masked bandit shot and killed John Loftus, a faro dealer, and seriously wounded Herman Stroble and James Bockwell in J. H. Slattery's saloon and gambling house Friday, and then killed himself. The dead bandit, a powerful man, over six feet in height, has not been identified. He was armed with two revolvers, and on entering the saloon he ordered the dozen or more men who were there to throw up their hands. Instead of complying, Stroble, Loftus and Bockwell, employes in the place, attempted to overpower the robber and the shooting ensued.

Emperor in Good Health.

Berlin, Sept. 30.—Contrary to the reports circulated in the United States by a news agency Wednesday Emperor William is described by members of his suite as being in perfect health and as speaking in a clear and natural voice.

Famous Actor Bereaved.

Keene, N. H., Oct. 3.—Mrs. Denman Thompson, wife of the actor and author of the "Old Homestead," died at her home in West Swanzey Sunday.

Takes No Action.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 1.—The supreme court adjourned until October 18, without taking action on the La Follette case.

DAVIS' LETTER IS OUT.

In Accepting Nomination for Vice Presidency He Reviews Issues of Campaign.

Elkins, W. Va., Oct. 3.—Hon. Henry G. Davis, democratic nominee for vice-president of the United States, has forwarded to Hon. John Sharp Williams, chairman, and other members of the notification committee, his letter formally accepting the nomination. He says the times are propitious for the reinstatement of the democratic party in control of the government, and declares that thoughtful and patriotic people are becoming more and more distrustful of the heady and personal element of the present administration, and are more than willing to see it replaced by one that better recognizes constitutional and other lawful restraints. He charges the administration with extravagance in governmental expenditure.

With reference to the Panama canal, Mr. Davis deprecates the action of the present administration, which inflicted a wound upon our national honor by its disregard of the rights of a weaker nation in order to gain a doubtful credit for energy in forwarding that great enterprise.

On the tariff question Mr. Davis says relief from present conditions will only come through the success of the democratic party, which stands for a wise, conservative and gradual change in the tariff laws, which will equalize the burdens of taxation and make honest competition possible.

Mr. Davis points out the evils which come to the people through combinations of capital and corporate interests which are so conducted as to be pernicious and harmful to the general interest. He heartily endorses the declaration in the St. Louis platform in favor of arbitration. He declares the revival by the republican party of the race issue must of necessity retard the development of the southern states, and will seriously interfere with the industrial progress of both nations. In conclusion Mr. Davis pays a high tribute to Judge Parker.

DEATH OF A STATESMAN.

Sir William Vernon-Harcourt, Long Leader in Politics in Great Britain, Suddenly Called.

London, Oct. 3.—Sir William Vernon Harcourt, "the finest political gladiator of his age," died very suddenly Saturday at Nuneham park, near Oxford, the county seat which he recently inherited from his nephew. Only his wife, a daughter of the late John Lothrop Motley, the historian and former American minister to Great Britain, was with him. When Sir William went to bed Friday night he seemed fairly well, though he had been suffering from a slight chill. Saturday morning when he was called he replied cheerily: "In a short time." Later a servant entered the room and found Sir William lying dead on his bed.

Sir William Vernon-Harcourt became the liberal leader in the house of commons on Mr. Gladstone's retirement in 1894, and held that position until February last, when he announced his intention of retiring from parliament. He was for 40 years a well known figure in British politics.

Sir William George Granville Vernon-Harcourt was born October 14, 1827. Educated at Trinity college, Cambridge, where he graduated in 1851, he was called to the bar. He entered political life in 1858, when he made an unsuccessful contest for the Kirkcaldy burghs. In 1866 he was appointed queen's counsel and was returned to the house of commons for the city of Oxford in the liberal interest in 1868. He was appointed solicitor general in November, 1873, on which occasion he was knighted. When Gladstone returned to power in May, 1880, Sir William Harcourt was nominated secretary of state for the home department. He went out of office in June, 1885, but in January, 1886, he was made chancellor of the exchequer.

SAFELY LAUNCHED.

The New Battleship Connecticut Slides from the Ways at New York Navy Yard.

New York, Sept. 30.—The battleship Connecticut was launched at the New York navy yard on Thursday, in the presence of nearly 30,000 persons. The Connecticut, when finished, will be the finest and most powerful boat in the American navy and will rank with the most powerful battleships of the navies of other nations.

The Connecticut is of steel, with a trial displacement of 16,000 tons and a maximum displacement of 17,770 tons. The vessel is 450 feet on the load water line, 456.4 feet over all. She will carry three funnels, two military masts, two main and four secondary turrets, and a main deck central battery. The armor has a total weight of 3,992 tons. Her armament will consist of four 12-inch breech-loading guns, one pair in the forward turret and another aft; and eight 8-inch guns mounted in pairs in four turrets on the superstructure. In the main deck battery there will be 12 7-inch rapid-fire guns, mounted six to a broadside. In addition there will be 12 14-pounders, 12 3-pounders, six 1-pound automatic guns, two 1-pound semi-automatic, and eight 30-inch machine guns. The Connecticut is to be fitted for use as a flagship, and when in commission will carry 42 officers and 761 men. She is not to exceed $4,212,000 in cost.

JOHN A. JOHNSON'S PLEDGE.

In the great contest about to be opened I shall stand for untrammeled competition and will uphold the law. I believe consolidation of competing railway lines to be unholy and contrary to the good of our great state. The so-called merger was a crime against the laws of Minnesota, and if the present executive of Minnesota is entitled to great credit for any special services it was for his uncompromising and unyielding war to uphold the dignity of the law in that respect.

THE Thief River Review might profitably take a dose of it's own medicine by getting in line for Daniel Shaw.

DID we hear the Thief River Review say that every Republican should vote for Ray Jones? Or was it only a dream?

THE secretary of the Republican county committee refuses to tell the readers of his paper why they should support Ray Jones for lieutenant governor.

JOEL HEATWOLE's senatorial chances may not have been materially improved by the interference of the United States senators in the state campaign, but on the other hand the Republican state ticket has only Jim Martin on the profit side of the column.

THE COURIER is glad to see its Republican contemporary, the Gazette, getting away from party prejudice and advise the voters to vote for county officials from the standpoint of fitness. As the Gazette says: "In the past the Red Lake county voters have used excellent judgment in this respect." It might have added, too, that they almost invariably elected Democrats.

IN justice to Hon. Fendall G. Winston, Democratic nominee for lieutenant governor, the Warren Register should correct the statement that Mr. Winston was a soldier in the Confederate army. If the Register desires to be entirely frank with its readers it might also inform them that Ray Jones, the Republican nominee, has not denied the charge that he was convicted in the Federal courts of stealing goverment timber.

A CHICAGO man has opened a ghost store which he conducts strictly on the quiet, and deals only with seance performers who find ghosts necessary to their business. The machines he sells are guaranteed to produce a shadowy human form, a reproduction of any photograph placed in the proper receptacle. The figures come out and float around the room, and even talk in subdued tones. Men, women and children are brought out, but if the operator is in much doubt about the features he turns a screw that makes the face too hazy for distinct outline. Of course, public men who are dead, and of whom it is possible to have good pictures, are presented with great accuracy. Truly there are tricks in many trades.

HOW ABOUT JONES?

The independence of the Minneapolis Journal in opposing the Republican candidate for governor is admired by a large portion of the people. The Journal is no doubt honest in the contention that John A. Johnson is a better candidate and that he would make a batter executive. But there is another candidate on the Republican state ticket so notoriously unfit for public place that no Republican speaker or paper dares to defend him, and in order to be consistent the Journal should make some reference to the matter. Perhaps Editor McLain has overlooked the importance of this candidacy to the voters of Minnesota, but now that his attention to has been called specifically the lieutenant governorship we trust he will give the people the benefit of his opinion. Does the Journal believe that Ray W. Jones is entitled to the support of the voters of the state? Does the Journal believe that the best interests of the state would be subserved by again entrusting this important post to a self-confessed lumber thief? There is a possibility that Mr. Jones may become governor by some unkind freak of fate. Would the Journal commend him as a fit person to administer the timber laws of Minnesota? THE COURIER would like to be enlighted. Why shouldn't the Journal give the desired information?

JIM MARTIN'S SURRENDER.

There has been some political history made in Minnesota during the past week, and out of it all comes the universal belief, that John A. Johnson will be the next governor of Minnesota. About ten days ago Senator Knute Nelson made several speeches in the western part of the state. He found the Republicans eager to cheer the mention of Roosevelt, but when state issues were mentioned the crowds were dumb as oysters and refused to be enthused at the laudatory mentions of the state ticket. Senator Nelson came to St. Paul immediately and went after the state committee with a club, announcing in language positive and vitrolic that the state ticket was doomed to certain defeat unless the Van Sant Republicans were got in line and the impression that Dunn was a merger candidate corrected in the minds of the country voters.

As a sequel the secretary of the state committee, W. E. Verity, was unceremoniously fired through the window, and Jim Martin, who conducted the pre-convention fight for Collins and said more derogatory words against Robert C. Dunn and other Republican candidates than any Democrat would have dared to say, was placed in charge of the campaign. Jim was not brought back into line easily. He was bought. It is openly charged and not denied that Mr. Martin is to be made collector of internal revenue at the close of the campaign. This job pays $3,000 a year, and as Jim is not in politics altogether for his health he was induced to surrender.

In the meantime the pre-convention supporters of Collins are still out for Johnson, and the betrayal of Martin seems to do the Republican state ticket about as much good as the apostasy of Benedict Arnold did the army of King George in the early days of the Revolution.

FOR COUNTY ATTORNEY.

For the office of county attorney the Democratic party has no candidate in the present campaign, and members of that party have the privilege of choosing between the Republican nominee and the independent candidate. As a matter of fact it is generally known that both candidates are Republicans, so there is no opportunity to vote for a candidate of any other party. Both candidates are acknowledged to be good attorneys and both are enterprising and highly-esteemed residents of Red Lake Falls. The situation resolves itself into a matter of personal preference and personal choice. Had the Democratic party a creditable candidate naturally enough this paper would prefer to support him, and doubtless all of the Democrats of the county would use their influence to secure his election. Personally, THE COURIER believes that Thomas Germo is entitled to the election as county attorney. He is capable, honorable and deserving. He is a life-long Republican and ever since he has been of age his services and sympathies have been given to the party of his choice. For this reason, as well as on the ground of fitness and ability, he is entitled to the support of every Republican. For the latter reason the Democrats can consistently vote for him, and if elected Mr. Germo will be the servant of all the people and in his official capacity will recognize no party or faction, Two years ago THE COURIER opposed Mr. Germo as a matter of party duty and obligation, but it has ever recognized his personal worth and legal ability, and now that there is no candidate on its own ticket, is glad to give support and encouragement to his candidacy.

JOHN A. JOHNSON'S ACCEPTANCE SPEECH.

In strong antithesis to the statement of R. C. Dunn, that the anti-merger prosecution instituted by the governor and attorney-general "is a fight between the great southern railway and Mr. Hill," John A. Johnson, the Democratic standard-bearer, charges the merger with being "a crime against the laws of Minnesota" and pays a tribute to Governor Van Sant's "uncompromising and unyielding war to uphold the dignity of the law."

Nominated by acclamation by the united Democracy of Minnesota, August 30, 1904, on the platform—"The law forbidding merger of competing lines of railway should be enforced against offender"—Mr. Johnson when waited upon by the notification committee addressed the convention on this point as follows:

"I believe in the constitution of our country and state, and I believe now and always have in equal rights for all and special privileges for none. In the great contest about to be opened I shall stand for untrammelled competition and shall uphold the law. I believe the consolidation of competing railway lines to be unholy and contrary to the good of our great state. The so-called merger was a crime against the laws of Minnesota, and if the present executive of Minnesota is entitled to great credit for any special service it was for his uncompromising and unyielding war to uphold the dignity of the law in that respect. I am opposed to all combinations made for the restraint of trade and the restriction of competition."

In the campaign of 1904 John A. Johnson is the anti-merger candidate of the people; just as R. C. Dunn is the candidate of the merger interest.

Karl M. Hansen, of Thief River Falls, the Democratic nominee for county treasurer of Red Lake county, was born at St. Ansgar, Iowa, thirty-six years ago and was educated in the public schools and in the seminary and institute of his home town. In 1888-9 he attended the Decorah Business college and took up the studies of bookkeeping and commercial law. After completing his studies he went to Boulder, Montana, where he followed the newspaper profession. In 1893 he arrived in Thief River Falls, and has resided there ever since. In 1895 he was married to Grace H. Dougherty, and soon after engaged in the engaged in the general merchandise business, continuing in this line until 1900, when he disposed of his interests and has since been engaged in conducting an insurance and real estate office. He was a member of the village council before Thief River was organized as a city, and when Red Lake county was set off from "old Polk" he became a member of the board of county commissioners and took a leading part in the organization of the county. A firm believer in the benefits and needs of drainage, he always voted in favor of the establishment of ditches when on the county board. On account of his ability to speak both the English and Scandinavian languages, and besides being one of the best penmen in the county and a rapid accountant, he is in every way fully qualified and adapted to fill the office to the entire satisfaction of the tav payers of Red Lake county.

Ingalls' Opportunity.

The following classic bit of verse from the pen and brain of the late Senator Ingalls of Kansas, is said to be the favorite poem of both President Roosevelt and Judge Parker.

Master of human destinies am I,
Love, fame and fortune on my footsteps wait.
Cities and fields I walk; I penetrate
Deserts and seas remote, and passing by
Hovel and mart and palace, soon or late
I knock unbidden once at every gate.
If sleeping, wake; if feasting, rise
Before I turn away. It is the hour of fate
And those who follow me reach every state
Mortals desire and conquer every foe
Save death. But they who doubt or hesitate—
Condemned to failure, penury and woe—
Seek me in vain and uselessly implore,
I hear them not, and I return no more.

When one reads that poem and remembers that Ingalls was a statesman, and hopes to live in history as such, he wonders at the futility of human striving and of human desire. When all that Ingalls ever did by the way of statesmanship has been forgotten, this poem will be read and cherished and the student of literature will delve among the musty tomes to learn something of the personal history of the author.

Eb. Was Too "Safe."

Windom Reporter: The Windom Reporter sagely advises the young ladies that it is always safe to go boat riding with a bashful man, because he never stirs after getting seated. But the editor probably knows that safety isn't a primary consideration with the average young lady, says the Red Lake Falls COURIER. At Red Lake Falls we should say not. We remember of seeing some of the young ladies there roll off of logs into the river.

8 Cents

Eight cents a pound is what a young woman paid for twelve pounds of flesh.

She was thin and weak and paid one dollar for a bottle of Scott's Emulsion, and by taking regular doses had gained twelve pounds in weight before the bottle was finished.

Eight cents a pound is cheap for such valuable material. Some pay more, some less, some get nothing for their money. You get your money's worth when you buy Scott's Emulsion.

PERUNA
MR. and MRS. SCHWANDT Sanborn, Minn.

W. D. WATSON, Clovis, Fresno County, Cal., writes:

"God bless you for what you have done for me. The rheumatism has all disappeared, and to-day all exclaim, 'How well you look!' I tell them yes, and I owe it all to Dr. Hartman for his good advice to me. To-day finds me as free from pain as I ever was. The rainy season has set in here, but the change hasn't affected me as it used to. I am very thankful that I have found out that you can and will help the suffering ones that will follow your advice. Several have asked me what cured me, and I tell them. They get the medicine then. We keep Peruna in the house. My daughter has two sons, and they keep well and go to school, and they take the medicine every day.

"My wife was troubled with a pain in her side for years. Now she is taking your medicine and is real smart. I will do all I can for you and for those who need your advice."

Mr. Jno. O. Atkinson, Independence, Mo., Box 272, writes:

"Your remedies do all that you claim for them, and even more. Catarrh cannot exist where Peruna is taken according to directions. Peruna completely cured my wife and I of catarrhal troubles of twenty-five years standing. In my rounds as a traveling man I am a walking advertisement of Peruna."

Mrs. Alla Schwandt, Sanborn, Minn., writes:

"I have been troubled with rheumatism and catarrh for twenty-five years. Could not sleep day or night. After having used Peruna I can sleep and nothing bothers me now. If I ever am affected with any kind of sickness Peruna will be the medicine I shall use. My son was cured of catarrh of the larynx by Peruna."—Mrs. Alla Schwandt.

Why Old People are Especially Liable to Systemic Catarrh.

When old age comes on, catarrhal diseases come also. Systemic catarrh is almost universal in old people.

This explains why Peruna has become so indispensable to old people. Peruna is their safeguard. Peruna is the only remedy yet devised that meets these cases exactly.

Such cases cannot be treated locally; nothing but an effective systemic remedy could cure them. This is exactly what Peruna is.

If you do not receive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

The Old "Boss" Talks.

Will A. Wells, in Litchville, N. D., Bulletin: The nomination of John E. King, by the Democrats of Minnesota, for the office of secretary of state is a particularly happy and worthy selection. Mr. King is editor of the Red Lake Falls COURIER, and a gentleman of great decision of character and unflinching integrity. The Bulletin man knew him as boy and man and every act of his life has been worthy and creditable. He learned his trade and became an excellent newspaper maker in a country printing office owned by the writer, and his faults were so few and his character so altogether admirable, that to speak a word in his behalf is a great pleasure. Mr. King is eminently fitted for the high office for which he has been nominated and he is in every way competent to administer its duties in a manner that will do honor to the state. His acquaintance in Minnesota is large and his friends and the friends of capable and honest government will sincerely wish for his election.

Canadian Reciprocity.

Eveleth News: The necessity of reciprocity with Canada grows more apparent daily to everybody except the politician. The wheat field of the Northwest is said to be moving across the border, and if the wheat cannot come into the United States to be ground, it will be ground in Canada. It is a foolish thing to make a charge against merchandise that may happen to cross a surveyor's line, even if that line is the Forty-ninth parallel.

JIM MARTIN'S SURRENDER.

There has been some political history made in Minnesota during the past week, and out of it all comes the universal belief, that John A. Johnson will be the next governor of Minnesota. About ten days ago Senator Knute Nelson made several speeches in the western part of the state. FOR COUNTY ATTORNEY.

For the office of county attorney the Democratic party has no candidate in the present campaign, and members of that party have the privilege of choosing between the Republican nominee and the independent candidate. As a matter of fact it is generally known that both candidates are Republicans, so there is no opportunity to vote for a candidate of any other party. JOHN A. JOHNSON'S ACCEPTANCE SPEECH.

In strong antithesis to the statement of R. C. Dunn, that the anti-merger prosecution instituted by the governor and attorney-general "is a fight between the great southern railway and Mr. Hill," John A. Johnson, the Democratic standard-bearer, charges the merger with being "a crime against the laws of Minnesota" and pays a tribute to Governor Van Sant's "uncompromising and unyielding war to uphold the dignity of the law."

Nominated by acclamation by the united Democracy of Minnesota, August 30, 1904, on the platform—"The law forbidding merger of competing lines of railway should be enforced against offender"—Mr. Johnson when waited upon by the notification committee addressed the convention on this point as follows:

"I believe in the constitution of our country and state, and I believe now and always have in equal rights for all and special privileges for none. In the great contest about to be opened I shall stand for untrammelled competition and shall uphold the law. *I believe the consolidation of competing railway lines to be unholy and contrary to the good of our great state. I am opposed to all combinations made for the restraint of trade and the restriction of competition."

In the campaign of 1904 John A. Johnson is the anti-merger candidate for the people, just as R. C. Dunn is the candidate of the merger interest.

I hear them not, and I return no more.

When one reads that poem and remembers that Ingalls was a statesman, and hopes to live in history as such, he wonders at the futility of human striving and of human desire. When all that Ingalls ever did by the way of statesmanship has been forgotten, this poem will be read and cherished and the student of literature will delve among the musty tomes to learn something of the personal history of the author.

Eb. Was Too "Safe."

Windom Reporter: The Windom Reporter sagely advises the young ladies that it is always safe to go boat riding with a bashful man, because he never stirs after getting seated. But the editor probably knows that safety isn't a primary consideration with the average young lady, says the Red Lake Falls COURIER. At Red Lake Falls we should say not. We remember of seeing some of the young ladies there roll off of logs into the river.

8 Cents

Eight cents a pound is what a young woman paid for twelve pounds of flesh.

She was thin and weak and paid one dollar for a bottle of Scott's Emulsion, and by taking regular doses had gained twelve pounds in weight before the bottle was finished.

Eight cents a pound is cheap for such valuable material. Some pay more, some less, some get nothing for their money. You get your money's worth when you buy Scott's Emulsion.

THE OLD FOLKS AT HOME

Are Never Without Peruna in the House for Catarrhal Diseases.

MR. AND MRS. WATSON, CLOVIS, CAL.
MR. and MRS. SCHWANDT Sanborn, Minn.

W. D. WATSON, Clovis, Fresno County, Cal., writes:

"God bless you for what you have done for me. The rheumatism has all disappeared, and to-day all exclaim, 'How well you look!' I tell them yes, and I owe it all to Dr. Hartman for his good advice to me. To-day finds me as free from pain as I ever was. The rainy season has set in here, but the change hasn't affected me as it used to. I am very thankful that I have found out that you can and will help the suffering ones that will follow your advice. Several have asked me what cured me, and I tell them. They get the medicine then. We keep Peruna in the house. My daughter has two sons, and they keep well and go to school, and they take the medicine every day.

"My wife was troubled with a pain in her side for years. Now she is taking your medicine and is real smart. I will do all I can for you and for those who need your advice."

Mr. Jno. O. Atkinson, Independence, Mo., Box 272, writes:

"Your remedies do all that you claim for them, and even more. Catarrh cannot exist where Peruna is taken according to directions. Peruna completely cured my wife and I of catarrhal troubles of twenty-five years standing. In my rounds as a traveling man I am a walking advertisement of Peruna."

Mrs. Alla Schwandt, Sanborn, Minn., writes:

"I have been troubled with rheumatism and catarrh for twenty-five years. Could not sleep day or night. After having used Peruna I can sleep and nothing bothers me now. If I ever am affected with any kind of sickness Peruna will be the medicine I shall use. My son was cured of catarrh of the larynx by Peruna."—Mrs. Alla Schwandt.

Why Old People are Especially Liable to Systemic Catarrh.

When old age comes on, catarrhal diseases come also. Systemic catarrh is almost universal in old people.

This explains why Peruna has become so indispensable to old people. Peruna is their safeguard. Peruna is the only remedy yet devised that meets these cases exactly.

Such cases cannot be treated locally; nothing but an effective systemic remedy could cure them. This is exactly what Peruna is.

If you do not receive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

The Old "Boss" Talks.

Will A. Wells, in Litchville, N. D., Bulletin: The nomination of John E. King, by the Democrats of Minnesota, for the office of secretary of state is a particularly happy and worthy selection. Mr. King is editor of the Red Lake Falls COURIER, and a gentleman of great decision of character and unflinching integrity. The Bulletin man knew him as boy and man and every act of his life has been worthy and creditable. He learned his trade and became an excellent newspaper maker in a country printing office owned by the writer, and his faults were so few and his character so altogether admirable, that to speak a word in his behalf is a great pleasure. Mr. King is eminently fitted for the high office for which he has been nominated and he is in every way competent to administer its duties in a manner that will do honor to the state. His acquaintance in Minnesota is large and his friends and the friends of capable and honest government will sincerely wish for his election.

Canadian Reciprocity.

Eveleth News: The necessity of reciprocity with Canada grows more apparent daily to everybody except the politician. The wheat field of the Northwest is said to be moving across the border, and if the wheat cannot come into the United States to be ground, it will be ground in Canada. It is a foolish thing to make a charge against merchandise that may happen to cross a surveyor's line, even if that line is the Forty-ninth parallel.

Sidewalks and hard floors are hard on business styles of shoes. The "Judge" and "Orthopedic" shapes of smooth box calf leather make a desirable shoe for business wear. Price, $3.50. You are invited to inspect the line of W. L. Douglas shoes at Garceau & Zaiser.

Francois LaBissoniere is expected home tomorrow from North Yakima, where he has spent the spring and summer. At one time Mr. LaBissoniere had serious intentions of moving his family to the West, but we understand he has given up the idea, at least for the present.

Rev. Conrad Nauman arrived home last week for a short visit with his family. Some four months ago Rev. Nauman went to Spokane, Wash., to accept the pastorate of the German Evangelical church in that city. He likes the work and will return the fore part of next week to resume his pastoral duties.

The ladies' aid society of the Presbyterian church will hold a business meeting at the church parlors next Wednesday afternoon, October 12, at three o'clock. Important business will come before the meeting and all ladies of the congregation interested in the church work are expected to be present.

Your feet sometime have an aching sensation across the ball of the foot. Usually this is from constantly wearing the same shoe. The leather contracts and causes a burning sensation. The "Atlantic" style and toe of Douglas shoe is best intended for that purpose, being a popular toe on a foot-form last. For sale by Garceau & Zaiser.

Lucian Phillon and daughter, Miss Olive, arrived Saturday from Chicago, where they have been living during the past six months. They will reside here permanently and Mrs. Phillon and the balance of the family are expected in a week or ten days. Miss Olive has taken her old place as bookkeeper and cashier at LaBissoniere's store.

NATIVE MINNESOTAN

JOHN A. JOHNSON, DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR, BORN IN ST. PETER.

POPULAR IN HIS HOME TOWN

WHERE BEST KNOWN IS LOVED AND RESPECTED BY PEOPLE OF ALL CLASSES.

SOUND ON PUBLIC QUESTIONS

HONEST AND INDEPENDENT, IS TIED TO NO SPECIAL INTERESTS OR CLIQUES.

For the first time in the history of Minnesota the people of this commonwealth have an opportunity to elect a native son of Minnesota to the chair of governor. John A. Johnson was born in St. Peter, Nicollet county, Minn., July 28, 1862, and as schoolboy, editor and state senator has lived there ever since.

Minnesota has reached the period in its development when it is great enough to produce a governor from its own blood and brain, bone and sinew. It is bigger than all New England, which has produced not only governors but presidents. Its population today exceeds that of Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire and Rhode Island combined. It has more homes free of mortgage and owned by the family tenants than Massachusetts. It has nearly as many pupils enrolled in the public schools as Massachusetts and a much less percentage of illiteracy. Ranking nineteenth among the states in population, it stands tenth in number of newspapers, the state press of Minnesota outnumbering that of Massachusetts by nearly 150 newspapers and approximating the total of the entire Russian empire. Minnesota stands first among the states in the production of wheat, flour and iron, as well as in the quality of its creamery butter. In short, it has every element necessary for the production of a high grade class of governor—a governor who will be all Minnesotan in birth, breeding, education, environment, interest and loyalty, and for the public interests and welfare of Minnesota and its institutions first, last and always—and in John A. Johnson it has the man.

By reason of the poverty and hard circumstances of youth young Johnson was compelled to leave school at the age of thirteen to help support the family. He had three years' experience in grocery and general merchandise business and a year in railway construction. To this strenuous workday activity and to a good constitution inherited from Scandinavian stock Johnson owes his muscular vigor. He learned thoroughly the drug business, following it as man and boy for nine years, being the thirteenth registered druggist to receive the certificate of the state. Not because he considered the number thirteen unlucky, but because he finally had saved enough capital to get a small start in the newspaper business, he at length, Dec. 17, 1886, at the age of twenty-four, purchased a half interest in the St. Peter Herald, the editorial firm being the now long familiar one of Essler & Johnson, and joined the Minnesota editorial fraternity, of which he has been one of the leading lights, as well as one of the most popular and beloved, for eighteen years.

One of the greatest factors in the upbuilding of Minnesota is the state press. Its influence has been great educationally and politically, in both civic and material advancement. It has advertised Minnesota and its resources until it has gathered within the state boundaries nearly 2,000,000 people in less than fifty years. It has brought in immigration and preached diversified industry until Minnesota requires a railway mileage greater than that of New England to market its productions. It has stood by the public schools and the university until Minnesota has more pupils enrolled in the public schools than Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire and Rhode Island combined and one of the greatest universities in America. The state press has been always and is now the chief power in controlling legislation and determining the state government. It placed railroad lands upon the tax list in spite of a most powerful railroad lobby. It defeated weak legislators and built up public sentiment until it carried the cause for the passage of the law for the increase of railway gross earnings taxes from 3 to 4 per cent. It made the popular sentiment of Minnesota almost a unit against the railway merger. It has made nearly all the governors and a good share of the United States senators of Minnesota during the past twenty years.

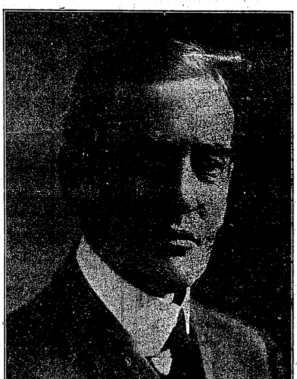
Good Influence of State Press.

The state press of Minnesota numbers over 700 publications. It outnumbers that of all New England outside of Massachusetts and is over one-fourth greater in number than the press of Massachusetts. In proportion to population Minnesota has from one-half more to twice as many newspapers as New York, Pennsylvania or Ohio. The voice of the press of Minnesota is the voice of the people. It stands for the public interest against the machinations and intrigues of the powerful few. It says to the official holding a public trust: "Keep faith with the people; surrender your public office to special interests and private greed at your peril—equal rights for all and special privileges to none!"

Although compelled at the age of thirteen to leave public school to work for a living John A. Johnson did not neglect opportunity for study, and when at the age of twenty-four he took the editorial pen on the St. Peter Herald he rose promptly to front rank in Minnesota country journalism. In 1891 he was elected secretary of the State Editorial association and in 1893 was elected by his contemporaries to the office of president. It is significant that among the whole 700 publications of the state there is not one that, moved by professional jealousy or partisan bias, has yet uttered a word derogatory to John A. Johnson. His integrity, his ability, his fidelity to the public interests, his fitness for the high office of governor stand unquestioned by the editorial fraternity of the state that knows him so well. In this regard the campaign of John A. Johnson for governor opens with an editorial welcome that has no parallel in the history of Minnesota politics.

Popular in His Home Town.

In his St. Peter home, as in Nicollet county and the country tributary, Mr. Johnson is loved and respected by all, regardless of age, occupation, party or nationality. He is always active and warm hearted, clear headed and courageous, in everything he takes up, approachable to all and responsive to every call, whether of the public or of an unfortunate neighbor in need. His activity in the cause of Gustavus Adolphus college is an index of his active loyalty to every local cause of public worth. Among the institutions with which his public and social activities brought him into contact is the state national guard, of which he was for many years a member, being successively sergeant, lieutenant and captain. In 1894 Mr. Johnson was married to Miss Eleanor Preston of Wonewoc, Wis., who has made his home a strong adjunct to his public life.



JOHN A. JOHNSON.

His entrance into politics as a candidate began in 1888, when he ran for the state legislature against Hon. C. R. Davis, now congressman of the Third district, and was defeated by the narrow margin of 126 votes in a strongly Republican district. In 1894 Johnson entered a three cornered fight against C. R. Davis and John Peterson for the senate and was defeated by the latter in a close fight. Finally, in 1898, Johnson was elected to the state senate over Professor J. S. Carlson, then of Gustavus Adolphus college, now a member of the faculty of the state university, by a majority of 125. In 1902, against another Johnson, the Hon. C. A. Johnson, with a combination of "too much Johnson" on the Australian ballot, John A. was defeated by the narrow margin of 76 votes in a district which went Republican on the state ticket by 600.

Record as State Senator.

As a member of the state senate during the regular sessions of 1899 and 1901 and the special session of 1902 Senator Johnson followed the plan of centering his work on a few important measures, rather than scattering his activity by the introduction and support of a large volume of legislative bills. Perhaps the measure to which he gave his greatest energies as state senator was the bill to increase railway gross earnings taxes. He gave it his loyal and earnest support both in 1899-1900, when it failed of passage by a vote, and in 1901-2, when it passed both houses, but failed of sufficient support when submitted to the people for ratification at the polls. The final ratification of this measure, which is practically certain in November, will add $500,000 to $600,000 per annum in revenue to the state treasury and in time enable the state government to pay its expenses without the levy of the present state per capita tax.

Senator Johnson was opposed to the board of control bill and by amendments and other legitimate means sought to defeat its passage. At the present time he is aggressively opposed to any proposed new legislation giving the board of control power over the state university or other state educational institutions. He believes that the university board of regents and president should have absolute control of the educational policy of that institution and that the supervision of the board of control should apply only to the purchase of supplies.

Favors Amending Primary Law.

Although a supporter of the present primary election law while a member of the senate Mr. Johnson is opposed to its extension in its present form to state primary elections. He believes the abuses of the present law should be corrected before it is extended.

Always an ardent advocate of good roads editorially and otherwise Senator Johnosn introduced two bills looking to that end while a member of the senate.

Holding that the subject of railway rates is one of the most vital to the country's industrial development Mr. Johnson as senator introduced a resolution memorializing congress to extend the powers of the interstate commerce commission. He believes the state should exercise its constitutional powers in the matter of railroad rates and that Minnesota should not be paying 50 per cent higher merchandise rates than its sister state of Iowa on the south or one-third higher grain rates than its neighboring province of Manitoba on the north. Were Minnesota placed on the Iowa basis in the matter of local merchandise rates and on the Manitoba basis in the matter of grain rates there would be a saving of millions of dollars per annum to Minnesota industries in the matter of transportation charges and a general commercial and industrial expansion throughout our commonwealth; and Mr. Johnson believes the state should exercise its lawful executive and legislative powers to this end.

Stands Squarely on Platform.

John A. Johnson stands squarely on the state Democratic platform of 1904, as well as on the national platform. He believes in the right of labor to organize and as governor would stand against any attempt to abridge that lawful right. On the merger question he stands for the strict and impartial enforcement of the law without fear or favoritism and will use the whole power of the office of governor for the protection of the public interests in this direction. On the tariff he is an earnest exponent of Canadian reciprocity, which he believes will double the commercial territory and development of Minnesota, and holds that lumber and other trust controlled products should go to the free list.

The nomination of John A. Johnson for governor was by acclamation of the whole state of Minnesota. At the convention there was no dissenting voice; in the state at large there has been no voice of dissent. He is supported by a united Democracy. More than that he is the choice of thousands of intelligent and independent voters in all parties who believe the time has come when special interests shall cease to reap privileges and hold power in the executive offices of the state capitol. He has the hearty support of thousands, even of Republican voters who place the public interest at stake in this crisis as paramount to that of a partisan or personal faction and who demand that there shall be seated in the chair of governor of Minnesota a clean and courageous man, without stain or corrupt ties, bound to no special interest or combination of greed, a man who is honest, independent, brave and brainy enough to steer the ship of state clear of the rocks of corporate influence on the one hand and of the breakers of mob and slum rule on the other; and in John A. Johnson the people of Minnesota know at this hour that they have such a man.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Gold and Silver Plate.

Valuations on gold and silver plate in Hennepin county was raised 100 per cent by the state board of equalization while Ramsey county suffered an increase of 300 per cent on the returns. The board went after this item in the schedule savagely, as the total returns for the state were only $161,704 this year against $339,963 last year. Hennepin furnished nearly half the valuation, 70,677, but this was low compared to last year, when Hennepin paid on $147,465. Ramsey returned only $33,250, compared with $132,812 last year. H. W. Fagley, the St. Paul member, declared that two families alone owned as much as the return, but he protested against the increase because it hit the honest ones who had made returns.

Some counties reported nothing under this item, while Olmsted, containing the city of Rochester, reported only $25. This valuation was not tuuched.

Death of Charles A. Morey

Charles A. Morey, president of the state normal board, died suddenly from apoplexy, while driving in the country near Winona. He was born in Vermont in 1851, attended school at Lake City, and graduated from the Winona normal school in 1872.

Two years later he became a professor in the school, and in 1876 was elected president, which position he held three years, resigning to take up the study of law.

For more than twenty years he had been a member of the normal board. He was an original member of the board of control, but resigned after his fall in the capital three years ago.

Mr. Morey had anticipated sudden death for some time past, and had placed his affairs in condition for such an event.

Cigar Almost Deadly.

A most peculiar case of nicotine poisoning nearly caused the death of E. R. Lynch of St. Paul.

Mr. Lynch was enjoying an after-dinner smoke at the grocery store of a friend. The cigar did not draw well and he punched a hole in the end with a match, and a considerable quantity of nicotine accumulated in the hole of the cigar.

He laid the cigar down, and when he relit it, it again drew hard. Mr. Lynch gave two or three vigorous puffs, which loosened the accumulated nicotine, and he swallowed a large part of it. The effect of the poison was almost instanious. He became dizzy, suffered from nausea and in a moment fell to the floor apparently dead. He was finally resuscitated.

Violent Death

Edward D. McDonald of Proctor, who is in charge of the entire pumping equipment of the Missabe road, met with a terrible death. He was inspecting a pump at Iron Junction when he was caught by the flywheel, whirled around several times and dashed to the floor. He was fatally hurt. A special train was made up to bring him to Duluth, but he died before reaching there.

Will Use Cyclometers.

By the order of Postmaster General Payne, rural free delivery carriers in Minnesota, Wisconsin, North and South Dakota and Iowa are being supplied with cyclometers for measuring their routes, in order that the postoffice department may be enabled to adjust salaries and other matters on an equitable basis.

Rheumatism
Is Not a Skin Disease.

Most people have an idea that rheumatism is contracted like a cold, that the damp, chilly air penetrates the muscles and joints and causes the terrible aches and pains, or that it is something like a skin disease to be rubbed away with liniment or drawn out with plasters; but Rhuematism originates in the blood and is caused by Urea, or Uric Acid, an irritating, corroding poison that settles in muscles, joints and nerves, producing inflammation and soreness and the sharp, cutting pains peculiar to this distressing disease.

Exposure to bad weather or sudden chilling of the body will hasten an attack of Rheumatism after the blood and system are in the right condition for it to develop, but have nothing to do with the real true causes of Rheumatism, which are internal and not external.

Liniments, plasters and rubbing will sometimes reduce the inflammation and swelling and ease the pain for a time, but fail to relieve permanently because they do not reach the seat of the trouble. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism because it attacks it in the blood, and the Uric Acid poison is neutralized, the sluggish circulation stimulated and quickened, and soon the system is purified and cleansed, the aching muscles and joints are relieved of all irritating matter and a lasting cure of this most painful disease effected.

Bowling Green, Ky.

About a year ago I was attacked by acute rheumatism in my shoulders, arms and legs below the knee. I could not raise my arm to comb my hair. Doctors prescribed for me for over two months without giving me any relief. I saw S. S. S. advertised and decided to try it. Immediately I commenced its use I felt better, and remarked to mother that I was glad I had at last found some relief. I continued its use and am entirely well. I will always feel deeply interested in the success of S. S. S. since it did me so much good.

BLACK-DRAUGHT
STOCK & POULTRY
MEDICINE

This great stock medicine is a money saver for stock raisers. It is a medicine, not a cheap food or condition powder. Though put up in coarser form than Thedford's Black-Draught, renowned for the cure of the digestion troubles of persons, it has the same qualities of invigorating digestion, stirring up the torpid liver and loosening the constipated bowels for all stock and poultry. It is carefully prepared and its action is so healthful that stock grow and thrive with an occasional dose in their food. It cures hog cholera and makes hogs grow fat. It cures chicken cholera and roup and makes hens lay. It cures constipation, distemper and colds in horses, murrain in cattle, and makes a draught animal do more work for the food consumed. It gives animals and fowls of all kinds new life. Every farmer and raiser should certainly give it a trial.

It costs 25c. a can and saves ten times its price in profit.

PITTSBURG, KAS., March 25, 1904.
I have been using your Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine on my stock for some time. I have used all kinds of stock food but I have found that yours is the best for my purpose.

THE MAN OF GALL.

Three Aggravating Instances That Afflict Print Shops.

Litchville Bulletin: Gall is increasing rapidly on every hand. It's presence is felt everywhere. The tramp, the bum, the toothless hag and blushing maiden, the boy in his first pair of boots and the old settler, all possess more or less gall. Gall is cosmopolitan in nature; it is found everywhere, and wherever found it seems perfectly at home. Possibly no class of people in the world see so many exhibitions of gall as the country editor—gall of the double distilled, iron riveted and steel bottomed variety. The average country editor is too often regarded as a public slave, upon whom everyone is entitled to impose some species of drudgery. He is supposed to be a patient, forbearing, docile creature, utterly devoid of resentment and ever ready to praise and honor those who deserve exposure. For instance Smilix is a politician. The editor has burned midnight oil for him, fixed up the political fences and been cussed by good patrons who discontinued his paper because of it. After election Smilix never notices him. He takes his printing elsewhere. Years roll by and Smilix is again candidate for office. He suddenly remembers the editor, calls upon him for the first time in many long years, subscribes for his paper and then asks for a hundred dollars worth of labor and two hundred dollars worth of newspaper space in his behalf, and the darn fool editor in many cases goes ahead and helps elect the ungrateful wretch again and never gets a decent thank you for it. That's gall.

Hixel has another style of gall to exhibit. He not only refuses to subscribe for his local paper, but borrows it weekly. Then he puts in his spare time abusing the paper he refuses to patronize. He criticises the make-up, its cartoons, its locals, says it's "slangy" and all that sort of thing. It is so with other enterprises. He sneers at everything that costs him anything. When he gets married he wants a column write up of his many sterling qualities and the beauty of the bride and her astonishing wearing apparel, and waxes indignant when he fails to perceive his importance in the local columns. He is all take and no give.

Then he up and dies and the bereaved Mrs. Hixel calls on the editor and requests him to write a "lengthy and touching obituary of dear, good Mr. Hixel" in which the many virtues of the late lamented shall shine with the brilliancy of the eyes of a black cat in a dark garret. The editors thoughts revert to Hixel's many sins. Hard words come to his lips but they are checked by the tears in the eyes of the bereaved Mrs. Hixel, and what does he do? He nods assent to the request to give Hixel a touching send off and at once sits down and tells his readers that the death of Hixel has overwhelmed the community with grief and created a void in philanthropic circles which time will never fill. The writer of this has seen the actual occurrences of the above many times in many newspaper offices.

Then there's another kind of gall. Mr. Highman operates a good business. He is always telling the printer about himself and hinting for puffs and in consequence he gets lots of nice notices. But when Highman wants any printing, he prefers to send it to a lithographing house in some distant city and pay two prices for it. First class letter press printing isn't high-toned enough for his highfaluting taste and the merchant in his own town don't sell nice enough goods for his epicurean desires and few people are chaste enough for him to associate with. Finally Highman goes broke and must hunt new pastures. Then this man of gall, like the candidate and tne bereaved Mrs. Hixel, haunts the print shop for a good "send off."

Does he get it?

We hope not.

The ungrateful candidate, the deadbeat and the lithograph citizen ought to get their puffs where they get their goods. Editors ought to save their tears to irrigate editorial garden patches and give their good words to those who deserve them.

What Could the Poor Man Do?

It was a pitiful mistake, an error sad and grim. I waited for the railway train, the lights were low and dim. It came at last, and from a carriage stepped a dainty dame, and looking up and down the place, she straight unto me came, "Oh, Jack!" she cried, "Oh, dear old Jack!" and kissed me as she spake; then looked again, and frightened cried: "Oh, what a bad mistake!" I said "Forgive me, maiden fair, for I am not your Jack; and as regards the kiss you gave, I'll straightway give it back." And since that night I've often stood upon the platform dim; but only once in a man's whole life do such things come to him.—Ex.

P. V. Collins Publishing Company

Incorporated Aug. 13, 1904. Under the Laws of Minnesota.

THIS new corporation is a re-incorporation of The Agriculturist Company, and its assets include The Northwestern Agriculturist, together with hitherto personal enterprises of P. V. COLLINS, consisting of The Home Magazine and real estate viz., the office and press buildings located on the corner of Seventh street and sixth avenue south, Minneapolis. The real estate alone is worth $30.000.

The value of the assets exceeds $100,000 on a very conservative basis, and the capital stock of the P. V. COLLINS PUBLISHING COMPANY is $100,000 including $30,000 perferred stock and $70,000 common stock.

The preferred stock bears a Guarantee of Seven Per Cent dividend, payable semi-annually, and when redeemed, we agree to pay $102.00 a share for it. The common stock is not for sale, but is all held by P. V. COLLINS, who will continue as manager of the business, as he has since 1893. No dividends can be paid on the common stock until the guaranteed dividends in full on the preferred are paid.

We have sold much of the above preferred stock to bankers, commercial men, farmers and professional people, in sums ranging from $100 to $5,000. It is the best investment on the market and they know it. It is not often that an opportunity comes to invest money on ample security at and the opportunity will soon be past for getting any of the stock. The farmer who desires a block of it is advised to send his subscription for the shares wanted immediatedly. We much prefer to have it held by farmers, for The Nortwestern Agriculturist is a farmers' page and we realize that every farmer stockholder will be of value to us in his own community.

How to Get the Stock

The par value of the shares is $100.00 each and they are sold at par. Write to us and state how many shares you desire. Send with your letter either a check or draft for as many times $100 as you order shares. We refer to the Peoples Bank of Minneapolis.

STAIR WINS BY ONE VOTE.

Contest for Register of Deeds of Polk County is Finally Decided.

The contest between C. C. Christianson for renomination on the Republican ticket for register of deeds of Polk county and J. Harry Stair, a Crookston abstractor, for the same office, has been decided by Judge Watts in favor of Stair by the close margin of one vote. Stair getting 1,819 votes and Christianson 1,818. On the face of the returns Christianson was nominated with three votes to spare. Stair applied to the district court to have the votes from the Fourth ward of East Grand Forks recounted. In this recount Stair got six votes that had been thrown out by the judges of election, who declared the entire ballot void because in voting for the office of state representative three candidates had been voted for instead of one. Christianson also got two more votes. This gave Stair one vote to the good. Christianson then applied for a recount of the vote cast in the five Crookston wards, which was granted by Judge Watts, of the district court, with the result that Stair gained one and lost one, and Christianson gained one and lost one.

His success in building up The Northwestern Agriculturist is phenomenal and is in itself an assurance of continued success of the P. V. Collins Publishing Co. A Horrible Example.

A farmer called at our office the other day to insert a notice for a calf that he had lost. It happened that we published a lost notice the preceeding week, and on comparing he found the one advertised as found was the one he was looking for. He told us he had spent four days looking for that calf, and as a last resort had come to see if we could help him. He did not take the paper. If he had he would have saved that four days search for his calf. We tried to get him to subscribe, but he said that he took two farm papers and they were both of them cheaper than this paper, and that he never read the papers anyway. Now if that man took only farm papers, why in the name of all reason didn't he advertise his calf in one of them? But we will leave the rest of the argument for another chapter.—Ex.

LOCALS PLAY A GREAT GAME

Red Lake Falls 17, Ada 0.—Local Boys Win Their First Contest Easily.

The foot ball teams representing Ada and Red Lake Falls high schools met for their second annual contest on the gridiron last Saturday and the latter again came off victorious. The score does not by any means show the relative strength of the two teams. The Ada team outweighed the local boys by several pounds per man but the home boys showed such a superior knowledge of the fine points of the game that the additional weight against them counted for but little.

The offensive play of the home boys showed up to a much better advantage that their defensive work. This was particularly true in the matter of end runs, for when one of the Red Lake backs was given the ball for an end run he almost invariably carried the ball for good substantial gains. Ada was particularly weak in the art of tackling while the local boys seldom failed to get their man when once they got a hold of him. Ada's line men though greatly outweighing their opponents played so high that usually the home team found little difficulty in opening up holes large enough to drive an ox team through.

In the matter of defense we can not pass without expressing our satisfaction with the way Marshall, Connaty and Blake of the home team backed up their line. On many occasions Ada's backs would get through the home team's line and but for the backs mentioned would have made good gains. But without exception the local back field would jump into the breach throwing the Ada runners back and often back for a loss.

In advancing the ball Marshall, Connaty, Blake and Garceau showed up as the stars for the local team. The work of the first three being especially commendable. The boys all played well and show that they have the proper spirit necessary to win the games. Every man on the team gets into the game for all he is worth and never for a minute thinks of letting up. It was an interesting game to watch, being free from rough playing. It was a contest where skill and swiftness won a decided victory over strength.

The local boys scored all three of their touchdowns in the first half. The first one being made by Marshall after but two minutes of play. Zaiser easily converted the touchdown into a goal. Marshall also had the honor of carrying the ball across the enemy's line the second time after it had been brought to within striking distance by his associates in the back field. This touchdown also converted into a goal by aid of Zaiser good's right foot. The scoring of the third touchdown furnished the most spectacluar play of the day. The local boys had just been penalized five yards for off-side play and had about seven yards to gain on the third down. The ball was then in the middle of the field. It was passed to Garceau for an end run, and aided by some clever interference and good head work on the the part of the runner the speedy little end easily carried the ball for fifty yards and the final score of the game. The local boys would have scored in the second half but for an unfortunate fumble on their part when but ten yards from the enemy's goal line. But they did well enough and their was glory sufficient to satisfy the most enthusiastic.

Ada did not see fit to give their line up. The following was the line up of the local: R. E., Garceau R. T., Buse, R. G., Toupin, C., Zaiser, L. G., Brunelle, L. T., Columbus, L. E., Johnson, Q. B., Healy, L. H., Blake, R. H., Connaty, F. B. and Capt. Marshall.

A game will be played with the team representing the Warren high school on the local grounds next Saturday. The admission will be 25 cents, but you get ten times the worth of your money in watching the game, so turn out everybody.
